SWINDLER LODGED IN SOMERVILLE JAIL

Canadian Wanted in Many Cities for Fraudulent Work is Captured.

Somerville, Feb. 13.—J. B. Bennett, a Canadian, is being held in the Somerset county jail on a charge of defrauding the Curtis Publishing Company. A reward of $50 for his arrest had been offered. He has spent the past two months in town claiming that he was canvassing for subscriptions for the Cosmopolitan Magazine, and he has operated principally in New York State and Connecticut, also under the names of Walter Sloan, S. J. Church, William Sibley and W. S. Hitchens. The Curtis Company accuses him of fradulent subscription work in Waterbury, Conn., and is also wanted at the Auburn, N. Y., State prison for violating his parole. The National Bank, of Wappings Falls, N. Y., and the Enterprise, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., both want him on charges of swindling.

Bennett generally has been engaged in newspaper and magazine canvassing and has, in several towns, opened news-stands and established a good reputation, only to use that reputation as a means to promote some of his swindling operations. When he was searched at the county jail here a number of incriminating papers were found on his person. He was located by a young man employed by the Curtis Company and he was lodged in jail awaiting extradition papers.

RUN OVER BY AN AUTO MAN NOT BADLY HURT

Slipping on the icy pavement at Front street and Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, Fred Wood, a young colored man, of 328 Plainfield avenue, fell directly in the path of an automobile owned and driven by Dr. T. S. Davis. The front wheel of the heavy machine passed over Wood's chest, before it could be stopped by the owner. The physician hurried to the aid of Wood and after assisting him to his feet, offered to take him to the hospital, but he refused to go, explaining that he was not hurt very much. A large automobile passing over a man's body and not causing serious injury, caused astonishment to the large crowd of bystanders.

Wood was taken to his home at Plainfield avenue and West Fourth street, where he is under the care of Dr. Albert Pittis. The latter said today that an examination disclosed no broken bones or injury that was likely to result seriously. In view of the circumstances he thought the incident remarkable. According to the police no blame is attached to Dr. Davis. He is said to have been running his car at a moderate rate of speed.

FUGITIVE LODGED IN COUNTY'S JAIL

Tate, Indicted for Trying to Kill Another Colored Man, Brought From Chicago.

HE MADE CONFESSION

Prisoner Told of His Doings Since Fleeing From The Scene of His Crime—Shot Down Mark Lovell, a Servant.

James V. Tate, colored, arrested in Chicago on January 24, for the local police on a warrant charging him with atrocious assault with intent to kill, was brought to this city last night by Police Chief Kiely and County Detective Gallatian, who went to the Windy City for the prisoner last Thursday. Tate is wanted for shooting Mark Lovell, colored, a servant in the household of Richard A. Claybrook, of 403 East Seventh street, on November 25, 1911. On that night, following a quarrel over his victim over the affections of Miss Virginia Booker, another Claybrook servant, Tate lay in wait for Lovell, firing four shots at him, one of them taking effect and nearly causing the latter's death.

Tate was captured in Chicago by a ruse. Learning through another colored man with whom the fugitive confided that Tate was the man wanted by Chief Kiely, a Chicago detective sent a letter to the fugitive who was working in a restaurant. When Tate opened the letter the sleuth was in hiding, watching his every move. The words which Tate read informed him that the police were on his track. Tate let out several exclamations which proved his guilt, immediately threw aside his apron and started for the door. He was intercepted by the detective and placed under arrest.

On the train while returning to this city with Chief Kiely and County Detective Gallatian, Tate said he and Lovell had a quarrel the night before the shooting in which he, Tate, was badly battered. He continued saying, "The next night I got my gun out and came prepared for him. As he walked up the back porch of the Claybrook house I peppered him. I thought sure I killed him, and that is what I wanted to do. But when you told me, Chief, that he was still alive, I was the most relieved man in the world. If I get out of this scrap I'm going to reform, take an educational course in some correspondence school and live a respectful life."

As a fugitive from justice, Tate said he ran from the scene of the shooting to South Plainfield and threw his revolver in the lake. He then jumped a freight train on the Lehigh Valley Railroad, riding to Canada, where he found it so cold that he returned a-la-hobo-pullman to Buffalo. Then he enlisted on the crew of a canal ship which carried him to Duluth, Minn. From there he worked his way back to Chicago and secured a position in a restaurant, where his capture took place. The old, old story of a conscience-stricken man relieving the "weight" upon his mind by confiding his troubles with a supposed friend led to his apprehension by the Chicago authorities.

Tate was taken today to the Union County Jail, where he will await arraignment. It is probable that an effort may be made to drag the South Plainfield pond for the gun, which in that event will be used in evidence against him.

FEDERAL TROOPS SHOT TO PIECES?

U. S. Embassy Gets Report That Mexican Federals Were Slaughtered.

MADERO MAKES PLANS

President Schemes to Remove Seat of Government to Another City—Taft Puts Our Attitude up to Congress—N. Y. Market Feverish.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Mexico City, Feb. 13.—Some Federal soldiers who reached the United States Embassy said that a force of government troops had been shot to pieces on the western edge of the city. The non-combatants killed this morning were two. They were hit by bursting shells in the street in front of the American Club.

Mexico City (via El Paso, Tex.), Feb. 13.—Unable to drive out the rebels or even to hold his own after three days of fighting, President Madero had laid all plans to remove the Capitol of Mexico, when the fourth day's battle was opened today, fearing that the governments of the other nations will not stand for much further fighting in the Capitol of the Republic. Madero is ready to abandon the city to the rebels and move with his cabinet to some other city, preferably San Luis, Potosi. During the fighting Tuesday and yesterday the rebels gained ground, but their advance has been only small and they have not been able to add many men to their total. Many foreigners were removed from the city over night, including most of the Americans.

Washington, Feb. 13.—In Congress and at the White House, the War and Navy Departments and the Department of State, every ear is strained for echoes from Mexico. The interest is no less tense on Capital Hill than at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue for the Congressmen will be the first upon whom the responsibility of action will rest. President Taft positively will take no overt action without the direction of Congress. Congressmen, that is to say, responsible leaders, are in accord with the President's attitude thus far. There is no partisan division on this subject.

New York, Feb. 13.—A private dispatch from Mexico City says that throughout the entire night there was no interruption of the heavy firing which was resumed at 11 o'clock last night. No details as to results are given. A telegram received this morning at the local office of the National Railways of Mexico from an official of the company in Mexico City states that as far as can be learned the officials, employes and property of the campany in the capital were safe at the time of the filing of the despatch, which was some time Wednesday.

New York, Feb. 13.—Stock market trading all through the first half of the fore noon was feverish and prices in that period were depressed from two to over three points in nearly all the important issues. There was practically no exception to the unsettlement, and talk on the floor was that actual stock was being pressed for sale. Nearly all the selling of the market leaders came through two houses. One of these houses supplied stocks on a large scale both Monday and Tuesday and the impression then prevailed that its selling was based on information then in hand of some coming unfavorable developments. The disturbing market factors included not only the prospective firemen's strike and the acute situation in Mexico, but the approach of the installation of the new administration has intensified the disposition to look for radical tariff changes.

Much concern has been felt here for the safety of Mrs. Henrietta Gulick, of West Third street, who visits the Misses Bougeois, formerly of Plainfield, in a suburb of Mexico City. The anxiety of friends was relieved yesterday when Mrs. Gulick's daughter, Mrs. Edith Schick, of West Third street, received a letter from the former. Mrs. Gulick said she arrived safely at her destination and was enjoying her visit. She told of the recent outbreak, but added that she was not in the turmoil zone and had no fears as to her personal safety.

RAILROAD STRIKE WON'T BEGIN ON SUNDAY NIGHT

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 13.—William S. Carter, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Trainmen, denied emphatically today a report that the firemen employed on fifty-four railroads in Eastern territory will strike Sunday night.

MARTINE'S VOTE ON A LIQUOR BILL

United States Senator Issues Statement Explaining Why He Opposed It.

IDEAS ON PROHIBITION

As to Kenyon Bill Regulating Interstate Shipment of Intoxicating Liquor, Says His Vote "Needs No Defense."

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senator James E. Martine, of New Jersey, isn't afraid to have it known, near and far, that he voted against the Kenyon-Sheppard bill regulating the interstate shipment of intoxicating liquors, when the Senate substituted and passed the Webb bill. He has issued a statement explaining his opposition.

The New Jersey Senator not only opposed the measure with his vote, but with his voice on the floor of the Senate. His statement, given out afterward, consisted of four type-written pages. Following, in part, is what Senator Martine thinks about prohibition in general and the Kenyon-Sheppard bill in particular:

"My vote on the Kenyon bill needs no defense. I do not oppose liquor legislation as a class, but I do oppose measures that will tend to create worse evils than they are proposed to cure. If we look into the Kenyon bill we find that it proposes to forbid the shipping of liquor into territory, the people of which have voted for prohibition.

"This word, 'prohibition,' by the way, is not exactly correct. The so-called prohibition measures do not attempt to forbid anybody from drinking or using liquors. They simply forbid the granting of license for the sale of intoxicants, and the sale of them without license is illegal.

"The Kenyon bill is intended to give the authorities in 'dry' territory the right to seize and destroy liquor shipped into their jurisdiction from license territory. This looks fair, doesn't it; but the question presented is whether or not it is legal. Another question is whether if the bill is passed and signed and approved by the courts it will not defeat the purposes of its advocates. In other words, will the people of any State sustain absolute abolition of the use of liquor?

"I have maintained that this class of legislation should not come before Congress; I obtain this view through the belief that the States themselves should exert to the full their own policing powers. For instance, what is to prevent a State whose laws effectually prevent the sale of convict-made goods from effectually preventing the sale of liquor? Some of the very people who voted and thought as I did on the Kenyon bill have attempted to answer this question, but have ended by laughing at their own attempts."

EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY LAW A BIG SUCCESS

Trenton, Feb. 13.—The many benefits derived from the operation of the Employers Liability Law, as found by the commission appointed to report on the measure were clearly pointed out in a report made to the Senate by Governor Wilson's Secretary Tumulty. Among other things the report shows that more than 92 per cent. of the accidents are compensated or as against about 20 per cent. before the law was put into effect. It also shows that dependents of working men who are killed have received about three times as much as under the old system. Workmen permanently disabled are receiving fifteen times the average obtained formerly by suit.

The report shows that one of the most difficult questions the commission found was the failure of the law to guarantee payment in case of employer's insolvency. To overcome this the commission suggested Quasi State insurance or preference as creditors as possible remedies.

The board also suggested that because in 19.5 per cent. of cases compensation was paid in faulty or irregular manner, that there should be some supervision of payment.

STRUCK BY PASSENGER TRAIN.

Franklin Furnace, Feb. 13.—Stepping from behind a Lackawanna passenger train directly in front of a moving train of the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, Albert Osborn, sixty years old, was struck and probably fatally injured yesterday. Mr. Osborn was on his way to work at the B. Nicholl limestone quarry. Conductor Frank Quackenbush, of the Lackawanna train, realized that the other train was coming, and shouted to Mr. Osborn to stop, but the latter evidently did not hear him and kept on his way. The victim now lies unconscious at the Franklin Hospital with a fractured skull and a deep cut over one eye.

RECOVERS SIGHT, WINS BRIDE.

Atlantic City, Feb. 13.—Stricken blind by a flash of lightning in a Philadelphia office two years ago, after which his case was pronounced incurable by many of the leading physicians of the country, Harry Adams, son of a Boardwalk bathing house man, has recovered from his affliction. Mr. Adams' wedding, which took place January 30, to Miss Elizabeth Scallon, at Philadelphia, was announced yesterday by friends of the couple. Adams' sight was restored by an operation.

$100 Reward

INSANE MAN FOUND AT LARGE.

Trenton, Feb. 13.—The police Tuesday caught a man running through the streets and tearing his clothes to shreds. The man was violently insane, and papers on his body from the Attorney-General of Pennsylvania and Illinois show that he is J. Wesley Glascow, but there is no evidence to show where he lives. While being transferred to a padded cell he severely bit Roundsman Walters and Patrolman Haney.

Under the auspices of the Harrison Club, of Trinity Reformed church, a literary and musical entertainment will be given at the church Friday night by Miss Justin Roberts, reader and impersonator.

A LICENSE PROBLEM.

Two bills have made their appearance in the Legislature which provide for a limit to be placed on the number of saloons in a community, one fixing the number at one to every 1,000. But there is this dismaking the ratio one to every 1,000 Neither can be considered a radical measure, particularly that which places the proportion at one to every 500. But there is this distinction to be made—one has the support of the liquor interests while the other has not and it is needless to say which one has the backing of the trade. Assemblyman Leonard, a political lieutenant of General Collins, the head of a brewery company, is frank enough to say that the State Liquor Dealers' Association favors his measure. That should be sufficient warrant for the legislators to kill the Leonard bill, but whether they will do so or not is a serious question.

That the time has come when it is necessary to enact legislation of this sort is undeniable. In Perth Amboy, Newark, Elizabeth and in many other big communities the number is away out of proportion to the population. For instance, in Newark there are sixty-two licensed places on one block. Plainfield, on the other hand, is one of the few cities that has not suffered in this respect, but few towns have the high standard of citizenship and officialdom that makes Plainfield a model municipality. For several years past it has been the custom of the governing body to pass a resolution not to increase the number. This year an exception was made for the Common Council decided to learn public sentiment and accordingly a big mass meeting was held where a mighty protest was sounded against adding to the number. The city fathers governed themselves accordingly. So Plainfield has but ten licensed places counting both retail and wholesale, and that is speaking very well when it is considered that this city has an approximate population of 23,000, not to mention about 15,000 in the immediate vicinity.

The ratio, as we have said, however, in many Jersey communities is much higher than one to every 1,000 inhabitants. Some statistics may prove interesting:

City	Per Capita.
Pleasantville	4,390
Rutherford	2,609
Merchantville	998
Glen Ridge	1,087
Montclair	1,959
Woodbury	3,321
Paulsboro	2,121
Clayton	1,926
Hightstown	940
Jamesburg	2,075
Madison	1,165
Tuckerton	1,268
Penns Grove	2,118
Woodstown	1,163
Salem	945
Elmer	1,167
North Plainfield	3,500
Plainfield	2,875
Summit	750
Westfield	1,090
Roselle and Roselle Park	977

A law is in force in Massachusetts limiting the number of saloons to one to every 1,000 inhabitants. New Jersey should pattern after it.

The Princeton Battle Monument Association has approved the plans for a monument to commemorate the battle of Princeton, of January 3, 1777. The design is the work of that noted American sculptor, Frederick Macmonnies. On account of the United States government appropriating half of the cost of the monument the plans as selected will have to be approved by the Secretary of War.

The exact spot upon which the monument will stand has not yet been determined, there being two places under consideration. One is the circle at the junction of Nassau and Stockton streets and Bayard lane, and the other is the plaza about fifty feet southeast of he circle. The monument will stand about thirty feet high. It will consist of a base and a granite shaft, upon which will be an equestrian statue of General Washington. Upon the sides of the shaft will be bronze reliefs of historic significance. The cost of the mnument will be $60,000, half of which was appropriated by the National Government and the rest by State appropriation and by popular subscription.

The city of Duluth has decided to abolish the antiquated type of government for municipalities and on April 14 its name will be found on the fast growing list of cities where the commission government plan is in force. One of the features of its new charter, adopted by a vote of 5,524 to 3,386, is the preferential voting scheme which will do away with primaries, a single election only being necessary. The government will be run by five commissions, finance, public affairs, public works, public safety and public utilities. But Duluth is only one of a couple of hundred cities that within the last few years have followed the example of Galveston, Texas, the originator of this democratic, business-like and economical form for administering the people's affairs.

TERRIBLE SLAUGHTER OF TURKISH TROOPS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Sofia, Feb. 13.—A decisive defeat has been inflicted upon the Turks at Bulair in the Gallipoli Peninsula and at least 10,000 Turks were killed and wounded, according to an official announcement here. At the same time denial was made of announcements by Turkish government officials in Constantinople that the Ottoman forces had won at any point. During the general fighting of the past ten days the Turks suffered enormous losses. Already the Burgarians have buried more than 6,000 Turkish corpse. The Burgarians are successfully continuing the siege at Adrianople and the bombardment of the city is carried on daily.

MR. AND MRS. ACKERMAN GIVE INFORMAL DANCE

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest R. Ackerman gave an informal dance at their home on West Eighth street, last night. There were about eighty guests. The delightful hospitality of the host and hostess was a feature. Music was furnished by VanEps Brothers, and a popular program added greatly to the enjoyment of the affair.

During an intermission refreshments were served, after which the dancing was continued until a late hour.

SUFFRAGETTES ON THE HIKE.

Chilled by Arctic Blasts, but With Wills Indomitable.

Metuchen, N. J., Feb. 13.—Chilled to their respective marrows, but smiling indomitably in spite of chilblains and other ills to which winter walking suffragettes are heir, the votes for women cavalcade, fifty strong, arrived here at 6 o'clock last night and bivouacked at Hillside inn. Twenty miles had been covered in the first day's promenade over Jersey highways, and General Rosalie Jones was tickled to death with the performance.

The dead and wounded list contained two names, both wounded. They were Lausanne, the equine suffragette who pulls the baggage train, and Mrs. Hetty Graham of New York. Lausanne, who was given that French cognomen because she was born in Peru, Ind., had a decided limp in a starboard limb, and Mrs. Graham was partially overcome by the cold.

The walkers were all ready to quit when Metuchen was reached because it had been the coldest hike they had ever undertaken. Mrs. Graham was so worn out that she fainted as she entered the inn and gave Surgeon General Dock quite a spell before she came around.

Today's hike started at 9 o'clock, with Princeton, N. J., seventeen miles away, the objective point.

Electoral Certificates In Congress Show He Got 435 Votes.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Congress declared Woodrow Wilson elected president of the United States and Thomas R. Marshall elected vice president.

The electoral vote certificates, opened in the presence of the house and senate, sitting together, showed that Mr. Wilson and Mr. Marshall received 435 electoral votes, that Theodore Roosevelt for president and Hiram W. Johnson for vice president received 88 votes and that William H. Taft for president and Nicholas Murray Butler for vice president received 8 votes. The official count took a little more than an hour.

Prior to the count Lincoln day exercises were held in the house.

Representative Russell of Missouri read Lincoln's Gettysburg address, and Representative Graham of Illinois, from the district Lincoln once represented, made a speech.

WHITMAN THREATENED.

With Assistant He Asks For Permit to Carry Revolver.

New York, Feb. 13.—With the "system" facing a crisis and with bold attempts being made to bribe informers from turning state's evidence, it is understood that threats against the lives of District Attorney Whitman and Assistant District Attorney Frederick J. Groehl, the prosecutor's right hand man in the present graft investigation, have been made repeatedly of late. The first intimation of this became known when it was learned that both Mr. Whitman and Mr. Groehl obtained permits to carry revolvers.

Magistrate Appleton, who is sitting in the Tombs police court during the month of February, issued the permits, as required under the provisions of the Sullivan law, upon the application of Assistant District Attorney Groehl.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON POLISH PEOPLE

Interesting Talk Given by a Detroit Minister at Congregational Church.

"Scenes in Poland and the Polish Communities of This Country," was the subject of an illustrated lecture given at the Congregational church last night by Rev. Paul Kozielek, of Detroit, the pastor of the first Polish Protestant church established in this country. The affair was under the auspices of the Men's Club, and the women of the church and congregation were invited. The announcement of Mr. Kozielek's coming spread among his fellow-countrymen and about twenty-five were attracted to the lecture.

Mr. Kozielek first spoke briefly in the Polish language for the benefit of the Polish people present and later he met them personally. The speaker said that there are about 80,000 Polish people in Detroit. Many of them were Roman Catholics at home, but since coming here have left that church and are now in a receptive mood to unite with other denominations.

After his informal talk, Mr. Kozielek displayed a number of fine views of his people, as well as scenes in Poland. He showed many charts and explained the trend of immigration to this country not only of the Polish people, but other nationalities. Mr. Kozielek was naturalized last year. He is a graduate of Oberlin College and for thirteen years has been working among his people. He recently returned from his native country and at present is engaged under the direction of the Congregational Home Mission Society in speaking in the churches of that denomination. He has performed another valuable work in translating many of the best hymns into the Polish language for the benefit of his people.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich introduced the speaker, and during the evening the playing of the Polish national hymns added interest to the meeting.

ELECTED DEACONS.

George Viebrock and Ira L. LaRue were re-elected as trustees for the coming five years, and Clarence LaRue was elected as deacon for three years at the yearly meeting of the Temple Baptist church last night. The reports of the various committees of the church that were read showed that that institution was in a flourishing condition and that a material gain had been made in the membership of the church during the past year. The yearly meeting of the Sunday-school will be held the latter part of next month.

G. W. V. MOY SPEAKS AT PROGRESSIVE RALLY

Former Mayor's Theme "Forward for 1916" at a Bound Brook Banquet.

Bound Brook, Feb. 13.—Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, of Plainfield, was one of the speakers at the banquet given at the Hotel Berkeley, last night, by the Progressive Club, of Bound Brook. His topic was "The Progressive Party in New Jersey." The affair was largely attended, enthusiastic and a great success.

Irving S. Whiting was the toastmaster. The speakers and their subjects follow: "Our Dead Leader—Abraham Lincoln," Rev. C. J. Culp; "The Progressive Party in New Jersey," G. W. V. Moy; "Forward for 1916," Commodore C. C. Rawlings; "Our Living Leader—Theodore Roosevelt," J. M. Wall.

KATZENBACH THROWS HIS HAT IN THE RING

But Wittpenn is in Good Form and May Give Him the Knock Out.

Trenton, Feb. 13.—The formal shying of his hat into the gubernatorial ring by former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of this city, has started a lot of speculation in political circles as to the probable chances of Mr. Katzenbach winning the nomination. It is well understood that Mr. Katzenbach will not have the support of the Democrats in the camp of Governor Wilson and who claim to be the real Progressives in the party, for these men will be behind Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City. Discussing the Katzenbach boom today, a member of the Democratic State Committee viewed the situation, as far as Trenton's former Mayor is concerned, this way:

"Mr. Katzenbach admittedly is strong in South Jersey, but the bulk of the vote does not come from South Jersey. It is extremely doubtful if he will make as good a run for the Governorship in North Jersey as Mayor Wittpenn, and the Democratic party should nominate the candidate who will be most likely to capture the North Jersey strongholds. Mr. Katzenbach is well known throughout the State, has many friends and is a fine campaigner, but there are one or two factors that will militate against him in this campaign. In the first place he has permitted his personal preferences to interfere with party support, and since Woodrow Wilson has entered the Democratic arena in New Jersey Mr. Katzenbach has done little service in the party ranks. Beside this, the former Trenton Mayor has not shown himself to be very progressive. The New Jersey democracy cannot afford to take any reactionary step at the present time in the choice of a candidate for Governor, and if the party does not nominate a real Progressive for chief executive of the State disaster will come at the election next November."

MOTION PICTURES POPULAR.

The excellent motion pictures being shown at the Plainfield theatre are steadily growing in favor and attracting large audiences. At each show there is one feature film, the one for yesterday being "The Red Man's Honor." The one for today will be "The Crooked Path" in two reels. Beginning Monday, three shows will be given, the first at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the others at 7 and 9 o'clock in the evening.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church a Washington's Birthday social will be held in Epworth House, Thursday, February 20.

AUDIENCE LEARNS OF FAR OFF POLAND

Women's Missionary Federation Told About Conditions in Russian Possession.

Owing to the fact that he had missed train connections, Rev. Dr. Isaac T. Headland, who was announced to address the Federation of Women's Missionary Societies at the Crescent Avenue church, yesterday afternoon, was unable to reach Plainfield, and his failure caused the large audience some embarrassment. Fortunately, however, Rev. Paul Kozielek, of Detroit, Mich., who gave a missionary talk at the "ladies' night" affair at the Congregational church last night, was present with Rev. C. L. Goodrich, and he kindly consented to take Dr. Headland's place. Mrs. H. R. Hollaway presided at the meeting and Mr. Goodrich introduced the speaker.

Mr. Kozielek, who is a native of Poland, and at present pastor of the first Polish Protestant church in this country, spoke of the immigrant's challenge to the church, showing the responsibility resting upon the church in bringing the Gospel of Christ to the foreigners.

Speaking of his own people, he said that when he was at home thirteen years ago, he attended a church with a seating capacity of 8,000. There he said the natives are a church-going people. The younger generation is rapidly learning English so that they can come to America, where they believe there are golden opportunities for them. Mr. Kozielek explained the conditions of his people at home, thus showing the audience why they are so hard to understand in this country.

One of the traits of his people of which he did not approve, was that of drinking. He said that they were brought up from childhood to learn to drink, and even a bride carries a bottle of whiskey at her wedding. He recalled attending a session of a school where there was a keg of beer on tap and each pupil was given a glass of the beverage. Notwithstanding these things, the speaker said that Poland does produce good people, mentioning John Husk, the reformer and John Sobreski as examples of this. In sciences, astronomy, ward, education, religion there are to be found men who will match with those of other countries.

Telling of the customs of his people, the speaker described scenes at funerals ywhere the mourners throw all sorts of things on the casket and in the grave. He said that there are between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 Polish people in this country, and of the 20,000,000 nationalities coming to this country during the past forty years, all had found plenty of milk and honey and had been able to prosper. Last night Mr. Kozielek gave an illustrated lecture on "Poland" at the Congregational church.

FUNERAL SERVICES OF MRS. ANNA CADMUS HELD

The funeral service of Mrs. Anna Cadmus was held this afternoon at the home of her sister, Mrs. David W. King, on Craig place. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, pastor of the First Baptist church, of which Mrs. Cadmus was a life-long member, officiated, assisted by Rev. C. C. Cain, pastor of Grace M. E. church. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were four brothers, of the departed, David C., Alfred I., Newton B. and William L. Smalley and two brothers-in-law, Henry Dunbar and David W. King.

MR. AND MRS. U. B. CRANE FORTY YEARS MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Uzal B. Crane celebrated the fortieth anniversary of their wedding at their home at 315 East Second street, yesterday, when they entertained a number of relatives and friends, including their children, some of whom came from a distance. The couple was married in this city February 12, 1873. One of the features of the celebration was an anniversary dinner. The couple received many gifts.

Mr. Crane was born at Dover, Morris county, and while there learned the hatter's trade. He came to this city forty-one years ago and opened a hat store in the Schwed building on Front street. For a quarter of a century he was engaged in business there. He also at times conducted hat stores at Westfield and Somerville.

Mrs. Crane was born in this city, her maiden name being Mary E. Smith. Among those at the anniversary dinner were Mr. and Mrs. S. Clinton Crane, of New York; Dr. and Mrs. Arthur B. Crane, of Washington; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Newton Crane, and Miss Clara Crane, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Smith, of Westfield.

Old Glory Council, Daughter of Liberty, will hold a lunch box social in its rooms, Saturday night. The women will furnish the lunch boxes and the men will be expected to buy them. There will also be an informal program of music.

JAMES N. HILL'S BIRTHDAY.

James N. Hill, who recently retired from the vice presidency of the Northern Pacific Railway, was born in St. Paul, Minn., February 13, 1870, the son of James J. Hill, the famous railroad builder and financier. After graduating from Yale University in 1893 Mr. Hill began his railroad career as a clerk in the offices of the Northern Pacific. He gradually rose through the various grades of the service until he became vice president of the company in 1905. He is also a director in the Burlington Railway Company, the Northern Securities Company, the Pacific Coast Company and a number of other great railroad and industrial corporations in which the Hill family has large financial interests.

TO COLLECT ONLY ONE FARE.

Trenton, Feb. 13.—At a hearing before the Board of Public Utility Commissioners this week the Riverside Traction Company agreed to run a special car in the morning and one in the evening between Palmyra and Riverside and collect only one fare. This action on the part of the traction company resulted from a complaint filed with the board by C. F. Sleeper, of Palmyra, who sought to have the fare zone between the two points extended.

Miss Ella Benedict has undertaken the duties of secretary to Rev. J. Y. Broek, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, relieving the latter of much clerical work.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

BANANA DAINTIES.

No desserts in which fruits are ingredients are so easy to prepare as those made with bananas. Therefore it is a wonder, considering the cheapness and general availability of this wholesome fruit, that it is not more widely appreciated.

Several ways of preparing simple desserts with bananas are given here:

Light Desserts.

Banana Custard.—Make a rich custard and add mashed bananas flavored with orange, lemon, pineapple or vanilla essence and sweetened to taste.

Bananas cooked or baked with tapioca give a nice flavor to the pudding.

Banana Mold.—Take the yolks of two eggs and beat them with two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a teaspoonful of cornstarch. Thicken a pint of milk with it, cool and flavor with vanilla. Slice two or three bananas into a dish, pour the custard over and drop meringue on top, ornament with bits of jelly and serve.

With a Cereal.

Bananas and Tapioca.—Take a pint of sweet milk, scald and stir into it a tablespoonful of fine tapioca. Let it cook until dissolved. Remove from the fire and add the beaten yolks of two eggs, then set on the fire until it thickens. Take off and when cool add the beaten whites of the eggs, folding in carefully a little at a time. In the serving dish have two bananas peeled and sliced thin and pour over them the tapioca cream.

A Fruit Cream.

Banana Cream.—Take a pint of cream, some bananas, two oranges, two tablespoonfuls of lemon juice, three-quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar and one tablespoonful of pulverized gelatin. Soak the gelatin in an eighth of a cupful of cold water, then dissolve it in an equal quantity of boiling water. Whip the cream and stand it on ice. Peel the bananas, slice and rub them through a sieve. Add the pulp and juice of the oranges, the lemon juice and the sugar. Blend thoroughly and mix with the gelatin. Stand in a cold place until it begins to stiffen. Add the whipped cream and stir all lightly together. Put into a mold and stand on ice until it is served. Turn out on a flat dish and serve with plain or whipped cream.

Anna Thompson

VANITY'S VISIONS.

Skirts Remain Narrow at Hem—Fullness Higher Up.

All the narrowness of the skirt has been retained at the hem, and the fullness has been put in about midway in length.

Among the new sleeves is the kimono, cut without an armhole, full length and closely fitted to the arm below the elbow.

Accordion plaiting is very fashionable this season, and it is especially lovely for girls' dresses. It is essentially youthful in effect. The dress illustrated is made with a perfectly straight skirt and with a simple blouse arranged over a fitted lining, which holds the plaits in place.

New Jersey Congress of Mothers.

A meeting of the Board of Managers of the New Jersey Congress of Mothers was held on Friday, February 7, at the home of Mrs. William Downs, at Orange. Mrs. A. H. Reeve, of Moorestown, New Jersey, president of the State Congress of Mothers, presided. Reports from all officers and committees were presented, special prominence being given to that of Mrs. I. H. Welling, of Trenton, chairman of legislative committee.

Laws now pending before the New Jersey Legislature relating to women, children, schools and formative institutions were presented for the information of the board. The chairman was instructed as to whether the board endorsed, remained neutral or disapproved of the several measures.

Plans for the farther extension of the work now being done in our State by the Mothers' Congress were discussed and business transacted in connection with the administration or the organization. Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock and the session closed at 4 o'clock, every member feeling that under Mrs. Reeves' able leadership this organization has done and will continue to do effective work in New Jersey in bettering conditions for children.

Underpaid Labor Costly.

H. LaRue Brown, member of the Massachusetts Minimum Wage Commission, states that the State spends each year, of the public moneys $5,500,000, in addition to private and semi-public charity for the relief and control of delinquency and dependency resulting from the evil of underpaid labor. If the return for a woman's toil was not sufficient to keep her alive, he said, the difference was made up by her in such a way that the people generally met the cost. "She pays and we pay in flesh and blood in the health and life of our people, in the ruined physiques, and in the shattered nerves of those who should be the mothers of American citizens," said Mr. Brown before the Business Men's Group of the Ethical Culture Society of Boston.—New York Times.

Meetings of the Parent-Teacher Association have been held in the Bryant and High Schools during the past week. The High School Association was reorganized with over fifty members and plans are being made for interesting meetings to bring the parents and teachers in closer relationship for the good of the child.

A question box meeting was conducted by Mrs. G. O. Stevens at the Washington School today. The question box meetings have been of great benefit and interest both to teachers and parents, giving each a viewpoint of the other side of the question.

February 17 is to be observed as Child Welfare Day. The sixteenth anniversary of the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations to be especially dedicated to Consideration of Children's Needs.

Babies dying every hour because of the ignorance of their mothers,—children and youth going wrong because of no guidance,—or misguidance,—little ones in the slavery of sweat-shops, factories and canneries,—these are some of the crying evils which prompt the world's greatest child welfare movement, known as the National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, to ask all citizens to turn their thoughts on Child Welfare Day to practical planning for the improvement of conditions surrounding the young.

Following the custom of recent years, the governors of the several States will designate this date by appropriate proclamation as "Child Welfare Day." Ministers are requested to preach from their Sunday pulpits on February 16, sermons on child labor and child welfare. It is urged that public mass meetings be held all over the United States, under the auspices of Mothers' Circles, Parent-Teacher Clubs, the church, the school, or any interested citizens. Let the great question be: "How can we safeguard our boys and girls?" Other vital topics for earnest consideration are:

Responsibility of home, church, school and State in the protection and education of children.

A study of conditions affecting child life in every community.

The National Congress of Mothers, founded by Mrs. Theodore Birney and Mrs. Phoebe Hearst, in 1897 at Washington, D. C., for the one purpose of child conservation,—is conducting a vigorous campaign to arouse the mothers and fathers, the guardians, teachers and employers of the entire country to a keen sense of their duty to the young. The National president, Mrs. Frederic Schoff, the vice presidents, together with the presidents and treasurers of each State branch, constitute the Child Welfare Campaign Committee, with Mrs. David O. Mears as chairman, to whom letters may be sent for suggestions or information. Address office of the National Congress of Mothers 806 Washington Loan and Trust Building, Washington, D. C.

JERSEYMEN ARE TO APPEAR AT TRAPS

Plainfielders as Competitors at the Sportsmen's Show.

The crack of the wing shot's double-barrel gun and the swish of the angler's line over the casting tank will soon be heard in the annual Sportsmen's Show, which will open February 27 at Madison Square Garden, in New York. New Jersey will be represented in the coming show's activities by many of her field sportsmen as befits a State which possesses game mammals, birds and fish and, through its State government, is in the van of the new science conservation. The leading features of the nineteenth New York Sportsmen's Show will be its third indoor trap shooting tournament.

HUNTING AND FISHING

The trout season opens six weeks from tomorrow. We predict a good season for trout, but a better one for bass. Fresh water eels are going to be plentiful, according to some county folks who know considerable about them things.

The Shamrock went out to the fishing banks from Sheepshead Bay yesterday and carried quite a crowd of holiday fishermen. They caught great quantities of fish, principally hake, about two miles off shore

All aboard for the motorboat show. This annual event opens next Saturday night in Madison Square Garden and closes February 22. This is the chance to talk engine with the manufacturers.

The average fisherman is wondering what the summer has in store for him in the way of fishing. They all remember last summer, when fish were scarcer than 1601 pennies. Such another season would drive us all to Barnegat Bay, where pollution is unknown and where there is always good fishing.

The Montclair citizens are certainly opposed to the starling. It seems that the birds gather in great numbers in the trees and their droppings annoy the pedestrians, so they seek relief through the Legislature. A grain of intelligence, if properly used, would prevent the starling from roosting in many trees, but that little grain seems to be lacking.

The bill to protect skunk, mink, otter and muskrats has passed the Assembly and is now in the Senate. Such a bill would have been laughed at five years ago, when muskrat skins were only worth 15 cents, but, now that they have advanced to $1, there is a great demand for a law to protect them. The open season proposed for skunk, mink and otter is November 15 to March 15 and November 15 to April 1 for muskrats.

The lakes and streams north of Middlesex county have a covering of ice that is good for the fish in them. It permits them to hibernate and fatten and prepares them for the spawning season.

"MAC" SAYS

N. P. H. S. lines up against Somerville High School this afternoon. The game was postponed from last night because Saengerbund Hall could not be secured for the game.

What has become of that Queen City A. A. organization which was to have been the program last night, but none of the members could be found about town today.

It looks as though Manager Hetfield was going to have his troubles rounding the Ajax together to play that third game with Hope Chapel. Only one member of the aggregation appeared last night to play in the scheduled game with the first team.

A hoodoo seems to follow that Ajax-First team idea. Every time they are carded to meet something happens that turns the contest into a comedy rather than a basketball game.

One of the roughtes games of feminine basketball ever played in this vicinity and possibly anywhere, was staged on the Scotch Plains Parish House court yesterday afternoon. The Mt. Pleasant girls, who were the opponents of the 'Plains five, were playing for their first time and knew nothing in regard to rules. This coupled with lenient refereeing made the game a rough and tumble fight in which both sides participated.

P. H. S. goes to Montclair tomorrow afternoon. Montclair has one of the strongest athletic organizations in the State and is noted for the calibre of basketball teams it turns out.

Some idea as to the relative value Johnny Heron's basketball prowess is to the Plainfield High School aggregation can be garnered from the exhibition he put up at New Brunswick yesterday afternoon, when P. H. S. managed to annex an overtime contest by a margin of one point. The P. H. S. coach kept Heron out of the lineup in the first half because he did not report for one of the practises but when the tide of battle began to sway the opposite way decided that Heron was needed and put him in at forward in the second half. As a result Heron's contribution of five field goals in one half won the game. Query: Would P. H. S. have won by one point if he had played the first half?

New Brunswick did something unlooked for in holding the P. H. S. players so well in check. It seldom happens that a team that is walloped like the Brunswick boys were in this city last week, comes back and puts up a winning game against the same opponent.

The second game for the New Jersey feminine basketball title will be played at Saengerbund Hall on the evening of Friday, February 28. Trenton now has a leg on the championship and the local Nonpareil team will have to win the second contest or drop out of the race.

Hope Chapel plays the Tusearroa Canoe Club. of Newark, Saturday night in the local gym.

O. O. C. what will be at Dunellen tonight. A real feminine basketball game will be played on the Dunellen court.

AJAX IN NAME BUT NOT IN BASKETBALL

Shattered Y. M. C. A. Team Walloped by Its Fellow Members.

Playing with one regular on the team the Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball five was trounced to the tune of 67 to 16 on the association court last night. The playing of the losers was slow and uninteresting and the first team scored field goals at will from all angles on the floor. Taylor and Stine proved themselves especially proficient at this, the former making thirteen and the latter ten from the field.

Moulton was the leading scorer for the Ajax, counting for half of his team's points.

GRACE BOYS' CLUB LOST TO FRESHMEN

Close and Exciting Game on Loser's Court Results in a Score of 27 to 18.

In a fast game of basketball on the Grace Church court last night the Grace Church boys' club basketball five was forced to swallow its first taste of defeat by the Plainfield High School Freshmen class quintet with a score of 27 to 18. The playing was close and the shooting accurate at all stages, neither team having a decided advantage over the other at any time. At the end of the first half the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of the schoolboys and all through the second period of play the scoring was nip and tuck.

For the winners, Hunter and O'Leary starred, each getting a neat collection of the two point variety, while McNamee and Williams each secured a trio for Grace.

FIRST MEETING TO REORGANIZE LEAGUE

Large Amount of Enthusiasm Displayed Over Reorganization of League.

As a means of obtaining a line on the baseball teams now available to form a Central New Jersey Baseball League during the coming season, a "feeler" meeting was held last night and great enthusiasm was displayed over the proposed reorganization. Delegates were present representing the baseball clubs of Plainfield, New Brunswick, South River, Westfield, Dunellen, Bound Brook, Somerville and Perth Amboy and from present indications it looks as though the organization would turn out to be a league with a Saturday afternoon circuit, instead of Saturday and Sunday as was at first proposed.

Recent inquiry has disclosed the fact that an ordinance had been passed in Perth Amboy abolishing Sunday baseball and as that town does not advocate Saturday baseball, Perth Amboy is considered practically out of the question as far as a place in the league is concerned. Nothing definite was accomplished at last night's meeting, which was nothing more than a preliminary organizer and those present voted to postpone the real organization for ten days and in the meantime all of the team managers will keep their eyes open for possible contestants and the league will be officially started on its season's trip Friday night, February 27, when a second meeting will be held.

KOLEHMAINEN MAKES TWO NEW RECORDS

Hannes Records the Fastest Five Miles Ever Run by a Human.

Hannes Kolehmainen ran the fastest five miles ever run by a man when he created a world's record for that distance at the New York A. C. games in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night. The great little Finn went the five miles in the remarkable time of 24:29 1-5, breaking not only the indoor record of 24:48, made by himself last week, but also the world's best of 24:33 2-5, made by the great English runner, Al Shrubb.

To make the performance all the more remarkable Kolehmainen had made a new three-mile record in the afternoon at another set of games, going the three miles in 14:08 1-5. None but his brother expected that the Finn would be able to make a new record last night, as he was sick after the three-mile race.

DRISCOLL ASKED TO INVADE CANAL ZONE

Plainfield First Baseman Asked to Put on Exhibitions at Porto Rico and Cuba.

The popularity of baseball in the West Indies, heretofore confined to Cuba, has spread to Porto Rico, and at the present there are ten first-class clubs operating on the island. The people in charge of the fair have closed a contract with Dave Driscoll, the Plainfield first baseman, to bring an "all-American club" to San Juan during the term of the fair and play ten games, meeting each one of the local teams. They want to show the natives just what a real baseball team is like and are of the opinion that Porto Rico can extend all the comforts and requisites of a Southern training camp.

Miss Carrie Kilbourne, of New Brunswick, the young woman baseballist, will accompany the team to give exhibitions of her skill on the trip.

Manager Driscoll and his "all-American club" will leave next Saturday on the Porto Rican steamship Brazos at 12 o'clock from Brooklyn. Driscoll is in receipt of numerous offers to continue the trip to further points. John Abramson, disbursing commissioner at Empire Canal Zone, has offered Driscoll flattering inducements to bring the "all-Americans" there for a series of games after finishing at the Porto Rican fair. The team leaving Brooklyn Saturday will be composed of the following players: Shortstop, Frank O'Rourke, Boston National League; centre field, Billy Zimmerman, Newark International League; third base, Dick Breen, Jersey City International League; second base, Eddie Craig, Johnstown Tri-State League; first base, Barker, Los Angeles Coast League; left field, Eschen, Brooklyn, N. Y.; right field, Bruggy, Providence International League; catchers, Spear, London Club, Canadian League, and Cadore, Detroit American League; pitchers, Smith, Toronto Club, and Donnelly, Louisville American Association.

AJAX AT WOODBRIDGE.

If Manager Hetfield can round his team together again the Ajax will go to Woodbridge Saturday night to play the Parish House boys' team, of that place. The first game between these two aggregations was won by the locals by two points.

STILLMAN SCHOOL PLANS BALL TEAM

Captain and Manager Elected at a Meeting of the Athletic Association.

A meeting of the Stillman School Athletic Association was held in the school auditorium this morning to formulate plans for a baseball team to represnt the school during the coming season. Normal Bohl was elected captain of the nine and Williams Daniels will act as game booker.

The newly elected captain will call practice the next fair day and has issued a request for all candidates to get their gloves and suits ready so as to be on hand for the initial tryout. Manager Daniels would like to hear from local baseball managers, particularly the High School freshmen, Leal second team, Plainfield Juniors and Grace church managers.

No Entries Received From U. S. or Canada for the Coming Championships.

New York, Feb. 13.—In veiw of the extraordinary popularity that the sport of ice skating is enjoying at the present time, considerable surprise and some disappointments are expressed by lovers of the sport over the fact that the United States and Canada have not seen fit to send some of their star performers to compete in the world's figure skating championships this year. The championships are scheduled to begin today in Vienna, under the auspices of the Eis club of Austria, which this year is celebrating its twenty-fifth anniversary. Since 1890, at St. Petersburg, there has been no American representative, so far as fancy skating is concerned, in Europe. Figure skating originated in Holland and in 1660 was introduced into England by royal exiles returning at the time of the restoration from Holland, when they brought the Dutch roll. In Scotland the Edinburgh Skating Club existed in 1742. In America figure skating was an institution in Colonial days, and in 1772 Benjamin West, the painter, was a skillful skater, and during a visit to England he captivated the Londoners with his graceful gyrations on the serpentine.

TEA THEN BASKETBALL.

Because of an afternoon tea that was being held in the Scotch Plains Parish House yesterday afternoon, the game scheduled to be played between the Parish House girls and the Mt. Pleasant girls was not started until after 4 o'clock. The large crowd present were amply repaid for their waiting, however, when the home girls trounced the visitors by a score of 34 to 11. Miss Helen Southard chalked up 32 of the Parish House girls' 34 points.

HOPE CHAPEL GAME.

Hope Chapel will play the strong Tusearroa Canoe Club here Saturday night. The visitors hail from Newark and are considered to be one of the fastest aggregations playing the game in that section.

SENIORS AND "PROFS."

The annual Plainfield High School senior-faculty basketball game will be played in the school gym tomorrow afternoon. The instructors have an unusually strong aggregation this year and it looks like a victory for them on the court.

LEAL FIVE BEATEN ON RIVAL'S COURT

Lost to Morristown Quintet by a Count of 33 to 22 in a Close Played Game.

Captain Nash and his aggregation of Leal basketball players went to Morristown yesterday afternoon but came back on the smaller end of a 33 to 22 score. The teams were pretty evenly matched but Morristown's familiarity with the court gave it an advantage that the local boys could not overcome.

O. O. C. VS. DUNELLEN.

The O. O. C. girls' basketball team, of this city, will go to Dunellen tonight, where it will line up against the girls' five of that place. Both of the teams are unusually fast feminine aggregations and a good contest should be the issue.

HOPE VS. GRACE CHURCH.

A basketball team representing the Grace Church boys' club is scheduled to appear on the Hope Chapel court tonight in a game with the second five of that place. The game will be called at 8:15.

P. H. S. CLASS BASKETBALL.

A game is scheduled to be decided in the Plainfield High School interclass basketball league tomorrow afternoon when the Sophs are due to clash with the Juniors.

REVOLUTION NOW IN OUR POLITICS

Internal Strife for Rule by the People Discussed by Former Gov. Fort.

"OUR COUNTRY FIRST"

"And Party Afterwards" Keynote of State Chairman's Speech at Progressive Party Dinner in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (Special.—Among the speakers at the Progressive Party dinner, a Lincoln Day celebration, held here last night at the Scottish Rites Hall, in the Masonic Temple, was former Governor John Franklin Fort, chairman of the New Jersey State Progressive Committee. Prominent men from all parts of the Keystone State, which was wrested away from the Republican party at the Presidential election by the Progressive forces for the first time in many, many years that the State had turned against the G. O. P., were present. Mr. Fort's theme was "Country First; Party Afterwards." He said incidently:

We gather tonight on the anniversary of the birth of one of the greatest Americans living or dead. A man whose life began in poverty and ended in tragedy, and between which beginning and ending, there was mingled pathos and patriotism. Though untrained in the schools and unskilled in science or art, he was deeply learned in the school of human nature and popular government. As it was said of the great Teacher of Galilee, so it may be said concerning him "How knoweth this man letters, having never learned." It is forty-eight years next April since Abraham Lincoln fell a martyr. Each of those passing years has strengthened the hold of his deeds and memory upon the American people and, today, he is honored not only by us but by all the peoples of the earth where men seek for an even chance in the race of life.

Lincoln was a politician from his earliest manhood. He was ambitious. But both his political ideals and his ambition had no purpose except to advance his power that he might do the country good. There is not a selfish utterance left in his written or spoken record. He was a partisan, but he always put country first and party afterwards.

We are living in the midst of a political revolution. Not such as the French Revolution, with its destruction and death, but one that is peacefully, under the forms of law, working out the rule of the people; by governmental policies which will assure equal opportunity for all, whatever their station in life.

The key-note of modern political reforms is religion. No one who was at the Progressive Convention at Chicago last August can doubt this statement. No one who understands the spirit and zeal of that movement can question it. It is not office that we are after. We seek power for no such purpose. It matters not to us whether we give the people popular rights, through officials we elect, or only force the other parties to do it. Our effort is solely to promote the public weal. There has never been a political contest in this country just like that of 1912. The 4,300,000 who voted for Roosevelt and Johnson last November did it as a protest and demand. And it was done under the most difficult conditions. Never before have so many Americans, nor anything like so many, expressed their disapproval of a political party or of an existing political condition.

The Progressives carried six States with 88 electoral votes, and were beaten in eight States by so close a margin that if twenty-eight thousand votes had been taken from Wilson in those eight States and cast for Roosevelt it would have given these States to the Progressives; and there are eleven States (including the eight) in which a like change of sixty-nine thousand votes from Wilson to Roosevelt would have given their eighty-five electoral votes to the Progressives. I have given these striking figures for a purpose. And it is this. It was Wilson who carried the election. We would have beaten almost any other Democrat. The people believed that Governor Wilson was a Progressive—as he is—and the Progressive Democrats stayed by their party and some Progressive Republicans who, against any other man than Wilson, would have supported us, voted for Wilson. And I want to say for Governor Wilson, in the great Progressive gathering, that he is a Progressive. He so declared in his campaign, and the three great speeches he has made since his election, coupled with the courageous and able articles he has written, in the [illegible] and February World's Work, [illegible] New Freedom," have acquired the advanced position of [illegible]lly great man. We did not [illegible]sevelt; let us be grateful to [illegible]erican people that we have [illegible] fortunate as to get Wilson. [illegible]gressives made one thing certain, that no reactionary could be [illegible]resident in 1912. And we [illegible]inue to make it impossible [illegible] "stand-patter" shall ever [illegible] elected President of the [illegible]tates. The returns of the [illegible]st November also make an[illegible]g self-evident. Had the Republican party named at Chicago the man whom the rank and file of that party wanted nominated, that party would have won, and on the fourth of next month the man who would be sworn in as President would be Theodore Roosevelt.

This gathering shows that progressiveism is not dead, but is very much alive. Taft and Bailey, the one driven out of power by the people, and the other resigning before being driven out by them, each utter the same sad wail as to the future owing to the probable continued ascendency of the Progressives and the Progressive Democrats. They each exhaust their vocabulary in expressing their fear for the Constitution of the Republic. They even see the triumph of Socialism in the movements of the times. Wise men see just the opposite. The strength of the Socialist party in this country and the strength of Government ownership of utilities, are due not to the teachings of Progressives, but to the selfishness and greed of the few, and the past subservience of political leaders to the special interests. The people have witnessed the enactment of legislation solely to promote privilege, and the enrichment of the favored, at their expense. They have looked for some relief and have been uncertain how to get it and many have turned to the Socialistic party as a possible road to accomplish it. They were mistaken, but their motive was good. The Progressive men of this nation, in the Progressive party and the Democratic party, are not Socialists, nor are they leading the people into Socialism; the men who are doing that are the men who dominated the Republican party at Chicago and who were defeated in the Democratic party at Baltimore. The sure way to prevent Socialism, in this country, is to drive these old leaders out of public life and overthrow their power in the law-making of the Nation and State. Their continuance in power is the only real danger of this Republic becoming Socialistic. They incite Socialistic tendencies.

Now that the election is over, these same men, who have caused all this resentment, on the part of the people are taking two positions. (1) Tha the Progressives should abandon their cause and reunite with them; (2) That Governor Wilson's speeches, in which he is declaring his faith, are harming the country. They say the country needs rest. In this I quite agree with them if they mean rest from themselves and their past methods. They say to us, "you defeated the Republican party; and Mr. Wilson has been elected, why are you not both satisfied and why will you not let us alone?" To let them alone was all the mob wanted the Chief Captain to do when it was stoning Paul in the temple at Jerusalem; that is all that the men wanted who stood for human slavery in 1860. It is simply another form of the cry of the men possessed with the devil, who, as they came out of the tombs, said to the Master, "What have we to do with thee?" It is the old cry of Cain "Am I my brother's keeper?" But the people answer, "We will not let you alone." "You are your brother's keeper." We committed power to you to help us, and behold! You gave our patrimony to the few so that they waxed and grew fat on public lands and franchises which were ours. Governor Wilson stop? Let us hope never until the last matelactor is in jail. The Progressives unite again with our old political associates? Not until the leaders who caused the conditions which provoked our revolt, are driven from power never to return. They say our cours has destroyed the party. There you have it. Their motto is "Party firs.. Country afterwards." Ours "Country first; Party afterwards." The two things are irreconcilable.

WOODROW WILSON TOWN VS. P. H. STEWART TOWN

At the review of the Second Regiment at Trenton last night, Lieut. A. R. Phillips, captain of Co. K's rifle team, again received a challenge from the captain of the Co. L rifle team, of Princeton. Arrangements were made for two matches, one in this city and one in Princeton, to be shot by a team of seven men picked from each company. The indoor ranges used will be equivalent to the 200 yard and 500 yard outdoor ranges.

When the local company returned to the armory last night, Lieut. Phillips instructed all men who have shot on the efficiency matches held in the armory lately and had run up a score of 180 or more to report for practice next Monday night. The definite dates for the meets have not been set as yet but it is expected that the first one will be held about May 1.

P. H. S. AT MONTCLAIR.

Plainfield High School basketball representatives are due to appear at Montclair tomorrow afternoon in a court battle with the High School combination of that place. The Montclair aggregation is conceded to be one of the fastest in the State and it goes without saying that the local boys will have to hustle to keep in the running with their speedy opponents.

LOCAL OPTION, YES?

Samuel S. Swackhamer has been secured to address the Men's Club tonight at the Church of the Heavenly Rest. Judge DeMeza was scheduled to address the churchmen but owing to the pressure of business matters asked to be excused.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Few dramatists have traveled more extensively than James Forbes, author of "The Chorus Lady," "The Commuters" and "The Traveling Salesman," in search of local color. When Mr. Forbes was writing "The Chorus Lady" he spent sixteen weeks with a one night stand opera company studying the various types of chorus girls so that he could give a faithful portrayal of the character. The thoroughness of this method of playwriting was attested by the immediate popularity of "The Chorus Lady." When Mr. Forbes was commissioned to write a new play, it was stipulated that he adopt the same line he followed in "The Chorus Lady" and create a distinct and novel comedy character, one which would rival Patricia O'Brien. Accordingly, Mr. Forbes commenced to look around for a suitable type to use for the principal character in his new play. After taking up and rejecting several ideas, he decided the sort of play wanted could be best written about a traveling man, since he believed that this type could be made sufficiently funny, without exaggeration, to entertain through a four act play. Mr. Forbes decided to use as a model a breezy young clothing salesman he had known for years, and with this end in view he arranged to make a road trip as the salesman's assistant. The success of "The Traveling Salesman" was fully as great as Mr. Forbes' first play, and other dramatists might do well to follow his example. In seeking an actor who in general appearance would typify the popular impression of the American drummer, Mr. Forbes' choice fell on Karl Hewitt, who fills all the requirements of the role. "The Traveling Salesman" will appear at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening.

Mary Servoss, who is appearing in the role of Bettina Curtis in the Shubert production of the successful American camedy-drama, "The Master of the House," is the daughter of the late William Servoss, one of America's greatest comedians of bygone days. Miss Servoss clipped the following story from her father's scrap book: "There was an old rector in a certain church in England who was in the habit of going to sleep during the time the curate read off the notices. One Sunday he requested his curate to give notice to the effect that the church hymn books had been changed, and that the hour of Christenings was to be at 4 instead of 3 o'clock. The curate read out: 'I have been requested to give notice that the hymn books have been changed, and those who have not got them can get them at the vestry, 9 pence for the stiff backs and 6 pence for the soft ones. I am also requested to give notice that the hour for baptism has been changed from 3 o'clock to 4, so people who have babies will please bring them at that hour.' Just then the old rector woke, and jumping to his feet, said: 'and those who have not got them can get them in the vestry, 9 pence for the stiff backs and 6 pence for the soft ones.'" This play will appear at the Plainfield theatre Saturday afternoon and evening.

STATE Y. M. C. A. SECRETARY HEARD

C. A. Coburn Outlines Objects of Employed Officers Conferences Today.

CONVENTION PROGRAM

Prominent Christian Workers to Make Addresses at Thirty-Seventh Annual Meeting Here Tomorrow.

Preceding the thirty-seventh annual State convention of the Y. M. C. A., which will be held here tomorrow and Sunday, group conferences of the employed officers of the State associations are included in today's program, at which time State Secretary C. A. Coburn met the association secretaries and gave them a talk on the purpose of the convention. These conferences are being held at the Y. M. C. A., with a large attendance of representatives from the State associations.

Secretary Coburn in addressing the employed officers this afternoon said: "Our employed officers' committee, Chairman Lute in particular, has insisted that I tell you why you are here, or better, why you are to abide here for the thirty-seventh convention. 'What Do We Hope to Accomplish by This Convention?'

"What are we coming together for? Not Christian culture—not religious education—not a technical interpretation of some particular verses or chapter of the Bible? We are not meeting to consider the vice of Philadelphia, nor the political corruption of New York. We are not here to consider and magnify the short-comings of our mother—the Church of Christ. No, may God give to the Christian Association in this State a keen sense of sonship, together with the loyalty of the martyrs!

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE ON JAPAN ENJOYED

The Normal Teacher Training Class of the First Baptist church met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, on Central avenue, last night, and enjoyed a program which was both social and instructive in character, and in addition elected officers for the year.

Mrs. Lucie Rising gave an illustrated talk on Japan, displaying a number of views by means of the miroscope. She appeared in costume, and her talk was most interesting. Then followed a biographical sketch of the life of Fanny Crosby and the singing of some of her universally loved hymns. During the devotional exercises the members responded to the roll call with Scripture verses. Games were played and refreshments were served.

These officers were elected: President, Howard Perry; vice president, Miss Florence Wohlfert; treasurer, Miss Edna Cronce; secretary, Miss Edith Runk. The class will hold its next meeting on Friday, March 14, at the home of Miss Margaret B. Ackor, of 149 Westervelt avehue.

MINISTERS DID NOT MEET.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association did not hold its regular meeting yesterday afternoon, as announced, for lack of a quorum. At the last meeting the association voted to meet at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, instead of 4 o'clock, it being said that it would be more convenient than the latter hour. Only two or three members appeared yesterday and another date will be decided upon.

LECTURER PICTURES CAPITOL OF NATION

Interesting Talk by George N. Cross Superbly Illustrated and Heartily Enjoyed.

"Washington—The Beautiful Capitol of a Great Nation," was the subject of an illustrated lecture of unusual interest given by George N. Cross at the Washington School, last night, under the auspices of the Board of Education. The audience was large and appreciative. The views were among the best witnessed here and gave all a clear idea of the nation's Capitol.

Among the pictures shown were those of many noted Presidents, judges of the Supreme Court, the Treasury building, the Congressional Library, the entrance of which is said to be only second in beauty to the one in Paris, and many other views in and about Washington. A picture of Woodrow Wilson aroused the enthusiasm of the audience. Mr. Cross is an exceptionally good talker and his explanation of the views was fully enjoyed.

Miss Lillian S. Fisher will give the next lecture in the course on Thursday night, March 6, her subject being "Cocoanut, Coral and Cannibals."

THROWN FROM A WAGON DRIVER IS BADLY HURT

As a result of injuries he sustained when thrown from a wagon he was driving on Somerset street, this morning, Howard Sharp, of North Plainfield, lies in a serious condition at Muhlenberg Hospital, where he was taken following the accident. The horse Sharp, who is employed by Stonewall Jackson, was driving this morning gave a sudden lurch, throwing him out of the wagon to the pavement. He landed on his collarbone, fracturing it, and it is now feared that internal injuries will develop.

Sharp is twenty-five years of age and is unmarried. He is an experienced man and has a thorough knowledge of handling horses.

TUNGSTEN LIGHTS BEING CONSIDERED

Councilmanic Committee Plan to Replace the Incandescent Lights on Streets.

DEMAND IMPROVEMENT

Not Decided Yet Whether Arc Lamps Will Be Used in the Business Section—Old Contract With P. S. C. is Discussed.

The entire street lighting system of the city is to undergo a complete change if the plans of the Councilmanic light committee as outlined at a meeting, last night, are carried out. Chairman P. J. Reville, as well as A. D. Edgar and Francis J. Blatz, the other two members, favor the change and instead of relying on the advice of experts, it is the intention of the committee to do some investigating on its own account with a view to adopting the best system.

It is proposed to replace the present incandescent lights now used in the residential section with a Tungsten lamp of sufficient power to be of some benefit in lighting the streets. The lamps now used do not give the best results and complaints are constantly being received to that effect.

Whether the ordinary arc lamp will be used in the business section is a question to be decided. The committee has received information concerning another style of light used in New York and other large cities which is considered a big improvement over the arc such as Plainfield is using now.

The committee plans to extend the lighting of Front street, between Watchung avenue and New streets, on Watchung avenue from Front to Fourth street, through Fourth street to Madison avenue, through Madison avenue to Front street, as well as through Park avenue from Fourth to Front streets and through Second street from Watchung avenue to Central avenue.

Councilman Reville in speaking about the matter today, said: "It is the intention of the committee to improve the whole lighting system of the city, not any one particular section. Enough time has already been lost in discussion and now the committee plans to do something."

The city is now working under the old contract with the Public Service Corporation, one which the company want changed. The company says that if the city insists on demanding free light for the fire houses and city offices it will refuse to pay its franchise tax. Whether it can do this seems to be an open question and one which will probably have to be settled by the Public Utilities Commission or the courts.

Corporation Counsel W. M. Stillman has advised the city not to give up its contract, explaining that in his opinion he thinks the company could be made to supply free lights for the public schools as well as the city offices and fire houses. The committee intends to take the matter up and learn just what can be done in this respect before recommending any new contract.

FORMALLY OPEN THE NEW LIBRARY

During Exercises Mayor Presents Keys to President of Directors Board.

A RECEPTION FOLLOWS

A Description of Handsome Structure the Unconditional Gift of Andrew Carnegie to the City of Plainfield.

Exercises appropriate to the formal opening of the new building of the Plainfield Public Library were held in the Plainfield High School Auditorium last night and a reception followed in the recently completed structure which was thrown open to the public for inspection. The program consisted of violin selections played by Otto K. Shill, accompanied by Mrs. Shill at the piano. Mayor Percy H. Stewart presented the keys of the new building to former Mayor Alexander Gilbert, president of the library board. In doing so he briefly outlined the history of the development of the institution from the time of its inception until the present addition was completed. Incidently he announced the gift by Mrs. Craig A. Marsh of the valuable collection of law books of her late husband, Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh.

He outlined the possibilities offered by the public library of the present day and referred to it as a most valuable adjunct to the up-to-date public school system such as prevails in this city. The fact that Andrew Carnegie gave the new building with no restrictions to govern its use and even refused to have the addition named for him was commented upon. He said that the gift was a voluntary one and because of this fact ought to be all the more prized by the Plainfield citizens for the benefactor displayed his trust in the people of this city in making the gift unconditional. In closing his address the city's executive paid a tribute of honor to Alexander Gilbert, the president of the library board, a man who has devoted more than forty years of his life to active duty serving on nearly every public committee and he described Mr. Gilbert as a worthy custodian of the library key which he then presented.

Mr. Gilbert was very much touched by the Mayor's tribute and found it difficult to reply. He said he preferred not to make a speech because it was so easy not to say the right thing on an occasion like this one and he knew that his fellow members of the board and the citizens present wanted him to say something that would be fitting for the occasion of the dedication of Plainfield's foremost knowledge storehouse. The new library, he stated, belonged to the citizens of Plainfield with all the privileges that are offered by such an institution and he wanted every one to take advantage of the opportunities offered. He spoke of the contributions of Job Male, George H. Babcock and of Mrs. Marsh and said that the money and books presented by these public spirited citizens were most generous. He thanked the Mayor and the members of the Common Council for their hearty co-operation in the work of the library board and pleaded with the city officials to always take an active interest in the institution and to do whatever they could to make it an adequate one.

P. O. BLDG. FUND IS INSUFFICIENT

Possible That Erection of Gov't Building Here May Have to Be Delayed.

CONGRESSMAN LEARNS

Only $70,000 on Hand for Its Construction and it is Impossible to Get Money at This Session—Tuttle Writes Stewart.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—The erection of the proposed new postoffice at Watchung avenue and East Second street in Plainfield may be delayed for a year or so, for the appropriation of $100,000 for a post-a structure which would serve the purpose and be an ornament to the city.

Congressman William E. Tuttle, of the Fifth New Jersey district, a member of one of the joint committees on the postoffice department, had a consultation on Tuesday with officials of the Treasury department at which the Government's supervising architect was present. Mr. Tuttle, it is reported, said that the fund on hand, $70,000, was totally inadequate for the erection of a government building in a city of the type of Plainfield. It was agreed that during the present session it will be practically impossible to get an additional appropriation. Hence, the officials are in a kuandary as to what to do.

When he was United States Senator John Kean secured the original appropriation of $100,000 for a post office building for Plainfield. Even before condemnation proceedings were begun, the Senator introduced a measure for an additional appropriation of $50,000, but his term expired before he could secure it. Of the $100,000 approximately $30,000 was used in securing the site.

As all government buildings are constructed of either marble or granite, it is agreed that an additional appropriation is necessary. A small structure could, however, be erected and the architect could so plan it that additions could be made as the money was secured.

When seen this morning by a representative of the Daily Press, Mayor Stewart stated that he had received a communication from Congressman Tuttle regarding the situation regarding the Plainfield postoffice, but added that he did not feel warranted in giving out its contents without Mr. Tuttle's permission. The Mayor said that he had written to President Clay, of the Common Council, regarding the matter.

CIVIL WAR RAGES; PRAYING FOR PEACE

More Non-Combatants Killed By Shells in Mexico City—Madero's Demand.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—Just before 6 o'clock this morning the rebels resumed fighting with the government troops. The Diaz men started firing in the direction of the points where The federals and the rebels occupy President Madero this morning sent another ultimatum to Felix Diaz demanding his surrender. A third American woman has been killed. The federals and the rebels occupy unchanged positions with the advantage apparently on the side of the rebels.

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—A number of Shrapnel shells from the rebel artillery dropped near the cable office, the American Club and other structures in that neighborhood. Two federal batteries totalling 100 guns stationed on the Paseo de la Reforma near the British legation, constantly sent shells into the rebel forces at the arsenal.

Mexico City, Feb. 14.—In many of the churches special prayer services were started by the clergy for the restoration of peace at the Capitol. Shortly after 8 o'clock a convent five blocks beyond the National Palace, was wrecked by a shell from a rebel gun and a number of its inmates were killed.

JUDGE CONNOLLY CONFERS WITH COUNTY OFFICIALS

Elizabeth, Feb. 14.—Judge James C. Connolly, who was recently appointed by Governor Wilson to succeed Judge Edward S. Atwater, spent yesterday conferring with various county officials and as a result there may be several changes in the court routine of the county.

It is likely that Friday will remain the day for Orphans' Court, hearing motions, and for trials in which a jury is not required. The business on this day will also include matters in the Juvenile and Quarters Session branches. Judge Connolly announced that suits under the employers' liability act will also come up on Fridays. It is probable that arraignments on allegations will be on Wednesdays, with sentences on the same day.

SEVERAL INJURED A BABY MAY DIE

Chauffeur Crashes Car Into Wagons and Leaves His Victims in the Road.

BRUTE IS CAPTURED

Blauvelt, the Prisoner, Went on a Joy Ride While His Employer, A. M. McCardell, Was Dining—Two-year-old Child Dying.

Joy riding in his employer's automobile last night, Bradford Blauvelt, of Central avenue, chauffeur for Andrew McCardell, of 816 West Seventh street, crashed into two vehicles on the Warrenville road, throwing the occupants into the roadway, and heartlessly sped from the scene of the accident. Accompanying Blauvelt was William Jones, colored, of West Fourth street, who, it is said, pleaded with the chauffeur to stop after the smash-ups, but without effect.

As a result of the collision, two-year-old Helen Drummond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drummond, of Springdale, will probably die. The Drummonds, returning home in a wagon after a visit to this city, were the first victims. Mrs. Drummond is suffering with bruises about the head and body.

A rig carrying Charles Drake and Miss Sadie Carrar, of Warrenville, to their homes, was next hit. The vehicle was struck by the auto less than a mile from the scene of the first accident and both occupants were thrown out. They are confined to their homes, each suffering internal injuries. Drake's horse was so badly hurt that it had to be shot. Pieces of horse flesh were seen on the wrecked automobile after it was taken to Thompson's garage in Park avenue.

Because of the delay of the Watchung and North Plainfield authorities, Blauvelt nearly escaped, although both departments knew of the accidents last night, the local police were not notified as to details until this morning.

Blauvelt was arrested at 1 o'clock this afternoon in West Second street. It is believed that he was bound for the North Avenue railroad station to leave town. He will be arraigned before City Judge DeMeza this afternoon and will be held to await the action of the grand jury.

Constable Perry, of Watchung, called on Chief Kiely this morning with a warrant for Mr. McCardell's arrest and a John Doe warrant for Blauvelt. He was under the impression that the owner was in the car at the time the collision occurred. Mr. McCardell has sworn out a warrant against his chauffeur for taking his car from his custody without permission in violation of the Motor Vehicle laws. It is on this charge that he was arrested by the local authorities. Jones, who was with Blauvelt in his wild ride, is being held at headquarters as a material witness.

Mr. McCardell will not be arrested. According to the story told to Chief Kiely and several reporters, he was returning from the Elizabeth Exposition last night and stopped at the Waldorf Hotel, in East Front street, for supper, giving instructions to his chauffeur to get his evening meal and return from him in half an hour. When his employe failed to appear McCardell went to Thompson's garage, where he stored his car, and was notified that Blauvelt had brought his machine back wrecked not five minutes previously. The manager of the garage said Blauvelt left the car in its usual place and departed without any explanation.

According to William Jones, who was apprehended shortly before noon, he, Jones, was walking along East Front street, when Blauvelt drove up to him in the McCardell car asking him to go on a ride. He said Blauvelt drove the car up Somerset street, through North Plainfield and thence into Watchung, and made the home trip down the Warrenville road.

"We were coming down the road at about 20 miles an hour," he said, "when as we neared the Watchung ice pond, we hit the first wagon head-on. I didn't know whether anyone was hurt or not. I got scared and asked Blauvelt to stop, but he made no reply. He seemed to put on more speed and was shaking all over. About a half mile further on we hit the other rig. I heard shouts coming from the occupants of the wagon, but Blauvelt still refused to stop the car. At Fritz place I jumped out and walked home, because I was frightened."

Mrs. Drummond appeared at headquarters this afternoon, accompanied by Oscar Smith, of Springdale, a witness of the first accident. Smith said he was driving a horse along the road several hundred yards in the rear of Drummond's rig and averted a smash-up with the McCardell car by running into a ditch. He said he saw the collision and picked up Mrs. Drummond from the road when she was unconscious.

VALENTINE PARTY OF WARREN CHAPELITES

The younger people of Warren Chapel enjoyed a valentine party last night in the church parlors. They were assisted by several older members of the Sunday-school in making the affair a pleasant and successful one. Games occupied the attention of the guests the major part of the evening. Refreshments were served. Appropriate valentines were distributed among those present.

The event was held under the auspices of the Rover committee of the Chapel, which is composed of the Misses Ida Wheeler, chairman; Adelle Stiliits, Emma Windham, Ethel Hall and Albert Everett. They were aided in arranging the affair by Rev. and Mrs. Joseph O. McKelvey and Mr. and Mrs. George Hougland. An offering was taken to increase the flower fund.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

The girls' basketball team will play the girls team from Perth Amboy tomorrow afternoon at Saengerbund Hall at 3:30. It is very probable that there will be a double bill as Manager Taylor is trying to arrange a game with Bernardsville High School team for the same time.

At a meeting of the Boys' Athletic Association yesterday it was decided to give a play as has been the custom in previous years, for the benefit of the association and the baseball team. Mr. Mertz has consented to act as coach.

Miss Myrtle Montague, head of the High School commercial department, visited at several schools in Boston, Mass., for a few days last week.

The Class League has been inactive this week but three games will be staged the early part of next week. The Freshmen are now in the lead but the other teams have struck their stride and will make the first year men go some to win the medals. The standing to date is as follows:

	W.	L.	PC.
Freshmen	3	1	.750
Sophomores	2	1	.666
Seniors	2	2	.500
Juniors	0	3	.000

The Camp Fire Girls have been very active during the past week and under the guardianship of Miss Eva Terry have had many pleasant and enjoyable times in the mountains and often cook their meals over a camp fire.

TWO CHOICES FOR POLITICAL OFFICE

Bill Introduced in Legislature Patterned After Wisconsin Primary Law.

3 PARTIES ON TICKET

Radical Changes Are Proposed in Measure Fathered by Essex County Members in the Assembly—Some Provisions.

Trenton, Feb. 14.—Providing radical changes in the method of selecting candidates at the primary election in this State, a bill was introduced in the Assembly yesterday afternoon by Assemblyman John A. Matthews, the Anti-Nugent member from Essex county. It applies the Wisconsin method of first and second choice candidates to the primary elections in this State.

It also provides for a Progressive primary ticket, adding the Progressives to the Democrats and Republicans who are already provided for in the primary law.

The bill provides that in voting his primary ticket the voter shall indicate his first and second choice for each office or position. The form of the ballot is left substantially as at present, except that at the left of the column of candidates are two columns for the "X" mark of the voter, the first column being for first choice of candidates, and the second column for the second choice.

The bill specifically provides that this first and second choice shall not be applicable to the selection of candidates for the General Assembly in any county in which more than one Assemblyman is to be voted for at the ensuing general election.

It is provided that the Secretary of State, the County Clerk, Municipal Clerk and the Board of Registry & Election shall be guided by the following rules in the determination of candidates selected for nomination, or persons endorsed for any office:

If any candidate for nomination or for a position receives a majority of the first choice ballots he shall be declared nominated for such office or elected to such position.

If no candidate is thus nominated, drop the name of the one having the least number of first choice votes, and add the second choice votes cast by his supporters to the first choice votes of the remaining candidates for whom they were cast.

If no candidate then has a majority, drop from the remaining candidates the one having the least number of votes then to his credit, and add the second choice votes cast by his supporters to the votes of the remaining candidates for whom they were cast.

Repeat this operation until some candidate has a majority or until two candidates remain. The one then having the greater number of votes to his credit shall be declared nominated.

No second choice vote shall be counted when it is cast for a candidate whose name has been dropped as herein provided.

Any tie for nomination for Governor or for endorsement of a candidate for United States Senator shall be decided by the State Committee of the party. Any other tie vote shall be decided by the members of the county committee elected at such primary by the districts which vote for the office, the nomination for which is sought by the candidate, or who vote for the position.

C. T. POMEROY IS SHOWN EXIT DOOR

His Charges Against His Superior Fall and Summit Board Kicks Him Out.

The Board of Health of Summit has exonerated Dr. J. E. Rowe, the former health officer of the charges preferred by the assistant, C. T. Pomeroy, who was formerly connected with the Plainfield Board of Health, and has demanded the resignation of Mr. Pomeroy to take effect March 1. At the last meeting of the board, Pomeroy advised the board not to pay a bill for $7.50 presented by Dr. Rowe, who had resigned as health officer, as expenses in attending a conference of the State Board of Health at Trenton, Pomeroy declaring that Dr. Rowe did not attend the confernce.

Pomeroy further told the board that in the past it had approved bills for carriage hire submitted by Dr. Rowe when the latter had used the vehicles on private business. At a special meeting both of these charges were thoroughly investigated with the result that Dr. Rowe was completely exonerated.

When called upon to prove his charges, Pomeroy was unable to do so, and he said he had to admit that he was in error. He said he was sorry that he had made the charges and offered an apology to Dr. Rowe, declaring that he really did not know what he had said. Pomeroy formerly held the position of assistant with the Plainfield Board of Health, resigning to take his present position at Summit.

THE REPORTER.

Dr. Frank Crane is responsible for a series of exceptionally excellent sermonettes in the New York Globe these days, and one that is particularly interesting has the newspaper reporter as the object for discussion. What Dr. Crane has to say on this much misunderstood individual is well worth perusal and here it is:

"The petty criminal is afraid of the policeman. The big criminal is afraid of the reporter.

"The man who cracks the belated citizen over the head with a lead pipe fears the law. The man who sandbags the whole community and steals $20,000,000 by manipulating a railway system or the packing industry does not fear the law. He hires the law. The thing he fears is the light, public opinion, and the man who works the spotlight is the newspaper reporter.

"Naturally, publicity is often overdone. Newspapers now and then descend to the level of vicious gossips, but not often enough to offset the immense advantage of their open utterances.

"There never was a bribe-taking judge ousted from the bench, a corrupt politician retired to private life, a Governor or Mayor who sold out a corporations and was exposed that did not hate newspaper reporters above the rattlesnakes.

"This is not a government by law, low does not govern, it is merely the rear guard of government. It is a government by publicity. It is newspapers and magazines, the publishing of facts, that govern.

"The hopeful element in this case is that any attempt on the part of secret cabals to own the press defeats itself. The public is sure to find it out, and down goes the circulation. Many a speak-lightly, sidestepping publication has been supported by criminal capital, but never with conspicuous success.

"Absolute independence, truth-telling and honesty are the foundation stones of a successful publication of any kind. Even party organs and publications backed by a sect or union are discounted.

"We could manage to run along without the distinguished gentleman who run our finances, make our laws and regulate our morals, perhaps, but supress the newspaper reporter and we should be tempted to say:

"'Then bear me from the harbor's mouth, wild wave;
I'll seek another shore.'

"Be kind, then, to the reporter. Take him in and tell him the truth. And if you feel you must lie, be careful to make a mighty good job of it."

One thing is to be added to this survey of the power of the press. The petty criminals fear the reporter quite as much as the big ones. They share with all the creatures that move in darkness a dread of the light. To a certain extent, perhaps, their respect for the reporter may be founded on the knowledge that he is usually close to powerful influences at "headquarters," but whatever it is that moves him, the thug, the rowdy, the petty lawbreaker, has very much the same fear of the reporter as he has of the policeman.

Burlington's ancient "cabin home," with its overhanging eaves and old-fashioned stoop, has been secured by the Annie Stockton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, as the headquarters of the organization in Burlington county. A wealth of historic interest surrounds the quaint old brick building. It is said that Benjamin Franklin once occupied it and printed "money bills" for the State of New Jersey there.

The house was one of the first to be erected in this historic town and it is known to have been standing as early as 1711. It is now the oldest landmark of that town on the bank of the Delaware and, located as it is in the midst of the uniform structures of a later and more hurried age, the residence has an air of old-fashioned dignity and reserve that makes one listen and look for the spectres of the men and women who peopled it long ago.

The one significant fact about the commission form of government for municipalities is that no city having once adopted the plan has ever gone back to the antiquated, cumbersome and expensive form of administration. Another is that the people in cities governed by commissions are generally enthusiastic about it and were it not that it brings a reduction in taxes without lessening the efficiency the verdict would be the other way.

Colonel Henry Watterson, the dean of American journalism, has given the best answer to his own question, does advertising pay? Here it is:

"Why should I advertise?

"Well, here is an example: America wasn't named after Columbus, who discovered it, but after Amerigo Vespucci, who advertised it."

If General Rosalie Jones should halt her army long enough to exercise the much wanted right of suffrage she would be up against a hard proposition for the arm now consists of ten women and twenty-five reporters.

The contributing editor for tomorrow will be Dr. William H. Murray, a public spirited citizen. Needless to say, his editorial will be one to make our readers think.

ALL CHURCHES SHOULD ADVERTISE TO PROSPER

Under the auspices of the press and information committee of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union, the annual conference will be held in the Congregational church, Westfield, at 8:15 o'clock tonight. J. H. M. Dudley, of Elizabeth, will be the speaker. In the announcement for the meeting sent out by the county president, George Mingus, he says that the business house that does not advertise will soon fail, so must the church adopt business methods and advertise. He declares that the press and church must work together for the common good of all.

OAK FARM DRAMATIC CLUB AT PARK CLUB

The Oak Farm Dramatic Club presented "The Old New Hampshire Home" at the Park Club last night for the benefit of Plainfield Council, No. 293, Jr. O. U. A. M. The singing of John Richards, who took the part of Oliver Stanhope, was good, while the specialties introduced by Charles Post, as Zeb Watkins; Miss Helen Meyers, as Muffins, and Miss Try Mattox as Tilly were well received.

The committee in charge of the affair for the Jr. O. U. A. M. was composed of Julius G. Williams, chairman; A. C. Halliburton, F. W. Downs, Jr., J. Rutledge, J. W. Wraight and Garret Ackerman. The proceeds of the show, $100, will be used for the benefit of the lodge.

A FIVE HUNDRED PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter A. Van Fleet, of East Front street, entertained a number of friends at their home last night at a "500" party. There were five tables. The women prize winners were Mrs. O. P. Crane, first, and Mrs. C. Ryno, second; for the men, A. E. Causbrook, first, and Howard Temple, second. The consolation prize for the women went to Mrs. George Mantz, while her husband, George Mantz, was awarded that prize for the men. Following the games music both vocal and instrumental was enjoyed.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 19 degrees; 11 a. m., 31 degrees; 1 p. m., 39 degrees.

SOME THOUGHTS ON THE PRESENT SEASON

Every day brings us evidences of new things, and reshapes old conceptions. The vibrations of man's thought and man's feeling are chiefly controlled by a manifolded environment. One day the products of one impression and the next day of quite another impression propel our mental concepts. This may be the reason that man requires one even, stable, revelation of God to keep his progress direct. Yet the progress demands the proper use of variety in religious experience. A man needs to make use of every variety which life provides if he is to be kept healthy and normal.—variety in physical nourishment, in intellectual refreshment, in spiritual exercise.

Winter the summer, spring and fall, each makes its contribution to the productiveness of the land. There is no such thing as equilibrium in nature. It is by ups and downs; by rising and falling, by living and dying that nature approaches her ultimate and rich harvest. May we not presume that man's spiritual development is best quickened and more substantially matured under the same process of variety in treatment? The spirit of a man makes that demand very plain at times. Now it is the minor tones that his mode dictates then to the mountains he must soar in delight. And so it is that Christianity early caught the conception and shaped her year at the dictate of nature, and followed the course of the "Sun of Righteousness."

At present we find a very large section of the Christian world more or less directly influenced by one of these phases of the Christian year. It is called "Lent." It repesents the retirement season; the spring time of unseen inward development. After a time we will need the sun. Now all is still and quiet. The seed is in communion with the soil about it and the soul is throwing out its quickened tendrils to God. There must be quiet and repose or a thwarted disappointed harvest. Lent to these people is not simply to eat fish and go to Church. There is something far deeper in it than the mere externals. It means a surrender to the proper influences and proper function of religious training, in order to get results.

Would it do the Protestant world any harm to get right down to business and to follow the example of the Churches who keep the season of Lent strictly? There is not a man in this town who would not be benefited, physically and morally, if he were willing to make just one sacrifice during these whole forty days,—and ten of them are gone now—in order to show that he is honest in his convictions. Give up a little laziness or a little leisure for the next five Sundays and go to Church somewhere instead of idling the day away, and if the experiment proves nothing else it will make you a healthier man for the exercise and the change; and it will make your a happier man in your home. It will bring you to Easter Day a man who feels "square" with himself because he has given religion a fair trial. Try it and see. "Everyman Jack" of you in Plainfield, start out next Sunday morning with your wife and the whole family and fairly embarrass the churches by your overwhelming attendance. Last year in New Rochelle all the Churches,—Methodist, Roman Catholic, Presbyterian, Episcopalian and the rest—joined in an endeavor to get men to attend Church for six weeks. They succeeded pretty well, and they all worked together just to get men to Church for six Sundays. It would be an excellent thing to do here. But in any case every man of us show ourselves in Church for the next five Sundays. That will be the first step. Let us try the "Lent idea" on ourselves first. This paper publishes a long list of Church services tomorrow, and these Churches ask your attendance. Try them and let us hear the result. **

COL. C. A. WALBRIDGE DIES AT BUFFALO HOME

Col. Charles E. Walbridge, aged 71 years, one of the most prominent residents of Buffalo, N. Y., and a brother of Mrs. Charles W. Butler and Mrs. Isaac L. Miller, of this city, died at his home yesterday, following an illness of two years. He was born in Buffalo and spent practically all of his life there with the exception of the time he served in the Civil War. He was engaged in the hardware business for many years.

Mr. Walbridge enlisted in the Civil War as a member of the 100th N. Y. Vols., and later he was made quartermaster of his division and then of the Army of the James, with the title of colonel. After the war he returned to Buffalo and again became active in business. He was identified with many interests in his home city. Surviving him are three daughters, Mrs. Wilder Buffum and the Misses Walbridge.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

The benches used in the first act of "The Traveling Salesman," which will be seen at the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and evening, were taken from the old Union Station at Washington, D. C., where they were in use for years. Their scarred and worn appearance lends much reality to the atmosphere of the scene which represents the railway station at Grand Crossing.

"The Master of the House," the season's most successful comedy-drama, which the Messrs. Shubert will present at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening, is a play that "carries a punch" in each of its four acts. The author, Edgar James, a new-comer among successful American dramatists, has taken an experience from real life and dramatized it. An unusual feature of the play is, that in addition to its peculiar appeal to married women, it bears a significant message for three classes of men—those who have been tempted and resisted the temptation; those who have been tempted and fallen; and those who have yet to experience temptation, and for the first time in dramatic history this piece presents the man's side of the sex question. "The Master of the House" created a furore on its presentation in New York. So enthusiastically was the play received that in order to accommodate the many who sought admission it had to be transferred from the Thirty-ninth street theatre to the Lyric, a larger playhouse. Here it ran for 100 nights to capacity business and then on account of previous contracts, it was forced to leave the scene of its triumps. The original metropolitan cast, which numbers Mary Servoss, Helen Reimer, Andrew Robson, Ben Johnson, A. M. Botsford, Ella Rock, Craig Miner, Grace Reals, R. M. Randall, Lottie Alter, Ricca Allen, and Lawrence Eyre will interpret the play here.

FATHER BLAMES COLLEGE LIFE FOR FINANCIAL TANGLE OF HIS SON.

AMOS W. GRANT

"I think my son learned extravagant habits at college. Fifty dollars a month was not enough spending-money for him. That is the only reason I can give for the charge that he took $1,900 from the Pioneer State Bank. He had been used to having more money. His friends had more than he to spend."

This statement was made by J. P. Grant, retired farmer, father of Amos W. Grant, paying teller of the Pioneer State Bank of Denver, Col., who was arrested, charged with taking $1,900 from the bank. Although the father refunded $300 of the money, and the rest has been restored by the young man, a complaint was filed against him in the District Attorney's office charging him with grand larceny.

FOLLOWING ADMIRAL DEWEY'S ADVICE.

STUART PREECE TERRENCE PREECE ARTHUR PREECE.

Admiral George Dewey, who recently celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday by taking a ten mile ride on horseback, says:

"Let a man begin to ride when young and continue it through his early years and he will find later in life that he has invested in something that is a better asset than any in his safe deposit box."

Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Preece, of Queens, L. I., believe that Admiral Dewey is right. They have, accordingly, invested in a good health and ripe old age annuity for each of their little sons, Stuart, Terrence and Arthur, by giving them ponies to ride.

The Preece boys are cousins of little Miss Preece, who came over from England last fall to ride at the National Horse Show. They have ridden at several summer shows, and one of them, Terrence, barely ten years old, won second prize in competition with grown up polo players in a bending race at Mount Kisco last season.

THE U. S. CRUISER DENVER, ORDERED TO CENTRAL AMERICA, LIKELY TO STAY IN MEXICAN WATERS

THE CRUISER DENVER.

Because of the present insurrection in Mexico, which is causing a situation too great for the government to handle, and which promises a condition of affairs nearing anarchy, the United States government is preparing to take steps to protect Americans and American interests there. It is likely several war ships will be ordered to Mexican ports at once. The Denver, which has been stationed at Acapulco, Mexico, although ordered to rush to Central America, will doubtless now remain where she is or proceed to Vera Cruz.

TO HEAR PLAINTS ABOUT HEIGHT OF CAR STEPS

Trenton, Feb. 14.—The Board of Public Utility Commissioners has arranged to give a public hearing at Chancery Chambers, Jersey City, Friday, February 21, upon complaints involving the height of steps on cars of the Public Service Railway Company. The original complaint was filed by William S. Davidson and afterwards was supplemented by a complaint from the State Federation of Women's Clubs.

The purpose of Mr. Davidson and the federation is to compel the company to equip its cars with steps nearer the ground than at present. It is asserted that many persons have difficulty in boarding and alighting from cars because of the high step.

BODY HELD UP THROUGH A MISUNDERSTANDING

Elizabeth, Feb. 14—For more than two hours on Wednesday an employe of John F. Martin, a local undertaker, stood with his back to the gate of Martin's premises at East Jersey street and Jefferson avenue and refused to allow the removal of a body.

William Necker, an undertaker who has been doing business here for two months, sent his representative, Charles West, to get the body of Lewis DeCamp, of 218 Broadway, a painter, who died Tuesday at the Alexian Brothers' Hospital of injuries.

The widow of DeCamp had ordered Martin to take charge of the body while a son, not knowing of the previous order, ordered Necker to claim it. Mr. Martin says that while he was busy at the telephone Necker's wagon came. The men took the coffin, placed it on the wagon, and were stopped by Martin's employe, who refused to let them pass the gate, which he barricaded. Just then Mr. Martin came along and settled the trouble.

The body was buried from Martin's place and Christ Episcopal church yesterday afternoon.

H. Hemingway and T. W. Synnott.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Rogan, pastor of the Red Bank Presbyterian church, extended an invitation to the brotherhood to hold its next annual session in the Red Bank church.

A telegram was received and announcement made that President Arnold had been elected a member of the national council, which held its session in Chicago, Wednesday.

WILL SEND WIRELESS MESSAGES TO ENGLAND

New Brunswick, Feb. 14.—With the passing of deeds yesterday in New York to 160 acres of the Reynolds farm, on the outskirts of this city, to the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America, the wireless concern will have completed all preliminary steps toward the erection of a sending station with sufficient power to flash messages to England.

The local station, according to plans as outlined at the New York office today, will have thirteen masts, each 400 feet high, arranged in a semi-circle about the grounds. The contracts for construction work have been placed, it was stated, and just as soon as the frost leaves the ground work will be begun. The land was sold for $40,000, it is understood.

The receiving station at Belmar, the land for which was purchased early last summer, will be completed within a year, inasmuch as the masts are already completed. The Belmar station will be solely for receiving. Stations similar to those proposed in this State are being erected in Wales.

Frederick M. Sammis, chief electrical engineer of the Marconi company, who will have charge of the construction of the new station, told of the proposed scheme in detail.

"The farm, which is known locally as the Scio farm, is being sold to the company by Reynolds, who is the last owner of the property," said Mr. Sammis, "and has already been surveyed for the erection of the new plant. It will be the transmitting station for the Atlantic service, while the one at Belmar will be the receiving station. The distance between the two stations is thirty-five miles.

"One of the great advantages of the land at New Brunswick is that it is on the Raritan River and canal, which will enable us to have the materials for construction brought by lighters. The farm has a frontage of 1,000 feet on the canal and goes back 6,000 feet. There is no timber on the farm, and it is fairly level land.

"The station will be 500 horsepower and about 300 kilowatts electrical energy. It is the plan at present to use the Public Service power station at Metuchen, which is between two and three miles away. If work is begun by the middle of April the station probably will be completed by March, 1914."

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

A local union of powder makers was organized recently at Kansas City, Mo.

During 1912, 452 employes of railroads were killed and 9,000 injured in Pennsylvania.

Machinists on the Mexican National railway have received a 10 per cent. increase of wages.

Efforts will be made to organize the non-union shoe cutters in Milwaukee and Chicago.

The president of the Bay City (Michigan) trades and labor assembly was elected to the State Legislature.

The Frisco railway system has adopted the old age pension plan. Some 25,000 employes are affected by it.

The Minneapolis Typographical Union, which has just celebrated its fortieth anniversary, is the oldest labor organization in Minnesota.

Almost $750,000 was spent for strike relief by the United Mine Workers of America during 1912, according to a report of the auditing committee.

Sixteen States still have no limitation of working hours, while in eighteen States women may work from sixty to seventy hours a week.

One of the important measures to be introduced in the Connecticut Legislature will provide that there shall be two engineers for every fast express train.

A bill introduced in the New York Legislature is designed to prohibit work by children in the canneries of the State and in the tenement houses in New York city.

Maryland's new child labor law raises the minimum age for child labor from twelve to fourteen years, and more than two thousand children have gone back to school.

The Los Angeles, Calif., Typographical Union has appointed a committee to begin a campaign to bring the 1915 convention of the International Typographical Union to that city.

With a view of doing away with the sweatshop side of their trade the paper box manufacturers of Philadelphia will hold a conference soon with the managers of the Consumers' League.

It is stated that nearly every railroad employe in the United States has had his pay increased within the last five years, and the great volume of the increases has come within the last three years.

Factory inspectors will demand improvements at the Chicago packing plants that will cost $1,000,000. If the improvements demanded are not made the packers will be prosecuted for endangering the lives of their employes.

The American Federation of Labor, through President Gompers, has sent invitations to labor unions throughout the whole country, urging union men to have their women relatives take an active part in the suffrage parade and demonstration to be held in Washington, D. C., on March 3.

U. S. COURT COMMISSIONER.

Trenton, Feb. 14.—Judges Reilstab and Cross, of the United States Court, have appointed Counselor Richard S. Wilson, of this city, as United States Court commissioner for the District of New Jersey. He will succeed former State Senator Cranmer.

REFERENDUM IN METUCHEN.

Metuchen, Feb. 14.—The Borough Council, at a special meeting decided to send circular letters to all taxpayers in town, asking his or her opinion on a proposal to issue $59,000 bonds to pave twenty miles of borough streets.

CLASS GRADUATES MARCH 1.

New Brunswick, Feb. 14.—The second annual short course poultry class, numbering thirty, will complete its three-month period of instruction on March 1 at the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station.

Charming Trimmings For Young Girls' Party Costumes.

In trimming young girls' party dresses a great many small colored roses, usually of chiffon, are seen. Bright blue velvet sashes, edged with small silk roses, are used for lingerie toilets.

MRS. C. H. TAVENNER.

She's Just Twenty-one and Her Husband Is Congressman Elect.

The youngest wife of any member of the new Sixty-third congress is Mrs. Clyde H. Tavenner, wife of C. H. Tavenner of Cordova, Ill., Washington newspaper correspondent and Democratic congressman elect from the Fourteenth Illinois district. Mrs. Tavenner only passed her twenty-first birthday on Nov. 30, and her congressman husband is but thirty years old, perhaps the youngest of the 435 members who were elected to seats in the halls of congress at the last election.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES.

BUCKWHEAT has more heat giving elements than wheat. It should be used, then, in cold weather. As it is a trifle hard to digest, after eating buckwheat cakes one should exercise a little. These griddle cakes are all right for those who work hard or exercise a great deal, but sedentary persons should partake of them sparingly.

Nice Brown Cakes.

Buckwheat cakes brown better when prepared with boiling milk instead of water. To make them light and tender the cakes require the addition of baking soda just before they are baked.

If you wish only a moderate quantity of the griddle cakes try these proportions:

Mother's Buckwheat Cakes.—Take a pint of boiling milk and pour it on half a cupful of yellow cornmeal which has been sifted fine with half a teaspoonful of salt. Stir well together and allow to become lukewarm, then add half a cupful of sifted flour and half a cupful of buckwheat. Then mix well with a cupful of yeast. Cover the bowl in which the batter has been mixed and stand in a warm place to rise until morning. When ready to bake mix in a saltspoonful of baking soda.

A Hasty Breakfast Dish.

Quick Buckwheat Cakes.—These are mixed with water and so are less expensive than the others. The molasses used in this recipe is supposed to make them brown. Take a pint and a half of buckwheat, a cupful each of yellow cornmeal and flour. Stir these together, then add three heaping teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of molasses. Mix to a batter with water, not too cold. The cakes should be mixed just before they are needed for baking.

Toothsome Pancakes.

Buckwheat Pancakes.—These proportions will provide enough for a large family. Take a quart of buckwheat flour, add to it half a pint of cornmeal and a tablespoonful of salt. Mix a cupful of cold milk with three cupfuls of hot water and when lukewarm stir it slowly into the dry ingredients to prevent lumping. Beat till smooth, add a yeast cake dissolved in tepid water and continue beating five minutes. Put aside to rise. Before baking in the morning mix an even teaspoonful of soda in a cupful of warm milk and beat into the batter, which should form in bubbles. Pour the batter on to a hot greased griddle in small, round cakes. They should be a rich brown when baked. Serve with fresh butter and hot maple sirup.

Anna Thompson

LOVELY WOMAN.

No woman thinks much of a reason that cannot be made to work both ways.

It isn't the girls whom he has loved and lost that a man sighs for; it's those whom he has loved and never won.

If a woman were like a serial novel and a man could read only one chapter at a time honeymoons would last forever.

Many a woman has missed the opportunity of her life because she was too busy powdering her nose to attend to it.

Rattling Doors.

To properly adjust a door which rattles on windy nights all that is needed is two or three small corks, a penknife and a bottle of glue. Examine the door outside when it is fastened and see what space there is between it and the beading. Select a place, cut a piece off a cork, rather thicker than the space available, coat one face of it with glue, stick it on the beading, shut the door on it and leave to dry. There will be no more rattling, and the cork keeps its elasticity indefinitely. Windows can be treated in the same way.

Those work seekers who expect to find a job through one publication of a want ad are sometimes disappointed—though not always.

MADAME'S NEW COAT IS ALSO A STEAMER RUG—SHE WEARS IT UPSIDE DOWN OR INSIDE OUT

THE WOMAN'S TUXEDO COSTUME — MAY BE WORN AS A COAT OR A STEAMER RUG

Will madame wear her new wrap as a coat or use it as a steamer rug to-day?

The new rug coat is the latest fashion hybrid. Its intricacies have been devised by a tailor for the comfort and protection of woman and also for the utter confusion of any male member of the family who may unexpectedly be called on to fasten the owner into her rug.

These exhibits were a part of New York's exhibit at the fifth convention and style congress of the National Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers' Association, which took place at the national headquarters in New York. Seventeen other States were represented and helped to decide on the latest fashions.

The rug coat or the coat rug covers more sartorial discrepancies than ever did that full rigged wrapper of yore. When folded nearly across fore and aft it becomes a straightaway steamer rug, with the advantage that it covers from chin to toes and can be tucked in neatly at the throat.

CLEAR THE WAY FOR THE SUFFRAGE ARMY MARCHING ON TO THE CAPITAL.

Under the leadership of "General" Rosalie Jones, an army of suffragists is hiking from Newark to Washington by way of Princeton, Trenton, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore. The enthusiasts hope to greet President Taft at the White House March 1. The suffragists are receiving a splendid ovation all along the line. Herewith is shown a scene at Elizabeth, N. J., where the Order of Elks gave the hikers a great "send-off."

Death in an Antarctic blizzard was the fate of Captain Robert Falcon Scott and four of his companions who accompanied him on his successful dash to the South Pole as they were making their way back over the icy wastes after reaching the goal of the expedition.

The party arrived at the South Pole on January 18, 1912, one month after Captain Raold Amundsen had planted the Norwegian flag at the southernmost point on the earth's surface.

Tragedy overtook the little party two months later, when hunger and exposure to the fearful tempests of the Antarctic exacted the lives of five of their number.

The news of the tragedy was received from the Terra Nova, which arrived at Christ Church, New Zealand, with the remainder of the ill fated expedition, under the command of Lieutenant E. R. G. R. Evans.

Mrs. Robert F. Scott left San Francisco, Cal., on board the Aorangi on February 5 for Sydney, Australia, to join her husband.

It is unlikely that Mrs. Scott has yet heard of the fate of her husband, and the terrible news awaits her when she arrives in New Zealand. Mrs. Scott left London a month ago for America in the highest spirits, expecting an early reunion with her husband.

As there is no cable to Tahiti and as the Aorangi will not touch at any cable point until she reaches the Antipodes, it is improbable that Mrs. Scott will learn of her husband's death until she reaches New Zealand, although efforts are being made to reach the Aorangi by wireless.

In the above photographs are shown, together with pictures of Captain Scott, Mrs. Scott and her small son and Antarctic scenes, photographs of some of the survivors.

COINING THE NEW NICKELS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 14.—The United States Mint in this city has commenced the work of coining the new five cent pieces and will continue to turn them out at the rate of a million or more a day until the demand is supplied. The new coin bears on one side the facsimile of an American Indian and on the other a buffalo.

"MUM'S THE WORD" SAYS ALFRED WAITE

Interesting Speaker Appeared Before High School Students This Morning.

One of the most interesting lecturers ever appearing before a student body in this city visited Plainfield High School, Neal School and North Plainfield High School this morning under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. State Boys' Work Committee. R. Alfred Waite was the speaker and he took as his subject "Mum's the Word," taking the affix "mum" from the three words, maximum, minimum and optimum. Mr. Waite is a native of Buffalo, N. Y., and was graduated from Syracuse University in 1901, where he took a prominent part in every phase of the school work. He held records for the 100 and 220 dashes and was valedictorian of his class at the University. He is at present one of the secretaries of the International Committee of the Y. M. C. A., and his talk was of special interest to High School and preparatory school students because of his familiarity with boys' work.

The speaker told a number of unusually interesting stories, most of which were taken from actual experiences encountered by Mr. Waite in his work and all went to prove the moral that "He that gives most, gets most." The speaker told of an interview he had with Mr. Burbank, of California, the botanist, and drew certain morals from this man's modest and unassuming character. Mr. Burbank has defied the laws of nature and grown plants in heretofore unknown ways unknown climates and yet claims that he has done nothing to brag about.

QUESTION BOX CAUSES INTEREST AT MEETING

An interesting question box was a feature of the monthly meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Irving-Jefferson Public Schools, held at the Jefferson School, yesterday afternoon. There ware about seventy-five parents, friends and teachers present. Mrs. George O. Stevens, president of the association, was in the chair, and she was assisted in conducting the question box by Dr. H. M. Maxson, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. J. W. Sandford, Jr. A great many questions were presented relative to co-operation on the part of parents and teachers for the welfare of the children, and a lively discussion followed.

The question of forming audubon societies in the different clases of the schools was brought up by Mrs. E. H. Mumford, of Compton avenue, and the matter was left with her to be taken up later. It was pointed out that such societies would be of benefit to the children in an effort to protect and learn more about birds. Announcement was made that arrangements had been made for the appearance of glass blowers at the Irving School, Tuesday afternoon and evening, February 18. A social time with refreshments followed. The next meeting of the association will be held at the Irving School Wednesday, March 12.

MRS. BETTIE BONNIE.

Mrs. Bettie Bonnie, mother of Mrs. Martha Somerset, died last night at 7 o'clock at the residence of the latter, 748 Webster place. She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. Somerset, and one son, William Jeter, of this city, and several grandchildren. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at the late home at 2 o'clock and at the Mt. Olive Baptist church at 2:30 o'clock.

KINGSTON WELCOMES THE DUKE

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 14.—The Duke of Connaught arrived in Kingston this morning and was accorded a patriotic welcome, in which practically the whole city participated. The royal train reached the station at 9 o'clock, and there the formal welcome of the municipality was extended to the distinguished visitor. The forenoon was spent in a visit to the Royal Military College and an inspection of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and the veterans of the district. The program of the royal visit concluded this afternoon at Queen's University, where a special convocation was held for the purpose of conferring the honorary degree of LL. D. upon His Royal Highness.

STATE SECRETARIES HEARD

young manhood? Why do we abide awhile in the Queen City of New Jersey?

For answers we naturally turn to the theme of the convention: 'Jerseymen in Service For All Jersey—The City, the Village and the Country.' This theme was not caught up at random. It represents some thought. Many of you have read it, but few only have questioned its meaning. This word service catches a good many. Some of us Pharisees like the flavor as it passes over our tongues, but we are coming together not to consider the affairs of our neighbors but of Jersey and all Jersey, and not simply the work of a few cities—perhaps half the cities of the State. We have some home missionary problems. We also have a rural work which some city secretaries scarcely respect that is introducing more to church membership than all our great city associations combined. In the county and rural work you will still find George Williams' conception of volunteer service. Our city work from the international committee down, has been secretarialized until it 'gasps for breath'—I am actually reminded of the fat man I saw trying to run the other day.

"Considerable has been said about 'oneness.' This word is a little worn. Suppose we take 'solidarity' which means 'community of interests and responsibilities.' This convention should represent a biennial milestone in the matter of introducing solidarity into the work of the Christian Associations of Jersey. It can be done—it's going to be done—and you are the men to do it. Have you got the stamina—the backbone? Will you do it? I know a pastor who preached to his church one Sunday night on 'P-e-t-e-r-i-n-g,' and the congregation to his suprise, possibly to his disappointment, insisted on having the address printed for those who didn't hear him.

"But, I am talking about solidarity—community of interests and responsibilities—New Jersey's interests and responsibilities. We want to see our employed officers, our boards of directors and our State committeemen learn to think together and consecutively of New Jersey and her youth—more than this, we want to see them serve together not for selfish ends, not even to please one another but to please and honor our common Master.

"Before I became a secretary I was a farmer. Now when it comes to plowing with a pair of horses we use the double whiffle-trees, composed of an evener and a whiffle-tree for each horse. It is important that the horses move together. Near our farm dwelt a peculiar character who often hitched a young and mettlesome colt with the slowest old horse and undertook to plow. The result was most unsatisfactory. He would frequently beat and scold his team calling out to the amusement of his neighbors, 'Now you beasts all-together, one right after the other,' which is the way such a team always moves. What this man wanted to say was, 'Pull together,' and that is what I want to say. I wish all departments and interests represented by the Young Men's Christian Associations would 'pull together' in New Jersey and pull together in this convention. Our results would be twice as great with the same appropriation of time and money.

"This convention will show us 'a religion for today;' it will show us some things that can be done without buildings; it will discuss and possibly settle a number of items of business; it may sketch some of the weaknesses of our own efforts; it will picture new forces at work for righteousness outside of our cities; it will gather up and focus our thoughts on the home and the church and the Master and after it is over may He send us back to till our own fields—to serve Jersey—to 'pull together'—with a new sense of our mutual interests and responsibilities."

The convention proper will begin tomorrow morning at the First Presbyterian church at 9 o'clock with a "quiet hour," conducted by E. W. Hearne, State secretary of Massachusetts and Rhode Island. The convention will be called to order by F. Wayland Ayer, of Camden, president of the thirty-sixth convention. The announcement of committees will be followed with an address of welcome by Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

President W. H. Demarest, of Rutgers College, will speak on "Vocational Guidance for Students," followed by questions. The convention address will be given by B. B. Farnsworth, of New York, whose topic will be "A Religion for Today." Luncheon will be served at the Park Club at 12:30.

The convention will continue its session at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the First Presbyterian church, with a song service led by M. L. Beebe, of Montclair. The convention will then organize, after which Dr. David G. Latshaw, of the International Committee, will speak on "The Association and Industrial Men." Remarks will follow by the chairman and treasurer of the State committee. At 4:30 o'clock a special conference for boards of directors will be held, in charge of Wilfred W. Fry, of Camden. The speakers will be Walter B. Hopping, of Montclair, and H. H. Dawson, of Newark.

The convention dinner will be held at the Park Club tomorrow night at 6 o'clock, to be followed with addresses by Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton; Albert E. Roberts, of the International Committee, and Frank Moss, assistant district attorney, of New York.

THE SEVEN SISTERS GO THROUGH SENATE

Gov. Wilson's Anti-Trust Bills Passed After a Hot Debate.

Trenton, Feb. 14.—With all the Democratic Senators supporting Governor Wilson and with the Democratic machinery well oiled and working smoothly, Governor Wilson's Seven Anti-trust bills known as the "Seven Sisters" were passed in the Senate yesterday afternoon after a heated debate. The Republicans fought Senate Bill 43, which defines trusts, prohibits monopoly and makes it unlawful for agreements between corporations, firms or persons to fix prices in a way to be in restraint of trade. The Republicans insisted that this measure would seriously cripple small business all over the State, and seven of them voted against it.

The vote on this bill was as follows:

Affirmative—Senators Johnson, Wheaton, Fielder, Ramsay, Slocum, Fitzherbert, Low, McGinnis, Davis, Munson and Barber, Democrats; and Nichols and White, Republicans.

Negative—Senators Edge, Read, Colgate, Gaunt, Leavitt, Smalley and Pierce, Republicans. This made the total vote 14 to 7.

Senator Pierce, of Union county, endeavored to get the Judiciary Committee to report Senate bill 32, his measure, making the Sherman Anti-trust law of the Federal government apply to this State, but the Democratic majority in the committee, composed of Senator Davis, of Salem, and Senator Slocum, of Monmouth, refused his request and kept the bill in committee. It was the purpose of Senator Pierce had the bill been reported to move to substitute it for the other measures. He claims that his bill gives all the needed legislation to cure the trust evil in New Jersey.

PROCTOR'S FINE BILL.

"The New Scholar," a bright, lively sketch presented by Clarence Wilbur & Co., is the feature act at Proctor's theatre this week. Chung Hwa Comedy Four, a real Chinese quartet, excellent singers, comedians and imitators, is one of the big hits of the show. Their first song, a Chinese love song in the original language is exceptionally good and keeps the audience guessing, but the next song given in pure English is the best ever. The impersonation of Harry Lauder is clever. Ruth Becker, is a singing comedienne who has a bright future; Neumeyer and Bertche, in a skit, "Twenty-four Hours of Truth," which is novel and funny, and the Three Martins, comedy acrobats, complete the bill.

WONDER WHAT SCOOP'S LADY FRIEND THINKS?

"MAC" SAYS

It now looks as though New Jersey would have a 1913 pennant jubilee in these parts. The Central New Jersey League proposition has been firmly launched and we now await developments.

Manager Dorflinger, of the local team, admits that he will have a good team but beyond that you cannot get him to claim the pennant. Deep down in his angular system, however, he believes that his legion will lead the trail.

"Why don't you jump in and expose the list of alleged amateurs now getting paid for their performances in and about Plainfield who are even more guilty than Thorpe?" writes a reader of this column.

If we could disguise ourself as a $10 bill we might absorb a few facts, but we haven't the makeup handy for any such disguise.

A crowd of basketball followers who stopped in at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night to witness an extraordinary bill of holiday basketball certainly got the extraordinary, but in a way that would make one feel like demanding a refund. The battered public is now recovering however, and forgetting, so the Ajax management should writhe upon an ostermoor of anguish or a divan of despair.

Suggestion for opening the baseball league season on Crescent Oval: A game between Columbus' crew and Washington's army.

The world is populated by a number of persons, including those who become excited over an occasional knock.

If the Central New Jersey Baseball League decides to operate both Saturday and Sunday afternoons, the magnates will be forced to start the games at 2 o'clock in order to finish counting their vast gate receipts before sundown.

Plainfield basketball teams will be busy on various courts tomorrow afternoon and evening and there will probably be more local basketball this week-end than at any previous time during the season.

At Saengerbund Hall in the afternoon the North Plainfield High School girls will line up against the Perth Amboy school girls.

The Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls, who at present hold the feminine State championship, will play the local Y. W. C. A. feminine quintet at the Y. M. C. A. A preliminary game will probably be played between the Dunellen girls and the Y. W. C. A. second team.

Two games on the Hope Chapel court, the first team playing the strong Tusseanarroa (or something like that) Canoe Club of Newark, and the second five lining up against the Roselle A. C.

A pair of local aggregations are scheduled to do t'tle at Woodbridge, the Ajax are dry to clash with the Parish House lires, and the Nonpareils with the tarris at the same place. secre

Atlantic City market fishermen are catching blackfish. This shows that the blackies don't think much of the cold snap, as they didn't move far south.

Striped bass are along the North Carolina coast, where they are called rockfish. Several of the Fulton Market fleet out after bluefish caught some of the bass last week. If there was an air ship route down there we would surely hear of Billy Watzinger and Gus Meisselbach taking the tip and the trip.

Barnegat Bay is nearly frozen over and the duck shooting is off for a few days. Zero was reached there early yesterday morning, and this kept the baymen on shore. The geese were flying along the coast, but very few came into the air holes.

The printed annual report of the Fish and Game Commission for 1912 is far in advance of all previous reports by that body. There are many finely colored plates of birds and fish in the report and many pages of interesting reading.

We asked Assemblyman Adams, of Mercer, to include "fishing" in his bill to legalize several harmless sports on Sunday, and he agreed to do so. For some unknown reason a society opposed to the liquor business is also opposed to this bill, but it seems a foolish position for them to take, for when a man is fishing he surely isn't resting his foot on a bar rail. If fishing can be made a legal pastime on Sunday there is a good chance to have the local lakes opened for fishing several hours in the morning, which fact would surely be appreciated by the many young men who can't get away from their work during the week.

We have received an invitation to go smelt fishing up Connecticut way, but must refuse, as we loaned our arctic suit to one of the male writers who is accompanying the "hikers" on their way to Washington, and we couldn't think of asking for its return for fear of being called an "anti." By the way, an English pheasant crossed the road in front of the army yesterday just outside of New Brunswick, and it was considered a good omen by Commander Jones, who reminded her followers that the suffrage movement started in England, and here was an English pheasant leading them on to Wilson and Washington.

Essential to the preservation of game in this State is the extermination of the vermin. Every fox exacts its toll of meat per day, and the question of preventing this was long discussed by the game authorities of New Jersey. As an experiment the Fish and Game Commission engaged the services of a professional fox hunter, who, during the months of September and October of last year, killed thirty-four foxes, twenty-six coons, eighteen rattle snakes, seven copperheads, twenty-five woodchucks, a weasel and a woodcat. The ears are turned into the commission for a small royalty, while the trapper keeps the skins for the greater part of his labor.

The "Seven Sisters" and the suffragettes are occupying the grandstand at Trenton and the fish and game laws are forced into the bleachers. The "sisters" were passed upon in the Senate yesterday, and Monday night will see several game bills back in first place. One of the first bills that will be considered will shorten the game season considerably, and there is a good chance of its passing.

There is a considerable difference of opinion among the sportsmen regarding the length of the hunting season and proper time for the opening date. The writer has listened to many of the arguments and has finally arrived at the conclusion that the proper solution would be to allow hunting two days each week during November and December, making in all about sixteen hunting days for the season. If those days were Friday and Saturday of each week they would be acceptable to all, and during the remaining five days the game would get a chance to rest up. As it is, under the present law, the game is hounded day in and day out the entire length of the six weeks or two months of the season, and those that are not killed are driven out of the vicinity where they have been accustomed to look for their feed and shelter. Two days is about as long as the average hunter can remain away from business, and he could make arrangements for his trips accordingly. This is only a personal opinion, but he might be encouraged into the drawing of a bill covering these points, if it meets with the approval of the sportsmen.

WOMEN GOLFERS AT NASSAU CLUB LINKS

Dates to Be Selected for Competition for Women's Golf Championship.

Although the date has not been decided as yet, the women's annual metropolitan golf championship tournament will be held over the links of the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove. This was decided yesterday, when the Executive Committee of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association met in New York. The date will not be set until the time for the annual tournament of the Women's Eastern Golf Association has been announced. It is probable that the metropolitan district will however, will be held the first week in June, unless it conflicts with the tri-city contests and the Eastern championship. The latter event, it is understood, will be held at the Country Club, Brookline, Mass., early in June.

The Executive Committee also decided to hold a series of team matches during May, best three out of five to count, with fifteen players on a side. There will be two districts, one known as New York and the other as New Jersey, and the members will be selected. The Montclair Golf Club will be the scene of one of the matches. The other courses are to be selected later.

It is the purpose of these team matches to give the best players in the respective territories an opportunity for practice at match play during the month of May in the hope tha tthe metropolitan district will make a better showing this year in Massachusetts than it did last Summer at the Philadelphia Cricket Club, where the Griscom Cup matches were played.

JACK MARTIN'S NAME NOT LISTED IN ROOKEY RANKS

Reports to the effect that Jack Martin, of this city, would be taken to Bermuda by Manager Frank Chance with his team of "rookies" seem to be entirely without foundation as the Yankee leader's first official act as manager of the New York team was the writing of telegrams to a number of his men instructing them to leave for Bermuda February 22 and Martin's name does not appear among the advance guard.

"Hal" Chase will be in charge of this party, which will include "Ed" Sweeney and "Charley" Sterrett, catchers, and Keating, Warhop, Fisher, Davis, Ford and McConnell, pitchers. Sweeney will come from Chicago, Sterrett from Princeton, Keating from Bridgeport, Warhop from Freeport, Ill.; Fisher from Middlebury, Vt.; Davis from Lancaster, N. Y.; Ford from Denver, Col., and McConnell from Anderson, S. C.

Boroughites Roll up a Score of 61 to 36 on Saengerbund Hall Court.

North Plainfield High School basketball players counted nearly twice as many times as did their Somerville High School opponents on the Saengerbund Hall court yesterday afternoon when they rang up a score of 61 against the Somerset county seat aggregations 36. The game was a slow one from start to finish, many fouls being called on both sides, but neither side could seem to count from penalty throws.

Dunning, who has been out of the game for sometime with an injured arm, returned yesterday and celebrated his advent into the game with an even dozen of the field variety. For Somerville Bolby, Kershaw and Robeson played the best games.

O. O. C. ONE POINT MORE.

Playing against the Dunellen girls' basketball team on the Dunellen court last night, the O. O. C. quintet, of this city, came out victorious on the bigger end of a 14 to 13 score. The playing was nip and tuck all the way and was one of the best games either team has engaged in this season.

P. H. S. HOCKEY TEAM.

Taking advantage of the recent cold snap, hockey enthusiasts at the Plainfield High School have organized a seven and left for Cranford this afternoon where they were scheduled to play the High School skaters of that place.

FRANK CHANCE NOTED FOR HIS FEARLESSNESS.

Frank Chance, the new manager of the New York Americans, is noted for his fearlessness. He was a member of the Cubs when Corbett and McCoy fooled the public with their notorious fake fight in Madison Square Garden, New York, durthe summer of 1900. The peerless leader, who always has been a rabid fight fan, paid $10 for a choice seat to see the affray, and when he realized, with hundreds of others, that he had been hoodwinked he was beside himself with rage. Accompanied by several fellow players, Chance led the way to Corbett's saloon after the fiasco. He knew Corbett well, and the latter smilingly stepped forward to greet him. But Chance brushed the proffered hand aside and said:

"Corbett, you're a faker. You never could fight, and I'm going to whip you myself."

With that, Chance made a rush at "Gentleman" Jim and swung a heavy blow at his head. Corbett stepped back in a hurry, and mutual friends interfered. Chance was induced to leave the place, but not before he had subjected Corbett to a tongue lashing which the latter still remembers.

'PLAINS BOWLERS DEFEATED DUNELLEN

Took All Three Games on Their Own Alleys at the Parish House.

Pin smashers representing the South Plains Parish House took all three of the games bowled with Dunellen on the 'Plains' alleys last night with scores of 771, 773 and 800 against their opponents 706, 708 and 698 respectively. In order to give every candidate a tryout in the initial game of the season the Parish House team used eight men in the trio of contests and most of them rolled fair scores. Joe Alberts was especially good, knocking the pins over for a mark of 187 in the first game and 189 in the third.

All of the contests were rather one-sided, the home pinners displaying a vast superiority over their opponents who could not seem to locate the grove. Some of the scores were exceedingly low and these counteracted the creditable marks chalked up by some other members on the losing side.

The score:

PLANS COMPLETED FOR INAUGURATION

Washington Makes Elaborate Arrangements for Change of Administration.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 14.—The arrangements for the inauguration ceremonies and parade, involving a tremendous amount of detail work, are practically completed, although two weeks and four days will have to pass before President-elect Woodrow Wilson and Vice President-elect Thomas R. Marshall will be introduced into their respective offices and will take their oaths of office. The grandstands at the White House and at several points along Pennsylvania avenue are completed and so is the staging for the inauguration ceremonies at the Capitol; the stanchions for the steel cables with which Pennsylvania avenue will be roped off on the day of the parade are in place and the thousands of electric lights to be used for the inaugural illumination have been strung and placed in their proper positions. Every detail of the inauguration ceremony and of the parade following it has been carefully planned and every precaution has been taken to prevent the occurrence of any awkward hitch.

The coming inauguration will be remarkable in several respects. In the first place the Southern States will have a stronger representation in the parade than for a great many years; another new departure will be the arrangement by which the Vice President will receive more attention that ever before, a military escort being provided for him to accompany him to the Capitol and back to the White House; another, equally new precedent will be established by the omission of the inauguration ball which in former years used to constitute the most brilliant feature of the inauguration programs.

In accordance with the plans arranged by the committee in charge of the inauguration ceremonies, President Taft, President-elect Wilson and Vice President-elect Marshall on the morning of March 4, will be escorted from the White House to the Capitol with military honors. The procession will be headed by Gen. Wood as grand marshall and his staff, followed by the Essex troop of New Jersey, forming the special escort of Governor Wilson, then will come the carriage containing President Taft and Gov. Wilson, next the troop of Culver cadets forming the escort of Gov. Marshall, who will occupy the second carriage, which will be followed by the entire grand veteran division, composed of members of the Grand Army of the Republic, the Union Veteran Legion and the Spanish War Veterans.

The President, the President-elect and the Vice President-elect will enter the Senate wing of the Capitol by the bronze door. The President and President-elect will be escorted to the President's room, where they shall remain until escorted to the Senate chamber, to be present at the inauguration of the Vice President-elect, to whom the oath of office is to be administered by the President pro-tempore of the Senate immediately before the adjournment of that body. Having taken his oath, the Vice President will call the Senate to order and deliver his inaugural address.

The organization of the Senate having been completed, a procession will be formed by the officers of the Senate and the House of Representatives, the justices of the Supreme Court of the United States, the committee of arrangements, the President and the President-elect, the members of the diplomatic corps in accordance with their rank, the Vice President, members and ex-members of the Senate and the House of Representatives, heads of the executive departments, governors of States and Territories, the admiral of the navy and his aides, the chief of staff of the army and his aides and such officers of the army and navy who have received the thanks of Congress. The procession will move through the rotunda to the platform over the main portico, where the inauguration ceremony will take place.

After all are assembled, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court will administer the oath of office to the President-elect, who will then deliver his inaugural address. This will conclude the ceremonies at the Capitol and the President and the Vice President, accompanied by their military escorts, will return to the White House, where they will occupy seats upon the reviewing stand to review the inauguration parade.

The parade, in which, it is expected, more than thirty thousand persons will take part, including regulars from Fort McPherson, Ga., a regiment of Coast Artillery, the corps of cadets from West Point, the midshipmen from Annapolis, two companies of bluejackets, militia organizations from various States, and civic organizations from practically every State in the Union. The parade will be divided into eight divisions, each commanded by an army officer. It will be formed in the streets near the Capitol and will march down Pennsylvania avenue to the White House where it will pas in review before the President and Vice President and the other distinguished officials and dignitaries occupying the grandstand in the "Court of Honor."

FORMALLY OPEN NEW LIBRARY

friend of the late Col. Mason W. Tyler, who was president of the institution until his death five years ago, spoke on the literary phase of the library telling what it had to do with the work of the community and of just what advantage it was to the citizen of the present day. At the conclusion of Mr. Calvin's address the audience arose and sang America.

The High School Auditorium was decorated with a large American flag for the occasion and the platform on which the speakers and the members of the library board were seated was decorated with palms and cut flowers. The officers of the local public library are Alexander Gilbert president, L. V. F. Randolph vice president, J. Herbert Case treasurer and William M. Stillman secretary. Others on the Board of Directors are Grove Hinman, Frank L. Holt, William H. Larrabee, Cornelius B. Tyler and Leonard Waldo.

The new and old buildings are connected and during the day the old entrances may be used as a means of access to the new building but in the evening the old building will not be open, when entrance will be by the new building only. The new reading room and circulating department are for adults only and the first floors of both the old and new buildings will always be open to the general public. No change has been made in the circulating hours for the adult department and the reading room hours will also be as heretofore.

A special department has been arranged for children and the younger set will be requested not to use the connecting passageway between the old and new buildngs. The circulating hours in the children's department will be as follows: Daily (Sundays and holidays excepted) 10 a. m. until 5:30 p. m., and the reading room will be opened from 9 a. m. until 6 p. m. The art gallery will be opened Tuesday and Saturday afternoons from 2 until 5 o'clock.

The library has its principal facade on College place, the length being approximately ninety feet, while the building on West Eighth street has a frontage of fifty feet. The main entrance, on College place also, is through an ample vestibule to the stairs leading to the main floor at the same level as the first floor of the old building. The reading room is perhaps the feature of the new structure and extends its entire length on College place. It has a width of thirty feet, with a ceiling height of twenty-two feet. Opposite the main stairs leading to the room is the general delivery and charging desk from which the entire room is under easy supervision by the attendant in charge.

The finish is of quartered oak, book cases being set to all walls. The furniture is also of oak, all having been especially designed for the purpose it serves. Special equipment for the heating and ventilating of this room has been provided, while it is lighted naturally by five large skylights in addition to the windows on the sides and ends. The stack room adjacent to and at the rear of the reading room is fitted throughout with the most approved of modern steel shelving. Two tiers have, at the present time been installed, provision having been made for a third when its need becomes apparent. The new stack has direct communication with the old at each floor level, and a book lift from the receiving room in the basement extends through to the floors above.

The stack room when filled will have a capacity of 45,000 volumes, the reading room providing shelf space for 6,000 volumes in addition. As many patrons of the Library will continue to use the Park avenue entrance, access is by means of a corridor from the old building. Fire doors are hung at all openings between the two buildings and the usual fire hose and reels are provided at all floors. The basement contains the heating plant, the public and private lavatories, a receiving room and bindery, a vault and storage rooms. In addition there is a lecture room with a seating capacity of one hundred and twenty-five. A commodious hall serves as a public lobby in connection therewith.

The building is of fireproof construction and has been fitted with the usual modern appliances. The electric equipment is complete and a system of vacuum piping is installed. In style the structure follows the lines of Italian renaissance. The exterior has a base, entrance doorway and cornice of Indian limestone, while the major portion of the wall is faced with a dark red tapestry brick of special size. These brick form the architraves for the large reading room windows and are used effectively in a decorative manner with tile in the panels beneath.

While the building as it stands is a complete unit in itself, it has been designed with the possibility of future extension on Eighth street.

London, Feb. 14.—A despatch to the Daily News from Constantinople gives confirmation to the reported failure of Enver Bey, the Turkish chief of the general staff, to land a large force on the Gallipoli Peninsula. Warmth In Snow.

Snow is warm by virtue of its light and woolly texture. But it is also warm on account of its whiteness. Had snow been black it would have absorbed the heat of the sun and melted quickly. Instead, it reflects heat, and the reflected heat falls upon bodies above the snow, while the warmth of the earth is preserved beneath it.

COLLEGE HEAD IS HEARD

Rev. Dr. Demarest, of Rutgers, Speaks on Vocational Guidance and B. B. Farnsworth's Topic is "A Religion for Today."

The opening session of the thirty-seventh convention of New Jersey Young Men's Christian Associations at the First Presbyterian church this morning was begun with a quiet hour service, Edward W. Hearne, State Secretary of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, presiding. Mr. Hearne emphasized the vital relationship of the physical director to the boys and men of the community. He spoke of the importance of the physical work director being not only a leader on a gymnasium floor and in physical exercise, but also a strong religious leader, and that, in the natural expression of his life, if that life is lived close to God, he could yield a greater influence than in all he could say.

The convention was called to order by F. Wayland Ayer, of Camden, who was president of the thirty-sixth annual conference. There were approximately 100 delegates present. The chairman announced these committees to serve during the present session:

TO ASK FOR MORE PASSENGER TRAINS

Dunellen Trade Board Committee to Ask Jersey Central for Expresses.

The executive committee of the Dunellen Board of Trade at a special meeting last night decided to petition the Jersey Central Railroad to give the borough better express train service. The passenger traffic between Dunellen and New York is growing rapidly, it is claimed, and the number of express trains stopping at that station are so few and far between that people who travel back and forth complain. Frank Bennett, as chairman of this special committee, will present the matter to General Passenger Agent W. C. Hope on Tuesday afternoon.

The bill introduced by Senator Smalley at Trenton, which allows a municipality to appropriate $1,000 a year to defray expenses of charity patients at hospitals in nearby towns was discussed and found favorable, and letters will be sent to the Senator from Middlesex, asking him to use his influence and vote in having the bill passed. Another bill considered was the one dealing with the method of confirming a mayor's appointees. At present if the candidate did not receive the majority vote of the entire number of members the appointee would be turned down. The bill introduced calls for a majority of the quorum or number present.

Two bills the committee decided to ask the assemblymen and senators to oppose were those as to sewerage disposal beds and the licensing of bowling alleys and pool rooms by the county boards of freeholders. The first measure, which forbids the installation of sewerage disposal beds by one municipality in any municipality against the wishes of the people of that municipality, is passed, will effect Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen as to the joint sewerage disposal system now under consideration. The licensing of the bowling alleys and pool rooms by the county freeholders did not meet their approval and they decided to draw up a set of resolutions; write letters both individually and collectively to the legislators asking them to kill the bill. The matter of licensing these places they claimed should be left in the hands of the local authorities throughout the State as the freeholders do not know the needs of the places as their own governing bodies do.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. REBECCA WOLVERTON

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca A. Wolverton, the widow of the late Charles F. Wolverton, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Stephen H. Brown, of Watchung avenue, Wednesday afternoon following a lingering illness, was held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. M. Anderson, pastor of the First M. E. church, and Rev. Interment was made in Hillside cemetery.

Mrs. Wolverton was a native of Hunterdon county and was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Herman Apgar. Her husband was a contractor and builder. From Hunterdon county Mr. and Mrs. Wolverton moved to Dunellen many years ag and for a long time resided in different parts of the town. They moved from Dunellen to Belmar where Mr. Wolverton died. Following his demise Mrs. Wolverton came to Plainfield, where she had made her home with her daughter. She was an active member in the First M. E. church.

She is survived by her daughter and three brothers, George Apgar, of Readington, Hunterdon county, and Peter and Joseph Apgar, of Dunellen; one sister, Mrs. Charity Schuyler, of Somerville; and several grandchildren residing in Belmar.

MAYOR DESIRES CITIZENS' VIEWS

Public to Decide Whether They Wish a $70,000 P. O. Bldg. or Wait Longer.

HEARING IS ARRANGED

Expression of Opinion Next Thursday Night at Mayor's Office—In Letter Congressman Tuttle Explains Situation.

In order that the taxpayers may have an opportunity to freely express their views as to whether Congressman Tuttle should ask the Treasury Department to go ahead and erect a Government building for postoffice purposes with the $70,000 on hand or if it be deemed advisable to defer the matter until an additional appropriation can be obtained from Congress, Mayor Stewart has arranged for a public hearing. As told exclusively in the Daily Press yesterday, Congressman Tuttle wishes to govern his course in accordance with the wishes of the people of this city and hence he communicated with Mayor Stewart and others requesting that they find out for him the local sentiment.

The public hearing will be held at the Mayor's office next Thursday night at 8 o'clock and all citizens are invited to be present and express their opinion.

The situation is fully explained in the following letter sent by Congressman Tuttle, which the Mayor gave out with his permission for publication:

February 12, 1913.

Mr. Percy H. Stewart,
Plainfield, N. J.

My dear Mayor:

I have had a very natural interest in the matter of the public building for Plainfield and at the invitation of the Treasury Department I called there yesterday to discuss the matter and learn its status.

For your information I am submitting these facts: The appropriation available for building and site is $100,000. Of this amount $30,000 was spent for the site, leaving only $70,000 for the building. A bill was introduced increasing the limit of cost by $50,000, but the additional amount has not been authorized. The data submitted by the Postoffice Department indicates that the ground area of building should be 8,000 square feet and under the limit of cost ($70,000) it will be necessary to construct a building with brick exterior facing, extremely unpretentious throughout.

The supervising architect informs me that he is now prepared to proceed with plans as indicated and that bids will be asked for during the present summer.

Do you want me to press this matter under the present limit of cost or take chances of a larger amount from the next Congress? There is a growing feeling here against these public building appropriations, particularly against increasing amounts already made. The matter is the concern of your city and I am at your command.

It will be necessary to act promptly in this matter.

Respectfully,
W. E. TUTTLE, JR.

As told in this paper yesterday, Congressman Tuttle fears that if action is not taken now it may be a year or so before the work is actually begun. Congress has decided to make but one appropriation in each district for postoffice buildings and as the condition in Morristown is considered worse than here it is possible that no additional appropriation could be obtained for Plainfield until next winter. United States Senator Martine, who has interested himself in the matter, takes the view, however, that the additional fund may be secured earlier.

Postmaster Elias H. Bird was in Washington yesterday and the situation was explained to him by Mr. Tuttle.

SWACKHAMER AS SPEAKER.

Samuel S. Swackhamer will be the chief speaker at the annual banquet of the Men's Club of the Second United Presbyterian church, Jersey City, on Washington's Birthday eve, February 21. It is expected that over 350 men will be present. Mr. Swackhamer will also speak Sunday, March 2, before the members of the Federated Men's Clubs of Jersey City at the Summit Avenue Baptist church of that city.

SIGNATURES REQUESTED.

Petitions for signatures favoring an election to authorize the North Plainfield Council to join with Plainfield and Dunellen in building a sanitary sewer, are to be found at 94 Somerset street, the borough. It is hoped that citizens will promptly avail themselves of the opportunity of signing these petitions so that there may be no delay in the plans.

MADERO REFUSES TO RESIGN OFFICE

And Fighting Continues in Mexico City, the Federals Making Final Stand.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 15.—A telegram received in this city by the Mexican Telegraph Company at 10:30 o'clock indicated that President Madero was determined not to resign. The Senate was in secret session at the time trying to bring about a settlement. De Le Barra was very active. There was fighting in the morning.

Mexico City, Feb. 15.—The fierce Provisional President of Mexico Francisco De La Barra today professed ignorance as to President Madero's intention of resigning. Senor De La Barra admitted, however, that the question of President Madero's resignation had been submitted to Senor Madero, but that the more than a stragetical movement on the part of the government forces.

Mexico City, Feb. 15.—President Madero's federal artillery began a vigorous night bombardment of the rebel stronghold in the arsenal shortly after midnight. All the federal cannon were trained upon Col. Felix Diaz's Citadel and the firing for a time was as heavy as that of any daytime fighting. Federal troops sent from the National Palace took up posts in range of the arsenal and tried to pick off the rebel gunners. Judging from the fierceness of the attack this was looked upon as Madero's final desperate effort to dislodge the insurgents. Many are reported to ahve been killed. All the electric lights were extinguished as shells had torn down the poles sustaining the wires and the battle raged in darkness.

Mexico City, Feb. 15.—Th efierce bombardment of the National Palace and of the other Federal positions by the rebels and the vigorous reply of the federals were construed as an indication that President Madero had not decided to resign. It was believed that the rumors of his leaving office may have been nothing more than a strategical movement on the part of th egoverment forces.

New York, Feb. 15.—A private dispatch dated, Mexico City, 8 o'clock this morning, has been received here which says that fighting was in progress between federal and rebel forces throughout the night.

New York, Feb. 15.—Cable advices received this morning at the local offices of the National Railways of Mexico, stated that so far as it had been possible to learn the property, officials and employes of the company were safe.

BAIL FURNISHED FOR THE AUTOIST

Blauvelt, Reckless Driver Who Injured Several, to Be Arraigned Next Saturday.

VICTIMS WILL RECOVER

Little Child, However, May Lose Sight, Defendant Seems Little Worried, When He Appeared Before Judge in Police Court.

Bradford Blauvelt, the seventeen-year-old chauffeur for Andrew McCardell who while driving the automobile along the Warrenville road on Thursday crashed into two vehicles injuring five persons, was arraigned before City Judge De Meza late yesterday afternoon on two charges. J. Henry Crane, who appeared as his counsel, at the request of Mrs. Emma Johnson, of 108 Central avenue, where Blauvelt made his home, asked for an adjournment and the youth was held in $500 bonds for his appearance in the city court next Saturday morning, Feb. 22, at 9:30 o'clock, at which time he will be arraigned on the charge preferred by Mr. McCardell, that of using the car without permission in violation of the Motor Vehicle laws.

Immediately after Mrs. Johnson had furnished the bail, Constable Perry, of Watchung, in which municipality the accidents occurred, served a John Doe warrant on Blauvelt charging him with speeding and with other violation of the auto laws of New Jersey. Upon request of counsel the court fixed bail at $300 for his appearance before Justice of the Peace Hughes in Watchung next Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock.

Blauvelt, who is but few inches over five feet tall and dressed fashionably, heard the charges against him read without a murmur or change of expression. He seemed totally unconscious of the seriousness of his case.

Those injured in the first accident when Blauvelt drove his car into their vehicle were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drummond, of Springdale, and their two-year-old daughter, Helen. The child's condition is serious and although she may recover, it is thought that she will lose the sight of the left and probably both eyes. The little sufferer had a bad night. There was a rumor circulated this afternoon that she had died, but this proved untrue.

Charles Drake and Miss Sofia Carrar, of Warrenville were riding in a carriage to their homes when Blauvelt came along in Mr. McCardell's car and they were the second victims of the driver's recklessness. They are still confined to their homes, both being under the care of physicians.

Citizens of Watchung when hearing of the accidents and learning that the driver sped away from the scenes of the collisions leaving his victims in the road, were most indignant and some hot-headed ones even talked of lynching. But this feeling subsided somewhat when it was learned that Blauvelt was a seventeen-year-old boy.

RESCUE MISSION ELECTS F. H. ANDREWS PRESIDENT

The Plainfield Rescue Mission at its annual meeting this week elected the following officers and directors for the coming year: President, F. H. Andrews; secretary, Harry Gee; treasurer, J. A. Powlison; assistant treasurer, J. D. Loizeaux; A. L. Force, R. W. Barnes. They represent the local Protestant churches as directors. John LeMatty was re-elected superintendent.

The reports showed that for the twelve months ending February 8, last, the superintendent made about 2,000 personal visits to non-churchgoers, and other persons who had no interest in religious matters. There were 315 public services held at the mission, with a total attendance of 9,500. At the lodging rooms on Park avenue 1,800 men were cared for and 3,600 meals were served to reformed men. The employment bureau was also able to render valuable assistance and thirty-one men professed conversion through the efforts of the mission workers.

The total receipts for the year amounted to $1,493.47, and the disbursements, $1,486.58, leaving a balance of $6.89. Current bills due during February amount to $40.53.

HURT BY A FALL.

Theodore Zeller, of lower Central avenue, near Road Ending, is confined to his home as a result of injuries received by slipping on an icy pavement at West Front street and Madison avenue a few days ago. He severely sprained one of his ankles. Zeller is able to get about the house on crutches but it will be several weeks before he will be able to resume his work. He is a contracting carpenter.

SOMERVILLE MUST FIX STORM DRAINS

Council Plans to Prevent any Damage to Its Sanitary Sewer System.

Somerville, Feb. 15.—The Borough Council last night discussed means to remedy the defects in the building of the Eastern avenue storm drain, which the contractor, William Hardgrove, claimed was put in according to his contract, subject to changes made by Engineer Doughty. The objections to the drain were made because sanitary sewers, met in laying the drain, were allowed to stay and the storm drain built around, its carrying capacity being thus impaired, according to some of the members of the Council. It is proposed that three manholes now be built, at a cost of $30 each, at different points on Eastern avenue where the sanitary sewers come in contact with the storm drain, and the threatened trouble will be thus averted. The contractor was also directed to change the drain pipe now running across Eastern avenue, be changed to iron, at a cost of $15, making the additional cost of the work $105, less the difference in the cost of some of the pipe on the East High street part of the work.

L. M. Codington, treasurer of the public library, made application for funds with which to run the library and $200 was voted for about two months.

A resolution was adopted urging Senator Smalley to use his influence to prevent the passage of a bill now pending before the Senate of the State Legislature, increasing the pay of policemen to about $100 per month. The bill has already passed the house, Assemblyman Beekman voting against it. The bonds of Constables John B. Herder, Samuel W. Davenport and Joe Sugar were ordered returned to the parties for correction. It was voted to accept the bond of Collector J. K. Brokaw. This is for $30,000, and the sureties are Abram A. Cortelyour, Marshall H. Johnson, John J. Kline, Lewis A. Thompson and Hugh K. Gaston.

TAKES PITY ON MAN WHO STOLE HIS OVERCOAT

John Hurley, of Richmond street, saved Dominick Nevarra, of Cottage place, from serving several weeks in jail, according to statements the former made to the police after the session in the city court ended this morning. Nevarra was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza, on Hurley's complaint, charged with stealing the latter's overcoat from a local bowling academy.

When it was time for Hurley to testify, he refused to press the charge and asked that the complaint be withdrawn. He told the police later that no good Irishman would send a destitute man to jail for so trival offense and said that he would see to it that Nevarra was provided with a good overcoat to last him the balance of the winter.

Professor Axson is one of the best lecturers of the day and is thoroughly conversant with his subject. On several occasions he has spoken before the Monday Afternoon Club, of Plainfield, and those who have heard him will appreciate the treat that there is in store for the people of Plainfield.

Admission to the lecture is free, and the place of obtaining tickets will be announced later.

THEIR MARRIAGE NOW ANNOUNCED

Records Show That Miss Warnock Became Mrs. Rockfellow in July, 1912.

IN NEW YORK CITY

Family Puts Wedding Notice in Local Papers—Press Story Confirmed—No Tidings as to Whereabouts of Rockfellow.

Confirmation of the marriage of Miss Laura Raeside Warnock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Warnock, of North Plainfield, and Rowland C. Rockfellow, of this city, as exclusively published in the Daily Press, was obtained today. A copy of the certificate filed with the Bureau of Vital Statistics, New York, by the officiating clergyman, Rev. James G. Lewis, curate of the Church of the Transfiguration, where the ceremony was performed, has been received here.

The couple were married on July 23, 1912, as stated in this paper, at the "Little Church Around the Corner." According to the certificate, the witnesses were Frank C. Collingsworth and Michael Bellizzi, both of New York city. The certificate sets forth that Mr. Rockfellow gave his residence at No. 2 West 96th street, New York city, evidently for the purpose of overcoming that provision of the law compelling couples to wait five days after a license is issued where both parties come from out of the State.

Immediately upon receipt of a copy of the certificate this morning, Mr. and Mrs. Warnock inserted official marriage notices in the local newspapers showing that their daughter was married on July 23 last, as she had stated to a reporter for the Daily Press.

No further information has been obtained as to the wheerabouts of Mr. Rockfellow, who disappeared just one week ago today. Neither has any word been received from Percy Haberle, who went away with him. One rumor has it that the young men have gone South to join Rockfellow's brother, and another is that they have located in Pennsylvania. It was learned today that before Haberle went away he left a note of explanation at the office of the Public Service Corporation on Park avenue, resigning his position and leaving his keys to the office. It is said he also gave directions about some personal matters.

The reason for Rockfellow's disappearance is still veiled in mystery and the members of the Warnock or Rockfellow families will not attempt to offer any explanation for publication. They declined to discuss the matter today but W. W. Warnock, father of the bride, said tht future action depends upon whether Rockfellow is found or not. The examination at the office of the Public Service Corporation show that the accounts of both Rockfellow and Haberle are all right.

"MASTER OF THE HOUSE" WITH ORIGINAL CAST

Can a man of earnest mind put from his heart the woman who has shared his adversity and helped him build his material sucess ofr the flattery and companionship of a younger woman is propounded in striking manner in "The Master of the House," the new American comedy-drama, to be offered by the Messrs. Shubert at the Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight. To tell how the problem is solved would be to destroy part of the joys of ancipication, but it has been worked out in a brilliant manner by Edgar James, and with culminative interest. There is never a dull moment during the portrayal of "The Master of the House." The big wholesome lessons of the piece are taught in dramatic incidents, always holding the interest, and not in sermons or prating. As the characters are drawn true to life there are a goodly number of laughs, from the point of view of life taken by some of the characters is bound to strike a sense of humor. The cast is the same that attracted attention in New York and Chicago. In other words this is the original company.

CARD PARTY FOR MRS. LISTER.

The architect claimed that the original painting done by Mr. Nelson was not according to specifications, but Mr. Nelson maintained that the job he made was a better and more expensive one than the specifications called for. The trouble arose over a change ordered by the School Board. The work was originally to be "natural finish." The Board later decided to stain a darker color. This was done. The objections of the architect were that the specifications called for a three-coat job, while Mr. Nelson delivered a two-coat job. Mr. Nelson added another coat, he said, rather than enter into a dispute with the Board.

"MARTINE CHAMPION OF PEOPLE'S CAUSE"

Union Labor Journal Pays a Tribute to Senior Senator From New Jersey.

The Plate Printer, of Washington, D. C., the official organ of the International Steel and Copper Plate Printers' Union of North America, pays a tribute to United States Senator James E. Martine. Mr. Martine's portrait adorns the first page and he is called "A Champion of the People's Cause." The article follows:

"Whether following him from the gallery, reading after him in the Congressional Record, or coming personally in contact with him, one soon learns that frankness, courage, honesty and human sympathy are striking characteristics of Senator James Edgar Martine of New Jersey. He believes with Abraham Lincoln that God must be very fond of the common people—He made so many of them; and with Lincoln he is proud to tell that it is from this class of God's chosen people he came.

"It is doubtful if Senator Martine ever did, or ever could, resist an honest appeal for sympathy. His effective sympathy in behalf of Miss Houghton, who met with such a horrible accident in the Census Office several months ago, illustrates the bigness of his heart and the genuineness of his sympathetic nature. This unfortunate young woman will owe her first and fullest thanks to Senator Martine for the fairly generous aid which Congress will extend to her. He could no more resist the impulse to help her than water can resist the force that impels it to flow donwward.

"Senator Martine, because of Republican environment, earned fame as a leader of 'forlorn hopes.' The Democratic party in New Jersey never asked Mr. Martine to lead a forlorn hope that he did not respond with alacrity and put in the fight all the earnestness of his nature—just the same as though he had a chance of success. But even as nature is its own reward, so Mr. Martine, in 1910, received as a requittal for long and faithful party service a senatorial toga. In thus honoring Mr. Martine the State of New Jersey honored herself.

"Senator Martine is a true progressive and will ever b efound in the ranks of those whose works, as well as words, earn them the right to be thus designated. He believes that organized labor, as a progressive force, is second to no other movement of modern times. Organized labor knows his worth, values his friendship, and never will be disappointed in him."

WIDOW GETS HALF.

Atlantic City, Feb. 15.—Vice Chancellor Leaming has filed a decision in the Court of Chancery holding that Mrs. Emma H. Frampton, widow of John W. Frampton, who was believed to be unmarried until his death, is entitled to one half of the estate under the terms of the will. Her claims were contested by a number of nephews and nieces. "The time the will in question was made the testator was admittedly a married man," says Vice Chancellor Leaming in his opinion. "For reasons of his own, his marriage was a secret except to a few of his friends, but no estrangement appears to have existed between him and his wife." The will was drawn by a lawyer, to whom the fact of the marriage was unknown.

MEMORY OF MISS ANTHONY.

New York, Feb. 15.—The memory of Susan B. Anthony, whose name is inseparably interwoven with the early history of the woman suffrage movment in America, was honored this afternoon in the unveiling of a portrait bust of her at a tea given by the suffragists' organizations at the Hotel Astor. The bust was made from life in Rome, Italy, by Mrs. Adelaide Johnson, the sculptor, when the veteran suffragist was in her prime. Mrs. Ida Husted Harper, author of the life of Susan B. Anthony, unveiled the memorial, and addresses were delivered by Mrs. Chapman-Catt, president of the International Suffrage Alliance, and Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association.

MASONIC BANQUET.

Post and others. The dinner was in charge of Mrs. C. C. Kenyon, Mrs. D. H. Brokaw, Mrs. J. Harvey Wyckoff, Mrs. J. A. Maxwell and Mrs. Edwin L. Lane. During the dinner excellent music was rendered by Prof. Jungmann's orchestra.

JOHN G. WOOLLEY TO SPEAK.

John G. Woolley, the widely-known temperance speaker, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church, tomorrow morning at the usual hour.

THERE'LL BE NO LECTURE BY REV. DR. HEADLAND

The lecture by the Rev. Dr. Isaac Taylor Headland on "Some By-Products of Missions," which was to have been given under the auspices of the Plainfield Federation of Women's Missionary Societies in Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 12, has been indefinitely postponed.

That a large audience was disappointed by the failure of the lecturer to be present is a matter of keen regret to the federation, but one for which it was in no way responsible. The federation is grateful to the Rev. Paul Kozielek, who through the kind offices of the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, relieved the embarassment of the occasion.

No further opportunity for Dr. Headland's lecture offers at present. Special meetings next week in some of the Plainfield churches, notably the Missionary Institute of the Baptist churches, which is sure to be of great interest to the public, preclude the possibility of accepting his offer to give the lecture on Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Sherman. The memorial exercises were held in the Hall of Representatives.

OVERLAND PILGRIM AT DOVER.

Dover, Feb. 15.—About sundown Thursday night "Choctaw Kid," with his pairis schooner, drawn by Jennie, a burro, meandered into town and drew rein before police headquarters. The proprietor of the outfit informed the officer at the desk of his mission and mode of travel, and asked permission to give an exhibition of rope work on the street corner. The adventurer declares he started from Oklahoma 276 days ago, overland, went to San Francisco, thence to New York, and is now on the return, expecting to reach San Francisco again before the close of the exposition in 1915. He says he is traveling on a wager, "without money, watch or weapon."

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

On Tuesday night Edward J. Bowes will bring to the Thirty-ninth street Theatre a new comedy by Thompson Buchanan entitled "The Bridal Path," the scenes of which are laid on Long Island. The action of the play, which is in three acts, takes place at the present period and has to do with Natalie Marshall, whose prevalent tendency is to lose sight of old-fashioned ideas on the subject of what constitutes the real importance of the marriage bond. Natalie loves Bobbie Cameron and tells her father she is sure he loves her and is going to propose to her. To make assurance doubly sure, she writes a newspaper article for a scandalizing paper of the town which compromises Bobby and herself to such an extent that she believes he will feel obliged to marry her. In reality Natalie has no authentic reason for believing Bobby cares to marry her as, for the most part of their lives, they have been nothing more to each other than good pals. Bobby, however, is under the influence of Vera Malczeska, a Russian artist, who places her career before everything else in the world, but who believes Bobby is essential in her life. She has already persuaded him to marry her when they both appear on the scene where a number of their acquaintances are discussing the publication of the scandalous article which has not only implicated Natalie and Bobby but Vera as well. Situations rapidly develop from the complications caused by Natalie's whim which force a rapid play of wits between the two women and in which Bobby and others are buffeted about like handballs.

"The Making of the Panama Canal" and "Actual Scenes of the Balkan War" in natural color motion pictures, as shown by the Kinemacolor Company of America, continues to be a favorite atraction of the New York Theatres. All America is interested in this great undertaking, the making of the Panama Canal, and reads with interest every detail concerning the progress of the work. The spectator can gain a more realistic idea of the stupendous undertaking from the Kinemacolor exhibit than by an actual visit to the Canal. The mighty dipper dredges, the giant steam shovels doing the work of 500 men at a single thrust, electric drills eating through solid rock, the explosion of sixty-five tons of "Trojan" powder, in which a big hill is blown up, the gigantic stone crushers, cement mixers—all the wonderful machinery used in this great undertaking, is shown in detail. The pictures of the Balkan War are equally striking. In the Canal pictures, we see the work of construction; in the Balkan War pictures we see the work of destruction.

CERTAIN DEFECTS IN NEW JERSEY'S INSTITUTIONS.

The proceedings of the recent Conference of Charities and Corrections held at our High School has emphasized certain facts of interest in the State's provision for its defectives and delinquents.

Feeble Minded. There are in New Jersey more than five thousand feeble minded men, women and children, and of these less than five hundred are in proper institutions and intelligently cared for. The remaining number are or should be on the waiting lists. There is but one state institution for this class of defectives, viz.: The State Home for Feeble Minded Women at Vineland with accommodations for 260 persons. There is also a private institution at Vineland for children which receives State patients on payment from the State, but this has reached its limit of capacity and has now a waiting list of 239. A sad features of this failure of the State to provide for this class of cases is the fact that so many of these unfortunates are confined in penal or reform institutions, or in asylums, more than 800 being at present so placed by the State.

Feeble Minded Women.

Feeble Minded Men. There is now no provision whatever for feeble minded men, though some promise for this class is in prospect at the State Village at Skillman, and there is also prospect of a "farm tract" in southern New Jersey where such defectives may be employed. There is absolutely no proper place at present for idiots, either male or female.

Insane. There are between six and seven thousand insane persons in New Jersey and but two State asylums with a normal capacity of sixteen hundred. Owing to the great demand, the doors of these have been stretched open far beyond their proper limit and at the present time twenty-three hundred patients are accommodated within their walls, in a condition manifestly of lamentable overcrowding. There being no special institution for imbeciles, epileptics and idiots, many of these are confined in the above asylums, an utterly improper provision for them.

Deaf. The State care for the deaf is very limited, there being but one small school, which is much overcrowded.

Blind. As to the care of the blind, it is hardly to be believed that New Jersey, beyond the right to board such unfortunates in institutions outside of the State, has made absolutely no provision for this class of unfortunates. Something is done by a State Commission toward the prevention of blindness, but as far as an institution for the housing, care and treatment of these pitiful cases goes, the attitude of New Jersey is one of apathy and neglect.

State Prison. Of the State Prison it may be said that the contract system of prison labor is to cease in 1914. After that the labor will be on the "State use" plan, which means that prisoners will make such articles as may be used in the State institutions. These manufactures will include garments and furniture, and it is also proposed to have a farm in connection with the prison and to allow the prisoners to raise farm products, these to be used also by the State. This change is regarded as a great step in advance by penalogists.

Reformatories. The opening of the Women's Reformatory at Clinton with its farm will greatly relieve the State Home for Girls at Trenton and will provide outdoor labor which is considered of particular value in this work of reform.

The Home for Boys at Jamesburg is a reform institution for boys under sixteen years of age. It is a sad fact that during the year 1911 there were fifty boys there under ten years of age. Surely with a proper probation system and probation officers of the right kind it should not be necessary to send such young children to a reformatory.

The Rahway Reformatory takes men between sixteen and thirty and here again the problem of the feeble minded has been prominent. A reform institution is no place for one who is mentally defective, but owing to the lack of special places for these cases they are found here as well as in the insane asylums.

No enumeration of New Jersey's institution is complete without speaking of the State Village for Epileptics at Skillman. It is well managed and doing thoroughly fine work.

Generally speaking New Jersey compares very well with the other States in the care of its delinquents and defectives; the conference, however, did well to emphasize the above defects.

BILLS AWAIT GOV.'S SIGNATURE

Some Important Measures Among Those to Be Sent to Wilson Next Week.

Trenton, Feb. 15.—Eleven bills have passed both branches of the Legislature and are ready to be delivered to the Governor for his action next week One of these is the bill by Mr. Egan providing for a State military display at the inauguration of President Wilson at Washington, March 4. The bill apropriates $35,000 to send the Governor and his staff and such troops as the Governor shall designate. Of course, Governor Fielder and staff will be the ones to head the detail, as Woodrow Wilson will cease to be Governor, March 1, when he hands the Secretary of State his resignation. It is expected that Governor Wilson will detail the troops for the ceremony before he resigns. This will be necessary in order that they may prepare for the trip. It is thought the bill will be signed Monday evening and the troops selected on Tuesday.

The appropriation will not be sufficient to take the entire division of the State Guard, as this would require about $50,000. There is talk that a provisional brigade will be selected for the occasion. This would give three full regiments, as each company would be recruited to full membership in order to give a proper display.

Senator Fielder has not yet announced whom he will appoint as his personal military aide after he becomes Governor. This aide, who will rank as colonel and other officers detailed for the purpose will compose the staff of the new Governor. The other bills ready for the Governor's pen are:

Senate 12, the Leavitt bill repealing the law of 1912 requiring public officials charged with the erection of public building to give bonds.

Senate 16 and Senate 17, the Wheaton bills authorizing seashore cities to construct boardwalks and issue bonds therefor.

Senate 61, the Leavit bill repealing the act of 1912 providing for the support of indigent patients suffering from incurable diseases and which was passed to take the State support away from, the Bide-a-Wee Home near this city.

Senate 93, the Leavitt bill authorizing school districts to establish schools of detention for the instruction of dependent and delinquent children.

Assembly 175, the Nutting measure validating an issue of borough bonds.

DUNELLEN PLANNING A SPECIAL ELECTION

Petition Being Circulated for Voters to Decide on Joint Sewer Plant Scheme.

Mayor Charles E. Richards and other members of the Dunellen sewage commission, which is working in conjunction with Plainfield and North Plainfield on plans to build a sanitary sewer, met last night, and took steps toward securing the consents of property-owners authorizing Dunellen to join with the other two municipalities in the undertaking. It is necessary for the commission to secure the consent of 25 per cent. of the property-owners of the borough to hold a special election. In the opinion of the commission this will not be difficult.

A majority of the people are in favor of a sewer for the borough and are willing to lend their aid in every way possible to bring about the improvement. Petitions were prepared last night and the work of obtaining signatures started. Ernest B. Latham, one of the largest property-owners, was the first to affix his signature to a petition.

Each member of the commission has been assigned a certain district to obtain signatures to the petitions, those engaged in the work being Mayor Richards, R. M. Ryan, A. J. Hamley, Lewis T. Churchill, William Castner and A. F. Todd. Dunellen's apportioned share of the expense of the whole proposition is 7 per cent., Plainfield's share is 68 per cent., and North Plainfield's share is 25 per cent.

FIFTY YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Angerbauer, Sr., of East Third street, observed today the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. The couple were married in Middle Village, Long Island, February 15 1863, and came to this city in March, 1879. Because of the condition of Mr. Angerbauer, who is confined to Muhlenberg Hospital following a severe operation, the golden anniversary was observed quietly.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Grannatt, of West Fourth street, left today for Savannah, Georgia, where they will be the guest of their son, Edward Grannatt, whose marriage to Miss Daisy Elsberg took place some time ago.

TRICK OF TRUSTS EXPOSED BY FORT

Former Governor Uncovers Scheme to Destroy Purpose of the Seven Sisters.

OPPOSES ANY CHANGES

To Insert Words "Knowingly and Wilfully" Would Change Question of Guilt to One of Proof of Malice —Conviction Then Impossible.

Former Governor and Supreme Court Justice John Franklin Fort, who has attended some of the hearings on Governor Wilson's Seven Sisters bills, to reform the corporation and incorporation laws of New Jersey, has prepared a striking and vigorous reply to the lawyers who made speeches against the measures before the Senate Committee.

Mr. Fort among other things completely exposes the trick of the corporations to secure the insertion in one of the bills of the words "knowingly and wilfully." He says:

"I am heartily in favor of the so-called Seven Sisters bills, to amend our corporation laws. They have been prepared with the greatest care to accomplish needed changes in existing law. They will not destroy any interest or injure any business. They will not even affect our corporate revenue, which comes to the State from corporations.

"President Fielder, of the Senate, stated the truth on Monday night in debate, when he said they would help the revenue and strengthen every New Jersey corporation with the people. That I believe.

"The reason is self-evident. What a corporation needs is the public confidence in its management and its basic laws. These proposed statutes, if enacted, will assure investors and others as to the safe character of corporations formed under New Jersey laws, and they will not leave a State, with safe and sane laws, and go into one where reckless privileges exist.

"The corporation which does that will find the people will want none of its securities. If a corporation leaves New Jersey because of these laws, it will be for the reason that it is not straight. Surely there can be no other reason.

"I have followed the speeches of the few corporation attorneys who have spoken at the hearings before the Senate Committee. The reasons urged have been without much force. In fact, it seems to me they have almost entirely been an apology for appearing in opposition to the bills at all. Is it not remarkable that not one corporation of any size organized under the laws of New Jersey has given its name, or taken action by its directors, in opposition to these bills? They know they contain provisions that are really reforms that the public demand.

"About the only point strenuously urged by the corporation attorneys has been that the bills should be amended by limiting any offence named in them, in such way that it would not be a crime unless knowingly and wilfully done. These gentlemen know that those words would destroy the teeth in the bills. Why should crimes under the corporation act, when committed by officers or directors, stand on any different basis from crimes committed by other people under other criminal provisions of our statutes?

"Under these acts as drawn, guilty intent will have to be established beyond reasonable doubt, before there can be a conviction. If you put the words knowingly and wilfully in, then you will not only nave to show on the trial intent to do the act beyond reasonable doubt, but that that intent was wilfull, that is, malicious.

"To illustrate, if an indictment were found for doing acts to injure or destroy the business of a competitor, the State would be compelled to prove, beyond a reasonable doubt, that the act done was not only one that would, as a matter of fact, injure or destroy the business, but to show beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant did the act wilfully, that is maliciously.

"These words 'knowingly and wilfully' in the statute would change the question of guilt from mere criminal intent, established beyond reasonable doubt, as in all other criminal cases, to proof of malice against the particular person whose business was destroyed. It would make it almost impossible to convict under the statute in any case unless the State had some direct declaration of a defendant that he had threatened that he would injure or destroy the business of some other person.

"Why should we make a new criminal rule for the benefit of corporation malefactors, as distinguished from any other persons who violate the crimes act? Officers of corporations have been so accustomed to securing from the Legislature special privileges, that they now seem to be seeking special privileges in their crimes.

"The evils of corporate strangulation of business competitors will never stop until the officers are punishable by criminal statutes for the illegal acts which they direct to be done in the corporate name.

"It does not seem possible to me that any man who really wishes to represent public sentiment can vote against these acts becoming laws. They make for righteousness in business affairs and will destroy the wrongful practices of the past by making them criminal in the future.

"So far as I can see there is not an objection of substance which any man who wished to conduct his business with fairness to his competitor can urge against these bills. For the business crook they are no doubt dangerous, and that I imagine was the intention."

TROLLEY JUMPS TRACK.

Failing to properly go over the switch, a Fourth street trolley car, westbound, jumped the tracks near the point of the old car barns at 7 o'clock, last night, and gave the few passengers aboard a lively shaking up. When the front of the car left the tracks, the rear part was swung around into the gutter. Motorman William Buckle and Conductor Harry Goldstein were in charge of the car. The trolley just cleared the tracks so that the service on the line was not interrupted to any extent. In less than an hour the car was again placed on the tracks. There was no damage.

GRIDIRON WARRIORS DINE.

Members of the Holy Cross football team, who term themselves "Champions of New Jersey," enjoyed a banquet last night in Lee's restaurant, Scotch Plains. The color scheme of maroon and white, representing the club colors, was carried out in the table decorations, and a pastry "football" formed an appropriate centerpiece. John Doyle was toastmaster. Among those present were Carl Moran, Kenneth Mair, Edward Bremble, John Caulfield, John and Thomas Ricketts; Myrton Glover, Joseph Carty James Nash, John Wilson, William Coyle, Harry Webster and William Hamilton.

TAILORS IN NATIONAL CONVENTION HAIL THE NEW PADLESS MAN.

Throw out your chests, you gay Lotharios! Have you heard that the tailors in national convention in Cleveland recently decided that men were better looking than women. And also, have you heard the latest edict that padless coats should be worn if one would be in style? The tailors say that the masculine gender is so generally fair to see that it is spoiled by wearing garments so stuffed with burlap and curled hair that they make every one who wears them look like a football hero.

Sloping shoulders, giraffe style, after this, and the fashion for male attire is to become less concealing of latent beauties from this very day. The knights of the shears in their conclave hail man as the beautiful sex. If he did not have to cut his hair short and neglect his complexion and pay little or no attention to his attire they are certain he could soon distance the fair and often unquiet sex in the matter of pulchritude.

Mr. Hoffman has appealed to the officers of his company to demand investigation by the German government.

New York Shudders In Fear of Salt And Pepper Attack

To literally salt and pepper a great city into submission is the form of strike possibility evolved out of the recent waiters' controversy in New York.

The sensational plan to make the power of the men who juggle plates and spill gravy felt by all the wealthy diners out in Gotham made New York gasp. Not only was the plan to salt and pepper the city into helplessness suggested, but overt threats of possible poison were forced upon the public. At least, threat of poison was the construction the restaurant and hotel owners put upon a startling utterance by one of the strike leaders.

In the evolution of the hideous plan Joseph J. Ettor and Arturo Giovannitti, who some time ago became prominent as leaders of the Lawrence (Mass.) mills strike, had a leading part. They put the plan of attack into words, offering it as good advice to the waiters. These two men have had a thrilling experience as labor leaders. Because of their movements in the strike at Lawrence last summer they were charged with complicity in a murder, were tried and acquitted.

Thus when the labor disturbance involving the New York waiters and the garment manufactory employees broke out simultaneously the pair gravitated naturally to the center of the stage in that city. They have come to be popular strike leaders and, in fact, the idols of a large portion of discontented workers.

Ettor was first to sound the warcry for the waiters that thrilled the public. In a speech before the strikers he said: "Go back to work with your minds made up that it is the unsafest thing in the world for capitalists to eat food prepared by your union."

The subtle threat was widely accepted as having the most sinister meaning possible, and the restaurant owners seriously considered having the agitator prosecuted criminally.

Giovannitti followed with a similar utterance, which in effect took the sting and the hideousness out of his friend's words. In a speech he told the waiters: "The waiters in Paris won their strike by subtle means. Where in a certain relish a pinch of salt was required they put in a handful. Where a mere suff of pepper was needed they put in another handful."

While New York was still gasping over the fear of the "unsafest thing in the world" and "the subtle means" Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, another oracle of the workers, gave new advice. She told the men to make affidavits as to the character of the food sent out from the kitchen under normal conditions. The waiters as a result put forward charges that unfit food was served as a regular thing, having thick coatings of sauce to cover the signs of its unfitness, and that food rejected by one person at table was returned again to another guest with new sauce hiding its defects.

Ettor is twenty-seven years old and was born in this country. He was a sheet metal worker before he became a strike leader as a member of the Industrial Workers of the World.

Giovannitti is thirty years old. He was born in Italy, the son of a chemist. He lived in Montreal and Halifax after coming to America and gained a common school education. He entered Union Theological seminary and registered at Columbia university when he came to New York. He preached in Presbyterian missions in New York and Brooklyn and later in Pittsburgh. While in the last named city he took up socialism. As editor of Il Proletario, an Italian newspaper, about a year ago, he met Ettor and joined him in agitating under the name of the Industrial Workers of the World.

The waiters undertook their strike with the demand for a regular wage.

Y. M. C. A. CONVENTION

Wayland Ayes, Camden; vice president, J. A. Campbell, Trenton; vice president, J. E. Kimball, Plainfield; vice president, J. W. Cleveland, Paterson; secretary, B. C. Pond, Paterson.

The committee on nominations for officers thirty-seventh State convention: President, Arthur M. Harris, Plainfield; vice president, J. Boyd Avis, Woodbury; vice president, Wilfred W. Fry, Camden; secretary, Frederick N. Esher, Jersey City; assistant secretary, S. J. Robbins, Summit; assistant secretary, John H. S. Putman, Rutgers.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart made an address of welcome, saying in part:

"In one aspect it is peculiarly fitting that your conference should be held in this city, for our Young Men's Christian Association is one of the oldest in the State, and one of the pioneers in this movement: it has just celebrated its forty-fifth anniversary.

"Your association has assumed great moral responsibilities, in moulding the lives of the young, and endeavoring by your accumulated experience in many fields of labor and thought and under a variety of conditions, to furnish to young men, wise practical suggestions, by which they may guide their lives, and spiritual aspirations for their souls.

"Your association is rightly called the Young Men's Christian Association, and your ultimate aim is that all of your members should be Christian men, with all that that term implies, of manliness, courage, self-denial, sacrifice, and active effort, to extend the kingdom of Christ upon the earth. It is a matter of every day observation that ignorance, vice waste, and degeneracy of all kinds are generally individual in their activities. They are fighting a guerilla warfare and they are fighting at a disadvantage. Your wise and able leaders have developed a Christian campaign of strategy, based upon a mighty and efficient organization, which is opposed to you, and to beat it in detail. I think nothing has encouraged those who are supporting this movement more than the great generalship which is being displayed in your campaigns. There is another element in which you have been equally wise, namely, in the gentleness and tact which you have employed, in extending your individual operations. The man who lifts the veil from a fellow-being's heart, should be firm, but he must also be exceedingly tender and sympathetic."

President W. H. Demarest, of Rutgers College, spoke on "Vocational Guidance for Students," saying in part:

"The necessity of vocational guidance is with the great multitude never to approach a college door for there is a great multitude who are never going to enter college, go as far as graduating from High School, drop out of High School during their course of study, many who drop out of school at the finish of grammar grades and they are the great body of boys and young men to be put aright.

"There are two reasons why the Young Men's Christian Association should do much along this line. First, because the association is personally centered with a man's all around life, a man's moral and spiritual welfare."

The convention sermon was delivered by B. B. Farnsworth, secretary of the Twenty-third Street Y. M. C. A., at this morning's session. His topic was "A Religion for Today," and among other things he said:

"What is the place and value of the Bible as authority? We must remind ourselves that religion is not founded upon the Bible, but that the Bible is a product of religion. We must remember that in Jesus' day to be holy meant to be ceremonially perfect, but Jesus taught that no form of ceremony is essential unless it makes for righteous living. No man shall be compelled to do as he is told just because he is told. That makes slaves, and Jesus came to set men free. Past religious customs or beliefs were not regarded as final authority by Jesus. He put no trust in liturgy or ready-made creeds but called men to seek the favor of God through right living, and while there are many statements in the Bible today which no man regards as binding, yet we do find from the beginning of the book until its end a gradual evolution of man's conception of God, and so we are ready to declare that all teaching and all ideals consistent with our highest conception of God and of Jesus in the twentieth century, for whatever source, from whatever time, are our standards of truth. The highest ideals making for moral, ethical and religious living are found in the teachings of Jesus, and the teachings of Jesus, scant though they may be, are all found in the Bible, hence the Bible, with whatever else it may contain, viewed in the light of the best knowledge of our day, contains the standard of all that is highest and noblest and best for the moral, ethical and religious development of men, and Jesus as a living personality, affecting the consciences of men, is the source of that authority."

In conclusion the speaker said:

"Religion as interpreted by Jesus appeals to the whole mind, the whole will, the whole soul of man. The real musician must penetrate beyond the technique to the real soul of the music. The artist must catch the spirit of what he would portray. The sculptor must make the marble live; the Christian must himself live. Jesus faced all the facts of life with such a spirit of frankness and had such insight into their meaning that His disciples regarded Him as the very spirit of truth, and he is quoted by one as saying 'I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life.'"

The afternoon session was held in the First Presbyterian church and was led by M. L. Beebe, of Montclair. After the convention organization was effected Dr. David G. Latshaw, of the International Committee, spoke on "The Association and Industrial Men." A few remarks were made by the chairman and treasurer of the State committee.

A special conference for Boards of Directors was held in the church parlors immediately after the State Convention dispersed with the following speakers in attendance: Walter B. Hopping, of Montclair; and H. H. Dawson, of Newark.

The Classified Advertisements

in the Plainfield Daily Press are result-producers and the best investment for the price paid. They cost one cent a word undisplayed and cover the entire field—Wants, to let, for sale, board, furnished rooms, real estate exchanges, automobiles, etc. Strict supervision is given to admit only those that are unobjectionable. A ten-cent advertisement has often closed a transaction that has amounted to hundreds of dollars. Property-owners who are seeking the best paying tenants or those who have money to buy real estate; business men who want help above the average; manufacturers who are looking for skilled labor; housewives who want to reach competent help for their homes—these and others will find the logical medium. Experience aplenty has proven that the Daily Press supplies the best help, secures the best tenants and makes the best sales of real estate and other needs. It goes among its readers in the evening when there is time to consider the subject properly; it is read by a class of people who want and seek the best.

There are vacant rooms and desirable real estate that would bring owners quick returns if advertised in the Daily Press and hundreds of small businesses could be economically and resultfully advertised at one cent a word.

It is the universal opinion in Washington that the United States government, although loath to interfere in the internal troubles of Mexico, is bound to do so in order to protect the lives and property of Americans there. The belligerents have gone so far as to shell the American Consulate in Mexico City and the American Consul General, Arnold Shanklin, was forced to flee to

ELIZABETH MAN MAY HAVE LEFT MEXICO CITY

Elizabeth, Feb. 15.—No word has yet come from Joseph P. Ryan, son of former Mayor P. J. Ryan, who is employed by the Mexican Central Railway at Mexico City. According to a member of the family, he would be on duty daily at the Mexican Central Station. This building is reported in several dispatches as having been destroyed by fire.

The family said yesterday that it was possible that Ryan had left Mexico City.

MOTHER STRICKEN WHILE NURSING SICK FAMILY

Belmar, Feb. 15.—With the announcement of the sudden death of Mrs. Grace E. Polhemus at her home here Wednesday afternoon, it became generally known that she, her husband and three children were stricken with diphtheria.

Mrs. Polhemus was acting as nurse for the other members of the family and was unaware that she had contracted the disease. Neighbors have now sent a trained nurse to care for Mr. Polhemus and the children. Mrs. Polhemus was thirty-eight years old.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

HORSERADISH SAUCE.

If horseradish roots are obtainable it is best to make your own horseradish sauce. That which is sold in the shops may be made largely with white turnips. Some inferior brands of ready made horseradish sauce are so made.

If a recipe says the sauce must be cooked stir in the grated horseradish last. It weakens it to cook horseradish.

Favorite Condiments.

Boiled Horseradish Sauce.—Melt a third of a cup of butter in a saucepan and stir a half cupful of flour in it. When this is hot pour in a pint of boiling milk and stir until it forms a smooth sauce. Let it boil for twenty minutes. Season with a pinch of cayenne, a half teaspoonful of salt and strain. Add two stalks of grated horseradish. If a boiled sauce is made stir in the horseradish last.

Horseradish Sauce With Oil.—Take two tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish, a tablespoonful each of vinegar, salad oil and ground mustard. Add a quarter of a tablespoonful of salt and beat these together, then serve.

Horseradish Sauce With Cream.—Scald a pint of sweet cream. Add to it four tablespoonfuls of grated horseradish and a half teaspoonful of salt. Mix and it is ready to serve. This sauce may so quickly be made that it is useful to prepare in an emergency.

For Fish or Meat.

Horseradish Sauce For Fish.—Take a cupful of stock and scald half a cupful of freshly grated horseradish in it. Beat three eggs and stir these into a cupful of cream and cook this with the horseradish and stock. When the spoon becomes coated add half a teaspoonful of salt and take from the fire.

Horseradish Sauce For Beef.—Take a half cupful of fine stale breadcrumbs, an onion stuck with half a dozen cloves, two tablespoonfuls of butter, a half teaspoonful of salt and a quarter of a teaspoonful of pepper. Take a double boiler and cook everything but the butter in it for an hour, then take out the onion and cloves and add the butter, stirring it around until it is well mixed. Just before taking from the fire beat in a half cupful of freshly grated horseradish. This is nice for either boiled or roast beef.

WHAT IS WORN.

Yellow to Be Prominent Spring Color In Millinery.

Yellow stands out prominently on the color list. It is in evidence in millinery trimmings, in fabrics and in accessories.

There is a tendency in the new suits for spring to get away from the strictly tailored effect.

The new browns are of grayish and rose tones, and the grays are both brown and rose in effect.

Brilliant neckties will be seen on many of the new suits.

Girls and small women will find this design a useful one. It can be trimmed to suggest a tunic and made with square neck to be really elaborate in effect and appropriate for dances, or the neck may be made high, which makes the frock useful for less dressy occasions. JUDIC CHOLLET.

PRETTY EVENING FROCK.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for misses of fourteen, sixteen and eighteen years of age and for small women. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7737, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

CROCHET INITIALS.

Something Quite New In Handkerchief Lettering.

A dainty way to mark handkerchiefs is to crochet very fine medallions of lace with letters in the center. Two corners of handkerchiefs are here illustrated with the letters "T" and "P" as inlets of transparent lace.

No. 26 thread is used, with a crochet hook No. 5.

First Row.—Work 39 chain, 3 treble in the ninth stitch from the needle, taking up two threads throughout the work, then 2 chain, miss two stitches, 1 treble to end of row, making eleven squares in every row.

Second Row.—Turn always with 5 chain, 1 treble on the second treble, 2 chain, 1 treble on a treble to end of row, the last treble being in the third chain of the turn.

INITIALS FOR HANDKERCHIEFS.

Third Row.—Work 4 squares, repeat 2 treble under two chain and 1 treble on a treble three times, 4 squares.

Fourth Row.—Work 4 squares, 2 chain, miss two treble, 4 treble on four treble, 5 squares.

Fifth Row.—Work 5 squares, 4 treble on four treble, 5 squares.

Seventh Row.—As fifth row.

Eighth Row.—Work 2 squares, 2 treble under two chain, 1 treble on a treble, 1 square, 2 chain, 4 treble, 2 squares, 2 treble under two chain, 1 treble, 2 squares.

Ninth Row.—Work 1 square, 2 chain, 4 treble on four treble, 2 treble under, 1 treble on, 2 treble under, 4 treble on four treble, 2 treble under, 1 treble on, 2 treble under, 4 treble on four treble, 2 squares.

Tenth and Eleventh Rows.—Plain, with 11 squares in each.

These eleven rows complete the letter.

Do not turn, but proceed to work the border on all four sides, beginning on the left side of the letter.

The Border.—Put the ball of cotton through the stitch on the needle and draw it up tight. Bring the cotton through the next square to the corner and work 1 chain, * 3 double in this second square from the corner, 3 chain, join back to first double, 5 double in this small loop, 3 double in the next square; repeat from * to the first corner. Fill the corner loop with 6 double, then continue the border as in the illustration.

When the medallion is finished tack it crossways in the corner of a handkerchief and sew it with fine cotton along the edge of the border, bringing the needle under the chain of the border to the front, then placing it under the next chain and bringing it out on the under side of the handkerchief. Thus the medallion will be firmly sewed to the linen of the handkerchief.

When this is finished cut a square of the linen from under the lace, leaving about one-eighth of an inch from the sewing on line. Overcast this one-eighth inch very neatly, and the initial is complete.

The Letter "P."—Work 36 chain for the foundation line, then proceed as in the directions for letter "T," making 10 squares in each row and copying the number of squares and trebles from the illustration.

The Mannish Shirts.

The simpler blouses to complete the ratine and linen suit are built on the lines of the maunish shirt. The majority are either plaited or tucked. A neat design calls for clusters of pin tucks edged with valenciennes lace on either side of the front plait. Another dressier model has two broad tucks edged with valenciennes lace on either side of this front plait. The soft turnover collar and folded back cuffs edged with the lace carry out the color scheme suggested in the colored rims of the white buttons. The inevitable silk tie continues the color harmony and finishes a very dainty yet simple blouse.

Household Matters.

If you have a jabot which is troublesome to iron baste the plaits in before it is washed, then iron and remove the threads. Use fine thread.

Towels should not be put in the guest room when they are brand new. Use them until they have been laundered several times and lose their stiffness.

To wind a curtain remove it from the brackets, roll it up by hand and then put it into the brackets and pull it out full length. Repeat if necessary.

Those work seekers who expect to find a job through one publication of a want ad are sometimes disappointed—though not always.

New Year Resolutions of a Practical Bride Elect.

BOOK FOR GUEST LIST.

Three Ways In Which the Ceremony May Be Impressively Performed Without Giving Offense to One's Relatives or Friends—The Importance of Tagging Gifts.

Dear Elsa—I was so astonished and pleased to hear about Dorothy's engagement. Verily, verily, a woman is a bundle of contradictions, and as one of the characters in a popular comic opera says about the sex, "You never find two alike any one time; you never find one alike twice." Now, here's Dorothy, a bachelor girl (I won't say old maid), who positively gloried in and flaunted her independence in the face of every eligible male, actually having the nerve to go and annex one of the undesirables. She's a splendid girl, and she'll make the man she's chosen a charming, chummy sort of wife. My love to her and all best wishes for her happiness.

This matrimonial talk has recalled what some one told me recently about the very systematic way in which a sister of hers was preparing for her wedding.

She has an indexed blank book for a list of wedding guests, in which she puts down names and addresses of the people she wants to invite to the ceremony. Schoolmates whose addresses have been forgotten she writes to her college secretary to supply. In a separate list are the names of people who are to be merely invited to the reception. This early list is not confined to the bride elect's friends, but this forehanded girl has insisted upon her fiance keeping a like account, for if one must cut in number, she argues, "it is impolite to do all the cutting on the man's list. Better to run chances of making peace with your own old friends than of giving offense to friends of the bridegroom."

I think that invitation decisions are always difficult and dangerous at wedding times. It is considered, rather unjustly, that an invitation to a wedding stands for continued friendship in the new life, so the slighted are doubly sensitive, don't you think so, Elsa? The poor, overworked bride has need of all the tact, policy and kindliness she can command not to make enemies.

This girl I am telling you about has hit on three ways of compromising on wedding invitations and still keep peace.

First invite only the immediate families of the bride and bridegroom and send announcement cards to friends and acquaintances. If the conection is a large one it may be necessary to limit invitations to the wedding to firs cousins.

The second way is to have a church wedding with relatives and bridal party only at the reception.

Third way is to have a private ceremony with one's dearest friends and as large a reception as the house will hold. This last method the wise one has adopted.

If there is to be a reception only for the relatives and bridal party, reception cards should not be sent to distant friends under the impression that they will not come. They may. Besides, it is bad taste and is sure to be found out.

I have become so absorbed in my subject that I am taking up the wedding proposition in all its social side issues for Dorothy's enlightenment, and very likely she knows the form better than I, but I shall recklessly plunge ahead.

A wedding reception invitation demands an answer, but as people are careless and caterers come high it is safer to put R. S. V. P. on the cards. In ordering the wedding breakfast allow for two-thirds of those invited unless most of the invitations have gone out of town, when a one-half limit may be safe.

The only safe way to solve the wedding present situation is a system of double checking so no gift can go unacknowledged. Open each gift singly and mark gift, sender and address of store on a sheet of paper before the next package is opened.

Speaking of gifts reminds me of Christmas and the wonderful outdoor tree put up for the great public's benefit here in Madison square. You naturally read about Mrs. Herreshoff's beautiful idea and gift of this gigantic tree, sixty feet high, and the electric light people's generosity in wiring the tree, but unless you hall seen the effect of the large green tree, ablaze with lights against a cold, starlit sky and the snowdrifts forming a setting at the base of the tree, no idea of the beauty of the picture could be gained. A choir of men and boys sang the old, familiar and always impressive Christmas carols, and in the evening an orchestra played at intervals to amuse the vast crowds of people who thronged the big open space.

It is to be hoped that every city and town will take up this beautiful holiday idea of a municipal outdoor Christmas tree.

I must before I stop talking tell you Dick's latest. Some one asked him to define his idea of tact. "Well," he drawled, "if I should go to heaven and should meet St. Peter I would not talk about poultry." Lovely, wasn't it? Ever yours, MABEL.

"MAC" SAYS

Another night of basketball is on the card here once more. Two games at the Y. M. C. A.; a couple at Hope chapel and two more in North Plainfield.

The champion Trenton Y. W. C. A. team will appear on the Y. M. C. A. court against the local girls. Hope chapel and the Y. W. C. A. will play the preliminary.

Bowling is occupying the thoughts of the Scotch Plains Parish House athletes just at present. In the series with Dunellen Thursday night the home pinners captured all three of the contests.

Joe Alberts, the 'Plains' baseball artist, proved that he could heave the wooden alley ball just as good as he could the horse hide. The ruby one led the Parish House pinners in their victory.

McGraw has engaged a dentist to accompany the Giants on their training trip. Won't he have a pull, though!

Chance leaves for Bermuda today and Dave Driscoll leaves for Porto Rico. Two gone.

The scheduled weigh in of the Holy Cross football team at the Y. M. C. A. last night was called off because the scales could not be obtained. The gridiron warriors enjoyed a pleasant time at the home of Frank Lee in Scotch Plains, however.

BASEBALL NOTES

Hank O'Day says that the Cincinnati club owes him $1,000 as a bonus because he landed the Reds in the first division last season.

Morris L. (Tip) O'Neill, president of the Western League, is in California making arrangements for the Spring training trip of the Chicago White Sox.

Manager John McGraw, of the Giants, has decided to give up his pool room in New York. The pool emporium was a great club room for New York fans.

Francis Connolly, who is a brother of umpires Tom Connolly, of the American League, has signed a 1913 contract to officiate as an umpire in the American Asociation.

A new Western Canada League is being talked of, the circuit to include Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Moose Jaw, Saskatoon, Lethbridge, Medicine Hat and Prince Albert.

The Portland Club, of the Pacific Coast League, has purchased Pitcher Stanley, of the Atlantic City team. He was the leading twirler in the Tri-State League last season.

Jim Flynn, the heavyweight pugilist, has refused an offer to become a baseball umpire. Jim says he doesn't mind fighting, but umpiring is a bit too rough for him.

June 2 has been set as the date when Toronto will raise the International League pennant. The Rochester Hustlers will help the Maple Leafs to celebrate the event.

Pitcher "Lefty" Russell, who was a sensation with the Baltimore team a few years ago, and later a member of the Athletics, has decided to quit the game for the present at least.

In a recent game at Havana, Cuba, the players taking part were: Villa, Gonzales, Regino, Mendez, Castillo, Almeida, Cabrera, Viola and Moran. That's a fine bunch for a Moran to be mixed up with.

Next October will be the tenth anniversary of the world's series between the Boston Americans and the Pittsburgh Nationals. Will the Red Sox and the Pirates celebrate that event by playing for another championship next Fall?

One of the reasons given by President Murphy, of the Cubs, for starting the games in Chicago at 2 p. m., is that it will allow the ladies to see the entire game and still be home in time to prepare dinner. Charles puts 'em over so fast that he has the Windy City fans dizzy.

Ed Clark, formerly of the Bloomington Three-I League team, has signed with the Saginaw team, of the Southern Michigan League. Clark shares with Otto Burns, the former Decatur twirler, the honor of pitching the longest baseball contest on record—the twenty-six inning game between Bloomington and Decatur played on May 31, 1909.

P. H. S. WINNING STREAK STOPPED

Montclair High School Boys Score a 62 to 22 Win Over Plainfielders.

Plainfield High School's winning basketball streak was smashed to smithereens at Montclair yesterday afternoon when the High School players of that place trounced the local boys to the tune of 62 to 22. Plainfield was never in it after the first minute of play and the home players' familiarity with the court gave them a decided advantage which the Queen City representatives could never overcome. The winners caged baskets from all angles on the floor and their team work was an example of the kind that is always prevalent in that school where athletics are promoted to the geratest point of efficiency.

At the end of the first half the score stood 26 to 10, but the home players started a spurt in the final period that carried them far out in the lead. Slocum, the veteran forward on the Montclair High School and Y. M. C. A. aggregations totaled up ten field goals while Starret, a brother of the former Yale captain, caged nine of the two point variety.

Monarch A. C. Victorious by a Count of 31 to 13 in One-sided Game.

At the Dunellen Presbyterian church gymnasium last night the Monarch A. C. took the measure of the Netherwood A. C. by the score of 31-13. The game was fast and featured by many fouls on both sides and the scoring was greatly increased by the free shots from the foul line. For the winners Martin and A. TWO LOCAL TEAMS GO TO WOODBRIDGE

Nonpareils and Ajax Due to Clash on the Parish House Court Tonight.

A girls' and boys' basketball team will be represented from this city at Woodbridge tonight in a double-header on the Woodbridge Parish House court. The Y. M. C. A. Ajax are scheduled to lineup against the Parish House first team which they defeated by the slim margin of one field goal in this city earlier in the season. According to Perth Amboy papers the home team is planning revenge tonight and the coming of the Ajax is expected to bring out one of the biggest crowds of the season. Newspaper articles have been boosting the local quintet as world beaters and the Ajax will have to go some to hold its reputation against the speedy Woodbridge five.

The Nonpareils are due to stack up against the Parish House girls in the preliminary contest. This is the first meeting of these two teams this season and nothing can be determined as to the outcome as neither team has played a foe encountered by its opponent for tonight. Miss Mildred McAuliffe, the Nonpareil guard, will be out of the lineup, but her place will be filled with a capable substitute. Miss Helen Hummel and Miss Ida Hummel will play the forward positions, and Miss Debele and Miss Smith will do the guarding.

The boys' fives will lineup as follows:

McNamee	Reyder

P. H. S. ICE HOCKEY TEAM WAS DEFEATED

Tie Score at the End of the First Period but the Home Team Pulls out on Top.

A hastily organized ice hockey team representing the Plainfield High School went to Cranford yesterday afternoon and fell for a defeat by a score of 3 to 1 at the hands (or skates) of the High School boys of that place. The score at the end of the first period of play was 1 to 1, Van Deventer scoring Plainfield's lone goal of the contest at that time.

The local five was captained by Robert Gavett and Eynon White has been elected manager. Gilmore, Hopkins and Packer, a trio of players who have skated for Cranford for three years, put up the best game for the victors.

TWO GIRLS' GAMES AT Y. M. C. A. GYM

State Feminine Title Holders Will Appear in This City Tonight.

Two girls' basketball games of unusual interest are scheduled to be decided in this city tonight and both of the contests will be played on the Y. M. C. A. court. The main game is evoking no little amount of comment on the part of feminine basketball lovers for the Trenton Y. W. C. A. aggregation is carded to appear in the opponent's role against the local association girls. State wide distinction has come to the capitol city aggregation for its defeat over the Nonpareils, of this city, at Trenton, last Saturday night and many have been awaiting just such an opportunity as this one will afford to get a line on the playing ability of a real girls' team.

By virtue of their victory over the Plainfield five, the Trentonians hold the first leg of a three game series on the State feminine title and the arrangements for the second game to be played in this city February 27, are already well under way. One of the leading attractions the visitors will present will be Miss Hayes, the little forward, who has gained so much fame in basketball circles during the past two years. Miss Hayes is probably the foremost girl athlete in the State today and besides basketball, she is an adept at baseball, track work and gymnastics.

In the preliminary contest the Hope chapel girls will lineup against the Y. W. C. A. second aggregation and this should also be a good match. The association seconds will be made up of a number of former Plainfield and North Plainfield High School stars who will no doubt make the Chapelites hustle to keep in the running.

The four teams will lineup as follows:

TRENTON	PLAINFIELD

Miss Schafer	Miss M. Burtis

ONE MORE DOUBLE HEADER TONIGHT

Scotch Plains Court Will Be the Scene of Two Battles Tonight.

Another double bill of basketball has been arranged by Manager Brodziak, of the Scotch Plains Parish House, and will include a preliminary game tonight between the Parish House seconds and the W. F. A., of Bound Brook, and the 'Plains first team will lineup against the Summit Parish House five. The W. F. A. aggregation was defeated by a margin of three points by the Scotch Plains five two weeks ago, so the preliminary carded for tonight ought to be a hummer with two teams of such even calibre to do battle.

The first team recently administered a trouncing to the Summit boys but the latter have padded up their team considerably since the last meeting and the game tonight ought to be a more even one than the first clash.

MOTOR BOAT SHOW.

New York, Feb. 15.—The New York National Motor Boat Show, comprising the greatest display ever seen in this country of motor boats, engines and marine accessories of every kind, was opened to the public in Madison Square Garden this afternoon and will be continued through the coming week. The show this year is more representative of the industry than any of its predecessors. Every kind of motor, from the small detachable type to the huge American-built engines of the Diesel type, is included among the exhibits. There are a score of high-speed boats displayed, and more than fifty other craft, including fast launches of the Canadian Viper type, Cape Cod power dories in different sizes and various other kinds of runabouts and yacht tenders.

DRISCOLL STARTS ON BASEBALL TRIP

Major and Minor Leaguers Compose the Nine to Invade Porto Rico.

Billy Zimmerman, left fielder of the Newark Indians, left today with a baseball team of major and minor league players for a series of games in Porto Rico. The contest will be held in connection with the third annual insural fair and the management of the fair has made arrangements with Dave Driscoll, the Plainfield first baseman, to bring a club to the island. The party sailed on the steamship Brazos at noon today.

The other players in the party were Dick Breen, Jersey City; Frank O'Rourke, Boston Nationals; Craig, Johnstown; Barker, Los Angeles; Eschein, Brooklyn; Frank Bruggy, who was with Providence for a while last season, Spear, Yondon, Canada, and Cadore, formerly of Jersey City; Smith, Toronto, and Donnelly, of Louisville. The last three are twirlers.

Miss Carrie Kilbourne, of New Brunswick, also made the trip.

VINCENT A. C. DEFEATED BY A DUNELLEN TEAM

The Baraca Class basketball team of the Dunellen Presbyterian church defeated the newly organized Vincent A. C. aggregation on the Dunellen boys' court last night by the score of 19 to 7. Samuel Strickland, the lanky forward of the Dunellen five caged eight field goals and one foul thereby running up the highest score for his team. Bartow the other forward scored the other two points for his men. "Cutey" Glover, the versatile Ajax and Company guard, scored six of the seven points of the Vincent A. C. He caged one field goal and two braces of fouls while C. Stewart dropped one foul in the basket for his side. Although the Dunellen aggregation outweighed their opponents a stiff tussle issued throughout the game with the added weight tipping the scales in favor of the Dunellen five. Fouls galore were called on the Dunllen men who were constantly falling over their opponents because of their small size. The chief offender in this matter was George Snyder, who gaurded young Stewart.

BASKETBALL AT HOPE CHAPEL.

Two games of basketball are scheduled for the Hope gym tonight. The first team will play the Tuscarora Canoe Club, of Newark, and the seconds will lineup against the Roselle A. C., of Roselle.

A few lines of classified advertising will do the work of ten thousand placards.

Usually a very moderate amount of perseverance in want advertising for a job is sufficient.

NEW RECORDS MADE BY DUNELLEN BOWLERS

Two records were broken on the bowling alleys of the Dunellen Presbyterian church yesterday. Miss Emma Voorhees, the champion among the young women, broke her own record of 122 pins yesterday afternoon with the new record of 141 pins.

Last night after the basketball games several of the members of the Baraca class adjourned to the alleys and bowled three games. Charles Brawn broke Arthur Voorhees' record of 246 by two pins. He established the new record for the alleys of 248 pins. To start off with Brawn made four consecutive strikes, a spare, two more strikes, one spare and wound up with two strikes. It is understood among the members that Arthur Voorhees will try to break Brawn's record and thereby continue as the record holder of the Baraca club.

WITH THE BOXERS

Tom Ginty and Al Ketchel will meet in Bridgeport, Conn., Feb. 17.

Digger Stanley and Eddie Morgan will box for the bantamweight championship of England in London next month.

Manager Dan Morgan says that it is a cinch that Knockout Brown will defeat Joe Rivers in Los Angeles on Feb. 22.

RAISE $15 FOR SUPPORT OF THEIR MISSIONARY

Under the auspices of the Harrison Club, of Trinity Reformed church, which is contributing toward the support of Dr. Paul W. Harrison, the church missionary in Arabia, a successful entertainment was held at the church last night. Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, who gave character impersonations; Miss S. Etta Haybert, soprano soloist, and Miss Marguerite VanZandt, pianist, provided an excellent program. All were well received by the audience and the artists generously responded to several encores.

The club netted about $15 for its fund in support of Dr. Harrison. The affair was arranged by a committee from the club of which Lawrence French was chairman. The club is planning to give another entertainment in the near future to further increase its fund.

Judge Adrian Lyon will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church tomorrow morning and in the evening Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, the pastor, will preach on the subject "A Man."

THE GREATEST MONUMENT TO THE FATHER OF HIS COUNTRY

EVERY patriotic American carries a monument of admiring remembrance to George Washington in his heart; so that even without a statue or obelisk standing in his honor the name of the first president would still be unforgot. But all humanity requires the outward and visible form for that which it inwardly feels; hence, the Nation has long since erected the greatest shaft in the world to the man who was certainly one of its greatest commanders—both in war and in peace.

Long before the death of the Father of his Country the Continental Congress had decreed that "an equestrian statue of General Washington be erected at the place where the residence of Congress shall be established. It shall be supported by a marble pedestal, in which must be represented four principal events of the war in which he commanded in person."

However, the passage of the act was not followed by any legislative action looking to its practical execution. Sixteen years elapsed before this ambitious project even took sufficient hold on the people to be even seriously considered. In 1799 John Marshall made a motion, in the House of Representatives, that "a marble monument be erected by the United States, at the City of Washington, and that the family of General Washington be requested to permit his body to be deposited under it." A committee was appointed to carry out the project and Mr. Henry Lee was made its chairman.

It directed that the resolutions of the Congress of 1783 be carried out and the inscription approved by it be engraved upon the base of the monument. This report was, however, amended by the House as a whole in favor of a "mausoleum of American granite and marble, in pyramidal form, one hundred feet square at the base and of a proportionate height."

On New Year's Day, 1801, the House of Representatives passed a bill appropriating the sum of $200,000 for the monument, and the people in general thought that at last it would be started. But statesmen of yesterday seem to have been as proficient in delaying matters of legislation as their sons of today, for the Senate failed to concur in the act and the entire project was allowed to languish through the stirring years leading up to the War of 1812. Indeed, more than thirty years elapsed before anything definite was done toward erecting the monument or even deciding upon a design.

In 1833 the Washington National Monument Society was founded by several patriotic men of Washington who had become disgusted with the procrastination of Congress. These public-spirited citizens determined to have a statue, or monument of Washington if it had to be obtained without the aid of Congress. John Marshall, the great Chief Justice, though nearly eighty years old, was chosen as the first president of the Society and Judge William Cranch, eminent as a jurist, became the first vice-president. With a board of thirteen managers they obtained subscriptions enough to start the achievement. In 1848 Congress, probably through a sense of its own impotence, authorized the Society to build the monument and the present site was selected—no doubt because it was the one picked out by George Washington in 1795 as suitable for a revolutionary monument he had hoped to see erected.

No restrictions were placed on the plans for the monument, so far as regards the design or fame of the sculptor; and a great many—some of them of almost grotesque proportions—were received. Of them all, one by Robert Mills was selected. It called for a far more eleborate affair that the rugged monolith that has stood for so many years at the "back-gate" of the White House. The Society had insisted that the successful plan must harmoniously blend "durability, simplicity and grandeur."

And a tourist of today, whether practical, fanciful or a cynic, gazing upon the five hundred and fifty-five feet of tapering whiteness that rears its cap so determinedly into the air, must admit that seldom has any completed structure so perfectly carried out the desires of its creators.

Yet even the Mills' conception was far more be-trimmed and ornamented than the monument as it appears at present. The first design provided for a shaft 600 feet high, to be surmounted, at the height of one hundred feet from the ground, by a Corinthian colonnade encircled by groups of equestrian statuary. Over the portico the designer planned to have a huge statue of Washington in a chariot drawn by six horses and driven by the Goddess of Victory.

Original Design for the Washington Monument

The cornerstone was laid with most impressive ceremonies following a series of mishaps. Cut from a quarry at Cockeysville, Maryland, despite the oratorical plea of the eloquent Winthrop to "construct it of the peerless Parian marble," the huge block was brought to Washington on a special freight train and carefully placed upon a truck built to haul it to its present site.

At last the long simmering patriotism boiled up and over! The populace acted as frenzied as a typical French mob. Seizing the long ropes which had been attached to the truck, thousands of people dragged at them along the entire length of Pennsylvania avenue to Fourteenth street and southward to the bridge crossing the old Canal and making an island of South Washington.

Here the public's zeal proved greater than its wisdom, and, every one pulling en masse, the combined weight of people and marble broke down the further end of the bridge. The embryo cornerstone was dumped into the water and there reposed until mechanical appliances could be brought from the Navy Yard to drag the stone from its miry bed.

The President of the United States is always president of the Monument Society, so James K. Polk presided over the cornerstone-laying exercises on July Fourth, 1848, of which the Grand Lodge of Masons of the District of Columbia had charge. A spacious chamber had been cut into the stone and lined with copper plate; it was made the repository for various charts, newspapers, maps, portraits, coins and documents.

Copies of the Constitution of the United States and the Declaration of Independence were the first papers laid in the recess. Then followed a large design of the Washington monument, with the fac-simile of the names of the Presidents of the United States to date and of other men of prominence; an historical sketch of the monument since its inception; a portrait of Washington, from Stuart's portrait at Faneuil Hall, Philadelphia; a copy of the grant for the site of the monument under the joint resolution of Congress; Watterson's New Guide to Washington—which is a rare curiosity in these days when what was then very far out into the country is now a vista of apartment houses and stores.

Also—all the coins of the United States, a coat of arms of the Washington family; a daguerreotype of General and Mrs. Washington, with a penny of 1783, the year in which the monument was first planned; astronomical observations for 1845; and various leading newspapers and periodicals all were worthy of a place in the little hollow.

From then on contributions poured in from banks, from school children, generous citizens, patriotic and fraternal societies and even from entertainments, until either the country's enthusiasm or cash was exhausted. The shaft had reached the height of 152 feet and there the stone workers had to put a full stop. In 1878 Congress made an appropriation for its completion and the actual work was put in charge of Col. Thomas L. Casey, of the Corps of Engineers, U. S. A.

As his report showed the monument to be none too safe, its foundations were deepened from twenty to thirty-eight feet and the eighty-foot square forming the base was broadened to one hundred and twenty-six and a half feet. But another change had occurred which not even skilled engineering could overcome. All the marble had been obtained from the same Maryland quarry to the time of the cessation of activities. When work was resumed this same quarry was called upon to furnish the stone needed for completing the shaft.

But while Congress was debating, other people had been buying; all the marble from that particular section of the quarry was exhausted. So it became necessary to get it from another part and there was just enough difference in its veining, combined with the greater aging of the section already standing to make a distinct and nationally humiliating marking where the newer portion was joined on.

The Monument as Finally Completed

Inside the monument there are 179 memorial stones, beginning at thirty feet and ending at 280 feet. Forty States are represented. Many world-noted spots have contributed romance-tinged bits of marble to honor the memory of Washington and beautify his monument.

Pennsylvania leads them all in the number and beauty of her contributions. Sixteen stones were sent by the Keystone State, the chief one being a flawless great white marble with an eagle representing liberty, independence and virtue; two quills crossed and the words, "By deeds of peace" underneath; William Penn smoking the sachem with two war-bonneted Indians and, opposite, foam-flecked horses tramping over a battle-ground and ships at sea—thus portraying the advance of civilization. The City of Philadelphia sent a stone cut to represent a picture with a frame in bold relief.

Several of the States merely sent blocks with the State name in simple script. Little Delaware earned for her tablet a place among those which will never be forgotten by the tourist by inscribing on its pure surface under a bust of Washington, "The first to adopt will be the last to desert the Constitution."

New Jersey sent a very elaborately carved tribute depicting the life and products of her people—at that time. There is a splendid Minerva, a youth with a lion's mouth for a companion and the goddesses of Plenty and Justice in the background.

Nevada sent a stone with her name spelled out by great solid silver letters embedded in its surface. Gradually the cupidity of sightseers overcame their honesty until only one letter remained. This was removed to a place of safety and, to the utter chagrin of all sons of Nevada, the marble was gilded over so that now the silver State has her name picked out in gold—at least it looks gold.

Connecticut sent a dark brown stone typical of the Nutmeg State and Massachusetts proved herself possessed of an embarrassment of subjects by sending trophies from Bunker Hill, Salem, Roxbury and Lowell.

Rhode Island has an anchor of hope on her tablet. California has something of everything carveable and also the inscription "California, youngest State of the Union, brings her tribute to the memory of its father."

Sixteen cities, fifteen lodges of Free Masons, thirteen of Odd Fellows, seven Sons of Temperance, political organizations, fire departments, the Oldest Inhabitants Association of Washington, D. C., Sons of New England in Canada and Americans in Foo-Chow, China, are represented in the monument by tributes of stone.

The Chapel of William Tell in Switzerland appropriately sent a tablet. The Temple of Aesculapius, the ruins of Carthage, the tomb of Napoleon at St. Helena and a library in Egypt are noted among the many inscriptions distinguishing the tablets which line the interior walls to nearly half the monument's height.

Siam has a single black stone bearing its name. The stone from Brazil contains a sparkling crown, because royalty then ruled there. On a purple-veined marble slab dignified Persia tells in Arabic of her veneration for George Washington.

Greece sent a bit of marble from the Parthenon.

The practical workings of the mighty monolith will be of interest to the business man who would rather know that it costs $11,820 annually to keep it in good condition than that the yearly average of tourists who go to the top, by stairway or elevator, is about 155,000.

These facts were obtained from Spencer Crosby, Major, Corps of Engineers, and Colonel, U. S. A., who has charge of the management of the Washington Monument although, of course, the National Monument Society would be deferred to in event of any radical change contemplated.

As a matter of fact only by a special act of Congress can any additional contributions be made, except tablets from the seven newest States. And these appear as strangely indifferent to the honor as were their early predecessors.

Arizona, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Colorado, Wyoming, Washington and Idaho have been notified that the monument is ready for their tablets. But they fail to respond. No individual name is allowed upon the tablets nor any inscription save that of the State name and some patriotic sentiment; so there is no great incentive for the self-laudatory type of American to hustle around collecting money for such tributes.

Mt. Vernon

JUST after the death of Charles I. and the establishment of the Protectorate of Oliver Cromwell, two young men whose genealogy dated back to the Norman Conquest came to Virginia. They were John and Andrew Washington, and in 1657 John purchased a large tract of land in Westmoreland County bordering on the Potomac River. He afterward acquired several hundred acres of land between Dogue Run and little Hunting Creek, now Fairfax County. This land is now a portion of the Mt. Vernon estate. At the death of John Washington it was bequeathed to his son Lawrence and he afterward willed it to his son Augustine, the father of George Washington. The estate passed from Augustine Washington to his oldest son Lawrence, George being the eldest son by the second marriage. Lawrence Washington married a Miss Fairfax of Belvoir and had four children, all of whom died in infancy, and George became the owner of Mt. Vernon by the death of his half-brother before he was [illegible] years of age.

George Washington began a career for at the age of fourteen when he was given a commission as midshipman under Admiral Vernon [illegible] Mt. Vernon was named. He was permitted, however, to go to sea, the objection of his mother died when he was [illegible] years of age, and after [illegible] George seems to have spent a greater part of his time at the homes of his two elder brothers, or to be accurate his half-brothers, both of whom were educated men. They superintended the boy's education and he is said to have become unusually proficient in geometry and trigonometry. He showed an aptitude for surveying, and his teacher frequently found him surveying the grounds about the school house. As a schoolboy he was a bad speller and poor grammarian. Both of these defects were overcome in later life and some of his letters are remarkable examples of perfect English. He took special lessons in sword exercise and was noted for his graceful fencing. He paid little attention to books such as "Military Guides," "Arts of War," etc., and his knowledge along these lines was acquired by actual practice rather than from books.

Washington's mother lived to be eighty-three years of age, dying only ten years before Washington himself. During her entire life Washington spared no pains to see that she was made comfortable, and while he visited her at times these visits are said to have been short and frequently unpleasant owing to the complaining disposition of the old lady. Washington's family seems to have given him no little trouble for his brothers as well as his mother had a borrowing tendency and added to this were other family troubles for his younger brothers were unruly at school and his sister Harriet seems to have caused him no little concern on account of her "lack of care for her clothing."

At the age of nineteen Washington was given a position of honor and responsibility by the Virginia Government owing to Indian depredations. His military propensities increased with years, and when Governor Dinwiddie came to Virginia in 1752 Washington was made a major, and in 1754 he became a lieutenant-colonel. At the old Carlisle house at Alexandria, Virginia, which stands in the court yard of the once famous Braddock Hotel he held councils of war with General Braddock, and while the General thought well of the young man's military ideas he refused to listen to his advice. It is well known how disastrously the expedition ended. In later years Washington frequently visited the Carlisle house and often recalled the war councils there.

The illustrious Father of his Country was always fond of the fair sex. Even as a schoolboy he delighted more in playing with girls than in romping with the boys. When but seventeen years of age he fell in love with Mary Carey and wrote love sonnets in her honor.

One of his most serious love affairs occurred in 1756, when he had occasion to go to Boston on military business. He stopped outside of New York at what is now the town of Yonkers, to pay a visit to a Virginia friend. This gentleman had recently married Susannah Philipse, the daughter of one of the largest land owners in the colony of New York. Here he met the sister of his friend's wife—Mary Philipse. She was a pretty young woman of twenty, and Washington with his usual custom straightway fell in love with her. He lengthened his visit to ten days on his way to Boston, and after his business there had been transacted he returned to Yonkers where he spent another week in pressing his suit for the lady's hand. She refused him and later married Colonel Roger Morris. The house in which Washington carried on his ardent wooing was built in 1682 and was confiscated during the Revolutionary War on account of the loyalty of the Philipse family to the King. The next time Washington honored it with his presence it was not as a soldier and subject of the British tyrant but as the resourceful leader of the Revolution just before the Battle of White Plains in 1776. The house is still standing and is used as the City Hall of Yonkers. By a singular coincidence Washington stopped at what is known as the Morris-Jumel mansion (still standing in the upper part of New York) for a few days during his retreat from New York. It had but lately been the home of Mary Philipse and her husband, Roger Morris, both of whom were Tories and had fled to England. Thus the old mansion is preserved a place in history not from the beauty of its mistress nor the loyalty of its owners to the British Crown but from the fact that the gallant Virginia officer whose suit had been spurned twenty years before accidentally resided for a few days within its walls. The house is a fine specimen of Colonial architecture and was built in 1758 by Roger Morris. It, too, was confiscated by virtue of the strong Toryism of its owners. It afterward became the home of Stephen Jumel, whose widow married and divorced Aaron Burr. Several years ago it was purchased by one of the patriotic societies and restored and opened to the public.

His last love affair occurred in 1758, when he went to Williamsburg to consult a physician. While there he met Mrs. Martha Custis, the widow of Daniel Parke Custis, who had been one of the wealthiest planters in the colony. At that time Washington was twenty-six years of age and Mrs. Custis three months younger. She had been a widow seven months. With his customary promptness where pretty women were concerned he immediately fell in love with the widow and won her consent to an engagement. They were married on January 6th, 1759. Mrs. Washington brought her husband a fortune of $100,000.00, which in those days was regarded as a large one. Various opinions have been expressed as to the character and temperament of Mrs. Washington, but be this what it may she charmed her husband to such an extent that their honeymoon at Mt. Vernon lasted for six months.

Washington had a distinct weakness for dancing, and rarely lost an opportunity even late in life to seek out the prettiest girl in the room for his partner. His diary shows that he attended "many balls and routs" in New York and Philadelphia, and when at Mt. Vernon he frequently went ten miles to Alexandria to attend a dance. During the Revolution, too, he amused himself while in winter quarters by attending dances, and once subscribed eleven dollars in gold toward raising funds for a series of balls at the camp. During his stay at his headquarters at Newberg, N. Y., where he remained from April, 1782, until August, 1783, Mrs. Washington came to grace the old house. Actual warfare had practically ceased although the army had not yet disbanded and was encamped at Temple Hill about five miles distant. There was little to do, so led by Washington the time was passed in social entertainments. Balls were frequent, and history tells us that Washington was the gayest of all the gentlemen, dancing nearly every set. Even at Annapolis, where he went to resign his Commission as the Commander-in-Chief of the Army on December 22nd, 1783, a dinner and ball was given in his honor. The dinner took place on December 22nd at Mann's Inn—a hotel which has now been converted into a business house and occupied by a theatre, newspaper office, confectionery store and restaurant. Until a few years ago the very room in which he slept could be seen by visitors. He opened the ball, which was held at the State House, with Mrs. James Maccubbin, one of the most beautiful women of her day, as his partner, for Maryland even at that early period and especially Annapolis was the home of many famous beauties. It is recorded that he "danced throughout the night and was the gayest among the gay." He was still a dancer in 1796, when he was sixty-four years of age, but when invited to the Alexandria Assembly in 1799 he sent his regrets saying that his dancing days were over.

Washington was also fond of going to afternoon tea with the ladies, and when Mrs. Washington's friends dropped in for tea in the afternoon he was always present and delighted to sit with them for a talk—in fact, the records show that had Washington lived in the present age he would have been an ideal society man in every respect.

The room in the State House at Annapolis where Washington resigned his commission was restored under the direction of Governor Edwin Warfield during his term of office, and is today one of the most noted of the many interesting spots in Maryland's historical capital. The building was erected some time between the years 1769 and 1773.

Fraunce's Tavern is another of the historic spots where Washington loved to linger. There he often held conferences, and there it was that he took final leave of his officers. The old Colonial building erected about 1700 still stands at Broad and Pearl streets in New York City. The property has recently been acquired and will in all probability be opened to the public as a sort of museum.

The history of his two terms as President are too well known to need repetition here. Then came his retirement from public life. A pretty story is told of the dinner which he and Mrs. Washington gave to John Adams, the incoming President. At the close of the repast Washington arose and lifting a glass of wine said "Ladies and gentlemen, I shall drink your health for the last time as a public man. I do so with all sincerity and wishing you all possible happiness." This broke up the festivities and the company, many of whom were in tears, quietly departed. He at once retired to Mt. Vernon, the place he loved best in all the world, where he lived a private citizen until his death. He was accustomed to ride over the large estate every day and one December morning during a snow storm he contracted a heavy cold which developed into pneumonia and he died on December 14th, 1799. Thus passed from earth at the age of sixty-seven one of the great figures in history and a man who will ever remain the idol of the American people.

By his will Mt. Vernon was bequeathed to his nephew, John Augustine Washington, and in 1855 it passed to the latter's son. It was purchased from him by the Mt. Vernon Ladies' Association for $200,000.00 and opened to the public for a small admission fee which goes to keep up the insurance, repairs, etc.

BUTTER UNDELIVERED, WEIGHT CHARGE FAILS

New Brunswick, Feb. 15.—Because butter, alleged to have been short-weight, had not been delivered Judge Peter F. Daly has ruled that the sale had not been consummated and directed a verdict acquitting Julius Elter, of Woodbridge, a grocer. No defense was offered.

Robert Lang, an inspector, testified that he picked up a package of butter from an order of goods for Mrs. Annie Kata, and upon weighing the package, found it short more than one ounce.

MADISON'S CAMPAIGN IS SOON TO BE STARTED

Madison, Feb. 15.—The Madison publicity committee, which is now engaged in raising funds for a systematic advertising campaign to cost probably between $2,000 and $3,000, expects to make a report by today or Monday. The campaign will start shortly thereafter.

A feature of the subscriptions thus far obtained are that they are largely from men who do not have real estate to sell or local business interests to promote, but are actuated solely by a feeling of loyalty for their home town.

GIRL, SHOT BY BROTHER ACCIDENTALLY, DIES

New Providence, Feb. 15.—Jennie Del Duco, five years old, who was accidentally shot in the head a week ago last Sunday by her six-year-old brother, Michael, at the residence of their father, Township Committeeman Angelo Del Duco, of Berkeley Heights, died in Overlook Hospital, Summit.

The body was viewed by County Physician Frank W. Wescott, who ganted a burial permit.

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon from St. Mary's R. C. church, of Stony Hill. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery, Stony Hill.

ONLY REAL DEPENDENTS TO GET COMPENSATION

Trenton, Feb. 15.—In setting aside a ruling of the Essex Court of Common Pleas awarding damages for the death of John R. H. Miller, an employe of the Public Service Railway Company, the Supreme Court yesterday construed the words "actual dependents" as used in the employers' liability act to include only such relatives as are in fact dependent.

The Essex Court held that because Miller left a father, his widow being childless, it increased the compensation. Applying this rule the lower court allowed fifty per cent. of the wages earned by Miller, although the case failed to show the father was in any way actually dependent.

BRUSHED FROM TRESTLE BY CAR, FALLS 35 FEET

New Brunswick, Feb. 15.—Knocked from a trestle at Dayton, when he laid down to let a trolley car pass, Alexander Buchanan, of Camden, fell thirty-five feet to the railroad tracks below and is now in St. Peter's Hospital. He sustained a broken right arm and crushed foot.

Buchanan was crossing the trestle of the Elizabeth and Trenton trolley line over the Pennsylvania Railroad. He placed himself flat on the trestle to let the car pass. Buchanan was struck by the step of the car and brushed from the ties. John Buckalew, the motorman, heard the man's cries. The car was stopped and the victim taken to the hospital.

GREAT CLIMAX OF A CONVENTION

Frank Katzenbach and Frank Moss Address State Y. M. C. A. Delegations.

HARRIS ELECTED PRES'T

Plainfielder Declines Office But it is Not Accepted—Roberts Makes An Address at the Plainfield Theatre Mass Meeting.

The thirty-seventh annual convention of the State Y. M. C. A. came to a close last night with a farewell service at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, which was preceded by an organ recital given by S. Frederick Smith. He was assisted by Bertram F. Tallamy, baritone soloist. "The Association of the Community" was the general topic of the evening Dr. David G. Latshaw, of New York, making the address. This was followed with three-minute talks by the presidents of the State associations and members of the State committee.

An inspiring service was held at the Plainfield theatre yesterday afternoon for boys and men. Wilfred W. Fry presided and the address of the afternoon was given by Albert E. Roberts, of New York, his topic being "A Man For the Times." A feature of this service was the special music furnished by an orchestra and a double quartet of male voices.

The actual business of the convention was concluded Saturday afternoon, when these officers were chosen: President, Arthur M. Harris, Plainfield; vice presidents, John Boyd Avis, of Woodbury; Wilfred W. Fry, of Camden; secretary, Frederick M. Esher, of Jersey City; assistant secretary, S. J. Robbins, of Summit. Mr. Harris declined the election to the presidency, explaining that a pressure of other duties would prevent his taking the office, but the election stood for the present at least.

One of the features of the convention was the dinner served at the Park Club, Saturday evening. Mr. Harris, as the newly-elected president, was the toastmaster. The speakers of the evening were former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, Jr., of Trenton; Frank Moss, assistant district attorney of New York; and Albert E. Roberts, a member of the International Committee, and Lung Ziang Kway, of Shanghi, China, a student at Princeton University, who spoke on Christian and association work in China.

When Mr. Katzenbach was introduced, former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, one of the guests, led in giving the speaker three cheers. Mr. Katzenbach said incidently:

"The barrier of Christianity is also being broken down. No longer do Catholics desire the heads of Protestants, nor do Protestants want to run their swords into Catholics. They get together on the same platform and are frequently found in the same society. We find that a breaking up of these religious views is of great good to a community.

"Leadership" was the subject of the address by Albert E. Roberts.

"Leadership and Efficiency" was the subject of the remarks by Frank Moss. He said in part:

"Men don't get sense until they are forty years of age and they do not discover the fact until they are fifty. We fail to get rid of our troubles, the rule being that they multiply. Great cities are an enemy to religion.—I never saw a great criminal that I did not feel like being a brother to him. Most criminals are the victims of wrong influence and boys are going by the thousands to downward paths, which, if followed to the extreme, will lead to the electric chair." A quartet comprising M. L. Beebe, Robert Flynn, G. H. Roebrig and J. G. Schroeder sang several selections.

MISSIONS AS THEME FOR A CONVENTION

Local Baptist Churches Arrange Program for a Four Days' Session.

Plans are about complete for the four days' session of the Baptist Missionary convention to be held in the First Baptist church, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Sunday, morning, afternoon and evening, under the auspices of the First, Park Avenue, Temple and Seventh Day Baptist churches of the city. All the meetings will be open and the public is invited. The committee in charge has secured an unusual list of both foreign and home mission speakers, and in addition there will be one of the best missionary exhibits yet seen in this State.

The opening session will be held Wednesday evening, which will be intended as a service of inspiration and consecration. Thursday will be known as "Woman's Day," the morning session being devoted to "Methods," under the direction of Mrs. E. O. Silver and Mrs. A. W. Palmer, the State directors of foreign and home missions. In the afternoon the speakers will be Miss Frances Tencate, of Nellore, India; Mrs. J. V. Lattimer, of Huchow, China; Miss Rebecca Davie, of Spellman Seminary, Georgia, and Mrs. Lucie Rising, of the entertaining church.

The evening session on Thursday will include addresses by Miss Grace Deland, of New York, an expert in social service; Mrs. A. B. Coleman, of Boston, concluding with a "Missionary Drama." Stereopticon views of missionary grounds in China will be given by Rev. Dr. Frank Dobbins. Thursday afternoon there will also be a missionary tea from 4 to 5 o'clock, to be served by women in costume representing the different mission fields and picturesque exercises will be given at the same time.

Mrs. Silver, Mrs. Palmer and others will conduct a school of methods Friday morning. The afternoon will be devoted to a consideration of "Our States Missions," a missionary from Africa and an address by Rev. Dr. W. T. Stackhouse, secretary of the Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement, who will give an address on "World-Wide Missions," will be features of the evening service. Several missionaries will have a part in the closing services to be held on Sunday.

Others who will assist in the services beside those mentioned are Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church; Rev. Dr. Riley A. Vose, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Baptist church, Newark; Miss Dr. Anna Degenring, of India whose work as a medical missionary has given her denominational fame. Representatives not only from Baptist churches but other churches in this section of the State are expected to attend the convention. The exhibit, covering both foreign and home work, will be open every day and evening of the convention.

LITTLE VICTIM WILL RECOVER, DOCTOR SAYS

Helen Drummond, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drummond, of Springdale, who was injured Thursday in the accident on the Warrenville road caused by Bradford Blauvelt, of this city, who drove Andrew McCardell's automobile into a vehicle in which she was seated, will recover, according to Dr. F. A. Wild, of Bound Brook, the family physician. The parents of the child, who were also hurt, are suffering with contusions about the head and body.

HE FLAYS THOSE WHO DO NOT PAY

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire Scores Debtors, Gamblers and Mercernary Ones.

THREE PHASES OF SIN

"Our Fair City is Rated by Both Bradstreet and Dunn as the Poorest Paying Town in New Jersey," He Asserts.

Scoring people who do not pay their debts, who gamble away their hard-earned wages, who are intemperate and those who are always criticizing the governing body of the city, Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire stirred a large congregation at the Park Avenue Baptist church last night. His subject was "The Conquering Christ," and he discussed three distinct phases of sin, lust of the flesh, lust of the eye and pride of life, treating them in this fashion:

"First, Lust of the Flesh. This is like the spring flood rushing down the mountainside, pouring into the river, overflowing its banks and carrying desolution everywhere. What havoc has come to the world this way. The Bible is full of it. Look at young Samson, full of purity and innocence, strength and power; so strong that he could rend every young lion that wrestled with him; he could carry the posts of the city upon his shoulder. But lust of the flesh brought down his strength. How many young men today are rushing head-on to their destruction through strong drink—they think they need an eye-opener in the morning; they are nervous and need a glass to steady their nerves; but they don't realize that a drink from that fountain will sting and bite like a serpent. Many are perishing through intemperance—but 'be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.'

"Then, there is longing for money.

FREE LECTURE ON COMMISSION GOV'T

Gilbertson, An Authority on Subject, to Explain What it is and How it Works.

H. S. Gilbertson, of the National Short Ballot Association, will address the Plainfield Democratic Club at 9 o'clock tomorrow night on "Commission Government" at the club's rooms, 102 North avenue. The public, regardless of political affiliations, is cordially invited to attend. Mr. Gilbertson is one of the best posted men in the country on the subject of commission gvernment as his association is engaged in promoting the commission form of government. In fact "The short ballot" and "Commission Government" mean one and the same thing. This occasion offers an excellent opportunity for those desiring to be posted on the subject. Mr. Gilbertson will be glad to answer questions.

The discussion is timely since the subject is a live one in Plainfield, and it is most likely that the citizens will shortly decide at an election whether they want government by commission, or the present form. This is the first of a series of monthly public discussions planned by the Plainfield Democratic Club and provided for in its new constitution and by-laws. The club will hold these public discussions on the second Tuesday evening of each month, and they will be open to the public.

Taft Tells Madero That Our Policy Will Continue—Madero Won't Quit.

SAYS HE'LL DIE FIRST

Taft Confers With Senate's Chairman of Foreign Affairs' Committee Who Announces U. S. Will Keep "Hands Off."

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Feb. 17.—President Taft's reply to Madero's letter, given out by the State Department today, is not of a sensational or threatening nature. It reiterates the administration's adherence to the policy maintained for two years past.

The President, however, earnestly urges the necessity for early cessation of hostilities and a change in conditions in Mexico.

Mexico City, Feb. 17.—A strict censorship was exercised over all despatches today. President Madero declared positively to Ambassador Wilson and the German and Spanish ministers that he will die at his post rather than resign. Ambassador Wilson says that a majority of Americans have found places of safety.

Washington, Feb. 17.—President Taft and Senator Cullom, chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee, were in conference this morning. Senator Cullom said that there was no probability of intervention in Mexico.

Although the conference was organized in 1858, it was ten years before it met in Newark, and during twenty-five years past it has met twelve times in Newark.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE DAY IN THE CHURCHES

Campaigners in Several Pulpits Plead for the Local Option Bill.

The Anti-Saloon League "field day" was observed in this city, yesterday, when several of the local pulpits were occupied with representatives of the league, including Rev. T. Alex Cairns, William Gerhart, of Newark; John G. Woolley and Samuel Wilson, the last named being the assistant superintendent of the New Jersey League.

The harmful effects morally, physically and spiritually, resulting from the liquor traffic was discussed by Mr. Woolley at the Crescent Avenue church in the morning, where an offering of $100 was given to the work. Mr. Woolley after telling something of his vast experience in fighting the liquor traffic, introduced Mr. Wilson. The latter told of the efforts being made to have a Local Option bill passed by the Legislature.

Mr. Cairns occupied the pulpit at the First M. E. church in the morning and that of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church at night. He spoke of the evils that exist in New Jersey because of the liquor traffic, the steps that are being taken to overcome them, especially emphasizing the work among the children particularly in Newark, which is considered a "wide-open" town. The speaker said that the liquor traffic is buying up the representative government, taking children out of school, filling the jails and insane asylums, and undermining society.

William Gerhart spoke at the Temple Baptist church last night, telling of the bill recently passed by Congress forbidding the shipment of liquor from a "wet" to a "dry" State, and took occasion to compliment United States Senator James E. Martine, whom he claimed, bitterly opposed the action of the liquor interests in sending their porduct from one State to another. He also made a strong plea in behalf of Local Option in an effort to rouse the people to support the movement.

Wilfred W. Fry, of Camden, who was elected one of the vice presidents of the State Y. M. C. A., spoke at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, representing the association. Mr. Fry based his interesting remarks on the subject of "The Bible," by which he sought to show that there is but one way of salvation through Jesus Christ. Mr. Fry's address was a gospel one, and he incidentally showed what a potent factor the Y. M. C. A. is in its religious work.

FOR GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION

Movement Started for Special Election for Adoption of Walsh Act Here.

A COMMITTEE OF FIVE

Plan for Educational Campaign and for the Circulation of Petitions Calling for Referendum—Howard H. Williams Chairman.

Some few voters of various political beliefs gathered on Saturday afternoon at the Daily Press editorial rooms to discuss the idea of launching a campaign for the adoption of the commission form of government for Plainfield and they finally decided to take the initiative and have an organization effected for that purpose. It was a very informal meeting, hurriedly called and was in no-wise intended that it should be representative of parties or any particular interests.

Howard H. Williams was chosen chairman and Daniel J. Courain secretary of the meeting, which was also attended by Frank H. Smith, LeRoy J. Ellis, G. W. V. Moy, A. C. Wilmerding, Charles H. Hand and Lloyd Osborne. Mayor Stewart could not be present because of another meeting being held at his office. Former Mayor C. J. Fisk, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Howard C. Tracy, George L. Babcock and a few others expected were prevented from being present by previous engagements.

It was decided to empower the chairman to appoint a committee of five, himself as an ex-officio member, to arrange for an educational campaign and to supervise the circulating of petitions calling for a special election as provided by the Walsh commission government act. Mr. Williams, it is reported, will ask Mayor Stewart and former Mayors Fisk and Moy to act on this committee.

As it is necessary to obtain the signatures of twenty per cent. of the voters to the petition for the special election, between eight and nine hundred signers will be obtained. This petition will be filed with the city clerk and by provision of the law the election follows in thirty days. Meanwhile it is planned to start the educational campaign and to get speakers from cities where the commission government plan is in force, such as in Trenton, Passaic and Atlantic City.

The Venetian One Price System

In the Piazza San Marco in Venice, the American Tourist will find a half-hundred shops that practice the one price system—the "one price" being the one they can get.

Here, too, in some "shops" we see the "Venetian One Price System" in vogue.

My clientle never barter—they purchase. Making offers on an article is forbidden, a price-tag to me is sacred. To "see saw" on the cost of a thing is commercially immoral and leads to a loss of self-respect on both sides.

Rothberg's "Things That Men Wear" are sold at the lowest prices quality considered—and I offer them with the strongest guarantee to be found anywhere—your money back if you want it.

COMMISSION GOVERNMENT.

Every public movement generally results from the initiative taken by a few people who are particularly enthusiastic on the subject and this has invariably been the case in the several hundred cities, more or less, where commission government campaigns have been inaugurated and carried to successful conclusions. In our own city last Saturday afternoon less than a dozen men got together to discuss the subject and the fact that they hold widely different views in political affairs was a healthy sign for it demonstrated that they were not actuated for party's sake or party expediency. They did not pretend to speak except for themselves and their sole desire was simply to interest the public generally and to have the voters, irrespective of party, join in a public discussion of the subject.

The commission form of government simply means the conduct of a municipal corporation's affairs in the same business-like, democratic, economical and efficient manner as characterizes that of any large corporation in the business world. It does away with the cumbersome, antiquated system of mayor and common council or board of aldermen with the expensive and needless auxiliary boards. It is the modern method of municipal rule, where party lines are obliterated and where the officials owe allegience to none except the taxpayers generally.

The movement started some few years ago in Galveston, Texas, and it proved so satisfactory that Des Moines and numerous other progressive cities adopted the plain in some form or other. Spreading to the east, it made its appearance in New Jersey. The Walsh act, in this State, permits the voters in any community to decide for themselves whether they desire to thus conduct the people's business. Trenton, Passaic, Atlantic City and other large centres of population have taken advantage of the statute and from all reports this scheme of government works very successfully. The people of Paterson are clamoring for it and campaigns are on at Burlington, Camden and other cities.

Now that a similar movement has been started here, the Daily Press will publish explanations of what government by commission is, what it means and what good results it obtains in other cities where the plan is in force. At the same time, we shall be glad to publish any signed communications from taxpayers or voters as to their views on the subject.

AS TO THE P. O. BUILDING.

Mayor Stewart has acted very properly and promptly in calling a public meeting for the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield to express their views as to whether it would be better that the proposed post office building be erected at once with the $70,000 at hand or that the work of construction be deferred until Congressman Tuttle can obtain an additional appropriation of $50,000 for the purpose. As is generally known former United States Senator John Kean succeeded in getting the original appropriation of $100,000, but he was retired to private life before a bill he introduced for $50,000 additional could be put through Congress. The site, at Watchung avenue and East Second street, was purchased for $30,000, leaving but $70,000, a sum considered by many as totally inadequate, for a government building in a city like Plainfield.

The action of the Mayor in calling for a public hearing was prompted by a communication he received a few days ago from Congressman Tuttle, the text of which was published in this paper on Saturday. The Representative from the Fifth, New Jersey district had been asked by the Treasury Department officials as to which course he desired to have them pursue and he considered that the decision should not be made by him, but by the people of Plainfield. Hence, he requested Mayor Stewart to ascertain their wishes, and he will be governed by their decision.

The meeting in question will be held on Thursday night at 8 o'clock, in the Mayor's office and all the people of the community are invited to be present.

As announced in our news columns an authority on the commission form of government will make an address on the subject tomorrow night in this city and the public is invited to be present. After the lecture, any one in the audience is privileged to ask questions. This is a fine opportunity for those who have not acquainted themselves with the provisions of the Walsh act and commission government in general.

London, Feb. 17.—Cable advices received here from Constantinople today say that Turkish soldiers last night attempted to assassinate and succeeded in badly wounding Enver Bey, leader of the young Turks. The soldiers were exasperated by the disastrous failure of his attempt last week to pierce the flanks of the Bulgarian army on the coast of the Sea of Namora.

MADERO AND DIAZ UNUSUAL LEADERS

President an Idealist and Dreamer.

REBEL BRILLIANT WARRIOR.

Ruler of Mexico Has Had Interesting Career—Is a Learned Man, Born Into Colossally Rich Family of Planters. He Undertook to Free Peons and Lift Them From Slavery.

Opposed to each other as leaders of the powerful forces which have rived Mexico, President Francisco I. Madero and General Felix Diaz, are remarkable men.

The one a dreamer and idealist, the other a brilliant, dashing fighter, they are interesting types of patriots. President Madero has always been called the dreamer. His idealism and the pleasing personality he has were effective in rousing his country to the rebellion which overthrew Diaz, but the qualities of idealism were not of the sort required to rule the country in peace, as the recent outbreak proves. His rule has been for two years and is generally believed to have been incompetent.

General Diaz, forty-four years old, is a nephew of that iron dictator Porfirio Diaz. The younger man is said to have all the traits of his famed uncle, with a few additional qualities fitting him to leadership. He is said among other things, to possess a charmed life, just as his uncle has. Both have been under fire many times, their escapes from bullets fired point blank and from other perilous predicaments being parallel.

General Diaz escaped from prison several times besides the recent occasion when his followers stormed the prison and rescued him.

Rise of Madero.

When Mexico's iron man, Porfirio Diaz, turned a deaf ear to the rumblings of discontent and set himself up for the presidency once more, after having been virtually a dictator for twenty-six years, few were courageous enough to interpose themselves between the dictator and his ambition.

The bravest of the few was a young man who had won merit as a mathematician, poet, philosopher and author; who had been a planter and a winemaker; who had all his life been a dreamer, an idealist.

Early in 1910 this young man, whose name was Francisco Indalecia Madero, raised his voice so loudly that all Mexico listened. The quiet scholar dared more than the soldier enemies of the dictator.

He took his life in his hands and announced he was a candidate for the presidency. So certain were President Diaz and his adherents of their hold upon the government that they regarded young Madero as a crack brained but harmless agitator.

Charged With Insanity.

The Mexican people were told that the Madero family was tainted with insanity and that Francisco possessed the delusion that the soul of Father Hidalgo, the liberator of Mexico, had entered his body.

The world learned differently within two years, when the aged Diaz fled from his country, took ship for Europe and heard as he went the cannon booming salutes for the triumphant Madero, provisional president of Mexico.

Madero was born Oct. 4, 1873, on the Hacienda del Rosario, in the state of Coahuila, in northern Mexico. His family was one of the richest and greatest landholders in the country, possessing plantations and industrial interests estimated to be worth at least $60,000,000.

Young Madero was sent abroad to study. He was first a student at a college at Versailles, France. Later he took courses at the commercial high school in Paris in 1892 and 1893. The next year he was a student in the University of California, where he studied English literature and agriculture. He made a special study of rubber and cotton planting, fitting himself for the task of looking after some 16,000,000 acres composed mostly of rubber and cotton plantations.

Dream of Liberty.

When he returned to his home he settled down to be a planter, but the dream of freeing the peons and of lifting them from virtual slavery obsessed him.

By writing and speeches he tried to instill in the laboring Mexican a sense of justice, of equality, of liberty and of self respect. Quietly, though constantly spied on by the secret agents of the Diaz government, young Madero strove to stir the natives of the northern states to resist the tyrannies of the Diaz regime.

The abuses that Madero preached against were principally the maladministration of Diaz, the heavy taxes, the cruelty practiced on the defenseless peasantry by the federal tax collectors, the throttling of the press, the greed of Diaz's followers, who were making millionaires of themselves at the expense of the people, and the never ending dictatorship that Diaz had clamped upon the country.

SCENES OF UNUSUAL INTEREST IN THE PRESENT FIGHTING IN MEXICO'S CAPITAL

EXCITED CROWDS IN STREETS OF MEXICO CITY

THE AMERICAN EMBASSY, MEXICO CITY

Picture an open square, almost in the centre of a populous capital, bounded on the north and south sides by low one story buildings of the heavy Spanish type of architecture surrounding the city arsenal. Put here some two thousand trained soldiers. Provide them with more than half the artillery of Mexico and practically an inexhaustible supply of ammunition.

Put this artillery under the command of an expert who is an inventor of ordnance devices—General Mondragon. For two or three blocks on every side place machine guns, commanding the street crossings. Then in a great circle, of the diameter of a mile, with the arsenal as a centre, place batteries of heavy artillery.

Then start the heavy guns of the Arsenal square and those of the attacking batteries to bombarding with shot and shell. Remember all the time the crowded construction of Spanish cities, with houses jammed against houses.

Force some 5,000 men, waging war, into this district. Get this picture clearly in mind and some idea what has been passing in Mexico City since February 11 may be obtained.

In the above photographs are shown a street scene in the Mexican capital as it looks to-day, the American Embassy, which is in the zone of fire; the U. S. S. Nebraska, which has been ordered to proceed to Mexico and Henry Lane Wilson, Ambassador to Mexico, who is aiding the Americans there who have been forced to flee from their homes.

U. S. WON'T INTERVENE

informed as to the real situation in Mexico, Representative Ayres, of New York, introduced a resolution in the House today calling on the President to transmit to the house such information relative to the situation in Mexico City as he deems not incompatable with the public welfare.

The message received from President Madero protesting against American intervention and asking that the administration's stand be set forth, was as follows:

"I have been informed that the government over which Your Excellency dignifiedly presides has ordered to set out for the ports of Mexico war vessels with troops to disembark and come to this capital to give guarantees of safety to Americans.

"Undoubtedly the information which you have and which led you to take this action is inexact and exaggerated, for the lives of Americans in this capital are at present in no danger if they will abandon the zone of fire and concentrate in certain points of the city or its suburbs where tranquility is absolute and where the government can give all classes guarantees.

"If you will order that Americans resident here do that, following the precedent established by your own orders previously issued [Note:—This refers to the proclamation last spring advising all Americans to leave danger points in the republic] all danger to the lives of Americans and other foreigners will be obviated.

"Regarding what material damages may be suffered by foreigners, this government is ready to accept all responsibility according to the obligations of international law.

"Consequently I ask Your Excellency to order your men of war not to disembark troops in Mexico, as this act will cause a conflagration and terrible consequences of more extent than the ones we have to contend with at present. I assure Your Excellency that this government is taking all measures necessary in order that the rebels in the Ciudadela (the Arsenal) will do the least harm possible to lives and property in the capital, and I have hopes that everything will be peacefully arranged in a very short time.

"It is true that my country at this moment is passing through a terrible crisis, and the disembarkation of American troops would only increase the dangers of the situation, and by a very lamentable error it would do great harm to a nation which always has been a loyal friend to the United States, as well as contribute to the dangers surrounding the establishing of true democratic government here similar to that of the great American nation.

"I appeal to the equitable, just sentiments that have been the criterion of your government, and that undoubtedly represent the sentiments of the great American people, whose destinies you have guided with so much skill and patriotism."

PERU PROMISES TO END CRUELTY

Minister to United States Gives Assurance of Reform.

FOLLOWS FULLER'S REPORT.

American Had Made Searching Investigation and Disclosed Long List of Atrocities Worked Upon Natives in Putumayo Rubber District—Murder, Flogging and Torture Were System.

Peru will undertake to put a stop to the atrocities perpetrated on the Indians in the Putumayo rubber country and to prevent repetitions of the outrages. This promise is contained in a communication from Senor Pezet, Peruvian minister to the United States, to the department of state.

The assurances of the Peruvian government come in the wake of investigations conducted by Stuart J. Fuller in behalf of the United States and Sir Roger Casement, British consul general at Rio de Janeiro, who journeyed to the very heart of the Putumayo jungles and then submitted reports to their respective governments.

Mr. Fuller's report, together with a message from President Taft, was sent to congress recently. The state department was furnished with a mass of information by the special envoy, but only the essential facts were given to congress. The report sent to congress says:

Beginning in the year 1904, the firm of Arana Bros., which later became the Peruvian Amazon company, imported a number of Barbados men, who had been recruited in the island of Barbados, with whom they entered into a contract to serve as laborers in the Putumayo for a term of two years. The number of men so imported amounted altogether to about two hundred.

Upon arrival at their destination they were armed with rifles and a large supply of cartridges and were dispatched through the forests to different parts of the region, with a view to enslaving various tribes of docile, or at any rate of easily subdued, Indians who dwelt along the courses of the Caraparana and upper and middle Igaraparana rivers, and occupied the country between those rivers besides the neighboring regions.

Murder, Flogging and Torture.

In the exercise of this illegal compulsion, frequently accompanied by gross outrages upon the Indians, including murder, flogging and torture, the company, through its agents, forced the Barbados men actively to participate. Threats and in some cases violence were used as a means of compelling them to commit illegal acts upon the Indians in order to induce the latter to labor or bring in india rubber upon their backs from the remote districts.

The Barbados men themselves complained that they had frequently suffered ill treatment at the hands of the agents of the company and that for long periods their food consisted of what they could get for themselves or obtain by some means from the Indians.

After describing conditions in the rubber regions the report to congress sums up Mr. Fuller's findings as follows:

There is evidence that the company has mended its ways to some extent, at least for the present. All of the Indians present looked well fed and vigorous, although a considerable number in various posts bore the scars of old floggings. They are a small people, not overstrong physically, and, whatever they may have been in past generations, they are not now, and were not at the time the atrocities took place, wild, untamable cannibals, but, on the contrary, mild, docile, inoffensive and childlike, just as described by Sir Roger Casement.

As the region is so remote from the capital and from all governmental authority, the whole zone is apparently left to the company to manage as it sees fit, notwithstanding the occurrences of the past. Up to the present the administration of justice throughout the region has been in the hands of the company's section chiefs. Several of these admitted that they had put both Indian and white employees in stocks for minor offenses.

System of Peonage.

The labor of the Indians is secured by a system of peonage based on advances of merchandise. Payment is made for this labor; but, nevertheless, it is nothing more or less than forced labor. The temptation to abuse is imminent and strong, especially since the white staff is offered a bonus for vigilance.

Considering the inaccessibility of the region, the heavy export tax and the inferior quality of the rubber, it is difficult to see how the enterprise can be made to pay without harsh treatment of the Indians. The amount of rubber produced by the company continues to increase in spite of the fact that the native population of the district has greatly decreased. It is questionable whether, in the absence of governmental machinery in the zone, the withdrawal of the company would better the lot of the Indians, for the territory would then be thrown open to freebooting expeditions and slave raiders.

LLOYD-GEORGE URGES NEED OF HELPING ENGLAND'S POOR

He Would Lighten Plowman's Lot by Removing Great Abuses.

"The foremost task of Liberalism in the near future is the regeneration of rural life—the emancipation of the land of this country from the paralyzing grip of a rusty, effete and unprofitable system."

David Lloyd-George, chancellor of the exchequer of England, made this momentous declaration in London recently at the annual meeting of the National Liberal club. The land question has been Mr. Lloyd-George's hobby, and the Conservatives have accused him of being ambitious to introduce the Henry George system of taxation in Great Britain.

Recently they have been asserting that the cabinet has sidetracked his scheme, but the recent speech by the chancellor of the exchequer indicates that the government soon will grapple with perhaps the greatest attempt in its extensive program of social reforms.

Speaking of the agricultural laborers, the chancellor said:

"Our reports prove conclusively that there are hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of men, women and children living under conditions with regard to wages, housing and the rest of labor conditions who ought to make this great empire hang its head with shame."

URGES RAW WHEAT AS FOOD.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley Declares Pint Would Sustain Family For Days.

"Half of the children of the United States are starving, and under the very shadow of the nation's capitol there are 17,000 who are underfed. The very foundations of the government are threatened."

This statement was made recently by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley before an audience of a thousand, who applauded him repeatedly. He said:

"People do not know what to eat. Farmers take more care of their cows than they do of their children. Wheat in its natural state is the best balanced food for the muscles and the mind."

Dr. Wiley told how to make enough breakfast food from a pint of wheat to last a family of four for four days at a cost of a cent and a quarter a day. He said all that was necessary was to grind the wheat in a coffee mill and prepare it as ordinary mush is made.

APPLES AS A CURE FOR DRINK.

Chicago Clean Food Club Sells Fruit to Injure Liquor Traffic.

The Chicago Clean Food club sold 15,000 barrels of apples one day recently. To put this quantity of apples in circulation required the service of twenty-five commission firms, 3,000 grocers and 1,000 women inspectors. The apples were sold to poor families at a price of $1.60 to $2.75 a barrel.

"The 1st of January there were 5,000,000 barrels and 6,000,000 boxes of apples in cold storage in the United States," said Mrs. J. C. Bley. In 1912 25 per cent of the stored apples had to be destroyed because they were held too long. The people need apples and will buy them if the price is not too high. Any man or woman who eats apples will not drink liquor. The apple is doing wonders in the way of liquor cure."

FINDS FISHPOND OF NERO.

Roman Excavator Discovers Reservoir Under Palace Where Fish Were Bred.

Professor Boni, who is supervising the excavations on the Palatine hill, in Rome, has made an important archaeological discovery. Beneath the basilica of the Flavian palace he found two narrow stairways leading to a "piscina," a water reservoir consisting of five large compartments. It is still intact, covered and well preserved by water tight cement.

The reservoir dates from the time of Nero, when it was used as a pond for sea fish, with the object of breeding exotic fish for the emperor's table.

That the artificial rearing and hatching of fish were practiced in ancient Rome is attested by Pliny, who refers to a fish called scarus, found between Rhodes and Crete, but bred artificially.

BURGLAR INVENTS THIEF TRAP

With Tears In His Eyes Felon Begs Mercy on That Ground.

With tears streaming down his cheeks, William Cornell, a burglar, who has spent twenty-eight years of his life of fifty-four years in prison and who has invented a burglar alarm, begged Justice Goff of New York city for mercy recently.

"I have patented a burglar alarm your honor," he explained. "Through the money that I expect to realize on that it is my hope that I may be able to live an honest life hereafter and be able to look honest men in the face." He was sentenced to one year.

INVENTS MYSTERIOUS MOTOR.

German American Has Machine That Works Apparently Without Power.

An American company is said to hold the sole rights to a new motor which Count Zeppelin has gone specially to Frankfort to report upon for the German imperial government.

It is the invention of a German American named Bolzhardt, and it is claimed that neither gas, oil nor electricity is necessary, the motor taking its power from the earth and the air. It is exceptionally light. If it works it will mean much to heavier than air flying machines.

FIRE LOSS $500.

A fire in the barn in the rear of the home of W. H. Williams, on Rockview avenue, early yesterday morning gutted the structure consuming hay, farming implements, fancy cages, a collie dog and some chickens. After working for three hours the firemen succeeded in extinguishing the blaze. The damage was $500. The barn was heated by steam and a defective flue may have caused the fire.

Soft Straw Worked Up Into Charming Designs This Season.

Attractive small hats for the spring are made entirely of roses or other small flowers. Soft straw and mousseline are so worked that it is impossible to tell which is straw and which is mousseline or ribbon. The brims of these little hats are jaunty and narrow.

Fashion authorities tell us that this spring will be seen millinery flowers of colored tulle, with tiny pearls and stones for petals.

A pretty French trick is the wearing of a bright silk handkerchief in a tiny breast pocket—just enough to give a spot of color matching the flower on the hat.

Narrow black velvet ribbon appears as streamers on some of the new small hats for spring wear.

Front closings are extremely smart this season for girls as well as for their elders. In the frock illustrated this feature is combined with others equally smart and practical.

THE KITCHEN CUPBOARD

SALMON LOAF.

WITH the return of Lent, pleasing ways of serving fish are needed. In neighborhoods where the main reliance is upon canned fish salmon is generally popular.

Salmon loaf, a dish which is satisfactory for luncheon or supper, may be made in a number of acceptable ways. Some of these are as follows:

For the Lenten Larder.

Piquant Salmon Loaf. Take three large pickles, mince these fine with one small onion. Add one cupful of breadcrumbs, one tablespoonful of melted butter poured over the crumbs, three well beaten eggs, one-half cupful of rich milk, one can of salmon. Drain off the liquor for sauce, pick up the meat, season with salt and pepper and one teaspoonful of celery salt. Mix the ingredients together, form into a loaf and place in a dripping pan, pour over it a tablespoonful of butter melted in one cupful of boiling water. Baste often and bake until nicely browned.

To make sauce for this take a teaspoonful of melted butter and salmon liquor, one sour pickle, minced, one well beaten egg, pepper and salt. Boil all together, stirring constantly. Add cream to make sauce enough to serve over the loaf and pour on just before serving.

Tempting Fare.

Steamed Salmon Loaf.—Take a can of the steaks of salmon and add to it three well beaten eggs, two ounces of melted butter, a half cupful of grated breadcrumbs, with minced parsley, pepper and salt to season.

Beat the crumbs with the eggs, add the salmon, butter and seasoning, place in a suitable dish and steam one hour.

For the sauce take one cupful of hot milk, thicken with one tablespoonful of cornstarch or flour. Add liquor from can, one large tablespoonful butter and one egg beaten. Cook in a double boiler. When done pour over the loaf.

Salmon Loaf In Gelatin.—Take a can of salmon and flake the fish finely. Mix with it the pounded yolks of two hard boiled eggs and a seasoning consisting of a tablespoonful of chopped capers, a little mace, chopped parsley and salt and pepper. Then take a cup ful of boiling water and dissolve a teaspoonful of anchovy paste with it. Add a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of gelatin. Keep the water hot until the gelatin is dissolved and then combine with the fish. Take a nice mold, butter it and lay rings formed of the white of hard boiled egg upon it. Pour the fish into the mold over these and place on ice until firm.

Anna Thompson.

YOUR EASTER HAT.

Velvet Facings on the Newest and Smartest Shapes of the Season.

The young girls have a splendid stock of hats to choose their Easter bonnet from. At this early date most of those seen are wide brimmed, with a slight flare on one side, while others have a decided roll all around, the under brim semifacing of changeable silk, the extreme outer edge being covered with straw. Most of these hats have very little trimming. Some hats have only one large quill, which penetrates the brim on the left side. Three small bright red velvet bows are also used to trim the side crown on the left side front.

Another becoming shape for dress occasions has a wide brim, which droops slightly. The crown and upper brim are made of white yedda. The under brim has a black velvet facing edged with knife plaited valenciennes lace. A wide piece of black velvet ribbon encircles the side crown and is finished at the left side back in a soft knot. The ends are drawn over the edge of the brim and tied again ten inches from the ends. One large red rose is secured to the right side front of the brim. A chic little hat with crown of rainproof malines and brim of black velvet is this model by Ora Cne, the rain mibirer. The malines is shirred over cable cords, which gives the effect of pleating, and an aigret of the malines is the only trimming.

SCHOOL CHILD'S DIET.

Importance of This Health Factor Often Overlooked by Parents.

The mother who wishes to preserve the health of the school child must attend carefully to the question of diet. The child at school is giving out energy all the time, and food is requisite to provide energy for the work.

The child requires a good deal of fat, because fat provides energy, keeps the body warm and is necessary during the time of growth. Butter, cream and rich milk provide fat in easily digested form. The schoolboy's craving for suet dumplings is physiological in the sense that suet provides animal fat in a particularly suitable form for the schoolroom menu. Porridge and cream, white fish, soft boiled or scrambled egg, varied with fat bacon, and a cup of cocoa or milk provide a variety of choice for breakfast. The breakfast meal should be varied as much as possible. A little fruit may be served in season instead of porridge. Brown bread may occasionally be given instead of white. Rolls or scones or oatmeal cake, with fresh preserves, are excellent for breakfast.

For dinner finely cut chicken, beef, lamb or mutton, with such vegetables as potato, cauliflower, spinach, vegetable marrow, followed by milk pudding, light pastry, chocolate shape or egg custard as a sweet, may be given. Fresh fruits in their season should be given two or three times a week at least for dinner, and baked apple with cream is an easily digested sweet for children.

The school child has generally only three meals a day, so that tea should be a more ample meal than that allowed for grownups. Plenty of bread and butter, with honey or homemade jelly, a little stewed fruit if it has not been served at dinner or breakfast and occasionally a scrambled egg or cheese custard, provide a nourishing tea when children have the appetite to digest it. It must not be forgotten, however, that to compel a child who is not hungry to take a large meal will only overtax the digestion and may be the cause of school dyspepsia. A tumblerful of milk at bedtime is the best "supper" for the younger school children at least. After eleven or twelve years of age most school boys and girls will want bread and butter in addition for supper.

MABEL'S CHITCHAT

The Woman Who's Determined to Please Too Much.

HOPELESS TO CHOKE HER OFF

Chafing Dish Set In Crash Toweling Is Just the Gift For Hostess Who Is Fond of Entertaining Informally at Supper or Luncheon.

Dear Elsa—I have just come back to New York from a week end spent with Margaret W., and I never leave her charming country home without the uncomfortable feeling that I have been extremely rude. Margaret is one of the few remaining specimens of politeness left to us in this rude, busy age. Indeed, she is so anxious to be nice and to have her guests enjoy themselves that she defeats her own good object by being too solicitous of their well being. In other words, she is one of those "pressing" people who make the average woman feel like "saying things" at times.

Here is an example of what I mean: "Won't you have one of these cakes, dear?" she cried one afternoon at tea, her bright eyes falling on my empty plate.

"Thank you very much, but I've quite finished."

"Oh, but you must try one of these. They're homemade."

"I'm sure they are delicious, but really"—

"Just one, now; just to please me."

So I was obliged to meekly dispose of the cake, and as soon as I had come to the last crumb Margaret began again.

"Now I'm sure you will have another, won't you?"

"No, thank you, really, Margaret."

"Oh, do; I have not nearly finished yet. Do keep me company! Or perhaps you did not like my cake?"

"It was splendid!" I managed to reply, quite honestly, for Margaret is a fine cook. "But, truly"—

Well, it was all off. Margaret smiled a sad, wistful smile, which said as plain as words, "I'm so sorry you didn't care for it, for if you had you would have taken another one."

She doesn't seem to realize that, however nice a cake may be, there exists to the vulgar mind such a thing as—well, repletion is the prettiest term I can call it, though very small people have expressed the same meaning by announcing that they are "full now."

Then one day Margaret began talking of new spring frocks, and I was foolish enough to say that I was thinking of changing my dressmaker.

"The very chance for you to try the little woman who made my green gown. She's so smart and so cheap. She lives at— There, I've forgotten, but I'll look it up in my address book and let you know."

Now, as a matter of fact, I don't admire Margaret's green gown in the least, and I had said it was a "shriek of fashion."

Trying to be tactful, I appreciatively looked at Margaret and replied: "Don't bother, dear. I think perhaps after all I'll give Mme. Blank another chance."

"Yes, but you may as well have the address, mayn't you? And I'm going to her this week, and if she says she cannot take any more orders just now I'll mention that you are a friend of mine. Or—or maybe it would be better for you to come with me."

Margaret is always full of plans, and, knowing that to raise her hopes to let them fall again will hurt her feelings, I temporized by saying, "I'll think it over."

And so we went on every minute of the time I spent with her, I feeling the most ungracious creature on the earth, for Margaret never can see that she has said enough. Yet she is a dear and does mean so well.

Why don't I go to Ferncliffe next summer? Why don't I take her remedy for sore throat? Why don't I take a ticket for the current event talks? Why don't I go to her dentist?

And indeed I don't know why I don't do many of these things, except that I don't particularly want to.

Dick and I never look forward to our visits to Margaret, simply because we find it so hard to get away. We plead that we have engagements in town. "Won't they hold over?"

Do you remember Sam Weller's reply to his father when that dear old gentleman suggested that his letter to Mary, the housemaid, was rather short?

"Not a bit of it," said Sam. "She'll vish there vos more, and that's the great art o' letter writin'."

Somehow those words always come into my head as I travel home from Margaret's.

I wonder, Elsa, how you will like the doilies and centerpiece I am making for a friend who does a lot of informal entertaining—chafing dish parties and the like. The set is of blue and white barred tea toweling. A yard and five-eighths of eighteen inch wide toweling makes the twelve doilies, which are nine inches square. A square of the toweling was too narrow to make a good looking centerpiece, so I compromised on an oblong table runner.

The edges of both doilies and centerpiece are finished with heavily padded buttonholing done with mercerized cotton the shade of the blue bar in the crash. Across the center of each doily and at both ends of the runner centerpiece will be placed the initials of the owner in cross stitch, carried out in two shades of blue. On a polished mahogany table the set is stunning.

Time's up, so auf wiedersehen.

REAL SUFFRAGETTES PLAY BOYS' RULES

Woodbridge Dames Order Nonpareils to Abolish Femininism or Quit.

Such were the conditions encountered by the Nonpareil girls' basketball team, of this city, when it appeared on the Woodbridge Parish House court Saturday night to engage in a basketball game with the Parish House girls of that place, much surprise and no little amount of indignation was expressed by the Woodbridge contingent when the Nonpareils clung firmly to their assertion that they would not play a contest governed by boys' rules. When the Queen City aggregation appeared on the court ready to play, the local captain was informed that one half the game would be played with boys' rules and the other half with the regulation feminine code. Of course, this arrangement would prove unsatisfactory to any girls' team used to playing the game meant for girls and the Plainfield captain entered strenuous objections to that phase of the contest because it would subject the participants to almost certain injury. The Woodbridge captain became indignant and hastily ordered the visitors to yield to her commands or leave the floor. The latter step was adopted at once and when it was found that the local captain was really in earnest in taking the stand she did, a number of ardent entreaties were forthcoming on the part of those Woodbridge followers who took a broader view of the situation than did their captain, for the return of the team but all coaxing proved unavailing and there was no contest.

The advent of the Nonpareils into Woodbridge was heralded with enthusiasm by the basketball loving public and the populace turned out en masse in the expectancy of witnessing a thrilling game. Many of the spectators left the house when the announcement that the girls' game had been called off was made and dissatisfaction was prevalent on every hand.

It appeared rather peculiar to the Plainfielders, as well as to a number of Woodbridge rooters, after the matter was clearly brought to their attention, that the girls' team should insist on playing male rules when there is a specified code of restrictions and regulations published which are adapted to feminine playing. The Woodbridge girls advocated the abolition of the vertical plane laws and seemed inclined to turn the contest into an as masculine affair as possible. The Woodbridge court is an unusually large one for girls to play on and is poorly lighted. These handicaps, together with the boys' rules, would have proven an overwhelming detriment to the Nonpareil girls.

BOROUGH HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS PLAY HOPE FIVE

The second meeting of the North Plainfield High School and Hope chapel girls' teams will take place at Saengerbund Hall tonight. In the previous game the boroughites were victorious on the Hope court and are therefore looking forward to another victory tonight as the chapelites will be playing on an unfamiliar court which is much larger than the one they have been used to and they will therefore be at a decided disadvantage on the N. P. H. S. team's home court.

The teams will lineup as follows:

N. P. H. S.		HOPE CHAPEL.
Miss Burtis	forward	Miss M. Duncan
Miss Mair	forward	Miss Saffron
Miss Douglas	centre	Miss Weber
Miss Smith	guard	Miss J. Duncan

INVINCIBLE TRENTON Y. W. C. A. FIVE TRIMS ANOTHER QUEEN CITY QUINTET

An exhibition of foxy basketball on the part of Miss Hayes, the wonderful little forward on the Trenton Y. W. C. A. basketball team, defeated the local Y. W. C. A. girls on the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. court Saturday night by a score of 15 to 11. With two minutes left in which to play and the score standing a 11 to 11 tie, Miss Hayes found it difficult to get her wind and requested the referee to call "time out," saying she had injured her wrist. The official immediately granted her wish and Miss Hayes left the floor and remained off the allotted two minutes, reappearing with a bandage wrapped around her wrist. When play was started her injury became a lost quantity, however, as she took on an added spurt and placed her team in the fore with two field goals, winning the game.

As has been the case in all of the games played by the Capitol City aggregation, the playing was close and the work of Miss Hayes a conspicuous factor. Her contribution of five field goals went a long way toward winning the game and her aggressiveness had the local combination continually on the alert. For Plainfield, Miss Marjorie Burtis, who started in the North Plainfield High School contest in the afternoon, again took the leading role, making nine out of her team's eleven scores. She counted seven times from the foul line and once from the field and made the fast Trentonians hustle to keep in the running. The Trenton team is the same that defeated the Nonpareils, of this city, in a close game at Trenton a week ago and will appear in this city for a return game February 28.

LOCAL Y. M. C. A. FIVE IN ATHLETIC, VERBAL AND FISTIC COURT BATTLE

Never before in the history of the little town of Woodbridge did an athletic contest produce so much enthusiasm as the game scheduled between the Y. M. C. A. Ajax, of this city, and the Parish House quintet of that place last Saturday night. Regular Saturday night municipal activities were suspended for the coming of the Ajax and preparations had been made to receive the Queen City delegation with an aggregation of basketball stars that was confident of belittling the Y. M. C. A. boys' two point triumph over the Woodbridge contingent earlier in the season. After a lingering battle against adverse odds the Ajax were finally landed on the credit side of the ledger with a score of 18 to 15.

Rough-house featured the game from start to finish and fouls were called in rapid fire succession on the Plainfield delegation, especially in the last few minutes of play when the home team took the lead on penalty throws. The Ajax managed to recover their stride, however, and again took the lead by a one point margin, just as time was called by the Plainfield timer, the only acting official the local team had in the game, but the Woodbridge timer declared that there was a minute and a half left to play. After much wrangling on the part of both teams, the Ajax finally agreed to play the extra time and were rewarded for their liberality by a trio of points which put the game on ice. Woodbridge was ahead the greater part of the contest but their opponents kept close behind and pulled off a spurt in the final minutes of play that netted them victory.

Unusually close guarding on the part of both teams kept the score down to a low level as far as field goals were concerned, but the home aggregation were afforded no less than twenty-five opportunities to count from the foul line but could only make good on seven. The Ajax outscored their opponents in the first half by a count of 9 to 6, but in the final period, with the aid of numerous fouls, the Parish House five scored exactly the same number of points as did the Plainfield five, each getting nine.

The length of the Woodbridge court and the poor lighting facilities proved additional handicaps to the association players who are accustomed to a much smaller floor and at times appeared to be completely lost on the rival court. Woodbridge exhibited a number of brilliant spasms of passing and time and again took the ball up and down the floor on short, snappy passes but were prevented from scoring at the end of the run by one of the Ajax guards who were ever in the fray.

But eleven field goals were made by the two teams during the course of the evening, the winners tallying seven times against their opponents four.

LOCAL TEAM AT DUNELLEN FOR BASKETBALL CONTEST

The all-star basketball quintet representing the Plainfield Trust Company will trolley to Dunellen tonight to engage in a court battle with the Baraca Class quintet of that place. The local aggregation has been reinforced by the addition of Lewis, a former Williams College player, and a good game is expected. The two teams will lineup as follows:

HOPE SECOND FIVE TROUNCED VISITORS

Score Forty Points Against the Visiting Aggregation's Twenty in Loose Game.

Hope Chapel seconds' string men managed to chalk up just twice as many points as did their opponents, the Roselle A. C., Saturday night, and won out by a count of 40 to 20. High scoring on the part of Wardrop, Guy Snyder and Bohl was responsible for the overwhelming victory. The visitors could not seem to locate the basket even on foul throws and failed to annex one of this variety while the Hope contingent was totaling up ten.

Roselle colors were upheld by Lennox, Moran and White, each of whom counted for a trio of field goals.

HOPE LESS AT THE END OF THIS GAME

Overtime Contest Won by Miss Jessie Stewart With a Field Goal.

What the Y. W. C. A. team left undone along the winning line in the girls' basketball program at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night the second team accomplished in an overtime game, defeating Hope chapel by a count of 14 to 12. When the game was called the score stood a tie 12 to 12 and the respective captains agreed to play until a decision was reached. After two minutes of snappy playing, Miss Jessie Stewart, of the Y. W. C. A. five, who had played the star's part all through the contest, caged the deciding goal, winning the game for the association girls.

The contest was a fast one with little shooting being done by either combination, Hope chapel making but six field goals and the winners the same number, all by Miss Stewart. Besides getting twelve points through field goal shooting Miss Stewart annexed two foul tries, thereby monopolizing all of the scoring.

HOPE CHAPEL BASKETBALL TEAM WINNER OF GREAT GAME WITH NEWARK CANOEISTS

Close and exciting basketball was on the menu for Hope chapel followers last Saturday night when their representatives lined up against the Tuscarora Canoe Club, of Newark, on the local court. The visitors were a set of the speediest basketball players that has appeared on a local court this season and the hope contingent had to play a sensational game in order to come out on top by a slim margin of two points or one field goal. The final count stood 29 to 27 and the winning goal came a second or two before time was called. Hope chapel followers were high in the praise of the playing ability and sportsmanlike spirit evidenced by the visitors and claim that the team that played here Saturday night was the cleanest and fastest that ever lined up against a Plainfield five.

The scoring was nip and tuck at all stages, every time one team managed to cage a basket, the other did the same thing in short order. Neither aggregation had a decided advantage over the other at any interval and it was anybody's game up to the sounding of the final whistle. Many fouls were called on both sides but none of them were levied for dirty or rough playing. The close condition of the score and the speedy playing made fouling easy and therefore many were called, and many were shot. Hope chapel made good on eleven throws from the foul line and the visitors scored five times from the fifteen foot mark. Johnny Heron did all the foul shooting for the Chapelites and his prowess along that line spelled victory for his team. The Heron brothers again held up the bulk of the scoring burden and counted for twenty-seven points between them, or just as many as were chalked up by the whole visiting combination.

For the Canoeists, McDonald and Zeliff did the best work in field goal shooting while Keller made the quintet of foul shots that held his team in the running.

SUMMIT GETS EVEN AT SCOTCH PLAINS

Visitors Barely Nose Out a Victory Over the Speedy Parish House Deputation.

Summit sprang a surprise on the Scotch Plains Parish House first team and went home with a 22 to 19 victory after their game on the Parish House court, Saturday night. The contest was a nip and tuck struggle from start to finish, neither team leading the other by a margin of more than four points at any stage. In their previous contest the Chapel Club combination was walloped by a count of 40 to 22 and the Plains aggregation evidently held out too much confidence as to their chances of coming out in the van.

The visitors were considerably strengthened on this appearance by Alesbury and Judson, two Summit High School stars, who put up dandy games last Saturday night. For the home team, Ricketts and Thompson were the main point getters, totaling up fourteen between them. Marston proved a tower of strength for the losers at center but failed to get in his usual collection of field goals.

MISS BURTIS LEADS N. P. H. S. TO A WIN

Great Playing of Borough Team's Little Forward Conspicuous in Victory.

Sensational playing on the part of Miss Marjorie Burtis brought a victory to the North Plainfield High School girls' team in their game with the Perth Amboy High School maidens on the Saengerbund Hall court, Saturday afternoon, with a count of 16 to 9. Miss Burtis counted for ten out of her team's sixteen points and was in the game at every stage. Her agility and accurate shooting kept the visitors constantly on the alert warding off her offensive playing but she was undaunted by the combined efforts of the visiting quintet.

One half of the game was played without lines and in this period the Amboy players took the leading part, outscoring and outplaying the boroughites who are used to lines. Miss Mair got a trio of field goals for N. P. H. S., while Miss Smith and Miss Debele did some close guarding.

PARISH HOUSE FIVE WON BY BIG MARGIN

Score a One-Sided Triumph Over the Jolly Five Combination of This City.

Scotch Plains sent a second team against the Jolly Five, of this city, on the Plains court, Saturday night, and they did the trick by a score of 41 to 20, vanquishing the merry-makers. High scoring on the part of B. Mills and F. Saunders was responsible for the one-sided condition of the score, while Grisley upheld what there was held up of the Jolly Five's end of the score:

METHODISTS TO MEET

tee. It is understood that several applications have been made by pastors to be retired, the old term, superannuated, being no longer in use.

The interest by laymen in lay representation in the annual conferences, so marked last year, preceding the general conference, has subsided for the present. The practical local activities of Epworth League and Brotherhood work and the relation of laymen to church administration are to receive consideration.

In the matter of appointments the one of, perhaps, greatest importance will be the naming of a new superintendent for the Paterson district. Rev. L. C. Muller, who has filled the office for six consecutive years, cannot for that reason be selected again.

Speculation has especially attached to this prospective appointment. Rumor has given mention to a dozen or more names in connection with the office, but among the body of conference members generally it is regarded as sheer idle gossip. The significant feature of the situation is the fact that the bishop's policy in respect to the administration of the Newark Conference will in all probability be indicated by this appointment, and while there is admittedly considerable guessing being indulged in, the bishop is said thus far to have kept his own counsel in the matter.

In previous years elderly clergymen have been looked upon with special favor in considering appointments to the district superintendency, and it was frequently possible to forecast results. It is a distinctly different situation, however, that is presented this year, in making similar appointments in other conferences where he has presided Bishop Wilson has appointed young and thoroughly active men to this post, and it is thought that he will adhere to that policy in the present instance.

Probable Pastoral Changes.

At last year's session of the Newark Conference the advisability of abolishing the office of superintendent was projected into the proceedings as a subject of discussion, and while no formal action in the shape of a memorial was taken to that end the scheme was not without strong support. Each of the five district superintendents in the Newark Conference has passed the sixty-five-year mark, and while it in no way is understood to reflect upon the administration of the present incumbents there is a growing feeling that the office should be placed in the hands of younger men. Bishop Wilson, it is said, is in agreement with that policy, and the appointment of a young clergyman to the office will probably be made for the first time when the vacancy in the Paterson district is filled.

Probable pastoral changes in the Newark district include the church at Nutley, where Rev. Dr. Warren L. Hoagland, former district superintendent of Newark Conference, is pastor. The Nutley church has invited Rev. C. H. Powers, of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal, Elizabeth, to be its next pastor. Rev. Dr. Addison W. Hayes, for six years pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, of Westfield, has accepted the invitation of Christ Methodist Episcopal church, of Madison, to succeed Rev. George Mooney, with the approval, it is said, of Bishop Wilson and District Superintendent Rev. Dr. Jesse L. Hurlbut.

The Westfield church has invited Rev. Dr. Hawley, superintendent of the New Brunswick district of the New Jersey Conference, to its pastorate. The Summerfield Methodist Episcopal church, of Newark, is in the list of those looking for new pastors. The West Orange Methodist church has extended an invitation to Rev. Karl F. Quimby, assistant pastor of Calvary Methodist church, East Orange, to succeed Rev. William C. Cravner, who has declined to serve another year. Mr. Cravner is in his last year at Drew Theological Seminary and will be ordained at the coming conference.

Reached Fifty Years.

Four members of the Newark Conference have reached with this year fifty years of ministerial service. They are Rev. Robert B. Collins, of Madison; Rev. Hiram D. Opdyk,e of Martinsville; Rev. William Stout, of Flanders, and Rev. Wilson F. Randolph, of Bernardsville. Two of these have been for the entire period members of the Newark Conference, Mr. Collins and Mr. Opdyke, who joined the conference in 1863.

Mr. Collins has served as pastor at Andover and Tranquility, Palisade, Westfield, Irvington, Summit, Centenary church, Newark; Bound Brook, Hohokus, Simpson church, Jersey City; Union street, Newark; Tabernacle, Hoboken; Kingsley church, Staten Island; Washington, Bloomfield, Port Jervis a dnSt. Paul's Staten Island. His longest pastorate was at Bloomfield, where he served four years.

Mr. Opdyke began his pastorate with the West Broad Street Methodist church, Newark, now St. Luke's. His subsequent pastorates were Boonton, Prospect Street church, Paterson; First church, Rahway; Bethel, Staten Island; West Side Avenue church, Jersey City; New Prospect, First church, Dover; First church, Rahway; Norton, Stanton and Allerton, Mt. Horeb, Cokesbury and East Millstone. For four years he was the conference temperance agent and for several years was a prohibition worker. His longest pastorates were at Mt. Horeb and Stanton and Allerton churches, where he served three years each.

Mr. Stout, though a Methodist minister for fifty years, spent the first few years in the Maine Conference and was then transfered. He was born at Jutland, then Perryville, Hunterdon county, and in his early days was a public school teacher in that county. He was educated at the New York Conference Seminary in Charlottesville, N. Y., graduating in 1860, and in the Biblical Institute at Concord, N. H., graduating in 1868. As his first charge was Leeds, Me., the birthplace of the late General O. O. Howard, he recalls the remark he overheard General Howard make to another Civil War general on their return from the war, one having lost the right and the other the left arm, "Well, one pair of gloves now will answer for both of us." After becoming a member of the Newark Conference he served at Rockland Lake and Piermont, N. Y.; Anderson, Bloomingdale, Sparta, Hainesville, Hibernia, Tranquility and Mt. Horeb and Flanders in this State. He has twice been pastor at Rockland Lake and at Flanders. In three pastorates he served four years each. Flanders, Hibernia and Tranquility.

Mr. Randolph, father o Rev. Herbert F. Randolph, pastor of the Montclair Methodist church, was born in Newark seventy-four years ago, and educated in Pennington Seminary and Ashland University, Wisconsin. After serving a few year in the Wisconsin Conference and in the New Jersey Conference he held pastorates as a member of the Newark Conference at the Woodrow church, Staten Island; High Bridge and Lebanon and Basking Ridge. A few pastorates were held in Pennsylvania.

The session of the conference will occupy a week. On the evening preceding the opening day, March 19, a lecture on "Our Modern Social Problems" will be given by Hon. Frank Moss, assistant district attorney of New York city. The morning session of the first day, Wednesday, will begin with a communion service followed by organization, roll call and business matters. The afternoon will be occupied by a meeting of the Women's Foreign Mission Society and conference business.

Rural Church and Sunday-school.

In the evening a lecture on the "Rural Church" will be given by a speaker to be announced. Thursday morning will be given entirely to business. In the afternoon will occur the Woman's Home Missionary Society anniversary and in the evening the anniversary of the Brotherhood of the Methodist Episcopal church, with an address by Rev. Dr. Melville G. Bovard, of Summerfield Methodist church, Staten Island.

Business will again occupy the attention of the conference Friday morning and afternoon, but meantime the laymen's annual meeting will be held in the afternoon. In the evening the anniversary of the Epworth League will be held and Rev. Dr. George Peck, of New York, will be the speaker. Saturday afternoon Rev. Dr. Farrar, of Brooklyn, will give an address on "Sunday-school Work," and in the evening a lecture by Professor John Sparhawk, of Philadelphia, will be the principal item of the program.

Sunday morning, as usual, will be the great day of the conference, with a "love feast" service and the sermon by Bishop Wilson. In the afternoon a missionary sermon by Rev. Dr. John R. Wright, of Simpson church, Jersey City, preceded by ordination of deacons and elders, will claim the attention of the conference. In the evening a lay sermon will be preached by W. H. Ridgeway, of Coatsville, Pa., a teacher of a large men's Bible class. The conference will be followed by an organ recital by Professor Krumphel, a noted blind organist from England.

The conference will be a day shorter than usual, closing Monday evening, March 24, or on the morning of the following Tuesday, in order to permit Bishop Wilson to preside at the New York East Conference at New Haven. As resident bishop of the Metropolitan District, Bishop Wilson will have the charge of three conferences, the New York, in New York city, and the Newark and New York East conferences. The purpose of the new plan of locating resident bishops is to enable them to be at all times in touch with all the problems and conditions of the conferences under their charge.

The presiding bishop began his ministerial work as a member of the Baltimore annual conference. After serving in several pastorates, including Baltimore and Washington, he became presiding elder of the Washington District of the Baltimore Conference. He was selected bishop by the general conference of Los Angeles in 1904. He has served as fraternal delegate to the Methodist church of Canada; has been entrusted with several commissions, and has been president of the American Anti-Saloon League. In 1907 he was chosen as president of the Ocean Grove Campmeeting Association to succeed Bishop James N. FitzGerald. Before coming to the metropolitan district he was a resident of Philadelphia.

Bound Brook.

The Mothers' Association of the Congregational church will hold its February meeting tomorrow afternoon at 3:15 in the chapel. The subject for discussion will be "The Girl in Her Teens." Dr. E. R. Graff will speak on "What the Girl In Her Teens Should Know About Herself and the Laws of Her Body." This is a rare opportunity. Dr. Graff is a most interesting speaker and every mother should hear her. All mothers are welcome.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Zimmerman, of Plainfield, were Sunday visitors at the home of Adam Zimmerman, Main street, South Bound Brook.

The Brotherhood Association of the Methodist church will hold a business meeting in the lecture room of the church at 8 o'clock this evening.

Miss Edith Giles, of Yonkers, N. Y., is spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson M. Giles, at Harris Lane.

Mrs. Fred A. Crouse, of Newark, is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gillespie.

The members of the board of directors of the now municipally owned library have organized with the election of the following officers: President, Mrs. George Stryker; secretary, Mrs. Charles V. Higgins; treasurer, Miss Laura Cook.

Miss Ida Johnson, of Creighton Manor, is spending some time with friends in Brooklyn.

The Girls' Athletic Association of the Bound Brook High School will give an informal dance in the assembly room of the Lafayette School on March 14. Marion Bigelow, Elsie Haelig, Mary Walter and Elizabeth Pardae are the committee.

Miss Ada Kershaw, of New York city, has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Kershaw, of East Franklin street.

Mr. and Mrs. William Vosseller, of Somerville, were Sunday visitors with Mr. and Mrs. George B. Lindaurer, of Cedar street, South Bound Brook.

FLAYS THOSE WHO DO NOT PAY

You recall the young man who came to Jesus and said, 'Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?' And Jesus answered, 'Go and sell what thou hast and give to the poor.' And the young man went away sorrowful, for he had great possessions. This reminds me of the selfishness of the taxpayer. The citizens of Plainfield cry, give us good lights, better garbage disposal, give us all the improvements; but the moment the taxes are raised in order to provide these things, the taxpayer in his selfishness criticizes the Common Council. Our councilmen are honorable, public-spirited men who are looking out for our comfort and the betterment of our beautiful city; and it's grossly unfair to criticize their action in the increase of taxes necessitated by the addition of these improvements to the city known throughout the State for its good government. It makes me weary to hear the selfish taxpayer grumble.

"While men are perishing through the lust of intemperance and selfishness, there is another class who are losing their hold on eternal life because of gambling. We hear a gambler often spoken of as a sport, but I say he is not a sport—he's a thief. Here is a man earning $20, $30 or $40 a week. The law of the State, apart from the law of God, compels this man to support his family. He stops in somewhere on his way home, with his wages in his pocket, and gambles away every cent of it. What is the result? His wife and children are denied the necessities of life; they go hungry, because some one has taken from this husband and father something for which he has not been given an equivalent. I call the man who takes the money from this father, a thief, not a sport. But there is a remedy for all this, 'Be of good cheer, I have overcome the world.'

Second, Lust of the Eye. What a curse it was when Eve looked upon the Tree of Knowledge. She and Adam never would have eaten of the forbidden fruit, had she not first set her eyes upon it. The lust of the flesh followed the lust of the eye; then came sin; followed by banishment and eternal trouble. Young man, watch your eyes. Be particular what you see. Don't look at everything. You are not safe for a moment. If your eyes are upon it and you are lusting after it, you are yielding to a desire; and you may depend upon it that unless helped by God, you'll go down to ruin. Lust when it hath conceived bringeth forth sin. But he of good cheer, says Christ, I have overcome the world.

"Third, The Pride of Life. How many are destroyed by pride. This takes different forms. It is found in slavery to fashion, and this pride can be born in a garret as well as in a palace. I've seen the African proud of his thick lips—the thicker the better; while people of our own civilized country are oftentimes proud of their sarcastic temperament; others of their hardness of heart and unforgiving disposition. Thousands of manifestations destroy a multitude of souls. But what has pride of life to do with improving our city? Listen—do you know there are people riding around Plainfield who cannot pay their bills? The tradespeople are afraid to ask for the money lest they lose their custom. Our fair city is rated by both Bradstreet and Dunn as the poorest paying town in New Jersey. Our stores have thousands of dollars on their books which they cannot collect, and we poorer men have to pay for the rich; they must have their automobiles and their style. If they would go down town and pay what they owe, prices would be greatly reduced, and we wouldn't then be running off to New York for cheaper prices.

"How can we overcome the lust of the flesh and the pride of life? Only through Christ dwelling in us. Christ can come into our hearts and destroy the lust and pride; He can take pride and transform it into the deepest humility. When you open your heart to Christ, remember 'He that is in you is greater than he that is in the world.' Paul knew whereof he spoke when in his letter to the Philippians he said, 'I can do all things through Christ which strengthenest me.'

"Oh, young man, if you wish to wear a crown, make good use of your life here. Ask Him to come in and take this lust and pride out of your life; He puts power into our hearts and makes us more than conquerers. The glory of our Christianity is that it gives us power to resist the world, the flesh and the devil. I want to bear my own testimony to the power of our glorious gospel, and say it can take a young fellow with all of life before him, with the most promising opportunities opening up to him, and enable him to turn his back upon it all and send him out to the jungles of darkest Africa where he must live on snake meat instead of porterhouse steak, to preach this same glorious gospel to the black man. It can take a man like Jerry McCauley, the river thief, and enable him to turn his back upon the sin he used to love, and walk out in the newness of life. I could stand here and talk to you by the hour in citing illustrations of the transforming power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ. I could describe in detail, the miracle wrought in the African Witch Doctor, who has handled human hearts, but who by the blood of the Friend of sinners has had his fiendish face transformed into the image of Jesus Christ. I could tell you the story of the wild cannibal sitting at the feet of the missionary, learning to read and write.

FEDERALS MAKE A FINAL STAND

Diaz Closing in on Madero's Forces Expects to Be in Control of Capitol.

'UNCLE SAM' PREPARES

Navy Department Shows Unusual Activity—Mexican Federals Resort to Dynamite Bombs, but Rebels Are on the Offensive.

Mexico, City, Feb. 18.—Fighting between the federals and rebels was resumed shortly after 9 a. m. today. For an hour the fire was desultory with only a few heavy cannon engaged but later it swung into a duel between the batteries of President Madero and Gen. Diaz. The rebels are slowly but surely gaining, having pushed the federal lines back from all their exposed positions. The rebels seem able to keep up the fight indefinitely without suffering vital losses.

When hostilities were renewed, Gen. Diaz had pushed his lines through Insurgentes and Niza streets, only a short distance from the National Palace. Diaz declared he would be in full control of the residential district before night, but he promised not to throw his shells into that quarter and jeopazize lives of non-combatants.

Most of the federals, including a brigade from General Blanquet's army, which arrived last night, were taken into the National Palace. The federals will make their last stand there.

Mexico City, Feb. 18.—Federal troops prepared today to use dynamite bombs in an assault on the positions of Gen. Diaz. The arsenal has suffered little from the fire of the government artillerymen. The government admits a loss of 350 killed and 400 wounded. Diaz says he has lost not less than 200 killed and wounded.

Washington, Feb. 18.—It became known today that the navy department late last night ordered the entire Atlantic reserve fleet to recruit crews to complete strength and stand by for service at once. Orders also were issued to navy recruiting officers throughout the country to hurry recruiting apprentices and recruits at naval training stations have been ordered to report to the commanding officer of the Atlantic reserve fleet for duty.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 18.—A force of 1,000 marines will sail from here tomorrow night for Guantanamo on board the transport "Prairie." The brigade will be commanded by Col. Lincoln Karmany. The "Prairie" may have its orders countermanded by wireless and may be sent into Mexican waters. If not she will be held at Guantanamo ready for instant departure with 1,020 sailors and marines on board. The battleship "Connecticut," commanded by Rear Admiral Winslow, will leave the Brooklyn Navy Yard today bound for Guantanamo, Cuba.

The officers on board confidently expected when the battleship rests to receive orders by wireless to make for Vera Cruz or some other Mexican port instead of Guantanamo. At the same time 700 Marines boarded a special train in Jersey City and were taken to Philadelphia where they will board a warship or transport at the League Island Navy Yard.

Mexico City, Feb. 18.—For reasons unexplained there has been a complete cessation of hostilities of the rebels under Gen. Diaz and the federal forces commanded by Gen. Huerta, since 2 o'clock this morning. The fighting suddenly ceased apparently having been stopped by mutual consent of the leaders of the contending forces. Up to 8:20 o'clock this morning firing had not been resumed.

PIERCE CHALLENGES WILSON PREROGATIVE

Union Co. Senator Questions His Right to Make Appointments for After Mar. 4.

Trenton, Feb. 18.—The legal right of Governor Wilson to make some sixty-five appointments of important State officers with salaries aggregating nearly $100,000, to succeed present officers whose terms will expire after March 4, was raised in the Senate in executive session last night by Senator Pierce, Republican, of Union county. The Senators voted to refer the matter to the Attorney General and request his opinion on the subject.

The matter was brought to a focus last night because the appointment of the Atlantic County Judge and Prosecutor and all the appointments to the ten County Tax Boards are involved in the controversy. It is claimed by some that the Governor has no power under the constitution to make appointments to offices the terms of which expire after he will go out of office to become President, the contention being that these appointments should be made by Senate President Fielder, who will become Governor March 1, when the Governor resigns. Governor Wilson has maintained he has such power, and the fact that he sent in these appointments last night suggests that he proposes to act upon his contention. The opinion of the Attorney General will settle the dispute.

JOY RIDER'S HEARING SET FOR TOMORROW NIGHT

William Cruse, colored, of South Second street, arrested on Sunday night following a collision when an automobile he was driving struck a tree, was arraigned before Recorder Gano in the borough court last night on charges of driving a car without a license and using the machine without the owner's permission. He gave a bond for his appearance tomorrow night.

Edward E. Murphy, 19 years old, of South Second street, who was in the machine at the time of the accident, which occurred at Mountain avenue and Somerset street, was sentenced to serve five days in the borough jail on a charge of being intoxicated.

The automobile was the property of Richard Overland, proprietor of the Overland Garage, of East Fifth street, where Cruse was employed. Mr. Overland claimed he gave Cruse permission to use the car until 10 o'clock to take his family for a ride but not to go "joy-riding" until after midnight.

REMINISCENT CLUB MEETS.

The Reminiscent Club met at its headquarters in West Fourth street last night and as there was no fire or other excitement, the president, Durant, delivered himself of his recollection of the Yuletide in England. B. K. Davis relieved himself by telling what a great country Hunterdon county is and what famous men it has sent to Plainfield. D. L. Coleman, who was to speak on the old style way of fishing at Gloucester, Mass., was detained at home by rheumatism and in his stead Adolphus Carnot Liebou told some stories of Provincial France.

FIREMEN OF 54 RAILROADS AGREE ON ARBITRATION

TERRITORY INVOLVED IN THREATENED RAILROAD STRIKE.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 18.—The conference committee of railroad managers this morning addressed a letter to the representatives of the Government, under the Erdman act, in which it was stated that under the strongest protest they were able to voice, the managers' committee had agreed to arbitrate the firemen's controversy as provided by the Erdman act.

The managers said they desired that the hearings in the arbitration be open to the public.

President W. S. Carter, of the firemen, was decidedly pleased at the outcome of the negotiations with the railroads. He stated that Albert Phillips, of Sacramento, Cali., vice president of the Brotherhood, would be the arbitrator for the firemen.

The firemen's committee, which has been in session since Feb. 11, leave this city tomorrow.

Judge Knapp, after bringing the managers' decision to the firemen at the Broadway Central Hotel, gave out the following statement:

"The chairman of the committee of managers representing fifty-four Eastern railroads and the president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen have signed an agreement to arbitrate under the existing Erdman act. The firemen's committee has passed a resolution recommending that its president join with the chief executive officers of the other railway labor organizations and the representatives of the railroads in requesting such amendment to existing law as may be found desirable."

W. A. Atterbury, a vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will represent the Eastern railroads on the commission which will arbitrate the firemen's demands. Until the third and neutral member of the commission is appointed and the three members have opportunity to confer no date will be set for the beginning of the hearings.

BOARD OF TRADE ON LEGISLATURE BILLS

Dunellen Body Passes Judgment on Those Effecting That Borough.

Senate Bill No. 94, allowing boroughs to make an appropriation of $1,000 to hospitals for the care of the indigent poor; Assembly Bill No 154, which is designed to regulate the salaries of police officers, and Senate Bill No. 146, which permits Boards of Health to license ash and garbage collectors, were all endorsed by the Board of Trade of Dunellen at its meeting last night. The Board went on record as opposing Assembly Bill No. 263, which, if passed would defeat the plans of Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen for a joint sewage disposal works to be located in Piscataway Township.

There was no discussion of the Senate joint resolution, No. 2, permitting the transfer of investment funds to the school fund and Senate Bill No. 167, which provides that the Board of Education shall approve existing and new school buildings. This bill was laid over for discussion after the special school election to be held tonight.

The Board of Trade is not particularly strong for the proposition of erecting a new school building at a cost of $40,000, recognizing the expense the borough will have to meet in providing a sanitary sewer as well as other needed improvements. It is claimed that there is a greater need for sewers than a new school building at present, and beside there are plans under way for erecting a public building in the borough, suitable for all gatherings of a public nature.

The Board appointed E. B. Latham, chairman; Mayor Charles E. Richards, Frank Bennett, L. T. Schneider, H. S. Garretson, Dr. J. T. Hogan and Harry Swackhamer as a committee to further the interest in the proposition to erect a public building. It is proposed to put up a three story structure, the first floor to be used for stores, the second as an auditorium and the third for lodge room purposes. It is estimated that such a building as desired can be erected at a cost of between $15,000 and $20,000. The idea is to form a stock company and float bonds among those desiring to invest. The matter will be more fully discussed at the March meeting when the committee makeks a report.

PIERCE'S TAX BILLS APPEAR IN SENATE

New Machinery Proposed with a State Supervisor of Assessments as Chief.

Trenton, Feb. 18.—A series of bills calling for a general revision of the tax laws of the State were introduced by Senator Pierce of Union county in the Senate last evening. By the provisions of the bills the Board of Equalization of Taxes as at present constituted is continued, and State Supervisor of Assessments and County Assessors is created, such officer to serve for a term of five years. The county assessor and two other members, appointed for three year terms shall take the place of the county boards as now constituted. Local boards or assessors, where only one is appointed, shall be appointed by the county tax boards.

The salary of the State Supervisor is fixed at $5,000 and that of the County Assessors from $4,000 to $2,500, according to population. That of associate members of the County Tax Boards at from $1,000 to $500. Salaries of local assessors are fixed at $1,200 for the first year, $1,400 for the second and $1,800 thereafter.

The bills also terminate the term of office of members of the State Board of Assessors and vests in the Board of Equalization all the powers now vested in the Board of Assessors. It provides that all persons holding positions under the State Board of Assessors shall continue under the Board of Equalization.

Another feature of the re-organization of the law is that it exempts from taxation all household goods and wearing apparel in use.

TUTTLE EXPLAINS HIS POSITION ON OUR POST OFFICE BUILDING

He Confines His Activities to the House and Will Help Martine if Latter Can Get Larger Appropriation in Senate When Sundry Service Bill Comes There—Local Business Men Give Their Opinions.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—If United States Senator Martine, whose home is in Plainfield, has the same influence with his colleagues that his predecessor, former United States Senator John Kean, had he will be able to get into the sundry civil service bill passed by the House yesterday the item of an additional appropriation of $50,000 for the proposed Government building at Plainfield. Kean, when he was in the Senate, was responsible for the original appropriation of $100,000, of which $30,000 was spent for a site, and he fought successfully for it after the item had been stricken out by the House. As Plainfield is Martine's home town it is up to him to not only have the $30,000 item appearing in the postoffice omnibus bill as passed by the lower body, kept in but to get an item for $50,000 additional added. This $50,000 was put in by Kean but he was retired before action could be taken.

The following communication was received today from Congressman William E. Tuttle, of the Fifth New Jersey district, and it is self-explanatory:

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

There should be no misunderstanding of my position on the Plainfield Postoffice Building. My activities have been entirely confined to the House. The policy of the House leadership was to limit appropriations for public buildings to one city in a Congressional district, based upon demonstrated need. I selected Morristown because of the admitted greater need, and because the postal authorities agree that the present facilities of the Morristown office are totally inadequate.

The Plainfield matter only became acute, after many years of effort, when I was called in to consult as to the character of building to be built with the limited amount already available. The bill reported last Saturday carries a total of more than twenty-five million and the great part of this can not possibly because available in from three to five years. What should have been done was to have limited appropriations this year to projects like Plainfield and Morristown, already provided for, and halted because the amounts were insufficient or because the supervising architect's office is unable to furnish plans.

This great total, and inability to use the money appropriated for a term of years, will doubtless be thrust into the discussion to endanger the whole bill. The chances are that it will pass and when it comes to the Senate I sincerely hope that Senator Martine will be able to add the money necessary to complete the Plainfield building in a way creditable to the city and Government. Whatever amendments are added in the Senate will send the measure to conference and you may be sure that I shall use every influence at my command to have the Martine addition sustained.

Sincerely,
W. E. TUTTLE, JR.

As told in the Daily Press a few days ago, Mayor Stewart has arranged for a public meeting in his office for Thursday night when the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield may express opinions whether it is considered better to go ahead and erect the building for $70,000 or to await until $50,000 more may be obtained.

The Daily Press today obtained the opinion of prominent business men and this was the result:

Henry Liefke: "I believe that we should wait until a sufficient amount of money is appropriated for the new building. The $70,000 now available would not give the city a building to meet the needs and requirements for years to come which is desired. Our present accommodations are excellent and the people can afford to wait awhile."

Councilman Fred Endress: "I believe that Plainfield is entitled to a first-class building and this is not possible with the present appropriation. When we learn of the large sums appropriated to towns much smaller than Plainfield, it seems as though this city should be able to get an appropriation adequate to erect a building that would meet the needs for years to come."

Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy: "I believe that $70,000 would be sufficient to erect a Federal building, provided some of the governmental rules should be abolished, such for instance as the one which provides that there shall not be a building within so many feet of the postoffice structure. I should say that it depended largely on the kind and style of a building proposed as to whether a large appropriation is needed."

William R. Causbrook: "Why, I believe that the building should be started now and before it is completed it might be possible to get an additional appropriation. At any rate it could be so designed that wings could be added without destroying the architectural effect and harmony. As it is at present, the site is an eyesore."

A. E. Force, the White Store: "Go ahead with what money there is and then build additions when more money is obtained. Make the city look alive. I don't like the appearances at that spot now."

J. V. E. Vanderhoef, of Woodhull & Martin Company: "I say wait by all means until we can get a decent appropriation. It will be no hardship for Plainfield to wait perhaps another year or two, as the present postoffice accommodations are good. Our Senator should be able to get the extra appropriation in case Congressman Tuttle fails."

Samuel Rothberg: "Purely from a disinterested point of view I should say it would be better to wait and get a bigger appropriation. If a small and cheap building is erected now, it will cheapen adjoining land values."

Morris Van Arsdale: "We should wait until we can get more money. There is no urgent need for a Federal building considering the appropriation granted. When one is erected it should be built to meet the needs of the city for many years to come. It cannot be done with the present appropriation."

Max Tepper, of the firm of Tepper Brothers: "We have good accommodations at present and I think it would be better to wait until a sufficient appropriation is made to erect a structure suitable to the city. Plainfield is certainly entitled to a fine, well equipped building and it can afford to wait until the appropriation is large enough for that purpose."

William L. Smalley: "We have waited so long for a Federal building that we can afford to wait another year or two for a sufficient appropriation to put up a building that will be a credit and ornament to the city. When we get a Federal building we want a first-class one."

H. W. Marshall: "We might better wait. The $70,000 would not give Plainfield much of a postoffice building, and even the $120,000 the desired appropriation will not be any too much. Everyone knows that the Government cannot build as cheaply as an individual. Plainfield wants a Federal building that will be a credit to the city and nothing is to be gained by building now with the appropriation in hand."

THEIR LIVES ENDANGERED BY THESE METER THIEVES

The Public Service Corporation reported to the police today that the house at 661 West Third street, occupied by George Taylor, and the unoccupied houses at 312 Spooner avenue and 701 West Third street had been entered by "quarter-meter thieves," various amounts of money taken and the meters torn loose from their connections.

The Taylor residence was flooded with gas fumes when the family awoke this morning. The occupants are ill today from the effects. A similar condition was found to exist at the other dwellings entered and one of the employes of the corporation was nearly overcome when entering the house. The police are investigating.

GAMBLERS CONFESS; SENTENCE SUSPENDED

Joseph Santo, proprietor of the barber shop at 110 West Second street, and his four friends who were caught in a raid Saturday, were arraigned before City Judge De Meza this morning, charged with gambling. Santo confessed that he and the quartet were playing poker for money to Roundsman Saffron and Patrolmen Kelly and Welsh, who made the arrests. After considerable testimony had been submitted by both sides the court suspended sentence with a reprimand on all five.

They are Arthur E. Goff, 28 years old, of 134 West Second street; Charles S. Steller, 24 years old, of 166 Manning avenue, North Plainfield; Joseph Reinn, 24 years old, of 141 East Front street, and Leonard Foetee, 25 years old, of 133 East Front street.

MRS. JESSE L. HURLBUT IS DEAD AT NEW HAVEN

Pneumonia, developed from a severe cold, Sunday caused the death in New Haven of Mrs. Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, wife of the superintendent of the Newark district of the Newark Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. Dr. Hurlbut, hurriedly summoned, made a hasty trip to his wife's bedside, but she died before he arrived.

The decedent contracted a cold last week, while she was visiting relatives in the Connecticut city. She left her home a week ago yesterday, and a day or two later word of her illness was reecived here. Though her ailment did not improve through the week, when Dr. Hurlbut visited her on Saturday she did not appear to be in any immediate danger, so he returned to Newark, only to go back again Sunday.

Mrs. Hurlbut was past sixty years of age. She was born in Boston, but the greater part of her life was spent in and around Newark. Dr. Hurlbut has been a district superintendent for about five years. Previous to that he was secretary of the conference Sunday-school work. He formerly was pastor of the First M. E. church, this city.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Hurlbut is survived by a son, C. C. Hurlbut, of Montclair, and two daughters, Mrs. H. B. Hurlbut, of Washington, D. C., and Mrs. George P. Dougherty, wife of the pastor of St. Paul's church, Newark.

Style and Reliability

The Venetian One Price System

In the Piazza San Marco in Venice, the American tourist will find a half-hundred shops that practice the one price system—the "one price" being the one they can get.

Here, too, in some "shops" we see the "Venetian One Price System" in vogue.

My clientie never barter—they purchase. Making offers on an article is forbidden, a price-tag to me is sacred. To "see saw" on the cost of a thing is commercially immoral and leads to a loss of self-respect on both sides.

Rothberg's "Things That Men Wear" are sold at the lowest prices quality considered—and I offer them with the strongest guarantee to be found anywhere—your money back if you want it.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

"At Bay," a new play of today by George Scarborough, will be presented at the Plainfield theatre, Thursday night, by the Messrs. Shubert. Featured in the leading roles will be Andrew Mack and Chrystal Herne. The story tells of the adventures of Captain "Larry" Holbrook, a military free lance, who comes to the aid of a srticken maiden in the city o Washington, outwits the district attorney and the head of the Secret Service and provides plenty of thrills throughout the four acts of the drama. The play was written by George Scarborough, and has been carefully staged. The Messrs. Shubert have surrounded Miss Herne and Mr. Mack with a notable cast amongst the players being Edwin Mordant, George Barnum, Mario Majeroni, George Drury Hart, Robert Lowe, Charles Sturges, S. E. Hines, Charles Mason, Harry S. Hadfield and John Herne. The four acts are laid in Washington.

William Hodge, whose quaint portrayal of the character of Daniel Voorhees Pike in "The Man From Home," carried that play through six seasons of success, will be seen at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, in a new play entitled "The Road To Happiness," a comedy drama sounding the cheerful note of optimism, in a story of homely qualities, peopled with characters such as are found in every small community and told with the simple directness and flashes of humorous philosophy that carry an irresistible appeal. The scene of the play is a village in Northern New York and its story involves the types of characters common to the small communities of the semi rural sections of the country. Placed in constrast in the development of the plot are the village banker, suave and calculating in his vain attempt to win the love of a village belle; the minister whose clerical work is based largely on and in favor of the chief contributors to his support; the town magnate who by virtue of his wealth and position seeks to order to his own measure the actions of his family and also of all his neighbors as well. These and other types make up the round of characters in which Jim Whitman, as played by Mr Hodge, becomes, by the strength of his character and by his cheerful willingness to give his wise aid and advice to those in trouble, a dominant figure. Whitman's introduction is in the role of a country boy who has only a cheerful belief in himself, an unyielding faith in the triumph of truth and an invalid mother. How Jim loves the daughter of the village magnate, how her father plots to force her into marriage with the banker; how a conspiracy is formed to rid the town of Jim by giving him a coat of tar and feathers and the primitive ride upon a rail and how Jim turns the tables upon his enemies and brings them in the end to recognize him in his true nature, are the elements of a story in which heart interest, humor, homely philosophy and stirring incidents are deftly mingled. Mr. Hodge's character work has been likened by many critics to that of the late Sol Smith Russel and in method and personality these actors have much in common. "The Road to Happiness" gives to Mr Hodge a vehicle in which he is at his best and The Shubert Company, under whose direction he appears, has provided every accessory in scenic equipment and a company of rare and unusual excellence.

POINCAIRE PRESIDENT.

Paris, Feb. 18.—Raimond Poincare today assumed the duties of President of the Republic, while former President Fallieres passed into private life. The transfer of office took place in the Elysee Palace this afternoon. The ceremony did not differ in any material feature from the program followed at previous inaugurations. But, aside from the formal ceremony, the popularity of Mr Poincare was evidenced by popular rejoicings throughout the country the demonstrations being more general and more enthusiastic than were ever before known to mark the advent of a new President in France. The entire country kept a holiday in honor of the occasion. The Government offices, the schools and many places of business remained closed for the day.

PRESS WAR ON SEED FRAUDS.

New Brunswick, Feb. 18.—The war against the "seed sharks," who dispense worthless and sterile seeds among the farmers of the State, is being prosecuted by the director of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station on the Rutgers farm, Dr. Jacob G. Lipman. Under the seed law of 1912, the station was supplied with a serviceable weapon in the power of examining seeds for any farmer at the State's expense. In order to make known this service Dr. Lipman has sent out circular letters through the agricultural districts asking for samples of their prospective seed purchases.

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

It is no easy matter to prove conclusively and in true scientific fashion that one city is better governed than another. Nevertheless, despite the difficulty of making comparisons, there is nothing more certain than the fact that whether the commission form of government is the ideal form or not, it is better than the forms of government which preceded it in the various cities.

Never in our political history has any phenomenon of this nature been examined with such minuteness or by so many investigators. In Galveston, Dallas and DesMoines it has been necessary to publish pamphlets as a nanswer to inquiries. The officials of commission governed cities have been bombarded with questions by mail to such a nextent that it has frequently been impossible for them to answer the correspondence. Delegation after delegation has visited these cities and has made the rounds of city offices, newspaper rooms, civic organizations and political clubs, as well as interviewed the business men to ascertain the truth. Many of these delegations were intent on finding flaws in it that would justify their taking home a hostile report. Magazine writers have made exhaustive inquiries, and such organizations as the National Municipal League have kept watch very carefully. While the Boston finance commission was planning the new Boston charter, President Eliot of Harvard made a tour of the commission governed cities, or "short ballot cities," as he prefers to call them, and returned to Boston so enthusiastic that he was able to win over the town to an acceptance of some of the fundamental features of the plan. Another elaborate inquiry was made by a committee of the State Legislature of Illinois, from which everybody expected a hostile report. The committee, hwever, reported strongly in favor of the plan, stating that everywhere they found that it had won the approval of the people who lived under it.

Unquestionably the plan is popular wherever tried and spreads with most rapidity among the nearby cities which have the best opportunity for intimate observation of its operation.

A FOOL BILL.

Every session of the Legislature is marked by the introduction of fool bills and the present session furnishes no exception. For example, there is the Leavitt measure, which provides for public censoring of moving picture films. At first glance, particularly to the man who is unacquainted with that great business in its many ramifications, it might appear that the bill is a good one, but so sweeping and radical are its provisions, which are revealed on a careful examination, that not only would its enactment work untold harm to the thousands of clean business men engaged in it, but it would also prevent the production of educational pictures, and thereby be most harmful to the public generally.

The bill in question aims to forbid the use of any film that "pictures any murder, suicide, robbery," etc., and what does that mean? It would prohibit the presentation by moving picture device the great dramas of Shakespeare and scenes even from the Holy Bible. The choicest classics would be barred and might not also pictures of the Balkan-Turkey and Mexican wars be forbidden? In effect, the public would thus be denied the educational and general instructive benefits of the "movies." Would the people tolerate this?

Then there is another provision of the bill, one that is a great injustice to the thousands who have invested their money in some department of the moving picture. It is the clause compelling the producers to submit to the board of censors in the municipality the films three days prior to the time they are to be exhibited. These films are not received until the morning of the day they are produced and it is not so much because of the uncalled for expense, but the impracticability of the thing that makes the exaction absurd, tyrannical and vicious. Imagine, if you will, for a moment, what it would mean for the gigantic film syndicates to carry out to the letter such a requirement, and imagine, if you will, the extraordinary powers to be vested in such a board of censors. Would it not open the door to favortism and even graft, not here in Plainfield, but in countless communities where crooked politicians control the municipal governments?

To refer again to the forbidden classes of pictures, would not the passage of the Leavitt bill logically lead, as the Newark News suggests, to the closing up of our art galleries, theatres and forever silence grand opera? Once let the bill become a law and the question would arise why single out the "movies," why not make the act a general one covering all sorts of reproductions where a murder, suicide, robbery or other crime figures as an incident? The Leavitt bill is a foolish one, a most pernicious one and should be defeated by an overwhelming vote.

Every man interested in the community's welfare is invited by Mayor Stewart to attend the public hearing to be held in his office on Thursday night, the purpose of which is to learn the public sentiment as the course to be pursued in the erection of the Federal Government building here. As we stated yesterday, Congressman Tuttle has been requested by the Treasury department to say whether it is desired that the erection of the building be begun at once with the $70,000 on hand for that purpose or whether action be deferred until an additional appropriation of $50,000 may be obtained by him co-operating with Senator Martine. This decision he wishes the people of Plainfield to make for themselves and accordingly Mayor Stewart has called the meeting in question.

New Jersey, one of whose choicest blessings has been its splendid roads, is in a sorry plight. State Commissioner Stevens lets it be known that there are 10,000 miles of highways in need of repairs and that it will cost $10,000 a mile to put them in proper condition again.

OVER TAFT'S VETO.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Feb. 18.—The Senate is debating the immigration bill on motion to pass it over the President's veto and will vote not later than 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The President Saw Him.

A dear old Irish woman in Chicago is the proud mother of a successful politician, who, no matter how busy he may be, never fails to write to the old lady regularly.

When he was in Washington last year he kept his mother fully advised as to everything that was going on. Finally there came a letter wherein he described his presentation to the president. The old lady read it with eagerness, hardly able to restrain herself until she had told some one what had happened. When at last she got through the letter she hastened to a neighbor's house and announced:

"I have just got a letter from Washington, and, do you know, the president has seen Richard."—Lippincott's.

INAUGURAL PLANS ALMOST READY

Arrangements Made For 20,000 Militia.

GOVERNORS TO BE IN PARADE

Many States to Send Uniformed National Guardsmen—Procession Will Be Monster Affair—How Officials Will Be Given Oath—Senators Elect to Be Sworn In Formally.

With several states arranging to send additional troops of militia to participate in the inaugural ceremonies, the inaugural committee recently estimated that fully 20,000 national guardsmen would be in line March 4 as a part of the escort to President Elect Wilson. Thirteen governors of states and the members of their staffs will ride in the parade, according to definite assurances received by the committee, while the executives of at least three commonwealths have the matter under advisement.

Pennsylvania and Georgia will send additional troops. In addition to the First and Second infantry of the Georgia militia that state will be represented by the Fifth infantry of Atlanta, numbering about 500 men and commanded by Colonel E. E. Pomeroy. The First and Second infantry will be composed of 400 men each, so that Georgia will have 1,300 men in line.

2,500 Militiamen From Pennsylvania.

The additional Pennsylvania entries indicate that that commonwealth will be represented in the parade by about 2,500 militiamen. Nothing definite has been heard from New Jersey, but it is expected that Governor Wilson's state will send all of its national guardsmen to Washington for the inaugural ceremonies. In this event New Jersey will have the largest representation of militiamen in the parade. Pennsylvania probably will send the second largest body of state troops, with Massachusetts ranking a close third. Virginia and Maryland will be represented by from 1,800 to 2,000 militiamen each.

The governors who have given definite promise that they will ride in the parade are those of Virginia, Nebraska, Pennsylvania, Illinois, New York, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Rhode Island, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, Missouri and Delaware. The state executives of New Mexico, Arkansas and Alabama may also be in Washington for the inauguration, according to advices received by the inaugural committee.

Planning Quarters For Soldiers.

Under the direction of Major Leonard Wood, U. S. A., chief of staff, who is chairman of the committee on military organizations, maps are now being prepared in the war department designating the places where the various companies of soldiers, sailors and citizens who are to participate in the parade will be assigned prior to the formation of the parade. The mammoth escort, after passing in review before the president, will proceed along Pennsylvania avenue to Washington circle, where it will disband. The various companies, sections and divisions of the parade will return to the central part of the city by streets running parallel to Pennsylvania avenue both north and south.

Scenes of the Inauguration.

Following are some of the inaugural ceremony plans:

The doors of the senate chamber will be thrown open at 11 o'clock on the morning of March 4 to those entitled to reserved seats on the floor of the senate.

The members of the supreme court of the United States will enter the senate chamber at 11:45 a. m. and, after being announced, will take their seats The members of the house of representatives will then follow and take their seats in the space reserved for them. Then will follow the members of the diplomatic corps.

President Taft and President Elect Wilson, escorted to the capitol by the committee on arrangements, will enter the senate wing at the bronze door on the east side. They will go directly to the president's room, where they will remain until the committee on arrangements waits upon them and escorts them to the senate chamber. They will occupy seats reserved for them in front of the vice president's desk. The committee on arrangements will occupy seats immediately on the left.

The vice president elect will be escorted to the room reserved for him by the committee on arrangements. He will then be escorted to the senate chamber, where the oath of office will be administered to him by the president pro tem. of the senate. After prayer by the chaplain the vice president will deliver his inaugural address in the senate chamber and will then administer the oath of office to the senators elect.

Following the organization of the senate will occur the principal ceremony, that of the formal induction of President Wilson into office.

SIX CHILDREN GRANTED THEIR WORKING PAPERS

Although the North Plainfield Board of Education, surprised at the increasing number of applicants for working papers, recently took steps to make it more difficult to secure these documents and now personally investigate each case, six pupils were granted permission to leave school and seek employment at a meeting of the Board last night. In each incident, however, it was evident that the pupil was intent upon working and sidetracked any effort on the part of his or her teachers to make the youth study, or else, evident need for the child's services towards providing for the wants of the family was shown.

Those granted the working papers were: Misses Ellen McKenna, Anna Johnson, Edna Pangborn and Charlotte Sutton; Leroy Taynor and Joseph Wary. Miss Catherine Hargrove, 12 years old, of Chatham street, whose mother asked that she be allowed to remain from school to care for the rest of the family, was refused on account of her age.

Harold Woolston was excused from school for an indefinite period because of eye trouble.

Dumas and Coppee.

The following interesting story is going the rounds of the European press:

"Francois Coppee's one act play, 'The Passerby,' in which Mme. Bernhardt appeared, attracted much attention in France. The elder Dumas was so enthusiastic over Coppee's little play that he embraced the author in the foyer of the theater in the presence of a large gathering and exclaimed:

"'Oh, you talented man; tell me your name!'

"But Coppee was on guard. He knew Dumas; he knew that he was leading a luxurious life and that he borrowed money right and left to maintain such a mode of life. And Coppee was known as a rather stingy young man.

"In answer to the flattering question of Dumas, Coppee also embraced him and said:

"'Oh, divine Dumas, I shall never dare to mention my insignificant name in your presence!'

"Dumas was flattered. He shook Coppee's hand warmly and exclaimed:

"'I wish that every young Frenchman were as modest as you are!'"

WHY CHRIST CAME INTO THIS WORLD

Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong Says the Mission of Jesus Was to Save Sinners.

"This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners, of whom I am chief," was the subject of a discourse by Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, at the First Baptist church, Sunday night. "Jesus Christ did not come into the world to supplement any other religion, and admits of no rival," said the preacher. "He did not come to bring culture, though culture always follows in the train of Christianity. He did not come to ameliorate the condition of a sinful world; He came to save sinners. If He came to save them, then without His salvation it follows that they must be lost.

"The man who tries to blind your eyes to that fact is no friend to your soul. 'He that believeth not is condemned,' say the Scriptures in unmistakable terms. Some people try to take a neutral position, thinking to be neither in the broad way or the narrow way, but the Bible teaches distinctly that there is no neutral ground. We are either saved or we are lost.

"Paul the peerless apostle, bondservant of Christ, who counted nothing too dear to be given up for his Lord, states that he is the chief of sinners. In some real sense, everyone of us is the chief of sinners. In some ways we have had more light and more help along certain lines and have turned from what we knew we should have done, and wilfully sinned against Him in the grossest manner. Until we realize the awfulness of our sins as they must appear in the holy eyes of Him who knew no sin, we shall not realize our need of Him and appreciate how wonderful is His salvation. Got hates sin, loathes it, abhors it with all the vehemence of His might and majesty and yet He offers us freely the means whereby we, sinful, rebellious mankind, may be delivered from it and from its consequences. Let us not commit that blackest of transgressions, and turn from the atonement He has made and think that our righteousness will be sufficient to save us, without the acceptance of Him who came into the world to save sinners, of whom we are the chiefest."

STRONGEST DREADNOUGHT.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—Bids for the construction of the new battleship Pennsylvania were opened at the Navy Department today. With her great displacement of 31,400 tons, the Pennsylvania will be the largest and most formidable battleship in any navy. Her total cost will be between $11,000,000 and $12,000,000. Her length will be in excess of 600 feet. The fact that she will carry twelve 14-inch guns and four submerged torpedo tubes supported by a torpedo defence battery of twenty-two 5-inch guns, together with a waterline armorplate of sixteen inches in thickness, made it necessary to design a ship exceptionally long in order that her beam shall not be too wide for safe passage through the Panama Canal.

CREDIT MEN PLANNING FOR ANNUAL BANQUET

The election of officers was postponed for one month at the February meeting of the Business Men's Credit Association, last night, owing to the absence of many members. Isaac Schwed was named chairman of the nominating committee to report at the March meeting. The question of giving a dollar dinner in March was discussed and A. E. Force, Sylvester Sharkey and Richard Parrott were named as a committee to make the arrangements. A special speaker along trade lines will be secured.

GEN. COLLINS NAMED AS GUARD COMMANDER

Trenton, Feb. 18.—Governor Wilson sent to the Senate last night the nomination of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, in command of the Second Brigade, as division commander, to succeed General Peter F. Wanser, resigned.

This makes General Collins the head of the National Guard of the State, except for the Governor himself, who under the Constitution is commander-in-chief.

MISSIONARY INSTITUTE OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT

Practically all the details for the Missionary Convention and Institute, which begins tomorrow night at the First Baptist church, have been arranged and the gathering promises in every way far to exceed original plans or expectations. A missionary tea is to be served Thursday afternoon from 4 until 5 o'clock, at which time representative women, costumed to represent different countries, will pour the beverage that "cheers but does not intoxicate." This social feature is of course entirely free to all who attend the convention, whether Baptist or not, and the women will be pleased to see their Plainfield friends of the various churches present at that time, and at all the sessions of the convention the public will be most heartily welcomed.

The services tomorrow night will be hardly less notable than those of Thursday or Friday. No special announcements have been given but the pastor has promised some unusual and delightful features and it is expected that several hundred people will be present. The services will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, the missionary exhibit being in place for display a half hour earlier. One of the interesting things in connection with the exhibit will be the explanations given, not only by the women of the church who have the exhibit in charge, but more extended talks given by visiting missionaries. Missionary workers of Plainfield and vicinity will do well to be present at the morning School of Methods at 10 o'clock Thursday and Friday.

PROCTOR'S GREAT BILL.

Proctors program of motion pictures and vaudeville for the first part of this week offers one of the finest afternoon's or evening's diversions that one could seek. As a leader, the Four Baldwins, novelty instrumentalists, furnish a rare exhibition of ragtime singing, together with an instrumental accompaniment. Emmett Welsh & Co., in a colored musical comedy act, are easily the leading laugh provokers on the program. The scenery in this act is typical to the title "In Southland" portraying the landscape of a Southern plantation. Setron, a clever singing imitationalist, sings a number of verses behind the scenes before appearing before the audience and is surprised to find that strains of so fine a quality are uttered by a mascpline person. He immediately assumes the role of a masculine vocalist upon appearing at the footlights. The Castilians, in De Luxe bronze posings, give wonderful imitations of such personages as Napoleon, Dante, Romeo, Juliet, Washington, and they also represent the Electric Ray in Paris, Roses in Germany, Heroes of 1808 and a scout.

PIANO CONTEST CONCLUDED.

Th practicing contest among the piano pupils of Mrs. Mabel Whitman's class, closed Saturday evening. Miss Hazel Gregory won the prize for the seniors and Miss Lillian Johnston the one for the juniors. Those receiving meritorious mention were: Senior class—Miss Ella Lotz, Henry Sweifel, Miss Eleanor Hayes, Miss Dorothy Adams; junior class—Miss Florence Mundy, Miss Evelyn Stine, Miss Alice Zergiebel, Miss Marie Hayes, Miss Dorothy Ross, Miss Edythe Marsh. The next contest will begin March 1.

TALKED ABOUT JUDSON.

The Judson Junior Templars at their meeting in the First Baptist church, yesterday afternoon, enjoyed an interesting talk by Oliver B. Leonard on the life of Adoniram Judson, the first missionary from America to heathen lands, after which he presented the young people with a fine picture of Mr. Judson. It was 101 years ago tomorrow that the missionary left Salem, Mass., for Calcutta, India, where for years he performed a noble work.

COUNCILMAN CENSURES BORO EDUCATION BOARD

Councilman Edmund Rushmore, of North Plainfield, appeared before the Borough Board of Education last night and protested against the constant dismissal of the pupils of the Somerset School due to the uncompleted condition of the heating and ventilating system now being installed by a local plumber. Because of the alleged lack of heat the faculty has been forced to dismiss the pupils on many occasions during the winter, thus causing them to lose valuable time.

Mr. Rushmore censured the Board and also the contractor and said the school was becoming demoralized, a condition which, he said, the pupils would not recover for over a year. Continuing he said, "I think it would be better to shut the school up altogether, rather than to have these dismissals continue."

MEREDITH AND MERTZ ADDRESS THE TEACHERS

A. B. Meredith, formerly of this city, assistant State Commissioner of Education, and Paul A. Mertz, of the North Plainfield High School faculty, were among the speakers at the meeting of the Association of Teachers of English of New Jersey, held at Dickinson High School, Jersey City, yesterday. Mr. Meredith presented statistics from the State records to show the status of the conditions of English teaching, and gave his personal impressions based on his observations.

Mr. Mertz, as chairman of a special committee, which had been appointed to investigate conditions, made a report, which was based on a question which was sent out to all teachers of English in the State, last fall. A number of teachers from this section of the State were present. These officers were elected for the year:

President, W. Patterson Atkinson, Jersey City; vice president, Miss Cornelia MacMullan, Montclair; secretary-treasurer, Arthur M. Wakefield, Hoboken; executive committee, Prof. Axson, Princeton University; Miss S. J. McNary, Trenton; Miss Alice M. Reeve, Camden, and Miss Margaret Coult, of Newark.

MONDAY AFTERNOON CLUB.

The current event topic discussed at the regular monthly meeting of the Monday Afternoon Club at the Hartridge Auditorium yesterday afternoon was "Science and Invention." Two excellent papers were read by Mrs. F. B. Herrick and Mrs. Orlando Holland. The former is particularly well acquainted with the subject at hand, having served for twenty-five years as editor of the scientific department of the Century Magazine. Mrs. Holland discussed "Romantic Scotland," as represented in Scott's novels and her work as contributing editor to the Atlantic Monthly made her an interesting authority on this question. An informal discussion on the recent Conference of Charities and Correction followed.

ONE THOUSAND DEPOSITORS.

The success attending the opening of the Christmas Savings Clubs at The Plainfield Trust Company, yesterday, far exceeded the most sanguine expectations of the company. More than one thousand individual accounts were opened, all to run for forty-two weeks. The number of accounts opened yesterday is almost double that of the opening day last year. Persons will be permitted to start an account up to March 1.

Joseph Angerbauer, of East Third street, who has been in Muhlenberg Hospital under treatment for some time, remains in about the same condition.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

VEAL PIES.

RICH and nourishing are veal pies. For these pastries ends of the meat, which are inexpensive, may be used so they are useful when economy is to be practiced.

Cold veal may be utilized when baked pie is to be made. Fresh veal is required to give richness to the potpie.

When cooking the potpie do not take off the lid until the dumplings or dough is done, for it may then be heavy.

A Delicious Baked Pie.

Baked Veal Pie.—Take a pound and a half of stewing veal, wipe with a wet cloth, cut the meat into small pieces, put into saucepan, cover with boiling water, add two tablespoonfuls of cut onion and boil slowly one and a quarter hours. Add one tablespoonful of salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of white pepper and two cupfuls of diced raw potatoes. Boil twenty minutes and add one teaspoonful of finely chopped parsley and one tablespoonful of flour mixed with a little cold water. Boil two minutes.

Place between crust made as follows: Two cupfuls of flour sifted into a bowl with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one teaspoonful of salt. Rub in two teaspoonfuls of shortening very lightly and add just enough cold water to hold together. Divide and roll out.

Line a pan with the dough and put in the veal and potatoes, leaving a little of the gravy to put over the top. Roll out the other half of the dough, put over the veal and brush the crust with the gravy. Put in a hot oven and bake twenty minutes.

A Nice Potpie.

Veal Potpie With Potatoes.—Wash a knuckle or brisket of veal and put into a kettle with boiling water more than will cover it. Take off the scum as it rises. When the meat is nearly tender add two teaspoonfuls of salt and half a teaspoonful of pepper and a tablespoonful of butter. When the meat is almost cooked add five potatoes which have been peeled and cut into halves.

For the batter take three cupfuls of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, a saltspoonful of salt and a cupful of sweet milk. Drop this batter, a spoonful at a time, into the kettle with the meat. Then do not take off the cover for half an hour or the batter will be flat. When done take out on a platter.

For the sauce wet two teaspoonfuls of flour with cold water. Rub until smooth and then stir into the gravy. Then put in another teaspoonful of butter and cook until it thickens. Pour over the potpie and serve.

ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS LEAGUE'S COLUMN

(Every Saturday).

Conducted by the Anti-Tuberculosis League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

EDITOR

MRS. E. F. FEICKERT.

The league is glad to be able to report that plans for moving their pavilion from its present location on the grounds of Muhlenberg Hospital to the new site recently purchased for it on Muhlenberg place are now completed, and that the actual moving will probably be done next week. The pavilion will then be entirely made over and it will hereafter be used as an Open Air School for anaemic children.

Schools of this sort are being very successfully operated in Montclair and Orange, where they were opened two years ago, and physicians say that the need for them is much greater here in Plainfield than it is in the places which already have them. The proposed school will not be for children actually infected with tuberculosis, but for those who are sickly and anaemic, who would certainly become victims to the disease if exposed to infection in any way.

A visiting nurse employed in Little Falls, N. Y., has been instrumental in effecting a vast change for the better in the living conditions of the poor in that town. A little over a year ago the women's club of that place became interested in the fight against tuberculosis. Its members were studying "Modern Artists" as their subject for the winter, and amusing themselves with bridge whist, but they wanted in addition to do something definite for human betterment. They went with zeal into the sale of red-cross seals. The first seal was auctioned off for $600 at a fashionable ball, and so much money was raised that the club was able to employ a visiting nurse to work among the operatives of the knitting mills which form the chief industry of Little Falls.

The nurse, Miss Schloss, had courage as well as intelligence. She found that the main cause of tuberculosis was the unsanitary state of the tenements in which the mill hands lived, and she made her report to the club accordingly. Many of the tenements were owned by members of the club, or their husbands, and the nurse's report aroused dismay in some and wrath in others. One woman whose income was derived from rotten tenements was so angry that she withdrew from the club, declaring that she did not believe the nurse was a competent judge of sanitary requirements. Men of the same stripe protested against having a "slip of a girl" come into the town and try to reform things. But most of the members of the club were sincerely distressed to learn of the bad conditions and an effort was made, with the backing of the Board of Health, to clean up the tenements.

About this time the new 54-hour law for women went into effect. The mills cut down the pay on account of the shortened hours, and as the pay before had been very low—hardly a living wage—great distress followed and the operatives went out on strike. Miss Schloss was in full sympathy with the strikers. She had found that the great causes of tuberculosis, in addition to improper housing, were the long and exhausting hours of work and the low pay, which made it impossible for the people to get nourishing food. She resigned her position and took charge of a soup kitchen for the strikers. The aid and encouragement she gave them were so great that every effort was made by the mill-owners to frighten her out of town. She was arrested on a charge of "inciting to riot" and kept in jail for eleven days. When released, instead of leaving town she went back to the kitchen and continued to make soup. If a twentieth part of what is told by Miss Schloss and other witnesses is true, the authorities of Little Fall set the law completely at defiance in their efforts to force the strikers back to work and to drive out of town anyone who tried to help and encourage them. Peaceful picketing is legal in New York, but the girls who attempted to carry it on were clubbed by the police, were arrested and rearrested and subjected to scandalous ill-usage. At last, however, the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration interfered and made an investigation, in which the shocking conditions which had prevailed were dragged into the light. The outcome was a victory for the strikers. Not only were the old wages restored, but an increase was given, varying from 5 to 15 per cent., and being the largest in the case of the workers who had formerly been the lowest paid.

The Sunday-school Teachers' Graded Union will meet at the Y. W. C. A. Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Miss Miller, of Somerville, will speak on the topic, "Rebekah." There will be a group conference from 4:15 to 4:30 o'clock.

PLAINFIELD ELKS TOOK THREE GAMES

High Scores Defeated the Cellar Champions in a Trio of Bowling Matches.

High scores won all three games for the Plainfield Elks in their three game series on the Rahway alleys last night, bowling marks of 873, 932 and 866 against their opponents' 868, 840 and 838 respectively. Double century tallies by Stout in the first game, Kiely in the second, and Kiely in the third were responsible to a large extent for the Queen City delegation's sweeping victory. But one Rahwayites knocked the pins over for a 200 mark and this fell to the lot of Smith in the initial game.

Although the Rahway antlered tribe is at present holding the cellar berth, it certainly showed to advantage last night, especially in the opening game, when the home pinners were defeated by five pins. This was the closest they came to victory all evening, however, while the visitors pinned consistently all through the series. Nash, who can generally be relied upon to approach the double century mark, had one of his off nights against Rahway and kept below 150 in two games. Besides the 200 men, Blatz rolled for 195 in the second game, Campbell for 190 in the second, and Manager McCartney for 187 in the middle contest.

After the series was completed the local "Hello Bills" were entertained by the vanquished pin smashers. Lots of eats and plenty of laughter made the evening a pleasant one for all, especially the winners, who proved themselves as good eaters as bowlers.

The scores:

"MAC" SAYS

Playing three games in two days and scoring thirty-one points in the bargain is no mean accomplishment for a basketball player and especially for a girl. Miss Marjorie Burtis, of the N. P. H. S. squad, did this, however, and did not seem to make much fuss over it at that. She counted for two field goals and six fouls against Perth Amboy, Saturday afternoon, seven fouls and one field goal Saturday night, play on the local Y. W. C. A. team against Trenton, and for five field goals and two fouls in the N. P. H. S.-Hope Chapel game last night.

Foul shooting is playing a prominent part in every court battle this year. Johnny Heron's eleven fouls won for Hope Chapel Saturday night; Stine's trio of free throws brought victory to the Ajax; Cushing, the Woodbridge guard, nearly defeated the Ajax single-handed with seven fouls; Miss Jessie Stewart's brace of penalty throws were just enough to win over the Hope maidens; Summit's center scored a quartet of one point marks, which were enough to the dot to win over Scotch Plains; and Rickett's four kept the Plains boys in the running.

There was probably more basketball scheduled for local teams last Saturday night than at any time during the history of the sport in this city. Every available court in the city was occupied either afternoon or evening and a number of local aggregations journeyed out of town.

Boys' rules are the latest fad to be adopted by the up-to-date women athletes. Because the Nonpareils would not yield to the Woodbridge captain and masculinize the contest for one half they were requested to retire from the floor, which they obligingly did. But that all happened in Woodbridge.

A big surprise was handed out to the Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls here Saturday night, when they were compelled to extend themselves to the limit in order to win out over the association maidens of this city. The Trentonians came here with the idea that they were going to walk away with the contest, but were forced to resort to strategy in order to come out on top.

A real exhibition of headwork was displayed by Miss Hayes, the lithe little forward on the visiting team Saturday night. With the score tied and but two minutes left to play, the Capitol City forward called for time out, claiming she had severely wrenched her wrist. At the end of the allotted two minutes, she reappeared with a bandage wrapped around her wrist, and the Plainfield guard took this as an omen to slow up. No sooner had Miss Hayes noticed that the guard was baffled, however, than she neatly dropped two goals from the field, winning the game.

Trenton will appear here again Friday night, February 28, as opponents to the Nonpareils in the second game for the State freminine title. The game will be played at Saengerbund Hall.

A triple exhibition of basketball will be staged on the Scotch Plains court next Saturday night, two boys games and one feminine contest being on the card planned by Manager Brodziak.

Some idea as to the strength of a neighboring High School basketball five can be obtained from Rahway High School's performance at Trenton, Saturday afternoon. The Rahwayites defeated the Capitol City aggregation by a count of 27 to 14 and Trenton was the team that trounced Plainfield to the tune of 26 to 13 on the same court four weeks ago. Trenton plays intercollegiate rules and Rahway's performance is all the more remarkable because of that fact.

Cranford High School, the hockey team that defeated P. H. S. by the close score of 3 to 1, trounced Battin High School to the tune of 8 to 1 yesterday. The local seven is not so bad after all.

SLOCUM AND FREDERICKSON WILL JOIN CHAMPION TEAM OF CAROLINA LEAGUE

One month from today Louis Slocum and Otto Frederickson, two local pitching phenoms, who were favorites on New Jersey diamonds last season, will be started on their southern flight to the minor league. These two youngsters have both been signed by Manager Charles L. Clancy, of the Winston-Salem team, champions of the Carolina Association last year. This league is a member of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues and if the Plainfield youngsters make good on their trial trip they will both stand an excellent chance of breaking into faster company before the next season draws to a close. Slocum's picture appears in Spalding's baseball guide for 1912 as a member of the Winston-Salem team, but he was only with that aggregation for three weeks during the latter part of the season when he won three out of the four games he twirled. The Carolina organization is a healthy five-year-old youngster and has one of the brightest and tightest little circuits in the United States. Slocum and Freddy will have an opportunity to get a line on some big ball clubs during their preliminary training as a number of the National and American Leaguers stop off at Winston-Salem in the spring training trips.

Besides the double city campaigners which the Plainfield players will join, the circuit includes Greensboro, Charlotte, Anderson, Spartanville and Greenville. This is the team that got Jim Thorpe, the wonderful Indian athlete into so much trouble, and Charles Clancy, who will be the Plainfielders' boss, was the person who started the publicity that soon led to the redskin's downfall in amateur ranks.

It is particularly appropriate that Slocum and Frederickson should start out in big league circles together as the two pitchers have been companions since they were able to talk and began playing bawl together in a much different manner than they do now. Freddy is a southpaw while Louis is a port sider and both have an assortment of benders and supply of steam that have stood many veterans on their heads trying to fathom the shoots. Both played semi-professional ball last season, Frederickson with Plainfield and Slocum with Bound Brook and every time a meeting of these strikeout phenoms was announced the ball park was packed with a howling mob of fans. Both have their followers in this city and both go to the minor organization with the best wishes of every Queen City fan for their future success.

When they leave Plainfield on St. Patrick's day (there is no significance in Clancy's summoning his green material to report on this day) the mound artists expect to be in the pink of condition and are now busily engaged in putting on the finishing touches. The two players will start in next week in the Plainfield High School gym, where they will coach the schoolboy pitchers until they leave for the south. Frederickson and Slocum have been seen frequently during the past two weeks getting in some outdoor training on Slocum's front lawn and both claim that they are in the finest kind of condition to pitch championship ball at the present time.

BARACAS EXPLODE BANKERS' TRUST

Churchmen Just Manage to Nose Out a Victory Over Plainfield Trust Co. Five.

The Plainfield Trust Company basketball team went to Dunellen last night and went down to defeat before the Baraca class five, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, to the tune of 24-20. A more exciting game, and one where the Dunellen boys used such head and team work has never been run off on the Dunellen court. Bergen Naylor, the husky churchmen's guard, scored five of the two point variety baskets while Jack Ricketts caged the same number for the bankers. Russell Runyon, who went in for the Baracas in the last half, in place of Barto, ran next highest in the scoring line with a total of six points or three field goals. Marsden, the tall Scotch Plains' Parish House team's centre; Doeringer, of the Trust Company, and Sam Strickland, the lanky forward of the church five, all tied by shooting two baskets apiece. Barto and Benson, of Dunellen, and Davis, of the Plainfield team, were allowed to score but one basket each. Although Snyder, of the Dunellen team, did not score any points, the game that he played in guarding his opponents deserved a great deal of credit. "Whitey" Lewis, who is claimed to be a Williams' College basketball star, must have been in poor shape because he could not locate the basket, although he tried time after time. He allowed two different men to cage six of the baskets that put the church men in the lead.

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY LEAGUE MANAGERS LOOKING FOR SUITABLE PLAYING PARKS

Now that the Central New Jersey Baseball League is again to become a reality, Bound Brook baseball fans are beginning to scout around for a place to stage their league tussels on. If Bound Brook obtains a franchise in the organization, the rest of the teams on the circuit will require that the team have a suitable home ground to play the league contests on. The team management is working hard to secure a lease on the field owned by the Pillar of Fire. The club played on these grounds last year but this season the Pillar of Fire intends to build on its property and it is doubtful if they can be induced to postpone the constructual operations.

Eddie Hoagland, secretary of the club, is not going to see the team start the season without a field and if a suitable ball park cannot be located here, it is likely he will make arrangements to take over the Riverside diamond between Bound Brook and New Brunswick and play Saturday ball there. Riverside Park several seasons ago was a very popular park and Mr. Hoagland thinks he could revive interest evidenced in times gone by.

Bob Bogardus does not seem to worry a great deal about his playing field. A little foresight on his part made it possible for Dunellen fans to have the old Madison avenue diamond once more to witness contests on. Dr. Thomas Platt, of Dunellen, started to build a house on the ball park but after some persuasion on the part of Bob and a feeling he has always entertained for the national pastime decided to so arrange his plans so that the structure would be erected off the third base line where it would not interfere with the playing.

Plainfield will probably play on Crescent Oval again this year, but Manager Ernest Dorflinger has done nothing definite regarding this however. Even if the famous old ball grounds on Randolph road could not be leased it is quite possible that the Queen City representatives would be accorded the use of Parker Field, one of the best diamonds in the State. The seating facilities at this place are not adequate but this difficulty could be easily overcome with little expense attached.

New Brunswick ball fans still rely on the old Amusement Park at that place and it is quite certain that this will be the camping place of the Brunswick nine Saturday afternoons while the Central New Jersey League games are in progress.

NONPAREILS WANTED BY COMPANY M. CADETS

A communication has been received by the manager of the Nonpareil girls' basketball team, of this city, written by Manager Lester Wittenbert, of the Company M cadet five, of Somerville, requesting a game with the local girls on the evening of February 22 as a holiday bill. Whether Wittenbert has found all the masculine quintets too strenuous or whether he is trying to captivate the State feminine title is hard to decide but any lover of basketball is forced to admire his managerial ability in picking a drawing card. Just imagine for an instant, a girls' team playing against a male quintet. Maybe Wittenbert has already pictured the performance to himself but the affair will not come off for some time according to the feminine basket chasers. The Nonpareils thought they had struck something extraordinary when they ran into a team playing under the name of the Woodbridge girls' basketball five advertising boys' rules and flatly refusing to accept the girls' code, but the Company M article is a far more far reaching enlightenment.

The date mentioned by Wittenbert is filled on the Nonpareil schedule so this fact makes it doubly sure of not materializing.

HOPE CHAPEL EASY FOR BOROUGHITES

Chapelites Get in Spasms of Snappy Playing And in the End Forced to Succumb.

Running up a tally card of thirty-three against their opponents' eleven, the North Plainfield High School girls' quintet came out an easy victor over the Hope Chapel maidens on the Saengerbund Hall court last night. One half of the game was contested with lines and during this period the Chapelites counted for only three points, two fouls by Miss Saffron and one by Miss Mae Duncan, while the borough maidens were totalling up thirteen scores, five field goals, one foul and one awarded point. For a girls' contest, in which the rules governing fouling are most binding, fouling was conspicuous because of its absence. To be sure there were a number of penalties awarded to both sides but not the consecutive string that generally stows up feminine contests of this nature.

During the initial period seven fouls were called on Hope Chapel and five on the boroughites. N. P. H. S. made good on two of these opportunities while Hope took advantage of three out of its five tries. In the second period, when lines were eliminated, the game assumed a far more interesting aspect. In the final half, Hope Chapel started off with a rush and before the N. P. H. S. players had gotten started had counted for two field goals. Their spurt was short lived, however, as the borough guards soon broke up the teamwork and started their scoring machine again.

TWENTY-SIX JUNIOR COMPETITORS JUMPED

King Leads the Pack in the Leaping Contest with Mark of 8 Feet 2 Inches.

For the third consecutive time King turned out a winner in the weekly athletic event on the Indian League schedule in the Y. M. C. A. boys' department. This time it was the standing broad jump that he proved himself master at, jumping a distance of eight feet two inches, or four inches ahead of his nearest competitor, Hunt. All of the league team in the organization were well represented in the event by tribes of leapers and the point score of several will be boosted considerably by the results of the contest. The other records chalked up are as follows:

Y. W. C. A. AT DUNELLEN.

Following their sterling performance against the Trenton Y. W. C. A. girls at the Y. M. C. A. Saturday night, the girls of the Plainfield Y. W. C. A. will go after the Dunellen feminine quintet's scalp at the First Presbyterian gymnasium at Dunellen Thursday night. Several changes that will materially strengthen the local five have been rumored and a good game is expected.

P. H. S. HOME GAME.

Plainfield High School basketball artists will entertain the representatives from the Princeton Preparatory School in the local gym tomorrow afternoon. The game is of special interest to Plainfielders because of the fact that Jack Zerega, a former P. H. S. athlete is playing forward on the prep school combination.

SENIORS AND "PROFS."

The game between the Plainfield High School teaching corps and the Interclass League representatives of the Senior class that was postponed from last Friday afternoon will be contested next Friday at 4 o'clock.

P. H. S. CLASS LEAGUE.

The Senior class five, of the Plainfield High School Interclass Boys' League trimmed the Juniors in a loose game on the High School court yesterday afternoon.

Automobile Bus Line Service Planned For Plainfield and Vicinity

In nearly every city of any consequence and particularly for connecting towns that either do not possess steam or trolley road service or for conditions where the steam and trolley roads do not provide adequate service, the most profitable substitute is the motor passenger transportation line. This need has not been met because conditions are not such that steam or trolley roads can be made to pay; either the cost of the construction is prohibitive or the traffic is seasonal or franchise restrictions prevent rail operations. For these conditions motor busses meet every requirement. Their chief advantages over trolley roads or steam roads are that they do not demand the enormous investment in tracks or overhead construction and they do not require a power house as each motor bus is an independent power unit and its stoppage does not tie up the entire service. The initial investment for a motor bus in comparison with a street car of very nearly equivalent capacity is from 50 to 100 per cent. less taking into consideration the unit of power plant equipment and cost of trackage and other equipment entirely auxiliary to the trolley car but upon which its operation is vitally dependent. The motor bus is a self-contained power plant giving a superior service in speed, comfort and convenience for a relatively small investment. Unlike the trolley road, the schedule can be worked out in a way to take in a very much larger territory to which the trolley road is not accessible due to the prohibitive expense of laying tracks in streets and sections where the traffic is so small as to make it impossible for the trolley line to pay a dividend on the capitalization required. The motor bus transportation line in addition can change its route at will and the service can be shifted also to sections where the enterprise can be made more profitable. If it does not pay in one section or city it can be removed to another city or community where the patronage is larger and more profitable.

Another great advantage of the automobile omnibus is that it can take on and discharge passengers at the curb instead of in the middle of the street. This feature is one which makes the motor bus lines in New York city so profitable as women in particular favor this service because it prevents soiling their delicate wearing apparel which often happens when the trolley car stops at a street to let on and discharge passengers and a rapidly moving automobile splashes the grime of the street over a wide area. Again, the automobile bus is so much quieter than the trolley car that residents in suburban communities particularly favor it after they have come to learn its advantages over the trolley car. As it carries its own power plant there is no marring of the scenery with wires and the most exclusive community which has dreaded the coming of the trolley cars finds the motor bus an institution which they have long wanted to make their getting to and from railway stations more convenient and easier.

The International Motor Company whose Saurer Works are located in Plainfield, is in a peculiarly favorable position for the production of motor busses in that the motor bus in Europe has been an established institution for more than ten years, more than 4,000 busses being in operation in London today. The five Saurer factories in Europe have developed the motor bus to a great extent for use in both city and country service and the experience which the Saurer factories have enjoyed is at the command of the American company.

To prove the entire practicability of motor bus service for operation on a definite basis the International Motor Company during the recent automobile show in New York operated for two weeks a 32 passenger Saurer bus of the type shown in the illustration. This motor bus was used between the Grand Central Palace and Madison Square Garden and adhered rigidly to a schedule as a proof that motor bus transportation is as dependable and reliable as trolley transportation—in fact more so under certain conditions as for instance in the congested sections of the city where trolley traffic is tied up frequently by blocking of the tracks or break down of one car. People who have not had the opportunity of studying the latest advances in motor bus transportation will be very much interested in the design appointments of this very modern type of the Saurer bus. The body is of a design very similar to the latest interurban trolley practice. The seats are crosswise and upholstered with green plush. On the left hand side this bus is provided with three transverse seats seating two people each, one longitudinal seat between the front transverse and the rear transverse seats. The inside finish of the bus is of mahogany panel trimmings inlaid with white holly. The ceiling of the bus is painted green to harmonize with the seats and cushions. It is heated by means of the exhaust of the engine pipes extended along the seats of the car fitted with valves so that the heat can be regulated as desired.

A company is in process of formation to operate several of these busses in Plainfield and it is expected that its efforts will be successful as a line of motor busses would be a great addition to the transportation facilities in certain sections of Plainfield and contiguous territory.

It is expected that the bus service between Plainfield and South Plainfield will be in operation by March 18 and it is probable that shortly afterwards a belt line service will be started here covering the commuters' zones particularly and connecting with the railroad stations.

Klaw and Erlanger will produce an adaptation of a foreign attraction called "The Circassian Beauty" in the near future.

It is again announced that Ethel Barrymore will appear in a dramatization of Anne Douglas Sedgwick's novel, "Tante."

James T. Powers contemplates vaudeville. His starring vehicle, "The Two Little Brides," may be revived in the Spring.

Clara Lipman has just completed, in collaboration with Samuel Shipman, a satirical camedy, entitled "The Children of Today."

Max Hoffman, the husband of Gertrude Hoffman, has composed the score of a comic opera, which will be produced in England this Spring.

Winthrop Ames has disposed of his rights to "Romance" to the Shuberts, who will make an early production of it. The play is by Edward Sheldon.

Holbrook Blinn is working on plans to revive "The Boss." He says he hopes some day to get a play with Napoleon as the central character.

"The Son and Heir," by Gladys Unger, has recently been successfully produced in London and will also be seen in this country before long.

John Drew is to appear this season in a revival of "Much Ado About Nothing." He originally acted the role of Benedick with Ada Rehan as Beatrice.

A. H. Woods returned from Europe the other day with nearly a dozen new plays, which he expects to produce within the next six months. The list includes a French farce, "Taxi 4-11-44," "The Eleventh Muse," by Jean Gilbert; "The Girl from the Provinces," by Pierre Vebber; "The Ladies' Tailor" and "The Wives of Harold," two comedies, and "His Brother," a French drama in which Dustin Farnum will star.

DIPHTHERIA CLOSES SCHOOLS.

Belmar, Feb. 18.—West Belmar schools were closed yesterday because of a fear of a diphtheria epidemic following the development of the disease outside of the family where it originated recently, and two deaths. Christina Polhemus, fourteen years old, daughter of Ellis Polhemus, died Sunday night. This is the second death in this family, as Mrs. Polhemus died last week. Mr. Polhemus and his two sons, who are ill with the disease, are improving. Four cases of the disease outside of this family have been reported, and strict quarantine and surveillance have been instituted.

CO. K BASKETBALL.

Two teams of national guard members will clash on the basketball court of the Elizabeth armory Thursday night. Company K, of this city, is carded to furnish the attraction with the Company I aggregation, of Elizabeth, as their opponents.

INTERSCHOLASTIC MATCH.

The second game of the Interscholastic Girls' Basketball League is due to be decided on the Plainfield High School court next Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. In the first struggle the boroughites were victorious after a close race but the local girls are confident of reversing matters in the next set-to.

PARK CLUB BOWLING.

A bowling match is scheduled to be decided on the Park Club alleys tomorrow night between teams number one and three. This is the last game in the ten pin tournaments and the winner of the series will be decided tomorrow night. The teams playing are captained by D. W. Mulford and C. M. Eoff respectively.

SUGARS AND SPICES

CLERGYMAN'S TOPIC

Rev. John C. Whiting Interprets One as Love and the Other as Service.

Rev. John C. Whiting, formerly of Plainfield, now pastor of the Claremont Park Congregational church, New York, was the writer of the sermon which appeared in the New York Herald of Sunday, the subject being "Sugar and Spices." The discourse follows:

"The people whose names are followed by the initials of academic titles are not the only people bearing degrees. It would not be inappropriate to confer upon certain persons the degree of M. B.—Make Believe—so pretentious are they. For others, M. E. would be suitable—Master of Epithet—so sharp and stinging are the words their tongues flash forth. I once knew a boy who was studying for the degree of B. B.—Big Brag, and there are many who might unix after their names the letters S. J. D.—Doctor of Sunshine and Joy. Those to whom this message comes are offered a new degree. How would you like to be able to sign your name "John Smith, D. S. S."—Dispenser of Sugar and Spice?

"The secret is in this:—To learn how to flavor life. Truth is, one great lack in our lives in flavoring. Was yesterday insipid and dull? Tomorrow may be filled with fragrance! Was last year bitter and sour? Let this year be sweet and delicious! An old hymn begins 'How tedious and tasteless the hours,' and it describes a common experience. We need sugar and spice to give relish to life, to furnish keen, healthy joy in living. Here is a sorry kitchen, where the work is piled up until one enters it only with a sigh. But something has put a song in the housewife's heart and transformed the place into the music room of a palace. Here is a child of poverty, with a rag doll which other children might throw into the gutter. But something makes dolly's eyes seem to shine and puts curl into her imaginary hair, and the little child is transported with delight. So Love puts sweetness into every cup of life, though it hold the very dregs of bitterness, and the Spirit of Service with its pungent spice flavors all life's elements. This spirit is the very flavor of life, for it takes common things and beautifies them; dreary conditions and enlivens them; colorless circumstances and fills them with rainbow hues; tasteless, flat experiences and touches them with the flavor of the divine.

Consider the great Master of Life—out of what poor materials He drew the qualities which are the inspiration for all men! Humble birth meagre education, small means, hateful enemies, often cowardly friends heavy toil, homeless wanderings disappointed hopes, brief life, unjust, violent death, the shame of the cross. Yet what a life He produced! It lacked not for flavor, nor for worth, nor for grandeur. It was sufficient to give zest and meaning and color and significance to every life it touches down through the ages. Shall we succumb to dreary conditions or difficulties? Rather let us learn to sweeten and spice our lives by His own method—love and service—that our character may in some measure resemble His, and something of his joy be found in us.

"So the sweetness of life, which is love—to God and man—and the spice of life, which is service—to God and man—are available for us all. Is life dull and dreary? Then follow Emerson's advice:—'O discontented man! What is it you want? Pay the price and take it!'"

HOTEL WOMAN DEAD.

Ocean Grove, Feb. 18.—Miss Maria Crosset, a pioneer hotel woman, is dead here, after a long illness. For more than a quarter of a century she owned and until last season conducted the Main Avenue House, near the beach, on the principal thoroughfare in Ocean Grove, Main avenue. Miss Crosset was born in the North of Ireland, in the village of Magherafelt, County Derry. She came to this country in early life, and for a long time lived in New York city. Shortly after Ocean Grove was founded and became known as a religious centre, Miss Crosset and a sister moved here and established the Main Avenue House. The sister died about ten years ago. Owing to failing health, Miss Crosset last year gave up the active management of her hotel, leasing it to Mrs. B. M. Harrison, of East Orange. Funeral services will be held tonight, and it is expected that the Rev. Dr. Ross MacClements, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Asbury Park, will have charge. Dr. MacClements was a neighbor of the Crosset family in the old country.

EXCISE VIOLATIONS WARNED.

Perth Amboy, Feb. 18.—D. W. Boehm, a member of the reform excise board, which took office January 1, spent the time Sunday between church services, visiting saloons suspected of selling on Sunday. In several places he found unmistakable grounds of business. In some cases he called the proprietor to the door and warned him and in other cases he notified the police. The Board has announced that evidence of Sunday violations not sufficient to secure convictions in court will be used as a reason for refusing license renewals.

This OLIVER A. OLSON SALE

Is the FURNITURE SENSATION of the Year

Of course, the event is extraordinary in many ways.

It is most unusual for an "art furniture shop" to carry as large a stock as Mr. Olson carried. It is rare for a man who has such skill in furniture buying to find a business change of so much larger scope to tempt him to sacrifice such a fine large stock. It is most exceptional for such a stock to be sold ENTIRE before the dealer had made any attempt to close it out himself.

These are the reasons why this offering is so LARGE, so COMPLETE, so EXQUISITELY SELECTED, and in such attractive VARIETY.

And these reasons explain why

Our Furniture Floors Were Stampeded Yesterday by the Most Enthusiastic Throngs of Artistic Home-Lovers that Ever Honored an Under-Price Furniture Occasion

BORO'S SCHOOLS DEMORALIZED?

Councilman Rushmore Says They Are and Adds They Might as Well be Closed.

HE SCORES THE BOARD

Trouble Due to Placing Heating Apparatus in Building and Not Being Able to Heat the Rooms—Classes Dismissed.

The alleged unsatisfactory condition of the heating and ventilating system being installed in the Somerset School building, North Plainfield, by a local contractor who agreed to have the job completed and in good working order by Nov. 10, 1912, is causing indignation on the part of some borough citizens. Because of insufficient warmth in the classrooms the faculty has been forced to dismiss the pupils on numerous occasions and in this way the children are losing much valuable time, it is asserted.

The contractor and members of of the Board of Education are being censured as the responsible parties and their critics say the contractor has had ample time to complete the work and the board is scored for its seeming neglect in not having the job started in the spring or summer, instead of late in the fall, in which case, the present trouble would have been averted.

According to statements, however, of several parties concerned, the blame cannot justly be placed on either the Board of Education or the contractor, but is due to the unusual class of work being installed and the extraordinary rush of orders for plumbing material this fall which has handicapped the material houses in filling them with the usual expedency. The contractor's contention is that if his orders for the special material called for in the specifications had been promptly filled he would have had the work completed on time. At the Board of Education meeting last night, Eugene A. Edgar said he knew for a positive fact that the American Radiator Company had issued orders recently that no more orders for radiators could be accepted until the present ones had been filled. This, Mr. Edgar said, illustrates the conditions the contractor has to contend with.

The schedule of the Somerset School has been decidedly upset and the pupils have often been sent home because of the lack of heat in the classrooms. This had been partly eliminated by an altered schedule. The primary grades if dismissed in the morning are not asked to return, thereby losing the entire day. The grammar grades are holding class from 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoons, using the High School building, which is sufficiently heated to allow sessions in the coldest weather. And the High School pupils are taught from 8 to 12:30 o'clock, whereas the regular schedule divided their sessions from 8 to 12:30 o'clock and the afternoon session from 1:45 to 2:30 o'clock. It can thus be seen that the higher grade pupils lose practically a half day's study.

Edmund Rushmore, of 14 Sycamore avenue, has taken the initiative in official protest. He appeared before the Board of Education last night and among other things said the whole school was becoming demoralized, a condition from which he said the pupils would not fully recover for over a year.

"I think it would be just as well to shut the whole school up," he continued, "as to have this continual dismissal of the pupils take place."

When asked by Mr. Rushmore why the three-day clause in the contract which enabled the Board of Education to take the work from the contractor's control when he did not complete the work in the time specified, had not been exercised, Dr. Cooley said that this would have delayed the installation still further and on advice of counsel, the board decided to allow the contractor to continue with the work.

There is a rumor that an indignation meeting is being planned for the near future, at which all concerned will be asked to publicly explain the situation as it concerns them.

MISS ARLEEN BROWN NOW MRS. HELLYER

Ceremony Performed at the Couple's New Home by Rev. G. R. Maguire.

Miss Arleen M. Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Warren Brown, of East Sixth street, and Charles B. Hellyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Americus L. Hellyer, of East Seventh street, were married at 7 o'clock last night, in their new home at 442 East Seventh street, which was built by the bridegroom. Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, of which the bride and bridegroom are both members, officiated. There were about eighty guests.

The bride was gowned in white charmeuse, with pearl and lace trimmings. She carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas and wore a veil. The maid-of-honor, Miss Viola Hellyer, sister of the bridegroom, wore a gown of blue charmeuse with peal and lace trimmings and carried a bouquet of pink rosebuds. The best man was Charles Bilyeu, of New York.

The Wedding March by Mendelssohn was played by Mrs. Russell R. Dorr, at the piano, and Harold Welch, cousin of the bride, on the violin. Afterward several selections, classical and popular, were given while the newly-wedded couple was receiving congratulations. During the reception supper was served and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Hellyer went to New York, from which place they left this morning for a two weeks' trip to Bermuda.

The couple was taken to the Fanwood station by Mr. Maguire in his automobile. While the latter was returning he met a number of the guests who were trying to find the bride and bridegroom. He informed the guests that he left Mr. and Mrs. Hellyer at the Fanwood station. They took a train from Netherwood station and as they got off at Fanwood, the newly-weds boarded the train and made their escape.

The bride received a large number of gifts, including a piano from her parents, as well as many other useful articles. The bride gave the maid-of-honor a pearl necklace and the bridegroom gave the best man a gold scarf pin.

The home was attractively decorated by Stanley, the florist, palms greens and flowers being used throughout the rooms. The color scheme was pink and green and this was carried out effectively in the living room, where the ceremony was performed, and in the dining-room.

Both the bride and bridegroom have been residents of this city for a number of years and both are active workers at the Park Avenue Baptist church. Mr. Hellyer holds a responsible position with the Atlas Assurance Company, of New York, where he has been employed since a boy.

RAN IN FRONT OF CAR CHILD SLIGHTLY HURT

While crossing Watchung avenue near East Third street this morning, Esther Richards, seven years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Richards, of 243 East Third street, was struck by an automobile owned by Lester B. Harris, of West Front street, and driven by his chauffeur, Jesse James Mitchell, colored, of Plainfield avenue. The child was hit by the mud-guard of the skidding machine, as Mitchell, in an attempt to avoid the accident, clamped down the brakes. Although much frightened she was not badly hurt, her only injury apparently being a bruise on the back of her head.

According to Mitchell, who was arrested by Patrolman Wicht on a technical charge of reckless driving, his car was moving slowly down Watchung avenue en route to Overland's garage, and when as he neared the railroad bridge, Esther stepped from the sidewalk and ran directly in the path of the auto. He stopped his machine within five feet of the accident and ran after the child who ran crying to the sidewalk. After learning the victim's address he placed her in the machine and took her home. Patrolman Wicht summoned a doctor, who said the child was only slightly hurt.

SHALL THE CITY PAY?

The Chamber of Commerce will hold a special meeting Thursday night, when there will be a discussion of the question, "Resolved, That the City of Plainfield shall pay for the contemplated advertising campaign." It is to be hoped that there will be a full attendance at the meeting, and special efforts are being made to get every member out. This advertising plan has been suggested by the Chamber of Commerce as a means of setting forth the advantages of Plainfield. Now it has been proposed that the city pay for this advertising.

ELECTRIC LAMPS THEY INVESTIGATE

Party of Local Men View Various Types in Use in New York City.

THEIR TRIP PROFITABLE

P. S. C. as Hosts and Plainfielders Are Pleased With Results—To View Lamps in Various New Jersey Cities.

Councilmen Patrick J. Reville, A. D. Edgar and Francis J. Blatz, representing the Councilmanic lighting committee; Morris C. Van Arsdale, of the Chamber of Commerce; Charles H. Hand, W. R. Causbrook, local manager for the electric light department of the Public Service Corporation, and H. P. Chandler, of Elizabeth, the division manager for the P. S. C., made a tour of inspection of New York last night, for the purpose of studying street lighting conditions in a large city with a view to getting an approved system for Plainfield.

After reaching New York and enjoying a light lunch, the party made a tour of the city in taxicabs. The principal points visited included Central Park, Riverside Drive, Fourth and Fifth avenue, as well as Broadway. Mr. Chandler, who was in charge of the "sight-seeing" trip, pointed out the various lighting systems used in New York, together with the advantages and disadvantages of each in relation to their adoption for Plainfield. The trip was chiefly confined to the uptown section of New York. The party saw the flaming arc used about Central Park, the carbon arc used on Riverside Drive and the Tungsten lamp and the boulevard globe with a 60-watt Tungsten. The carbon arc on Riverside Drive has a 2,000 candle power lamp and impressed the party favorably, in fact the Tungsten lamp appealed strongly as the one best suited for Plainfield.

The system used at Columbus Circle was considered ideal, and the Plainfielders expressed themselves in favor of a similar system for this city when it gets a public park. Having seen about all the systems of lighting in a big city, the committee has decided to visit smaller places, such as Perth Amboy, one of the best lighted places in the State; New Brunswick and possibly Trenton, after which it will be in a position to make a recommendation to the Common Council.

The Plainfielders were much pleased with their trip last night and appreciated the courtesy of the officials of the Public Service Corporation.

CIVIC ASSN. OPPOSES ERECTING P. O. BLDG. NOW

Thirty-five members attended the regular monthly meeting of the Plainfield Property Owners' Protective and Civic Association at the Exempt Firemen's Hall last night, and it was decided to select five representatives to attend the hearing tomorrow night at the Mayor's office and to request that the building of the new postoffice be deferred until such time as the government sees fit to increase the appropriation. The sentiment expressed by the property-owners last night seemed to be adverse to building a $70,000 structure. J. D. Loizeaux, who presided, appointed Donald McInnis, Herrman Schwed, B. Frank Coriell, Jacob Fass and John Vanderhoef as the committee.

The appointment of the various committees to take charge of the association's work was scheduled for last night, but it was voted to defer this routine work until the next meeting when it is hoped to have a larger number present.

A., will talk on the life of George Washington in words that will be understood by his juvenile listeners and after the talk the boys will be treated to a reel of moving pictures, probably on some historical subject. The entertainment will be free to all Plainfield boys whether or not they are members of the Y. M. C. A., and all are invited.

2 COLORED WOMEN THEIR EASY MARKS

It's the Old, Old Story of the Flim-flam and the Victims Are Out of Pocket.

Mrs. Mary Whitely, of South Second street, and Mrs. Sarah Jones, of West Fourth street, both colored, today complained to Police Chief P. S. Kiely that they were victims of a flim-flam game operated by two men, who gave their names as William Smith and James Brown.

According to the women's stories, Mrs. Whitely lost $10 and a diamond ring valued at $55, while Mrs. Jones lost $20. They explained that Smith and Brown called on them and offered to tell their fortune, adding that they could tell them everything that would happen for years to come.

The women at once became interested and expressed a wish to have the future unfolded to them. They were then instructed to place $20 in cash in their shoes and leave it there for several days. At the end of that time the "fortune-tellers" said they would return and answer any and all questions and give valuable information. Mrs. Whitely only had $10 but following her explanation that she had two diamond rings, was told that the rings would bring the same result. The strangers reserved the right to place the money and rings in the two pairs of shoes. After their departure an investigation disclosed nothing but paper, while the money and rings had disappeared.

MADERO A PRISONER; WILL BE BANISHED

Mexico's Deposed President's Estate Confiscated and His Brother Executed.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Mexico City, Feb. 19.—Ex-President Francisco I. Madero, ex-Vice President Suarez and other prisoners that had been in the National Palace were transferred today to the Arsenal after General Felix Diaz had declared that matters would not be safe until Madero and others were placed under lock and key. Gen. Huerta agreed to have the transfer made to avoid friction.

Madero, the deposed president, is to be exiled from Mexico by General Huerta, the new military dictator, and all his property in this city confiscated by the new government. This is the present plan of General Huerta and General Blanquet, who has been made commander-in-chief of the Mexican army.

General Huerta has telegraphed to all the State govornors and to the commanders at the various military zones giving official notification of the downfall of Madero and the changed government. Throughout the night thugs went through the streets and committed robberies right and left. Felix Diaz visited the U. S. Embassy today.

Vera Cruz, Feb. 19.—A despatch from Mexico City this afternoon said that Gustavo Madero, brother of former President Madero, has been executed.

G. P. MELLICK PRESIDENT OF PLAYGROUND COMMISSION

R. A. Claybrook and J. Hervey Doane, appointed by Mayor Stewart, attended a meeting of the Playground Commission yesterday afternoon when the first session of the year was held in the Mayor's office. These two new members will serve as a special committee to supervise the activities at Parker Field. H. W. Marshall and George L. Babcock will keep in touch with the work in the school playgrounds as they did last year.

These officers were re-elected: President, George P. Mellick; treasurer, Harry W. Marshall, and secretary, Herbert E. Parker.

COURT'S RULE.

Elizabeth, Feb. 19.—Judge Connolly in the Union County Court yesterday announced that hereafter recess would be taken from 12:30 to 1:30 o'clock, instead of from 1 to 2 o'clock, as heretofore. It was necessary on several occasions to refer to the stenographic notes taken of the testimony, and Judge Connolly suggested to Court Stenographer Crowley that he keep an index of each case and make marginal notes of the testimony of each witness so that it could be referred to more easily.

SESAME CLUB MEETING.

A meeting of the Sesame Club will be held tomorrow morning at the home of Mrs. Julius E. Erickson, of 826 Hillside avenue.

EXPLAINED GOV'T BY COMMISSION

H. S. Gilbertson Outlines Features and Benefits of Modern Municipal Rule.

AT DEMOCRATIC CLUB

Organization Renominates J. O. Stevens President and May Make Mayor Stewart One of Executive Committee.

Many of the advantages of the commission form of government were presented by H. S. Gilbertson, representing the Short Ballot League, of New York, at the meeting of the Plainfield Democratic Club last night. While these advantages seemed to more than offset the disadvantages, Mr. Gilbertson explained that there are several instances where this form of municipal government is said to have not been satisfactory. Among such places named by the speaker were Topeka, Kansas, and Paterson, while in Trenton there were to be found people who believe the system is not a success.

Mr. Gilbertson explained that one important feature of the system is the concentration of administrative power in a body of five men, which is usually found more responsive to the wishes of the people. He further explained how the commissioners are elected, adding that from among the five one is chosen to be Mayor. The commission has full charge of the city government and transact all city business. The commissioners can bond the city up to within 10 per cent. of its ratables. Beyond that the question must be submitted to the people for a vote.

The speaker said that one very important thing is that those interested in the system first be assured that they understand its provisions and be satisfied that there is a need for its adoption. Mr. Gilbertson said that practically in every instance where the commission form had been adopted, it was for the purpose of supplanting government that had permitted various forms of political corruption and where the governing body was not responsive to the will of the people. He cited what he considered one good feature of the system and that is that the municipal election is held separate and apart from all other elections so that local issues are not fused where other candidates are running for office on county, State or National tickets.

Following the talk there was an informal discussion of the proposition among the thirty or forty persons present. J. O. Stevens, president of the club, was in the chair and during a business session, officers were nominated to be elected at the next meeting. These were named:

President, J. O. Stevens; secretary, George Tyler Smith; treasurer, Fred Endress; vice president, First ward, J. P. Owens, J. C. Schinkel; Second ward, Howard Lapsley; Third ward, LeRoy J. Ellis; Fourth ward, Frank Cullen and Charles P. Senger. There is also an executive committee of six to be chosen from the following list of nine nominated: Calvin E. Brodhead, J. C. Connolly, Daniel J. Courain, R. B. Corey, Peter Flynn, E. C. Pierson, R. A. Claybrook, Patrick J. Reville and Mayor Percy H. Stewart.

COMPANY K TO BE IN INAUGURATION PARADE

Capt. Charles A. Peterson, of Company K, has received orders from Regimental Adjutant Pedricks ordering him to report the number of men able to take in Washington for the Inauguration parade March 4, so that in case 65 men and 3 officers cannot be expected to attend the parade that men can be transferred to the company from other regiments. The trip will take three days, March 3, 4 and 5. The local company will hold several extra drills so that the men will be in first class shape for the parade.

As the plans of the Inauguration parade committee are at present, New Jersey will have the largest number of militia men in the line. Pennsylvania will be second with about 2,500 men in line and Massachusetts will run a close third. Virginia and Maryland each will be represented with from 1,800 to 2,000 men.

AUCTIONEER'S LEASE.

Robert Murray, the auctioneer, has signed a five year lease on the building at Front and Grove street, which he now occupies. The lease comprises the two stores, including the one he now occupies and the one occupied by Worth & Marsh and the two flats over C. M. Nagle's drug store and all the storage rooms on the floors above at one time used by the late Tunis J. Carey as auction rooms, which he will occupy as an office and salesroom. These were formerly occupied by the Plainfield Storage Company.

REJECT PLANS FOR NEW SCHOOL BLDG.

Dunellen Voters Turn Down Two Propositions Submitted by Board.

The proposition to appropriate $40,000 for a proposed school building for Dunellen was defeated at the special school election held in the assembly rooms of the Whittier School, in that borough, last night by a large majority. Two separate ballots were used, one for the school building and ground combined, $5,000 for the land and $35,000 for the building and equipment, and the other ballot was for the ground alone to be purchased for $5,000. There were 186 votes cast. Forty-eight favored the appropriation of $40,000, eight were for the land only; four were against the land proposition, and 125 against both the land and school. One vote was cast out as being wrongly marked. The polls remained open for one hour.

Before the election took place several local as well as out of town men gave short talks as to the need of new schools in the borough. Questions were asked as to what the town would do if the proposition for the building should fail. The answer was that the officials would look around town, locate in a store or other building, knock out the partitions and install school furniture. The amount needed to remodel the Lincoln School would be $10,000 and it was claimed the building when new cost only $6,000.

J. Brognard Betts, assistant State School Commissioner, said that he realized how badly the school was needed by the borough and also knew the fix the town was in with the sewer proposition coming to a head almost any time, but as the Lincoln School could not be remodelled the voters should take the long view of things and vote for the proposition. "It is not yourselves who will have to stand all the expenses of the building, although the first heavy expense will have to be born by the present generation, the greatest amount will have to be paid by the generation coming, therefore I say build a new school. It will make the property of the town more valuable and you will be taking care of your children in such a way that they will always thank you for it."

J. Y. Wilson, supported Mr. Betts, but he said that the matter of securing the best interest on money loaned to the borough should not be left in the hands of the Board of Education, but should be submitted to the people of the town before any steps were taken to obtain the loan.

Miss Mabel Bennett was the only woman to cast a ballot last night.

OVER THE BACK FENCE, "VOTES FOR WOMEN" ROW

Mrs. Mary Rainey, of 510 West Second street, was arraigned before Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct preferred by Mrs. Elizabeth McElarney, a neighbor. The trouble all arose over an argument the women had yesterday in discussing the "votes for women" movement. The debate resolved itself into a case of Mrs. Rainey calling her neighbor vile names, it is said, and Mrs. McElearney's pride would not permit her to allow the incident to pass without "getting even."

After Judge DeMeza heard both sides of the case, he advised them to go home and be good suffragettes and not call anyone bad names. Upon their promise to follow his advice sentence was suspended.

WOMEN PLEAD FOR THE BALLOT

The Equal Suffrage Cause Prompts the Second Battle of Trenton.

WOMEN STORM CAPITOL

Rapid Fire Talks by Dr. Anna Shaw, George M. La Monte and Other Crusaders for Equal Rights—Mrs. Everett Colby Leads the Hosts.

(By Miss Vermilye.)

The early morning crowd at the Plainfield station yesterday was considerably augmented by the party of people going to join the special train at Elizabeth, en route for the State Capitol, for the hearing on the Equal Suffrage bill. They were a merry and enthusiastic lot, and if there was a very small sprinkling of "Antis" or "unconvinced suffragists" amongst them, one, at least, of these returned an ardent and enthusiastic adherent to the cause and all of them were "interested."

Mrs. E. F. Feickert, as president of the New Jersey League for Equal Suffrage, was of course prominent among the number as were also Mr. and Mrs. Champlain Riley, Mrs. Riley being president of the local league; Mrs. Frank de L. Hyde, Mrs. Allan Cowperthwaite, Mrs. Arthur Jones, Mrs. Louis K. Hyde, Miss Helen Hyde, Miss Andrey Eaton, Mrs. George Megrew, Mrs. F. W. Wallace, Mrs. F. S. Power, Mrs. J. P. Stevens, Mrs. Edmund J. Lee, Miss A. J. Vermilye, Mrs. Herman Schwed, Mrs. Stephen Haff, Mrs. M. F. Elderton, Mrs. E. R. Ackerman, Mrs. Clara Kranz, Mrs. D. S. Dana, Mrs. Russell Dorr, Mrs. W. A. Parker, Mrs. F. W. MUSIC A FEATURE OF THE CONVENTION

Congregational Singing Also An Attraction of Three Days' Program.

The opening session of the Missionary convention which begin tonight at the First Baptist church at 8 o'clock sharp, promises to be equal in interest to any of the sessions that will succeed it. Several of the speakers will be in town this afternoon and participate in the evening service, which will be held in the main auditorium of the church. A reading from Wicliff's famous translation of the Twenty-third Psalm, made more than six hundred years ago, will be given by the pastor with the pronunciation of English then in vogue. Together with the unique reading will be that of a beautiful paraphrase of the same Psalm current among the Kiowa Indians. Miss Florence Wohlfert, the accomplished violinist, will also be present, playing tonight and Friday afternoon and evening.

The music of the convention will be stirring from commencement to conclusion. Howard Case, organist of the church, will preside at the instrument Thursday and Friday evenings, while Miss Jessie Utter, organist of the Seventh Day Baptist church, will play Thursday and Friday afternoons. Miss Violet Jewell, of White Plains, New York, has been secured for both days. This will insure stirring congregational singing. Other musical numbers also will be given.

The Missionary Exhibit, which is now in place and will be open for display this evening, both before and after the service, is one of the most remarkable collections of missionary material, both in literature and curios, ever brought together in the State or elsewhere. The public generally is invited

THE FORUM.

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

Through your columns I wish to call the attention of your readers to proposed steps backward in the efforts that have been made within the last few years to render city government in New Jersey more efficient. I refer to the bill introduced in the State Senate by Senator Edge, of Atlantic county, amending the commission government act by providing that the director in charge of each department of the city government shall have sole power of appointment and removal of all subordinate officers and employes of his particular department.

The enactment of this provision would nullify civil service laws in the first place, making the personal choice of a commissioner final without regard to the fitness or lack of fitness of his appointee, and would thus enable the construction of a personal political machine; and in the next place it would destroy harmony among the commissioners. The question arises why should Senator Edge stand sponsor for such a measure? Who among his constituents would be benefitted by its enactment? The answer to this last question shows as the milk in the cocoanut. Atlantic City, after a desperate struggle, adopted the commission form of government in order to throw off the strangle hold of as vicious a political machine as ever mismanaged the affairs of a city. All this is history. But in the election of commissioners, unfortunately a couple of the old machine members were elected. Under the act as it now reads these members are helpers in the matter of appointments. The adoption of this amendment would enable them to defy their fellow commissioners and to appoint their own followers to all positions under their control.

So far as the immediate purpose of the bill is concerned, it is practically a bit of special legislation. But if enacted it will affect every city in the State now under the commission form of government and every city that may hereafter adopt it. I wish to urge all friends of honest government to oppose this bill by writing to their representatives in the Senate and the Assembly, setting forth their hostility and requesting them to vote against it. It is difficult to understand how Senator Edge can reconcile his obligations as a senator with his attitude in standing for such a piece of legislation. Verily it is only by constant vigilance that we can preserve our liberties.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Andrew Mack and Chrystal Herne will appear at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow evening in a new four act play by George Scarborough, entitled "At Bay." The four scenes are laid in Washington, and have to do with the outwitting of the chief of the Secret Service and the District Attorney by Capt. Larry Holbrook, who has returned from the Russian-Japanese war to right a wrong done by a friend of his to an innocent girl. Mr. Mack plays Capt. Holbrook and Miss Herne plays the girl. Other charcters are the Secret Service chief, played by Edwin Mordant; Father Shannon, played by George Barnum; the District Attorney, which falls to Robert Lowe, and a blackmailing lawyer, which is ably interpreted by Mario Majeroni.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The third of the series of informal talks on books and their authors was conducted by Mrs. Robert Lowry in the association parlors last night. The subject was "Robert Louis Stevenson." Miss Elizabeth Goddard sang some of his poems that have been set to music.

Those attending the final meeting or informal discussion next Tuesday evening are requested to dress to represent some book or characters depicted in the book.

In the association parlors this morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. C. C. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, delivered his second talk of the Lenten series. He discussed "Jesus and Reasons and Tasks of Life."

Miss Ethel Colton will inaugurate a series of lessons on the study of the Passion Week at the Y. W. C. A. tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. The course will continue for five weeks and all are cordially invited to enter into membership.

The girls' basketball team will go to Dunellen tomorrow night to engage in a contest with the First Presbyterian Church feminine representatives of that place. The Y. W. C. A. players are still glorying over the great showing they made against Trenton last Saturday night and are confident of lowering the Dunellenites' standard.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Laurette Taylor will begin the tenth week of her engagement in J. Hartley Manners' delightful comedy, "Peg O' My Heart," at the Cort theatre on Monday night. Oliver Morosco's newly made star has more than fulfilled the confidence the Western producer placed in her when he decided to make a star of her. The Cort theatre has not had a vacant seat at any performance for weeks and the run of the play will certainly not end until late in the summer.

Edward J. Bowes' production of Thompson Buchanan's very cleverly constructed comedy, "The Bridal Path," will begin the second week of its engagement at the 39th St. theatre on Monday night with Ann Murdock, Robert Warwick, Lucile Watson, Mrs. Charles Craig, Nan Campbell, Fay Bainter, Florence Short, Felix Krembs, Bernard Fairfax and William H. Sams in the cast.

Francis Wilson will begin his first season as a star under John Cort's management on Monday night, when he enters upon an engagement of three nights at Nixon's Apollo theatre, Atlantic City, in his latest comedy, "The Spiritualist."

Oliver Morosco will produce Paul Armstrong's new drama, "The Escape," at the Grand Opera House, Chicago, on Sunday night, March 2, with Helen Ware in the principal role.

A WORTHY INDICATION.

It is so unusual for a city department to find that it can cut its budget without impairing its efficiency that the report of the East Orange Playground Commission is worthy of note. The commission announces that whereas it spent $5,700 in 1912 in can get along with $1,000 less in 1913. In this particular instance the reduction is largely because there will not be the necessity of making repairs which were required last year. The tendency of a great many boards, however, is not to reduce their budget lest conditions might arise in later years which would call for an increase which it might be difficult to secure. Hence ways of spending money are sometimes found which it is not absolutely necessary.

So far as is known this extravagance has not prevailed in East Orange, but there has been such a tendency in municipal boards elsewhere and the present action indicates a businesslike conception of official administration which is worthy of attention.

One reason, perhaps, why city commissions are prone to extravagance is their interest in their special work. Another is that the members do not realize the necessity of municipal economy. The members are not placed in the position of a council, which is the finance body of a city, and do not realize how a comparatively small sum here and another there gets up into a large total in the tax budget. This is one of the reasons for an excellent suggestion by Mayor Gregory in his recent message to the East Orange City Council that a member of the council might be named on each commission.

Of course a simpler plan would be to adopt the Walsh law. Then each member, having charge of a special department, would also be a member of the finance body and there would be a cohesion in the government which the old forms do not provide.—Newark Evening News.

A GREAT RECORD.

Hard to Duplicate It In Plainfield.

Scores of representative citizens of Plainfield are testifying for Doan's Kidney Pills. Such a record of local endorsement is unequalled in modern times. This public statement made by a citizen is but one of the many that have preceded it and the hundreds that will follow. Read it:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, 57 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "You may continue to publish my endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills which I gave in August, 1905. I endured much misery from backache, which was caused by my kidneys. Many nights I was unable to rest at all and when I arose in the morning, my limbs were so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. Whenever I caught the least cold, it settled on my kidneys and any strain on my back always made my aches and pains worse. I was treated by physicians but their medicine did not help me and it was not until I got Doan's Kidney Pills at Randolph's Drug Store that I had any hope of getting rid of my trouble. This preparation made me feel like a different person and I have never had any serious trouble since. I use Doan's Kidney Pills once in a while, however, and they keep my kidneys in good working order."

WHAT IT MEANS.

The spread of the commission government was begun entirely by accident. Galveston, Texas, after the great flood of 1900 was practically wiped out. So much progressive and constructive work was demanded of the city government that the old system of a board of aldermen and the usual string of independent elective officers broke down. A group of business men petitioned the state government to suspend the local government and replace it temporarily with a commission of five men. This was done, and the whole city was put under the control of five men, three of whom were appointees of the governor. This was where the term "commission" originated, and the name, for want of a better description, has stuck to it every since, although the board is no longer a "commission" in the true sense of the word at all.

This commission in Galveston was able to make decisions and get things accomplished in half the time that it took the old board of aldermen to get a resolution referred to a committee. The commission planned and bulit a sea wall to protect the city against further floods, raised the ground level of a large part of the town, got the city government running again at one-third less annual cost, made a number of important improvements and at the same time reduced the debt and the tax rate.

After two years, during which the politicians were finding precious little to do, the commission was made entirely elective by popular vote, much to the dismay of many good persons in the town, who feared that the politicians would elect old-style officials and restore the old-time inefficiency and boss rule. Their fears, however, proved groundless, for the people proceeded to elect the same commission and have continued to do it at every election since. Except by death there have been only two changes in the personnel of the commission since the beginning.

Galveston's claim that it was the best governed city in the United States made Houston jealous, and after a few years this city petitioned for a similar government and was granted it. Dallas, Denison, Austin and almost all the principal neighboring cities in Texas have since then followed suit.

A few years after Galveston first began to attract atention some civic workers in Des Moines began to study the subject of popular government in fundamental fashion. They devised what has since become known as the "Des Moines plan," which is simply the commission form of government, with certain interesting additions, known as the initiative, referendum, recall and nonpartisan primary. By the terms of the initiative provision a petition may be presented to the commission signed by a certain number of people demanding the passage of a certain ordinance, and if the commission sees fit to refuse the request the matter must be settled by popular vote. By the referendum provision ordinances can be held up by a protest signed by a certain number of citizens and must then be rescinded by the commission or approved by popular vote. By the terms of the recall provision, the presentation of a petition containing a certain number of signatures may force any member of the commission to submit the question of his continuance in office to a new election immediately. The non-partisan primary is simply an eliminating election. All candidates are nominated by petition (no party labels), and the leading ten remain on the ballot for the final election.

The publicity attendant on the installation of th enew government in Des Moines gave the movement new stimulus throughout the country and it began to be known as the latest and most up-to-date thing in city government. Many towns adopted it from a mere desire to get abreast of the times and to show the world that they were progressive and enterprising. In some cases the plan met with vigorous opposition, sometimes with a complete lack of interest, while in some cities it carried by an overwhelming vote. Colorado Springs and other cities made a few alterations in the Des Moines plan, such as having the members of the commission elected for terms arranged to expire in rotation, and forbidding party nominations. Grand Junction, Colorado, added the preferential ballot, whereby the voter indicates on the ballot his first, second and third choice. The preferential ballot makes a primary election needless and thus saves expense.

An exact definition of the commission plan of government is thus seen to be impossible. The only feature wherein all these "commission" governments coincide is the unification of all the powers of the city, both legislative and executive, in a single small board.

One of the abuses—and there are others—which should be stopped in the Plainfield public schools is the scheme to have pupils sell chocolate, peanuts, et cetera, to obtain money with which to purchase pictures and other ornaments for school rooms. It is almost as bad as the practise of the pupils to raise funds to purchase Christmas presents for the teachers. Just a little attention on the part of the Board of Education as to some of these things might prove salutory.

DE LA BARRA DID BIG PUBLIC WORK

Was Thought Most Popular Man In Mexico.

ONCE AMBASSADOR TO U. S.

Man Who Got Big Recognition In Recent Revolt a Great Student of South American Governments—Mexico City a Scene of Ruin—Priests and Nuns Do Splendid Work.

Francisco Leon de la Barra, who was recently again placed at the head of Mexican affairs, is best known in this country as Mexican ambassador to the United States, a post he held from 1909 to 1911, being called home in March of the latter year to become minister of foreign affairs in President Diaz's cabinet.

Shortly afterward, following President Diaz's withdrawal, he became provisional president of Mexico. As ambassador at Washington he made many friends in this country. He was on intimate terms with President Taft and Secretary Knox and was in their confidence concerning the mobilization of United States troops on the Texas frontier.

He was born in 1863, received his education at the College of the City of Mexico and upon completing his studies there took up the law and was admitted to the bar. His specialty was international law, and his first important work after he entered the foreign affairs office was the negotiation of various treaties with foreign powers, notably one of commerce and navigation with Holland and one of extradition with Italy.

He was made a member of the Federal Congress in 1891 and remained there until 1896. As president of the international law committee of the Pan-American Congress, which met in Mexico City in 1901, he was the leading advocate of the measure for the compulsory adjustment of money claims.

He was Mexico's delegate to the Pan-American Congress in Rio de Janeiro in 1906 and to the peace conference at The Hague in 1907.

As envoy to all the republics on the Atlantic coast of South America he was said to have achieved a wonderful knowledge of Latin-American affairs. He represented his country in the Netherlands and in Belgium before being sent as ambassador to the United States.

Senor de la Barra was known in Washington for his pleasing manners and the fluency and correctness of his French and English.

Hundreds of Homeless.

There was no estimating the number of homeless people suddenly reduced to misery in Mexico City. After leaving their homes destroyed by cannon they had no places of refuge save the churches. The fathers of the church had opened the sanctuary to the distressed. By the time daylight came on the sixth day at least 10,000 people, mostly women and children, were sleeping or praying in them. The churches of San Jose de los Naturales, Santa Vera Cruz, San Francisco, La Concepcion, La Balvanera, Santa Caterina de Sena, Jesus Maria and many more were crowded with the miserable. It is estimated that 3300 persons fell in the week of fighting. A big proportion were noncombatants.

The charity of the priests went part way toward alleviating suffering and hunger. The Catholic sisters nursed sick and injured women, while brothers of the orders and the priests provided coffee, beans and the ever necessary cigarettes.

Daylight exposed the dreadful ruin that had been wrought after five days of tremendous cannonading in the center of a city of 500,000 people. From the great national palace on the east to the legislative palace and the Colonia Roma (where the American embassy is located) on the west and from the Church of San Hipolito on the north to the Belem prison on the south a territory containing the most beautiful streets and the finest public and business buildings of the capital showed signs of wreckage, and in the Charles IV. square many houses have been dismantled or broken to pieces.

Streets Seem Tornado Swept.

A score of streets appear as if they had been swept by a tornado. Mounds of wreckage and debris in which lie the bodies of human beings and of horses offend the senses. Many of the streets are impassable. The incessant storm of lead and iron has wrecked the electric lighting. The telephone service is practically ruined.

There is no business whatever. The banks have been closed for days. The public markets are deserted. Even the general postoffice is shut, many of the employees having been drafted into the federal army. But the greatest menace of all is that of pestilence. Nothing whatever has been done by the troops of either side to protect the city from plague.

More than 1,000 American citizens were quartered at the American embassy or in private houses, many unfurnished, hired by Ambassador Wilson. The Americans have been active in caring for other foreign residents in the sudden flight of late Wednesday evening, when all of the automobiles were hired.

COLLINS IN COMMAND OF NATIONAL GUARD

Trenton, Feb. 19.—Following the appointment and confirmation of Brigadier General Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth, as Major General, commanding the entire National Guard of New Jersey to succed Major General Peter F. Wanser, retired, the oath of office was administered to the new commander yesterday afternoon. Major General Collins was sworn in by Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadley, Jr., in the latter's office.

As soon as General Collins had qualified, he issued an order assuming command of the National Guard of New Jersey and establishing Division eHadquarters in this city. This will make Trenton the base of State military operations hereafter. General Collins also announced the appointment of Major Scott Seammell, of this city, who was Judge Advocate connected with the Judge Advocate General's Department, as Judge Advocate of the Division. This appointment raises the rank of Major Scammell to that of Lieutenant Colonel, e succeeds Lieutenant Colonel George E. F. Howard, of South Orange.

Those present when General Collins took the oath were former Governor John Franklin Fort, Major John T. Rogers and Major Harry Moorehead, of this city.

The Most Crowded Street.

The supreme sensation of New York's east side is the sensation of the astounding populousness. The most populous street in the world—Rivington street is a sight not to be forgotten. Compared to this, an uptown thoroughfare of crowded middle class flats in the open country is an uninhabited desert. The architecture seemed to scream in vanity at every window and door. The roadways were often impassible. The thought of the hidden interiors was terrifying. Indeed, the hidden interiors would not bear thinking about. The fancy shunned the problem not to be settled by municipal edicts, but only by the flux of generations.—Harper's Magazine.

Heroism of an Indian.

A few years ago in northern Mexico a truck carrying a load of dynamite for use at a mine was suddenly discovered to be on fire at a village station. The risk was imminent, so the driver of a locomotive engine picked the truck up and ran it away into the country at all the speed he could put on. He bade the brakeman jump off and save himself, adding, "I go to my death." When he had got a mile away the dynamite exploded. Every window in the village was broken, and he was blown to atoms, but the inhabitants were saved. He was a pure blooded Indian.—"South America," by James Bryce.

special train. Mrs. Woodrow Wilson was one of these and also Senator and Mrs. Everett Colby, Dr. Hussey, of East Orange, a pioneer suffragist; Mrs. Caroline B. Alexander, of Hoboken; Mrs. Edmund D. Osborne and Mrs. J. G. Ropes, of Montclair, the latter a candidate for the presidency of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, and Miss Cornelia Bradford, of Whittier House, "the Jane Addams of New Jersey" whom many Plainfielders heard recently at the Conference on Charities and Correction at the High School.

On the "special" were sold the "Votes for Women" buttons, and yellow banners inscribed "Votes for New Jersey Women," and it was a party gay with waving yellow that proceeded up Trenton streets to the Capitol. There was no demonstration of any sort along the way to suggest that the suffragists were a novel or peculiar sight to the people of Trenton, and they received everywhere the courtesy and respect due to a dignified body proceeding in an earnest cause.

The State House was by no means prepared for such an influx of guests. The women's gallery filled, the men's was opened to the suffragists, then they poured onto the floor of the House, the assemblymen courteously giving up their chairs. Still they came, standing in the aisles, mounting the window ledges and bases of pillars, sitting on the edge of the platform, on the radiators, on the steps, on the desks, until the whole House was a solidly packed mass of humanity under a sea of waving yellow banners. For the antis represented such a small proportion—about one to ten—that their color scheme was not apparent. It is the "American Beauty" red.

Speaker Taylor called the House to order at 10:30 o'clock, announcing that one hour would be given to the suffragists, one to the antis, and then a half-hour in rebuttal. Mrs. Everett Colby, formerly Miss Edith Hyde, of Plainfield, introduced the suffragist speakers. First, her husband, the former Essex county senator, whom she referred to as her "better half;" then Cornelius Ford, president of the State Federation of Labor; George M. LaMonte, State Banking Commissioner, and last, Dr. Anna Shaw, president of the National Suffrage Association.

Mr. Colby said that the most important work of legislators today is the regulation of and provision for child life. "Women know more of the requirements of women and children than do the men," therefore their vote is needed. A woman inspector amongst factory women and children can in five minutes discover the cause of a trouble that it would take a man a month to find out.

Cornelius Ford stated that all organized labor in the State was in favor of equal suffrage.

George M. La Monte made a particularly able speech. He referred to new sociological conditions that required new treatment. He said in part: "I am in favor of the adoption of the resolution under discussion, not because of any abstract theory of right or wrong, nor because justice demands it, for justice does not always get its full deserts, but I am in favor of it because public necessity demands it and the interest of humanity requires it.

"This is not a sporadic effort to foist some new and untried experiment upon the people of the State, but it is a perfectly natural development which cannot be resisted.

"The last century was one of national development—this is to be a century of educational development. * * * For a hundred years our laws have been largely passed for the protection and conservation of property and wealth has sat enthroned in high places. We have developed a theory of government over and above the Constitution. Men have been elected to Legislatures and people have gone before Legislatures because they wanted to get something for themselves and not because of interest in the public good—well, do you remember the noble sentence which begins the Constitution of the United States? 'We, the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and to our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution.' This means that to be progressive we must go back to the Constitution. There is nothing about special privilege and it is all for the common good—the good of man, woman and child, the good of the human race dwelling in this country; therefore high and low alike must let themselves to learn what is for the common good. The legislation of the future must be for this purpose, the same regulation of business, manufacturing business, railroad and transportation business, so that their development will promote and not interfere with the general welfare and domestic tranquility; the health and morals of all the people must be safeguarded in order that we may in future build up a race here of strong and healthy men and women. Men and women must be allowed to do their work under reasonable conditions and in reasonable hours.

"We see a time ahead when all the people may enjoy some of the beauty of this world, and when the bitter struggle for bread will not occupy nine-tenths of the people.

"Now, however, the century of education has dawned; working humanity is learning the real conditions of life and its possibilities—the privileged ones are learning that they have ridden privilege too hard. Now is the time to right the wrong. How are we going to do it? I know of no better way than to use the band of noble women who are now knocking at our doors and asking for the ballot. They are experts in their knowledge of conditions as they exist. We want the legislation and we want it now, and with the ballot in the hands of these women we will get it."

Dr. Shaw referred to a recent statement of Governor Wilson that "free men need no guardians." "Women," said Dr. Shaw, "are free yet they have guardians, and I say free women need no guardians."

In speaking of overhearing the remark of a man behind her to the effect that he feared this movement would "take the bloom off" of women, she said: "The bloom that comes off so easily is a kind that can very easily be restored—given opportunity and a few moments of time! But the real bloom of true womanliness was of the soul and would not come off in the performance of duty, and that any woman who fears to lose her womanliness can stay at home." Dr. Shaw, in a stirring appeal for aid for women in sweat-shops and factories said, "Woman's only weapon is the ballot and we have the right to life and also to protect life." The ballot is the surest way to get these results.

The anti speakers were introduced by Miss McIlvaine, of Trenton, who spoke well but could not be heard. She first introduced Mrs. Loomis, of Westfield, who is president of the New Jersey Antis. Mrs. Loomis based her plea on the ground that it is unfair to force the vote on forty-six million women of the country when only two million want it. She overlooked the fact that there are not forty-six million women in the United States, also that two million and a half women are already voting, to say nothing of those who desire to do so in other States.

Then came the rebuttal, and after that former Governor Shaffroth, of Colorado, spoke of what suffrage had done in improving conditions of his State. He made a strong, stirring address.

It was supposed that the question would be put to vote at the afternoon session, but Assemblyman Egan, who introduced the bill, was not present when the session opened and the hearing went over till today.

RICHMOND RECITED FROM PLAYS OF SHAKESPEARE

Charles Richmond, of London, England, who was associated for a number of years with Barrett and Booth, gave a varied program of readings at the College of Mt. St. Mary, today. Six recitations were given including three from Shakespeare: Julius Caesar, Hamlet and Macbeth, and from the first number the audience was impressed with Mr. Richmond's dramatic talent. A feature of Mr. Richmond's elocution was the ease with which he effectively presented both humor and pathos.

The emotional qualities were perhaps best portrayed in Macbeth. Mr. Richmond's readings were entertaining, educational and inspiring and he held the close attention of his audience throughout the entire performance. In addition to the students there were present a number of Plainfielders, who thoroughly enjoyed the readings.

VEGETABLE PIES.

VEGETABLES are nice served in pies. Not all vegetables, of course, are suited for this purpose, but those which are most easily digested may be used. If you prefer, meat cut in small pieces may be added to the vegetables. Either fresh or cold meat may be used. This makes the pies richer.

Novel Pastry.

Onion Pie.—Slice six onions and put them into a frying pan with butter enough to fry them. Add a cupful of milk and cream combined in equal quantities. Thicken with flour moistened with cold milk and add half a teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of pepper. Bake a pie crust in a pie plate. Fill the crust with the onions and set in the oven until the top is brown. No upper crust is used.

Sweet Potato Pie.—Take one pound of mashed potatoes which have been rubbed through a colander, one-half a pound of butter creamed, two cups of white sugar, six eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, one lemon squeezed into the potato while hot, one teaspoonful of nutmeg and one teaspoonful of mace. Mix and bake same as ordinary pie. This makes a nice dessert.

Mushroom Pie.—A delicious pie is made of cold sliced potatoes and mushrooms. Put them in alternate layers in a dish, season well with pepper and salt and cover with puff paste and then bake.

Savory Side Dishes.

Potato and Onion Pie.—Take six potatoes and boil in salted water. When done mash fine and while hot add a lump of butter, half a cupful of sweet milk, a spoonful of minced onion, half a spoonful of powdered sage and a little pepper. Mix all together, adding more salt if needed. Rub the sides and bottom of the baking dish with butter and pour in the mixture, smoothing carefully. Dot the top of the pie with bits of butter, or thin slices of bacon may be used instead. Bake until of a nice brown color.

Nut and Vegetable Pie.—Take a cupful of lima beans, one cupful of almonds and peanuts mixed, one cupful of thin white sauce, two hard boiled eggs, two onions sliced, six potatoes and salt and pepper to season. Wash and peel the potatoes, cook the beans and potatoes and blanch the nuts. Place a layer of beans in the bottom of the baking dish, then a layer of nuts and egg, followed by a layer of diced potatoes. Repeat until the materials have been used. Pour over all the white sauce, cover the top with the mashed potato, brush over with egg and milk and bake for thirty minutes in a hot oven.

MODISH MATTERS.

The Best Selection In White Gloves. Cretonne on Suits.

In buying white gloves choose kid skin rather than lambskin if you want them to wear satisfactorily.

Cretonne with the designs worked over in colored wool is used for collars and cuffs on the new tailored coats.

Lingerie collars, cuffs and vest fronts of fine embroidered batiste are worn with morning frocks.

News comes from Paris that white ostrich plume boas studded with ribbon roses are being worn on the Riviera.

Some of the new square collars on linen dresses are fitted smoothly to the shoulders, and the little ties are of linen.

ways needed for certain uses. This one is cut to give the straight, narrow effect that is fashionable. The model is a good one for washable materials.

LIGHT, GAY DINING ROOM.

Use Colonial Landscape Papers or Paneled Effects on Wall.

First of all, says Elsie de Wolfe in Good Housekeeping, I think a dining room should be light and gay. If possible always choose a room which has plenty of sunshine for a dining room. The next thing is the planning of a becoming background for the mistress of the house. The room should always be gay and charming in color, but the color should be selected with due consideration for its becomingness with relation to the hostess. Every woman has a right to be pretty in her own dining room.

The quaint landscape papers which are seen in so many New England dining rooms seem to belong with American colonial furniture and white woodwork, the prim silver and the gold banded china. These landscape papers are usually gay in effect and make for cheer. There are many new landscape designs less complicated than the old ones. Then, too, there are charming foliage papers made up of leaves and branches and birds which are very good.

I do not favor the dark, heavy treatments and elaborate stuff hangings which seem to represent the taste of most of the men who go in for decorating nowadays. Nine times out of ten the dining room seems to be the gloomiest room in the house. I think it should be a place where the family may meet in gayety of spirit for a pause in the vexatious happenings of the day. I think light tones, gay wall papers, flowers and sunshine are of more importance than storied tapestries and heavily carved furniture. These things are all very well for the house that has a small dining room and a gala dining room for formal occasions as well, but there are few such houses. Paneled walls are always possible. If you can't afford wood paneling, paint the plastered wall white or cream and break it into panels by using a narrow molding of wood. You can get an effect of great dignity by the use of molding at a few cents a foot.

OUTDOOR AMUSEMENTS.

Charming Games For Children to Play at Spring Parties.

These few suggestions may prove helpful to the mother who intends to entertain small folks:

A floral color trail is an interesting game. Any flower may be selected and fastened with narrow ribbon in twenty or thirty different places.

The flower is displayed to the children, and the number hidden is told.

Each child is given a pencil and card, and as he finds the flowers the place is carefully noted. Ground trails may be set with small green twigs.

This game is very popular with young folks in England.

The trail of the green leaf, which should be played out of doors, demands senses very much alert.

Any variety of green leaf is selected and tied to trees and shrubbery with small ends of green tape or ribbon.

The children are not told how many times it is hidden, but at the expiration of a given length of time are asked to disclose how many times they have detected the leaf and where.

Another charming open air hunt is the game of Peter Pan.

A child dressed to represent that favored friend of youth is perched upon a stone or in a tree. He tells the children that somewhere about the garden is hidden each animal mentioned in the book of Peter Pan.

The children search diligently until every animal is found and then are rewarded with their findings.

Culinary Newness.

Chocolate cream roll is a delicious bread that is little known by the average housewife. Here is a recipe that will appeal to the most fastidious taste: Beat three large eggs very light without separating the whites and yolks. Gradually beat in one cupful and a half of granulated sugar, two tablespoonfuls of melted butter, three ounces of melted chocolate and then half a cupful of lukewarm water.

CHOCOLATE CREAM ROLL.

Lastly beat in one cupful of sifted pastry flour, one-fourth cupful of potato flour (half a cupful of ordinary flour may replace the smaller quantity of potato flour), half a level teaspoonful of soda, says the Boston Cooking School Magazine, and a slightly rounding teaspoonful of cream of tartar sifted together. The cake should be less than three-fourths of an inch thick when baked. Trim off the crisp edges. Spread at once with marshmallow cream filling and roll up like a jelly roll. Roll in waxed paper and set aside a short time. Then spread the outside with "dot" chocolate melted over warm water or with a confectioner's frosting made of a square of melted chocolate, three tablespoonfuls of boiling water, half a teaspoonful of vanilla and confectioner's sugar (sifted) as needed.

SUMMER FABRICS.

The New Dress Goods Have Delightful Draping Qualities.

COTTON PLUSH IS SMART.

Zigzag Suiting Will Make Many of the Best Looking Tailored Costumes of the Spring—Negligee For the Easter Bride's Trousseau.

With the exception of linen, which is always the standby for the outing type of summer costume because of its fine laundering qualities and its sturdy strength of texture, everything this season is drapable. There is, first and foremost, the white cotton crape, which leads in favor; ratine striped crape and crape striped with cotton velours or cotton plush or having a border of one of these materials. These new cotton plushes and velours look something like uncut velvet, and they are more attractive in the colored cotton materials than in the white, which rather suggests toweling effects to a critical eye.

Zigzag cotton suiting is the dernier cri in Paris, and this material is obtainable at most of the white sales now. It is woven from threads of graduating size, alternating thick and thin, and in the weaving the threads are pulled in the loom to give a wavy or zigzag effect to the material. A tailored suit made of this zigzag stuff in a pale tan shade is included in a trousseau of a prospective southern traveler. The suit is piped with broad bands of black satin and is matched by a blouse of all over ecru embroidery mounted on cream net, the contrast of tint bringing out the embroidery design effectively. A new English walking hat of cream milan trimmed with a black shooting bow of black edged tan picot ribbon matches the suit, and boots of the new tan leather which are so easily wiped clean with soap and water will be worn with the smart street costume. These boots, by the way, are in the distinctly new and natty style, with a very low heel, long pointed toe and a top having only five buttons, like a man's boot. Completing the costume is a long handled parasol of tan silk with an inset band of ecru colbert embroidery.

Included in the trousseau of a spring bride is this lovely negligee of machine embroidery and wide lace insertion. Two sorts of embroidery are used in combination, an open eyelet "cane" pattern and a rose design in "blind" embroidery.

"Peg o' My Heart" Bows.

Last spring a flurry of fashion brought into vogue the stiff little velvet bows of color or black for shirt waists. They have been worn more or less ever since and have taken a fresh hold on popularity through the small hearts of rhinestones which are placed in the center of each bow. These are called "Peg o' My Heart" bows and with velvet ribbon and rhinestone pin cost 50 cents complete. Others contrived on the same plan are of pearls—two threadlike pearl bands through which the ribbon runs and a small pearl bailhead stickpin thrust through from the side. These are also 50 cents each and are called "Robespierre" bows. Both are pretty and an improvement over the plain velvet, which seems a trifle stiff and purposeless.

A Homemade Device.

It is interesting to see how a Japanese servant will supply kitchen deficiencies out of his own inventive brain. Where the knob on the teakettle cover had rusted and given way one of these handy persons supplied a new one by taking some heavy cords, knotting them together, drawing them through the hole in the cover, with the knot on the under side, and tying them tight over a medium sized cork, which rested on the top of the cover in the spot formerly occupied by the knob. When far from a hardware store such a substitute is not to be despised.

Figs For Dessert.

Figs cooked tender in boiling water with a little sugar added at the last of the cooking, are good cold with cream. The figs with the addition of wine, orange or lemon jelly, cut in cubes and whipped cream, make an elaborate dessert dish.

SCOOP WAS JUST FOLLOWING INSTRUCTIONS

"MAC" SAYS

Only three more days and it's here. What's here? Why that second Plainfield-North Plainfield High School match, and it will be played at Saengerbund Hall.

It seems rather strange that the schoolboy managers should stage their game on the same day that cherry tree choppers get their innings.

From the New York papers: "The suffragettes suffered many hardships on their walk from Metuchen, including dinner at a New Brunswick restaurant." What is worse?

Latest news from Somerville: "Manager Lester Wittenbert, of the Company M cadets, wants to stage a game between the cadets and the Nonpareil girls, of this city, for Washington's Birthday." What next? Leave it to Somerville for introducing novelties along any line.

If coaches make baseball teams Plainfield High School ought to have a nine this year that will come somewhere near being big league calibre. With a quartet of advisors as Eugene Lidgate, Louis Slocum, Tommy Mullin and Otto Frederickson, some kind of a team ought to be modeled out.

Although none of these baseball artists live in the borough a couple of them cross the brook on frequent jaunts and it would be a whole lot more generous on their part to divide their advice with the N. P. H. S. candidates. The boroughites say they do not need professional coaches to turn out a champion team and past performances certainly hold up their assertion.

If the average drummer's expense account was as bulky as that of many amateurs, the average firm would carry through about seven weeks and be lucky to escape with the name plate.

Jim Thorpe cleaned up at Stockholm—but James was never forced to poke one in the direction of Prof. J. H. Wagner.

Why the insert of six battleships and a standing army? Walter Johnson and Ed Walsh, properly warmed up, and armed with a dozen new balls, could break up the Mexican army in three innings.

A Harvard professor has spent the last twenty years of his life without sleeping. Wherein he differs widely from Rip Van Winkle, Philadelphia, subway construction, Mexican harmony, Sleepy Hollow, free silver and a few other well known slumberers.

It is getting to be a habit with baseball clubs to have on their payrolls at least one comedian. Won't it be splendid when all the major league clubs have their regular troupe of comedians? Each game can be preceded with vaudeville sketches of a humorous nature, and baseball fans will be saved the expense of buying tickets from the sidewalk speculators at the theatres. To carry out the idea in the proper way, a stage might be erected in back of home plate, an orchestra engaged and a few slapsticks obtained. If the theatre managers don't get peeved and try to suppress this competition, baseball may eventually become a rip-roaring farce!

POSSIBLY COLD FEET.

E. C. Ostlin, physical director of the local Y. M. C. A., is looking for George A. Keene, who appeared in this city two weeks ago trying to arrange wrestling bouts for Gus Peterson, physical director of Princeton University, for whom he claimed to be manager. Mr. Ostlin agreed to meet Peterson, who now holds the welterweight title, but Keene left the city that night and has not been heard from since.

ANOTHER TEAM.

One more basketball team has found a berth in Plainfield. The Plainfield All-Stars has been organized by a number of High School and college veterans who expect to put out a combination that will clean up on everything else in this city.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

CHOICE OF COACHES TO SHAPE OUT PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL BALL NINE

Captain Monroe Good, of the Plainfield High School baseball team, will start practice work in earnest in the High School gym next week and expects to have a large squad of candidates out for the team. A number of veterans are still available but there are also a number of vacancies both in the infield and outfield to be filled and Good is looking over his material to see what he has to develop in the line of stars to stop up these crevices. A coaching staff consisting of Tommy Mullin, who leaves next month for Petersburg, where he will play in the Virginia League; Louis Slocum and Otto Frederickson, who have been signed by the Winston Salem combination in the Carolina League, and Eugene Lidgate, who will shortly report for spring training at the Orioles' camp, have been engaged to handle the P. H. S. athletes trying for the nine and their advice will probably go a long way toward shaping a representative aggregation. It will also give these men who have been drafted by the minor leagues an opportunity to get into first-class shape before reporting.

Some of the losses that will be felt most keenly at the local High School are Nash, the veteran backstop; Denny, a pitcher; Rosenson, a third baseman; Zerega, shortstop, and Ricketts, who played second base. Of these Nash will perform in a Leal's uniform; Denny was lost by graduation; Zerega is a candidate for the Princeton Preparatory School team, and Rosenson was graduated last year. Denny will probably be the greatest loss, he having been the pitching mainstay of the P. H. S. combination last year. As substitutes for Denny, Van Deventer, Coughlin and Woodhull did duty last year and with the careful coaching of the twirlers on the training squad one of them at least, ought to develop into a moundsman who could be relied upon at all times. Woodhull has been a member of the P. H. S. squad for three years and although his work has shown signs of brilliancy at times he has not been reliable at all times.

With the absence of Nash, Captain Good will probably have to assume the catching responsibility and this will leave the first base job open for competition. Good did some of the backstop work last year and performed to good advantage every time he donned the mask. The initial sack is open to contention, but Joseph Carty played around this corner last year in several games and he may be pulled in from the outfield to fill the empty sack. Grisley, who played second last year, is once more a candidate and the keystone sack is conceded to be his. Johnny Heron, the midget shortstop, who has performed for two seasons, is again on the job and the area between second and third will likely be guarded by the small one.

Herman Rosenson's absence will be another one that will be keenly felt in several departments. He, like Nash, was a heavy hitter and exceptionally speedy base runner and it will be hard to unearth a substitute to fill the bill as he did. The outfield positions, as usual, will produce the largest array of aspirants, and nothing definite can be said beforehand as to the selection of garden men.

Now that the first step has been taken toward reorganizing the base ball team at P. H. S. those who followed the sport last year during the progress of the Interscholastic organization are looking forward to another league this year. Leal's, N. P. H. S. and P. H. S. will all have unusually formidable lineups to place on the field and if a cup was offered for competition it would be an incentive to some friendly interscholastic relations, such as have been promoted by the basketball league and baseball league of last year.

WENDELL KUHN TO LEAD PRINCETON HOCKEY SEVEN

Wendell S. Kuhn, of Pittsburgh, has been elected captain of the Princeton hockey team for 1914. He is twenty years of age and has played on the varsity team for two years.

Kuhn succeeds Captain Hobey Baker as leader of the seven and has been second only to this speedy rover who has won the highest rank in amateur hockey, in his work on the Princeton team for the past two years. Baker declined to run for the captaincy again. As center on last year's championship organization, Kuhn was selected for the same position on the "All-College" seven and showed even greater skill during the season which has just closed.

TRIPLE EXHIBITION.

Manager Burnett Brodziak, of the Scotch Plains Parish House basketball teams, has arranged for a triple exhibition of the indoor game on the Parish House court for next Saturday night. The first team will play the All Plainfields; the Nonpareils, of this city, will oppose another feminine quintet, probably Springfield High School; and he has also arranged a game for the Parish House seconds.

GRACE AND HOPE.

The basketball team representing the Grace church boys' club will line-up against the Hope chapel second five on the Hope court tonight. Both combinations are speedy juvenile quintets and a good contest will probably be the issue.

A few lines of To Let advertising will stop all anxiety about it!

WILL DECIDE COLLEGE HOCKEY TITLE TONIGHT

The Yale and Harvard hockey teams come together tonight at the St. Nicholas Rink to decide the hockey honors for the year. This will be the last game of the season, and the winner will be hailed as the college champions.

This distinction was claimed by the Princeton players until they met the Harvard team last week and were beaten. The only serious opposition comes from the Yalensians, who, with a stronger team than they have had on the ice in any game this season, expect to beat Harvard and regain the honors they lost in the first game of the series.

PLAINFIELD NOT IN IT.

Organization of the New York and New Jersey baseball league, known as the Inter-State League, during the preliminary process of formation, was completed yesterday afternoon at Hotel Cadillac, New York city. Plainfield was mentioned as a sixth team to complete the circuit but local ball promoters could not see the need of a league team here and Long Island City was substituted.

NEXT ATHLETIC EVENT.

The running spring board broad jump (a new one) is the next athletic event on the Y. M. C. A. Color League schedule. This event will be contested next Tuesday night.

LEAGUERS WILL EAT.

A definite date has been decided upon at last for the banquet to be tendered to the Y. M. C. A. color leaguers by the Women's Auxiliary of the association and the athletes will dine Friday night, March 28.

LOVE VANQUISHES RIVAL GLASSMEN

First Team Substitute Scores a Total of 31 Points Against the Sophs.

With Roy Love, first team substitute on the North Plainfield High School five, playing for the junior class in the High School interclass league game with the sophomores, the third year men won their first game of the season on the Saengerbund Hall court yesterday afternoon by a score of 35 to 30. Love counted for 31 out of his team's 35 points or just enough to win over the Sophs single handed.

The first half ended with the score 19 to 14 in favor of the Juniors and this margin was maintained until the final whistle blew.

MARTIN WILL NOT ACCOMPANY ROOKIES

Umpire Connolly Says That the Plainfield Shortstop is in Big League to Stick.

Officials connected with the New York American League baseball team have made public a communication received from Jack Martin, of this city, a few days ago. In his letter the shortstop sends word to the Yankee club that he would like to join the party that leaves for Bermuda next Saturday and thus get an early start. But Jack will have to wait for the squad which departs March 1 because the Arcadian, which leaves Saturday, cannot accommodate another one.

Speaking of Martin it becomes necessary to relate a little gossip that leaked out of a big league meeting in New York the other day. Umpire Connolly, the popular arbitrator (if an arbitrator was ever popular) of the American League, who attended the meeting, said that he had watched Martin particularly close during his sojourn in the big league and that the new men going to the training camp would have to be wonders to beat him out of a job. He further stated that Jack had the makings of a big leaguer and that he was sure the youngster would stick this trip.

Martin announced his intention of doing some of the coaching work at the Plainfield High School some time ago and when Captain Good calls for baseball candidates he will probably have Martin on his long list of trainers. Martin has drilled the P. H. S. candidates for the past two years and has been very successful in his work.

ELKS' NEXT GAME.

No more bowling is scheduled for the Plainfield Elks' quintet until a week from tomorrow when it meets the New York antlered tribe on Walters' alleys. Charley Starr, who rolled for a mark of 280 against Elizabeth last night, will be a member of the Metropolitan aggregation when it appears in this city.

Y. M. C. A. FRESHMEN CONTEST BROAD JUMP

Thirteen Members of That Class Leaped for Good Marks in Y. M. C. A.

With a wonderful jump of nine feet one inch for a junior contestant, Herbert Peacock, of the Y. M. C. A. Freshman gym class took first place in the standing broad jump event held yesterday afternoon in connection with that class activities. FEMININE BASKETBALL ARTISTS MEET ON COURT

In a practice game at the Dunellen Presbyterian church last night two girls' teams representing the East and West Ends of that town clashed. The West End aggregation defeated the East Enders by a score of 12-7. Miss Pearl Dodwell scored eight of the twelve points made by her team while Miss Lillian Fischer scored six of the seven tallies received by the East Ends. Miss Ruth Voorhees scored two field goals for the West Ends, giving them considerable lead over their opponents. Miss Emma Voorhees was the only one able to locate the basket for a free throw. Robert Bogardus, Jr., acted as referee.

STARR ROLLS 280.

Charley Starr's tally of 280 was the feature of the Elks' League match in New York last night, in which the New York team took two out of the three games rolled with Elizabeth. Starr went all the way from the second frame in his big game. He had 226 for a windup and averaged 224 for the series.

BOWLING TONIGT.

Teams number one and three will oppose each other in the Park Club ten pin tourney tonight on the club's alleys. This is the last match of the tournament and a hot tussel is expected.

RUBBER SERIES WON BY DUNELLEN TEAM

Home Pinners Defeat Company M in Two Out of the Three Games Rolled.

The Baraca class pin smashers, of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, defeated the fast Company M quintet of bowlers in the rubber match bowled on the church alleys in Dunellen last night. The first was won by Company M on the Dunellen alleys, but when the Dunellen boys visited the militia men at Somerville they tied scores. The Baraca class men won two out of the three games rolled last night. George Apgar and H. C. Smith, of the churchmen, rolled the highest individual scores for their side while Wilson and Lamerson ran up for the musket-wielders.

WITH THE BOXERS

Young Togo, the Japanese boxer, is down and out and is now working in a restaurant at Fort Smith, Ark.

Sandy Ferguson, who will take another fling at the boxing game, has signed to meet Jeff Madden at Putnam, Conn., Feb. 25.

The Dixie Kid, the colored welterweight, was defeated in a 20-round bout in London the other night by Johnny Mathieson, of England.

A bill has been introduced in the California Legislature making it illegal to put on a boxing match between a white boxer and a negro.

Jack Lester, the heavyweight boxer, who has just returned from Australia, gives Promoter McIntosh a panning about the way he treats American boxers.

P. H. S. SOPHS LOST.

The Sophomore class basketball team, of the Plainfield High School, went to New Brunswick last night where they engaged in a court battle with the Christ church representatives of that city. The Queen City combination was downed with a count of 65 to 25 and failed to return a box score of the contest. The playing was one sided at all times, and according to the vanquished they were considerably outweighed as well as outplayed.

N. P. H. S. PRACTICE.

In anticipation of the hard interscholastic struggle with P. H. S. on Saturday afternoon, the North Plainfield High School basketball team has been granted the use of Saengerbund Hall for two hours practice every afternoon this week. Coach Webster is shaping the team for the battle.

P. H. S. FRESHMEN PLAY.

A game has been arranged by the manager of the Plainfield High School Freshmen basketball five to be played on the First Presbyterian church court in Dunellen, next Saturday night between his team and the Dunellen Monarchs.

Y. M. C. A. PRACTICE.

Physical Director E. C. Ostlin, of the local Y. M. C. A., will have his first team out for a stiff practice on the association court tonight. All those trying for the team are expected to be on deck.

BASEBALL NOTES

The Indianapolis Indians will have a real Indian in the lineup if Manager Kelley succeeds in signing up Pitcher "Chief" La Roy.

The chances are that the New England League will have an entirely new staff of umpires the coming season.

Young catchers in the American League to fill the places of Sullivan, Street, Stephens and Schmidt are Sweeney, Schalk, Stanage and Schang.

Pitcher Nap Rucker, of the Brooklyn Superbas, says that in his opinion Jim Sheckard, of the Cubs, has the greatest batting eye in the National League.

George Stone, who when playing with the St. Louis Browns a few years ago led the American League in batting, is trying to land a berth as a minor league manager.

Manager Chance, of the New Yorks, says that if he can get into proper condition during the training trip he will cover first and move Chase to the second station.

It is said that the combined salaries of the three regular outfielders of the Boston champions is less than the salary said to have been demanded by Ty Cobb from Detroit.

President Locks, of the Philadelphia Nationals, has signed Hugo T. Wedell, a former college player and at present a member of the faculty at the University of Kansas.

If Eddie Plank carries out his threat to retire from the game the Athletics will be sorely up against it. The veteran twirler could always be depended upon to deliver the goods.

Manager McGraw is trying to put over a trade for Pitcher Tyler, of the Boston Braves. "Mac" wants a left-hander in reserve in case "Rube" Marquard should fail to play this year.

A champion team is a fine thing in the Fall, but when you try to sign 'em up in the Spring they will surely cop your Angora. Inquire for Mr. McAleer, of the Boston Red Sox.

Terry Turner, the veteran Nap, will round out a decade of service as a Cleveland player the coming season. Right now Terry looks to be in better physical condition than at any time during the last five years.

HUNTING AND FISHING

There will be several of the Sheepshead Bay fleet ready for a trip to the fishing banks next Sunday. Ling, hake and whiting are biting inshore, where the boats will probably anchor.

A bill to prohibit January fishing in fresh water has passed the Assembly and the ways are greased for it in the Senate. We hope there are no obstacles in its way when it starts for the Governor's signature, as it is a good bill.

Saturday being a holiday, would just fit in for a duck hunting trip. Reports from very reliable sources around Forked River and Barnegat show that there are great flocks of ducks and geese flying.

Some one started the rumor that there has been a change made in the opening of the trout season, and when it reached the writer the rumor had it that the season was wiped out entirely. We do not know of any such change, and it might be possible that the bill providing for the sale of trout for propagation caused the rumor, as this bill proposes to permit the sale at all times of trout hatched and raised in a hatchery located within the confines of the State.

The English sparrow among birds, like the rat among mammals, is cunning, destructive and filthy, but when people compare the starling to the sparrow and seek to legalize its destruction by permitting men to kill them with shot from a gun they make a mistake. The starling is useful as an obnoxious weed destroyer, as well as a clever hunter of tree bugs and worms. Who ever saw a starling in the streets of Newark picking among the animal refuse with the sparrows? We never did, and there are thousands of starlings hereabouts. In some Western cities where the starling roost in parks and their droppings become a nuisance the park attendants shoot Roman candles through the trees occasionally and the birds seek other quarters, not coming back to those particular trees for weeks. Such a method might be tried in those sections of the country that seek this legislation, instead of permitting them to be hunted.

The prairie chicken, now common only in Kansas, Nebraska, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Manitoba, is one of the game birds which formerly existed over a much wider range than at present, and in far greater abundance. The condition regarding quail in the Eastern States is similar to that of the prairie chicken, becoming scarcer every year. They have been reduced principally by hunters, as have so many of our finest species of birds. Many sportsmen declare allegiance to the highest principle of game preservation, yet fail to practise these principles. Our present game laws, even though efficiently administered, will save no species of birds, as the rapid growth of the army of sportsmen and pot hunters more than counterbalance the effect of the shortening of open seasons and reductions of bag limits. Realizing all of this, has caused the frequent discussion of "breeders' license" laws that one hears about the State House these days, and which will probably be the cause of the passage of an act permitting the breeding of game birds by individuals under State regulation and license.

BIG DOG SHOW.

New York, Feb. 19.—Nearly three thousand aristocratic dogs, representing every breed known to the fancier, are in the hands of the judges at the thirty-seventh annual bench show of the Westminster Kennel Club, which opened in the Grand Central Palace today. It is the most extensive exhibition of dogs ever shown in this country. In competition with the best of the domestic bred dogs are scores of pedigreed canines recently imported from England, Scotland and Ireland. For the first time in the history of the club, bulldogs head the list of entries. The growth of the popularity of this breed is shown by a total of 189 entries, which is fifty more than last year. Among the number is several of the former British champions recently brought to this country by Arnold Lawson, of Boston. Airedale terriers occupy second place on the list of entries. Other breeds well represented are the collies, Irish terriers dachshunds and Boston terriers.

ANOTHER NEW RECORD.

Roy Love hung up a new record for individual point scoring in the N. P. H. S. Soph-Junior class match yesterday afternoon, chalking up 31 scores. This smashes Dunning's old mark of 22.

EXAMINATIONS FOR LEADERS.

NEW BRUNSWICK SEEKS ALIEN.

New Brunswick, Feb. 19.—Application will be made soon to Governor Wilson for extradition papers in the case of Charles Cohn, the man who was held at Ellis Island upon his arrival from Venezuela as an alien criminal not wanted here. Upon application of the authorities here it was decided by the Ellis Island Commission to let him in, so that he could be tried on a charge of being concerned in the sale of stolen horses, it being alleged he had a "fence" on his farm at Deans. Upon the warrant being served upon him by Detective John R. Ferguson, of this city, Cohn was committed to the Tombs in New York city for thirty days, pending extradition.

CRUSHED TO DEATH BY ENGINE.

Elizabeth, Feb. 19.—Failing to heed the approach of drill engine No. 63, John Gernandt, an aged employe of the Singer factory, crawled under the gates of the Central Railroad at Trumbull street, and was crushed to death. A fellow-workman who was with him did not see the engine until too late to warn him. The body was removed to Martin's morgue. Gernandt had been employed at the Singer factory forty years. His wife died three weeks ago. Two sons and three daughters survive him. He lived at 425 Bond street.

VOTES FOR WOMEN SCORES IN SENATE

Upper House Passes Resolution Providing for Constitutional Amendment.

ASSEMBLY DOUBTFUL

Vote in Senate Fourteen to Five, Fielder, Leavitt, Barber, Slocum and Munson Opposing the Measure.

Trenton, Feb. 20.—After a brief spirited debate, the Senate concurrent resolution providing for a constitutional amendment for women's suffrage, and which was introduced by Senator Davis, passed in the Senate yesterday by a vot eof 14 to 5. The Senators voting in the negative were Messrs. Fielder, Leavitt, Barber, Slocum and Munson.

The fate of the resolution in the House of Assembly is uncertain.

The organized suffragists will not depend entirely on the resolution, but if the constitutional amendment law is passed by the Legislature, will make a fight in the convention for women's suffrage in the new constitution, which would be a quicker method of obtaining the rights they desire.

DUNELLEN INTERESTED IN WINGES' ODDITIES

Armed Patrol, Canings, Sidewalk Embargo, Spite Fence Are Alleged.

Mrs. Lydia Vail and Mrs. Louis Schneider, of Dunellen, appeared before Justice Rene P. F. VonMinden, of New Market, last night, and swore out a warrant for the arrest of William J. Winges, who lives on Lincoln avenue, Dunellen. The warrant charges disorderly conduct, but may be changed to cover alleged assault and battery. Winges is alleged to have grabbed Madison Vail, son of Mars. Vail, who was roller skating on the walk in front of his house yesterday and slapped his face after shaking him. Charles Noble, another boy, who was with young Vail, was also slapped it is asserted. On other occasions, it is asserted, Winges used a cane on boys who roller-skated past his residence on Lincoln avenue. Schneider alleges that Winges has borne a grudge against him since a dispute between them over the construction of the Winges house. Schneider is a carpenter.

Winges, it is alleged, has a habit of patrolling in front of his property with a cane or a shot gun. He is said to have refused to permit women with baby carriages to walk on the sidewalk. His comment at such times is said to have been to the effect that he did not lay the walk as a public thoroughfare. Last week Winges is said to have appeared on patrol in front of the house in a full dress suit, with a shot gun over his shoulder. Several times within the past week he has fired off the gun, neighbors say. The muzzle was elevated each time and no damage was done. Nobody was threatened. Winges has started to erect a nine foot fence about his property. The property owners of Front street in that vicinity have entered complaints with the Dunellen mayor, alleging that the proposed fence is a menace to property around, as it is not of fire proof material as the borough ordinances require. What the complainants really fear is that Winges will have the fence covered with advertisements.

Up to noon today the warrant sworn out by Mrs. Vail and Mrs. Schneider had not been served. Marshal Davenport expected to serve the paper and have Winges appear before the Justice before 5 o'clock this afternoon.

W. R. C. ENTERTAINMENT.

ANOTHER BACKWARD STEP IN U. S. P. O. DEPARTMENT

Postmaster E. H. Bird announces that beginning March 4 there will be a change in the collection of Sunday mail from local letter-boxes. At present it is the rule to collect mail from all boxes on Sunday, but after that date the collections will be made only from boxes in the centre of the city. Just what will constitute the dividing line between the residential and business sections has not yet been determined by Mr. Bird.

Mr. Bird has just returned from a trip to Washington where he sought an appropriation for Sunday mail collections. When the matter was explained, the postmaster's request was denied. He was informed that the postal authorities are rapidly abolishing the practice of collecting mail from boxes on Sunday. The appropriation not being allowed, Mr. Bird will be obliged to curtail the Sunday work in this city.

MISSIONS TOPIC FOR CONVENTION

Stirring Addresses at Conference of the Four Local Baptist Churches.

THREE DAYS' SESSION

Exhibit a Marked Feature of the Meetings—Missionaries Give Helpful Talks—A "Missionary Tea" is Given.

Stirring addresses on foreign missionary work were given at this afternoon's session of the Missionary Convention and Institute being held at the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the First, Park Avenue, Temple and Seventh-Day Baptist churches. Miss Frances Tencate, of India, and Mrs. J. V. Lattimer, of Huchow, China, were the speakers representing the foreign field, while Mrs. Lucie Rising, assistant to Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, of the First Baptist church, gave an interesting talk on "Our Training Schools," showing what is being accomplished there in preparing young women for mission work.

Miss Tencate, one of the best known of the denomination missionaries, who has just returned from her field at Nellore, India, gave an instructive address of the great progress being made by the Baptists in India. Her talk was full of interest and gave the large audience perhaps a clearer idea as to just what is being done in spreading the Gospel in that country. Miss Tencate drew entirely from her personal experience in her address and aroused a deeper interest in this work.

Mrs. J. V. Lattimer, whose mission station is at Huchow, China, told somewhat in detail of the mission work being done there, especially in the light of the great changes that have been going on in that country during the past year. Her talk was full of encouragement, especially when she told of the eagerness with which the natives accept Christ and of their desire to study the Bible.

It being impossible for Miss Rebecca Davie, of Spelman Seminary, Georgia, to remain for the afternoon session, she gave her address this morning at the school of methods, telling of her work, and Miss Grace Deland who is one of the recognized leaders in social settlement work in New York, gave an inspiring address this afternoon, taking the place of Miss Davie on the program. Miss Deland told of the great work that is being carried on in the settlements of New York, telling how the girls and women are being helped to live Christian lives and of the efforts being made to save them from the thousands of temptations with which they are confronted.

This afternoon between 4 and 5 o'clock there will be a "missionary tea," to be served by women in costume representing the different mission fields. There will also be picturesque exercises.

Following the devotional exercises this evening, Rev. Dr. Frank S Dobbins, of Philadelphia, will give his illustrated lecture on "China In the Transition," which has attracted widespread comment. Mrs. A. B Coleman, of Boston, will also make an address on "The Voices of Women," concluding with a "Missionary Drama."

The session this morning consisted of a "school of methods," conducted by Mrs. E. O. Silver, of East Orange, one of the State directors of foreign missionary work. The organization, aim and other features of mission work were presented by mission leaders during an informal discussion, after which Miss Davie gave her talk on Spelman Seminary. Special musical features have been arranged for the remaining sessions of the convention.

Services preparatory to the missionary convention and institute, which began this morning, were held at the First Baptist church, last night. Rev. Dr. Philip B. Strong, the pastor of the church, was in charge and there were short addresses by Mrs. A. A. Palmer, one of the State directors of the Baptist Home Missionary Society; Miss Frances Tencate, of India, and Miss Rebeca Davie, of Spelman Seminary, Georgia. The service was planned as one of inspiration and consecration. It was largely attended. Preceding the talks there was a song service with violin solos by Miss Florence Wohlfert.

Dr. Strong outlined briefly the purpose of the convention, it being to arouse a missionary interest and to bring together more closely the Baptists of the city, and he expressed the hope that not only the Baptists, but those of all denominations would receive a blessing. He said that the First Baptist church had planned three great undertakings, the missionary convention, the raising of $10,000 for the annual budget and the campaing to double the membership of the Bible school. Dr. Strong believed that the missionary spirit

MARTINE SECURES INCREASE FOR P. O.

Mayor Percy H. Stewart received a telegram from United States Senator James E. Martine, this afternoon, informing him that he had been successful in securing an additional appropriation of $50,000 for the proposed Federal building in this city. Mr. Stewart declined to comment on the telegram, not feeling sure as to whether the extra appropriation had finally been passed upon by both the Senate and Congress.

If the $50,000 is available, it would make the total amount for building $120,000, which, it is believed, would provide an adequate structure. There will be a meeting of citizens at the Mayor's office tonight at 8 o'clock to give expression to their opinions on the subject.

Mayor Stewart today received a message from Congressman William E. Tuttle to the effect that he will not be able to be present at the public hearing tonight at the Mayor's office when the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield will voice their wishes regarding the erection of the proposed postoffice building.

Congressman Tuttle expressed the opinion that Senator Martine may be able to obtain the $50,000 appropriation desired at the present session.

It would not be amiss, it is believed by many, should the citizens tonight request Mayor Stewart to personally go to Washington and urge upon Senator Martine that everything possible be done by him to get the extra amount at the present session.

POULTRY RAISERS HEAR LECTURE ON INCUBATION

Members of the New Jersey Poultry Improvement Association were addressed at their meeting last night in Coward's Hall, 109 Park avenue, by H. A. Burger, of New York, who delivered a lengthy discourse on "Artificial Incubation and Brooding." Although the lecture was highly interesting and showed that the speaker possessed a thorough knowledge of the subject, his ideas in many incidents were not in harmony with those of the members.

It was announced that the association had officially been accepted as a member by the American Poultry Association. The latter organization will soon hold its thirty-eighth annual convention and the New Jersey representatives have been asked by the local association to endeavor to have the annual meeting of the national body held in Atlantic City the second week in September.

The following poultry raisers became members last night: Loring Wiggs, of Mountainside, and R. G. Morse, Mrs. R. G. Morse and John J. Heines, all of Plainfield. The next meeting of the association will be held Wednesday, March 19.

P. S. VAN ZANDT'S FUNERAL.

The funesal service for Peter Stryker VanZandt, who died at the hospital Monday night following a delicate operation on the throat, was held at his late home this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Rev. Dr. E. G. Read, a retired minister who was formerly pastor of the Second Reformed church, of Somerville, of which Mr. VanZandt was a member, officiated. Large floral displays were sent to the briar of the deceased. Among them were large wreaths and bouquets from his employer, F. L. C. Martin and former employer, Fred Ivamy Interment was made in the Somerville cemetery.

BELT LINE AUTO SERVICE.

Promoters of the proposed motor bus transportation line in Plainfield announce that it will probably be put in operation by March 15. The fact that Plainfield and the vicinity is growing rapidly and that the trolley service does not reach all of these points, affords an unusual opportunity for the introduction of the motor bus here. Stock is rapidly being subscribed for. It is proposed to operate 32-passenger Saurer busses in this city on a belt line route, with a nominal fare to all points.

DISTRICT COURT.

In the District Court this morning Judge Walter L. Hetfield gave a verdict of $45 for Isidore Devin in an action against Julius Velinski to recover the amount to be paid for a horse Levinski bought from plaintiff. The defendant claimed that he did not buy the horse but took it on trial and the animal did not suit him. The Newark Lumber Company, plaintiff, was awarded a verdict of $256.28 for a recovery under note against F. W. Helms and Company, defendants.

LOCAL REALTY TRANSFERS.

The following realty transfers have been recorded in the office of the county registrar: Joseph Hendelman et ux. to Wolf Ox et al., southeasterly side South Second street, 187 feet southwesterly of Evona avenue, Plainfield, $1; Harry Kohn et al. to John Q. A. Fullerton, Second street, corner Ira Dunn's, Plainfield, $1.

ANNIVERSARY OF BOROUGH CHURCH

Grace M. E. Congregation Celebrates Twentieth Year of Their Usefulness.

REVIEW OF ITS CAREER

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll Delivers Historical Sketch and Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes Preaches the Sermon—Large Congregation.

Rev. Dr. Henry K. Carroll, of North Plainfield, pastor of the Scotch Plains M. E. church, was the principal speaker at the twentieth anniversary celebration service of Grace M. E. church, last night. Rev. Dr. A. W. Hayes, pastor of the Westfield M. E. church, delivered a sermon on "Power."

In giving the history of the parish, Rev. Dr. Carroll said: "It has been just twenty years since the Grace M. E. church became a separate, independent body, with a name, an edifice, a membership and a burning zeal to make history. It is well that we pause a moment at the point where the history-making of this church began and recall some of the circumstances of its origin. Every such enterprise is born of the creative spirit of devoted men and women. Back of the little company that gathered here twenty years ago was another larger company of which it had been a part, generous enough to buy the ground and to build and furnish the edifice, almost beggaring themselves to meet the heavy expense. They created a property worth $12,000 or $15,000, and immediately made it over to the new captain and crew. Then with a hearty cheer and a somewhat tremulous good bye and good voyage they turned back to take up their own burden, including the Monroe Avenue enterprise, and though they had been weakened in number and strength by what they gave to Grace church, they were mighty in spirit and strong in faith and God has helped and prospered

SYSTEMATIC SAVINGS PLAN HUGE SUCCESS

The enthusiasm which The Plainfield Trust Company's Christmas Savings Club has aroused is now at its height and already, at the end of four days, nearly five hundred more members have been received than were enrolled in the same period last year. Probably no more popular plan for systematic saving has ever been introduced in this city and the idea of distributing the checks two weeks before Christmas makes a strong appeal to everyone.

On Monday, the opening day, the company opened on an average of 200 Christmas Savings Club accounts an hour and applicants for membership are still coming in crowds and are being handled with great dispatch. Those who have been unable to come in person have delegated others to call at the bank for them and have their names enrolled. There is a more active demand this year for Classes 5-A and 2-A, calling for the highest payment first and the new $1.00 a week class was at once so popular that the supply of these membership cards became exhausted when the club had been in operation only a short time.

A large supply of this class has been ordered and will be ready for distribution on Monday.

Saturday being Washington's Birthday, the club will be closed but there still remain seven business days on which members will be received. It is suggested, however, that those who wish to join come as early as possible so that they may experience no difficulty in securing the kind of memberships desired.

COLORED CHAUFFEUR IS SHOWN LENIENCY

Two Charges Against Cruse Dismissed and He is Fined $40 and Costs on Third.

William Cruse, colored, of 625 West Fourth street, who was arrested in North Plainfield, Saturday night, on three charges of violating the automobile law, was arraigned before Recorder M. F. Gano, last night, and following a hearing was fined $40 and the costs of the court. Cruse was charged with running an automobile without a license, of driving the car without the permission of the owner, Richard Overland, and of reckless driving. Samuel S. Swackhamer, of the firm of Swackhamer & Bird, appeared as counsel for Cruse.

Cruse, through his counsel, acknowledged his technical guilt of driving a car without a license, but Mr. Swackhamer argued that the violation was not intentional, but rather that his client was a victim of circumstances. It was stated that the chauffeur received $6 a week salary, but when business was slow his pay was less than that. But he was able to save enough from his earnings to purchase a license. In disposing of the case Recorder Gano threw out two of the charges, that of operating a car without the owner's permission and reckless driving, imposing the fine on the other charge of running the car without a license.

A. E. Murphy, of Arlington avenue, who accompanied Cruse on the auto trip, is now serving a five-day sentence in the borough jail for his part in the affair. Miss Margaret Duncan, colored, a third member of the party on the hilarious ride, gave her testimony at the hearing under the tutelage of her counsel, Robert Newton Crane.

DOZEN DOGS POISONED IN SOUTH PLAINFIELD

The dog poisoner is at work again in South Plainfield, where during the past two weeks there has been a wholesale slaughter of valuable canines. The owners are indignant and in addition to offering rewards for information leading to the arrest of the guilty parties, plans are underway for holding a public meeting to take steps to bring the guilty ones to justice.

Thus far about a dozen dogs have been poisoned and several others are reported sick. Those who have lost dogs are George W. Smith, J. L. Ten Eyck, Harry Sofield, Robert Horn, James Galligan, Samuel Shields, Dennis Harlow, James Morris, while the Watchung Hunt Club and John Miles have each lost two valuable dogs.

Several months ago owners of dogs in South Plainfield suffered a similar loss, but no trace of the guilty persons could be obtained. So far as known none of the dogs that were victims of the poisoner had given any particular offense and were not generally considered a nuisance.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF MY SON

HAROLD LAWRENCE BURLINGAME MULFORD

Born January 30th, 1891; Died February 20th, 1910

"His was a loyal heart, a brave spirit, and a life that was good and true."

There are souls born into this world who have the gift of finding joy, contentment and love everywhere. They give light without meaning to shine, and they leave it behind them when they pass from this life. Their influence for good while here and when absent is still felt, their kindness and helpfulness, cheery words and happiness still gladden and encourage the hearts of those they have left.

Such a one was my dear son. Some names and faces, as time goes on, fade from the memory. Yet Harold's is dearer than ever. Three years ago today, on Sunday, February the twentieth, at six-thirty in the morning, he passed from our midst, leaving a record filled with the dearest deeds of thoughtfulness and kindness, ones we will never forget, and that were remarkable in one so young, and rarely equaled in this world.

How bravely he left us; not a word of complaint did he utter throughout all those days of terrible suffering. He faced the shadow with tenderest words of love and thoughtfulness for "Dearest Mom" and "Pop," as he always called us, not one selfish wish or thought of self ever passed his dear lips.

With great courage he went on alone to meet in that brighter and happier land his own dear father, Samuel Potter Mulford, who passed into the "Great Beyond" seventeen years ago.

Since our dear, precious son's going we have missed him more than we are able to express in mere words, but we are the better for his having lived.

And when our time comes we shall look for his dear face, the first to break the mist as we, too, cross the border.

I believe my dear boy is watching over us, is helping us all he can, and is preparing a place for us, and our going will be the easier knowing that he is there.

God keep you, dearest, is our prayer, and bless you and love you, protect and guide you until we meet again.

Lovingly and Devotedly

POLITICS AND POLITICIANS

It is said that President Wilson's inaugural message will be one of the shortest on record.

Judge W. W. Graves, of the Missouri supreme court, is mentioned as a possible successor to William J. Stone in the United States Senate.

Racine, Wis., will hold a special election on April 1 to decide whether the city shall adopt the commission plan of government.

Friends of Congressman Frank B. Willis understand that he intends to enter the race for the Republican nomination for governor of Ohio next year.

Permanent headquarters of the Republican party, in charge of James B. Reynolds, secretary of the national committee, will be opened in Washington about April 1.

That woman suffrage will be in effect all over the United States by 1920 is the prophecy of Dr. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National Equal Suffrage League.

The first formal address of President Wilson after his inauguration probably will be delivered at the Grover Cleveland anniversary exercises in New York on March 18.

Representative William B. Wilson, chairman of the House committee on labor, is to be tendered a farewell dinner, to mark his retirement from Congress, and in appreciation of his services to organized labor, by the Central Labor Union of Washington.

Gen. Powell Clayton, who recently retired as the Arkansas member of the National Republican Committee, is believed to be the only man living who has sat as a delegate in every Republican national convention since the party was first organized.

Three delegates have been appointed by the hoboe's union to attend the inaugural of President-elect Wilson. They will make an effort to present him with a document describing how their constitutional right to liberty is interfered with by the authorities in various States.

Henry Morgenthau, the New York lawyer, who is among those prominently mentioned for a place in the Wilson cabinet, was born in Germany fifty-seven years ago. As a child he accompanied his parents to America and was educated in the public schools of New York and at the College of the City of New York.

Governor Brown, of Georgia, has appointed Senator Bacon to serve as United States Senator for the period between March 4 and the time of Senator Bacon's formal re-election by the Legislature next June. Mr. Bacon's present term expires March 4, but he was nominated for another term in the Democratic primaries in Georgia last fall.

William R. Webb, recently sworn in as Tennessee's United States Senator to succeed Newell Sanders, is a Confederate army veteran. While serving in the Fifteenth North Carolina Infantry he was wounded three times in the battle of Melvern Hill. During the greater part of the time since the close of the war Professor Webb has been engaged in conducting a private school at Culleoka, Tenn., where William J. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and the late ex-Senator Edward W. Carmack were educated.

MAN AND WIFE CONVICTED.

Elizabeth, Feb. 20.—Benjamin Slavin and his wife, Rebecca, of St. George avenue, Roselle, were convicted in the Court of Quarter Sessions of illegal liquor selling at their grocery store, which was raided on January 20. The jury was out but ten minutes. A recommendation for mercy for Mrs. Slavin was included in the verdict. Testifying in their own defence, the couple denied that they sold liquor in any form at their place. Called by the State in rebuttal during the afternoon, John Galatian, county detective, who procured most of the evidence against the couple, assailed Van S. Roosa, a witness. Rossa, who is a justice of the peace in Roselle, previously testified for the defense.

AGAIN STOP RAILROAD FROM LAYING TRACKS

Jersey City, Feb. 20.—For the third time within a month, the Central Railroad has attempted to take possession of a portion of Bramhall avenue, this city. Patrolman Ryan heard the pounding of hammers, and saw the flicker of the oil lamps. He observed about 200 men laboring with ties and track.

Ryan 'phoned to the Communipaw avenue station, and soon had the reserves, with Lieutenant Booth in command, on the job. The work was stopped. The Street and Water Board has held up the permit of the railroad for several months.

FATHER, SHOT BY SON, IN WORSE CONDITION

Red Bank, Feb. 20.—The condition of James Gray, of Pleasant Valley near here, who was shot Friday night by his son, Claude Gray, aged sixteen, is growing serious. It is feared he has bloodpoisoning.

After shooting his father the boy disappeared, but was captured in Harrisburg, Pa., and today was brought to Red Bank by County Detective Elwood Minugh. Arraigned before Justice James H. Sickles, Gray pleaded guilty to two charges of atrocious assault and battery, with intent to kill, and grand larceny in stealing his father's horse and carriage. He was held under $1,000 bail for the grand jury.

CAPTURES COUPLE AND REGAINS WIFE AND BABY

Perth Amboy, Feb. 20.—Foregoing police assistance and trailing his quarry from Chester, Pa., Walter Zierkowski captured Joseph Muchowicz and took him to police headquarters, where he charged him with running away with Mrs. Zierkowski. The woman was found later in Tottenville, Staten Island, with her baby, which is not yet three months old.

Since last Friday Zierkowski has been following his wife, and with two friends, reached Perth Amboy yesterday morning. The three found Muchowicz and they alleged in searching him they discovered Zierkowski's purse, containing $41, and Mrs. Zierkowski's address in Tottenville.

Before Recorder Pickersgill yesterday Zierkowski and his wife were reconciled and Muchowicz was given a thirty-day sentence in the county jail.

SALOON-KEEPER IS HELD AFTER AUTOPSY ON WIFE

Jersey City, Feb. 20.—Following County Physician George King's report that Mrs. Katherine Hayes met her death from external violence, Edward J. Hayes, a Jersey City saloonkeeper, was held yesterday without bail for further examination by Judge Queen. Alexius Iwanek, the porter, who was the only eyewitness of Hayes' alleged fatal attack on his wife, was held under $2,000 bail.

Dr. King, who performed the autopsy yesterday afternoon, said that he believed death resulted from a solar plexus blow. The physician also reported that he had discovered a hemorrhage of the brain.

That, as was first asserted, the dead woman had been drinking with her husband is said to be untrue. Mrs. Hayes had advanced the money to her husband for the saloon at 34 Montgomery street, and came to the place to plead with him to sell out and enter another business.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

Professor Mertz, head of the North Plainfield High School English department, has compiled a list of subjects for the graduating class to choose from in writing their graduation essays. The Sigma Gamma Kappa club is circulating among its members in an effort to organize a glee club.

SENATOR'S BROTHER FOR INAUGURATION BLUECOAT

Paterson, Feb. 20.—Motorcycle Policeman John Hughes, brother of United States Senator-elect William Hughes, has been detailed by Chief of Police John Bimson, to do duty in Washington during the inauguration. The chiefs of police throughout the country are requested by the authorities of the District of Columbia to send men to Washington at each inauguration to recognize and pick up crooks from various cities. Chief Bimson received a request for one man this morning, and designated Policeman Hughes.

Officer Hughes before his appointment to the police force was a cavalryman in the regular army.

MOTHER OF EIGHT FAILS IN STRUGGLE ON FARM

New Providence, Feb. 20.—Struggling in vain to carry on the farm work after her husband was sent to State prison six months ago, Mrs. Stevano Pietrowsky, of Great Swamp, Chatham Township, is now suffering from pneumonia in Overlook Hospital, Summit, and her eight children have been distributed among her neighbors. The woman is a linguist, speaking four languages.

Mrs. Pietrewsky appealed for help a week ago to the authorities in Chatham, and was found Monday at her home lying on a mattress on the floor, ill from pneumonia. She was without fire or food. The ambulance from the hospital, in returning with her, became fast in the mud, and was delayed more than three-quarters of an hour.

The husband was sentenced for wife-beating. His wife undertook to run the farm, but with the strain of caring for the live stock there was added anxiety over the death of many of the cattle. She did not ask the neighbors for assistance, and none of them, it is said, realized the straits of the family.

ASKS RECEIVER FOR "PAPER BAG TRUST"

Trenton, Feb. 20.—Upon application of Mrs. Sarah S. Aldrich, of Glen Falls, N. Y., and others, Chancellor Walker has fixed Saturday, March 8, as the date for a hearing on the petition asking for the appointment of a receiver for the Union Bag and Paper Company.

The defendant corporation is a New Jersey company, having an authorized capital stock of $27,000,000. It is engaged in the manufacture of paper bags, paper, pulp and wood products, and has plants in various sections of this country and Canada.

The appointment of a receiver is asked rather upon the ground of mismanagement than insolvency. The petitioners allege that the president of the company, Edward C. Barrett, is a man without practical training in the business, while the other officers and directors are also lacking in practical experience, having been chosen from among the small stockholders. The petition charges that the company, notwithstanding splendid facilities, has been operated at a loss and has been conducted for the benefit of the inner circle rather than for the bulk of the stockholders.

SAYS POLICE EMPLOYES MAY SEEK ADVANCEMENT

Trenton, Feb. 20.—In the opinion of Assistant Attorney General Nelson B. Gaskill, there is nothing in Chapter 99 of the laws of 1912 to restrict employes of a police department in taking civil service examinations for higher positions. The opinion has been given to the commission, which asked for a ruling on request of Thomas J. Scully, a Newark patrol driver.

The opinion is to the effect that the only obstacle to such examinations would be in rules laid down by the commission or police department that conflict with the provisions of the act.

The act makes all drivers, attendants, telegraph linemen, janitors, etc., now in the employ of such a department a part of the police force. It was contended by some in Essex county that this was primarily to include such employes in the number who might benefit by the police pension fund, but that they could not take examinations for higher positions in the department.

Mr. Gaskill said:

"I cannot find anything in the act referred to, or in the civil service law, establishing such restrictions. Unless, therefore, something of this nature is to be found in the rules of the commission, or in the regulations of the particular Police Commission having jurisdiction over the applicant to whom your question refers, it would seem to me that the right to take examinations for promotion in the police department appertains to any of its members."

A BLUE SKY LAW.

There was introduced into the Legislature last week an act which in Kansas is called the Blue Sky Law. It provides for the regulation of the sale of securities to the people of the State. Its object is to protect investors from fraud and deceit. If it becomes a law no person or corporation can offer for sale in this State any stocks or bonds without first securing a certificate from the Commissioner of Banking and Insurance of this State that the stock or bonds offered represent value.

Why is not that a good law? How many women, and even men of affairs, are cheated annually by having put off upon them worthless securities? No one knows, but all know the fact that they are numerous. A plausible agent with a handsomely engraved certificate, will approach you now with a proposition to invest and you are very likely to buy on his statements of the probable large dividends to be derived, and frequently it turns out you have been duped. The proposed law will require him to present a certificate as to the security he offers and if he has not got it you will then know he is misrepresenting and it is not safe to buy.

It is said that Wall Street bond brokers are terror stricken by the proposed act. Why? Any one having a good thing to sell should be glad to submit it to some official who can inquire into it and give it approval. With such a certificate sale would be easy. A man with an honest stock or bond for sale should be rejoiced to have it vouched for by such a public official and he can then approach a customer without fear and the investor can buy with some assurance of getting value. It should be the very best means of selling the stock or bond.

It may be that the pending act is crude and it may need some modification, but the principle is absolutely right and the Legislature should make it a law and provide for strict penalty for a failure to comply with it by any person or corporation selling securities in this State. Governor Stubs declares the act has saved the people of Kansas millions by preventing them from being deceived into purchasing stocks and bonds which were valueless, or practically so. No person or corporation wishing to market honest securities will object to such a law and those who wish to do otherwise should not be considered.

WHY NOT?

The Elizabeth Daily Journal hopes that Plainfield will adopt the commission form of government for, as it asserts, this is an ideal community for that plan of municipal rule and the object lesson would be of great material benefit to other municipalities in New Jersey.

Says the Journal:

"Plainfield may be the first municipality in Union county to adopt the Walsh commission government act. With an idea of conducting an educational campaign, a meeting of prominent citizens was held in that city on Saturday to take the initial steps toward forming an organization. Petitions will soon be placed in circulation, it is reported, calling for a special election, when the people will be given an opportunity to say whether they want government by commission or not.

Plainfield would be an excellent city to try out the Walsh act. Though political feeling has at times run high in that place, the factional differences and party strife have not in recent years reached such advanced stages as other cities in New Jersey have been forced to witness. Commission rule in Passaic, Trenton and Atlantic City is suffering form a continual pounding by its enemies, who do not want to see it succeed. The various political factions have refused to forget their differences, and have gone on fighting after the adoption of the Walsh act, declining to give the commission rule idea any quarter at all. As a result it may be said that the new plan of municipal rule has so far never been tried under entirely favorable circumstances.

Plainfield now has an excellent opportunity to show the State what there is in the Walsh act. It is already a well-governed municipality. It would take up the new plan, therefore, with no handicaps. There is strong public sentiment there, too, which would probably mean the selection of the best type of commissioner who could be depended upon to work in harmony for the best interests of Plainfield.

"What's Your Name?"—"What."

A guild of godparents to save children from incongruous names is being suggested. The late Canon Bardsley, author of a book on English names, told the story of what was probably the most idiotic name ever bestowed upon an unfortunate infant. MADERO'S FAILURE DUE TO NEPOTISM

He Put 150 Members of His Family In Power.

IS TOOL OF UNSCRUPULOUS

Nation Exploited to Verge of Bankruptcy by the Avaricious Officials. President Ruthlessly Broke His Promises of Relief to Downtrodden Peons—Pledged to Divide Lands.

A man of the highest patriotism and loftiest ideals, both before and during the revolution which he led against Porfirio Diaz in 1910, Francisco I. Madero rapidly developed tyrannical methods with his accession to the presidency of Mexico in the autumn of 1911.

Not alone has Madero failed, it is charged, to keep the pledges he made to the people when he called for their support on the platform of San Luis Potosi, but his administration has been marked by ruthless extravagance, bad politics and nepotism. For the latter the ambition of the members of his family, notably his brother and minister of finance, Gustavo Madero, has been held largely responsible.

Madero Family Seize Offices.

The Maderos as a family opposed the uprising against Diaz, holding that the latter was too strong ever to be overthrown. With Francisco Madero's success, for which the United States was largely responsible, the entire Madero family—and there are more than 150 of them—moved on to Mexico City and appropriated everything in the way of desirable and lucrative offices. The president has been absolutely dominated by his brother Gustavo.

The latter is the direct antithesis of the executive. He is a strong, forceful personality, a man of courage, initiative, cunning and unusual ability. Under his financial management the country in a little more than a year has been brought to the very brink of bankruptcy. It has been charged that the Madero family has become enriched as the country has become impoverished, although his worst enemy has never charged the president himself with being money dishonest.

It is doubtful, however, if any man who ever ruled south of the Rio Grande has been an easier tool in the hands of unscrupulous officials.

Men familiar with the real situation in Mexico predict a long period of disorder before the country settles down again.

Decline of Madero Regime.

The Madero regime has been tottering to its fall for six months. When Senor Calero, late minister to Washington, stated in the Mexican congress recently that he had been lying to the United States government for ten months in telling it that Madero had the malcontents throughout the republic under control he stated what everybody in the City of Mexico and many persons in Washington knew perfectly well.

That Madero was not forced from his place months ago was due to the belief throughout Mexico that the United States was supporting his administration. Much as Mexicans, as a rule, hate Americans, they have a wholesome respect for the United States government.

From the first Madero was an easy target for his enemies. His failure to fulfill the chief pledge contained in the program of San Luis Potosi made him vulnerable. This was the pledge to divide the land among the people when he had conquered Diaz—in other words, to break up the great estates so that the poor man could buy a small plot of land and actually own it.

This was the platform on which Madero went to war and on which he fought his way to victory. From the first he was bitterly opposed by the Cientifico group. The Cientificos are not a party. The word is one applied largely in derision to the great landed proprietors who ruled Mexico with an iron hand in the Diaz regime.

During his time in the presidency Madero has never made a move to break up the great estates. Rebuked for this at different times, his reply has been that he could not do everything at once and that he must have time. The division of the land, however, was something the people had fought for, and they were not patient. Within six months the country was ripe for a revolution against Madero, and the agitators were not slow to take advantage of the situation.

Nation's Financial Woes.

Madero has had a stormy time as president of the republic. When he was elected there was approximately $40,000,000 in the treasury. This fund was exhausted; also a loan of $20,000,000 which Gustavo Madero negotiated abroad. Another loan was being arranged when the present uprising occurred. So to the charge of betraying the masses by failing to put through the land laws was added the charge of extravagance. It is said that more than 100 of Madero's relatives have been holding office under his administration.

Many petty tyrannies have been charged against Madero the last year. He has been accused of trying to arrange the personnel of the legislative bodies to suit himself instead of leaving it to the voters. Methods of this sort smacked too much of the Diaz regime to satisfy the masses.

Those work seekers who expect to find a job through one publication of a want ad are sometimes disappointed—though not always.

PLAN TO CELEBRATE FREEDOM OF SLAVES

Colored People Hear Addresses by Organizers of a big Movement.

Over six hundred people gathered at a colored mass meeting held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church last night to listen to the two organizers sent here to arouse interest in the State-wide plan to properly observe the fiftieth anniversary of the signing of the Emancipation Proclamation in September. Rev. Frederick D. Tildon presided and introduced Salmon R. Hood, and James White, organizers in the movement appointed by Governor Wilson.

The speakers outlined the campaign as it is being waged and urged all of the colored populace to lend all the enthusiasm that they can muster to assist in promoting the plan. The organizers came here chiefly to ascertain the amount of realty owned by the local colored population and the work most commonly followed. It is planned to have an exhibition in Trenton or Philadelphia in September and at that time every line of industry will be represented. It has not been definitely decided where the exposition will be held as the governors of the two States have set aside the same appropriation and representatives of each are expected to meet during the coming week and select either one or the other of these places.

At the meeting last night a union choir from all of the colored churches in this city rendered several selections. Dr. J. C. Anderson was chairman of the citizens' committee and Dr. Lawson acted as chairman of the program committee.

Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy spoke to the colored congregation in words of a congratulatory nature, emphasizing the equality of all men as far as birth and the law are concerned and outlined the great progress the negro race has taken during the last half century and the great future before the colored people of today.

aroused would be a great help in carrying out the last two named plans.

Reference was also made by Dr. Strong that he hoped within the next five years to see a fine Sunday-school building built on the land adjoining the church. In connection with his devotional talk, Dr. Strong gave a reading of the Twenty-third Psalm in the translation and with the pronunciation of the days of Wycliffe, over six hundred years ago; also a beautiful paraphrase of the same Psalm in vogue among the Kiowa Indians.

Mrs. A. W. Palmer, representing State home missions, said that the institute offered a wonderful opportunity. It is the first time she could recall a similar convention planned by the pastor of a church, and she felt sure that it would result in incalculable good. She also emphasized the importance of the exhibit being held in connection with the convention.

Miss Davie brought greetings from Spelman Seminary in Georgia, and briefly spoke of the work being done there for the colored girls. She said that there were 600 girls at the seminary last year and 100 had to be turned away for lack of accommodations. Miss Davie said that the one purpose of the work at the seminary is to educate the girls and make it possible for them to earn an honest living and to also be a help to their own people.

Miss Tencate in bringing greetings from the church in India, said that there was one word about missions that she didn't like and that was "foreign." She said that the missionaries were no more "foreign" than those who are at home. "Some stay at home and sing their souls away to perfect bliss, willing that others should do the work," said Miss Tencate, "but I think that all true disciples are missionaries. I bring you greetings from the church in India. Our church in America is not so far ahead of the one in India judging by the progress made in recent years."

The exhibit which is being held in connection with the convention is located in the Sunday-school room and is considered one of the best and most complete of the kind ever shown. Every country is represented, including China, Japan, Africa, India, as well as the home mission fields, including Mexico, Utah, the South, etc. Many of the articles exhibited are loaned by the Baptist Board of Home and Foreign Missions at Boston and New York. Several Plainfielders have also loaned articles, and the African exhibit by Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, as well as the China exhibit, which has been made attractive through articles loaned by Mr. and Mrs. Walter McGee, are especially noteworthy.

Among those who are in charge of the exhibit are Mrs. George White, Mrs. J. A. Powilson, Mrs. C. E. Nash, Mrs. Walter M. McGee, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire, Mrs. William Abbott, Mrs. Frances Bach, Mrs. Brown, Mrs. M. A. Zook, Miss Ida Yerkes, and they were assisted by a number of young people from the Sunday-school. Ample opportunity will be given all who desire to see the exhibit, arrangements having been made to have it open on Saturday.

ANNIVERSARY BORO CHURCH

them. Back of the two enterprises of the old church was a prophet like Joshua who, when he was well stricken in years, heard the voice of the Lord, saying 'There yet remaineth very much land to be possessed.' James McGee, of precious memory, was that prophet. All honor to his grave and aggressive spirit.

"The second fact worthy to be mentioned is that this church was born out of a revival in the days when the enterprise was a mission. We had two weeks of continuous services in which the new altar was consecrated by the prayers and praises of God's people to the conversion of sinners. Before we had a church book, before the name of a single member had been written on the roll, we dedicated our hearts and our lives to the service of the Lord, and besought Him so to fit us by the gift of the Holy Spirit and so to use us that it might be said in after days as in the days of Pentecost that the Lord added to this church daily such as were being saved.

"Nothing could be more appropriate than that this twentieth anniversary should be observed by an evangelistic service for this church was solemnly consecrated in the hour of its birth to the conversion of souls.

"The history of the mission, out of which this church grew, covered only about a year. It raised all its running expenses, including the salary of its pastor which, by the way, has never yet been paid, and was ready and anxious to take upon itself the obligations of a separate and independent church, in February, 1893. I was appointed pastor till the ensuing conference, by the Rev. C. S. Ryman, D. D., presiding elder of the Elizabeth District, and on a Sunday evening, February 26, after a sermon from the text, 'And so we builded the wall, for the people had a mind to work,' Neh. IV. 6, I read a certificate of transfer of upward of sixty members from the First church, including those of myself and family, and also I think, cerificates of transfer of two families from the Congregational church. The omnibus certificate of transfer was signed by Jesse Lyman Hurlbut, D. D., acting pastor of the First church, Dr. Mitchell having gone to a pastorate in Minneapolis. I remember that I told the people that this church was a Methodist Episcopal church to be conducted according to the rules of the Discipline, and advised all members to order a copy through me. A dozen or more did this immediately. There have come into this church members from the Congregational, Baptist, Reformed, Presbyterian, Episcopal, United Brethren and other denominations, but there has never arisen occasion since to emphasize the denominational relation of this church, nor has any trouble occurred on denominational lines. A denominational church is, in my opinion, much freer from sectarian disputes than a union church.

"Though most of our members have been received by letter, our altar has not been barren. We have won many from the unconverted multitude, and not a few converts at our altar have gone to other churches where their parents or other relatives belonged. The church has, therefore, justified its existence by conversions.

"To the first regular pastor, appointed at conference, a young man fresh from college, the Rev. H. F. Randolph, the church paid the first year $600 salary. The second year it jumped up to $1,000, and thus became a married man's appointment. The first pastor came unmarried and took away a wife; the second did likewise, the third followed the Godly example of his predecessors, and so on the score of humanity we had to build a parsonage. Our pastors have all gone to bigger, better fields. Mr. Randolph is pastor of one of the strongest churches in the conference, Montclair; Mr. Johnston, of the old, popular First church, Hoboken; Mr. Gardiner, of an excellent charge in Butler; Dr. Earp is a professor in Drew Theological Seminary. Dr. Parsons, of blessed memory, has gone up to his eternal reward; Mr. Shoop has a fine appointment in Pittsburgh."

Special music was another feature of the service. Herbert Harold, organist of the First Presbyterian church, presided at the organ. The choir contributed several anthems and Mrs. E. B. Young sang a solo. The meeting was brought to a close with a prayer by the pastor, Rev. C. C. Cain. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Hayes.

CLOWN AND WIFE AS MURDERERS

Their Trial for Killing Young Woman Begins in Chicago on Monday.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—All preparations have been completed for the opening on next Monday in the Criminal Court of the trial of Charles Kramer, alias Conway, a former circus clown, acrobat and high diver, and his alleged wife, Lillian Beatrice Ryall Conway, a vaudeville performer with a checkered past and many aliases, who are charged with having murdered Miss Sophia G. Singer, a wealthy young woman from Baltimore, on the night of October 28, 1912. The case has attracted considerable attention owing to the peculiarity of some of its features and the sensational circumstances under which Conway and his wife were arrested a few days after the murder.

Miss Sophia G. Singer, the victim of the crime, was the daughter of the late Frank O. Singer, formerly a wealthy business man in Baltimore. The family is well connected. Miss Singer was wealthy in her own name having inherited $30,000 ro mher father's estate. About a year ago she became acquainted with William R. Worthen, then a street railway conductor in Baltimore. She fell in love with him and early in October of last year she gathered together her jewels and about $1,000 in cash and eloped with Worthen to Chicago. They rented furnished rooms in a rooming house at 3229 Indiana avenue and lived there together to the day of the murder. Their room neighbors in the same apartment were Charles Kramer, alias Charles A. Conway, and his alleged wife, a vaudeville singer known as "Beatrice Ryall," "Mayme Coyne," "Grace Coyne" and Lillian Beatrice Ryall Conway. Kramer had formerly been a circus performer, but had lost one of his legs through an accident. It is alleged that Kramer and his wife were practically down and out and were befriended and financially assisted by Miss Singer and Worthen.

On the evening of October 28, Worthen left his sweetheart alone in their apartment and attended to some business matters. When he returned to the house shortly after midnight he found Miss Singer dead in her room. She had been bound and gagged and beaten to death with a "billy" improvised out of an iron door knob wrapped in a handkerchief. Her skull was crushed and her body had been rolled up in a blanket.

Worthen aroused the neighbors and informed the police, giving a minute account of his movements from the moment he left the house until he returned to the apartment and found the body of his sweetheart. He was arrested on suspicion and a thorough search of the apartment was made by the detectives. The investigation brought to light that Kramer and his wife had left the house between 10 and 11 o'clock on the evening of the murder and had not returned to their apartment. A thorough search was made for them as the police authorities began to suspect that the couple had something to do with the murder of Miss Singer.

It was known that Miss Singer had a considerable sum of money in her possession at the time of her death, but when the apartment was searched after the murder no money or jewelry was found by the detectives. Worthen was able to establish a complete alibi and was released from confinement after a day or two.

Kramer and his wife were traced through several States and on October 31 were arrested in a hotel at Lima, O., where they had arrived the same morning. They had registered as Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Crowley, of Sidney, O. Both denied all guilty knowledge of the details of the crime, although they admitted having read about it. Separately Kramer and his wife were closely questioned by the police and their statements were so conflicting, their attempts to clear themselves and to throw suspicion upon other persons, so clumsy, that both were held without bail and turned over to the Chicago police authorities.

When Kramer was arrested $11 were found in his pocket. He explained that before he left Chicago Miss Singer had given him $35. He also had two new suits which he claimed Miss Singer had given him. He had several scratches in his face for which he could give no plausible explanation. Through a chain of circumstantial evidence it was established that Kramer and his wife had left the house on Indiana avenue between 11 and 12 o'clock on October 28, a short time after Miss Singer met her death. It is believed that since the arrest of the couple the police authorities have collected a large amount of evidence of a serious nature and that upon the strength of this evidence the prosecution will demand that both defendants, if found guilty, be sentenced to pay the death penalty for their crime.

FOR COMMISSION GOV'T

ernment, but the Governor refused to approve the charter on the ground that it was unconstitutional. They will have to draft an entirely new document before they can change their form of government.

"A list of 206 cities, reported as having adopted the commission plan up to Dec. 31, 1911, was published in our issue of Apr. 4, 1912, p. 638. The reported adoptions by years are as follows: 1901, 1; 1905, 1; 1907, 9; 1908, 6; 1909, 29; 1910, 58; 1911, 95; 1912, 63. Doubtless the list is subject to corrections, but as it stands the total adoptions to date are 269. Although the accessions in 1912 were fewer than in 1911, they included New Orleans and St. Paul, with populations in 1910 of 339,075, and 214,744, respectively, each larger than any city which had previously adopted the plan. Altogether, eight cities of more than 100,000 population in 1910, and several which had nearly that then and probably equal or exceed it now, have adopted commission government.

"A number of other large cities, including Boston, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and Seattle, have one of the chief features of the commission plan, a small single-chambered City Council, but these cities retain their mayor and also maintain a separation of executive and legislative functions."

The Kitchen Cupboard

COOKING CALF'S LIVER.

LIVER is an economical and useful winter breakfast dish. Calf's liver if fresh and well cooked is really a culinary dainty. Soak the liver about ten minutes in hot water to set the blood; then it will be less unpleasant to handle. Take off the thick skin and the veins.

With Much Seasoning.

Larded Liver.—Take a nice plump calf's liver, rather white in color, and lard it with bacon. Put one-quarter of a pound of butter in a pan. When melted add a tablespoonful of flour, keep stirring until a nice yellow color, then put in the whole of the liver. Turn round now and then until it is a little firm, then add a pint of broth or water and a bouquet of parsley, thyme and bay leaves, a little salt, pepper, sugar and a little finely chopped onion. Simmer one hour. Take the fat off and the bouquet out, dish the liver with the onions around it. Reduce the sauce so that it adheres lightly to the back of the spoon, then pour the sauce over the liver and serve.

Casserole of Liver.—Take two pounds of liver, sliced and larded, three small onions, four small carrots, one-half cupful mushrooms, three sprigs of parsley and two cupfuls of tomato puree. Season with salt, pepper and celery salt and cover with one pint of stock or boiling water. Cook in the oven two and one-half hours. When serving thicken the gravy with two tablespoonfuls of flour and send to the table in the casserole in which it was cooked.

Piquant Viands.

Calf's Liver Saute.—Take two tablespoonfuls of butter and put in a frying pan with a tablespoonful of minced onion. When the butter is quite hot add three-quarters of a pound of calf's liver cut into thin slices, seasoned with pepper and salt and dredged with flour. Fry slowly till cooked through and nicely browned on both sides. Remove the liver and make the sauce by beating the yolk of an egg with a tablespoonful of butter, a dash of cayenne pepper and a little gravy. Heat but do not let it boil. Just before serving add gradually two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice. Garnish with fried croutons of bread and serve this dish very hot.

Liver With Chestnuts.—Parboil liver till tender, adding a slice of onion; then cut the liver into dice. Boil the chestnuts in salted water until soft, blanch and chop fine or rub through a coarse sieve. Mix well. To a teacupful each of liver and chestnuts add a teaspoonful of salt, one saltspoonful of white pepper, two tablespoonfuls of butter. Fill the dish with this, pour over it a cupful of milk, cover with crumbs and bits of butter and brown. Serve very hot.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Garwood held a successful evening meeting on Thursday, Feb. 13, the auditorium being packed to the doors with fathers, mothers, young men and women, children and teachers. Much enthusiasm was manifested.

Union County Supt. of Schools J. J. Savitz, of Westfield, gave a short talk on schools, methods and aims of teaching. An enjoyable program of musical numbers by members of the association was followed by a social hour at which all were introduced and an attractive spirit of cordiality on the part of all was shown. Garwood has reason to be proud of this organization which is doing such good work under the leadership of the president, Mrs. S. R. McManus, and the principal, E. N. Roselle.

The following evening the school was opened for a school dance, chaperoned by the teachers and a number of the mothers.

Self Help.

Once as I toiled along the world's rough road,
I longed to lift each fellow pilgrim's load;
Now that so much of life's path is trod,
I better know the purposes of God.

This is the message as it comes to me,
Do well the tasks thy Master set for thee,
Cheer the despairing, ease his load a bit,
Or teach him how he best may carry it.

But do not lift it wholly lest at length
Thy too great kindness rob him of his strength;
He wrongs his brother who performs his part,
Wake thou the sleeping angel in each heart.

Inspire the doubting soul to search and find,
Then go thy way, nor wait for those behind;
Who tries may follow and the goal attain;
Perpetual effort is God's price of gain.

The Seventeenth Child-Welfare Conference of National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations will be held in Boston May 15 to 20. The Copley Plaza Hotel will be the headquarters for the officers and delegates, and the large ball room of the hotel, seating 1,500 persons, will be the place for the convention. Mrs. Milton P. Higgins, 228 West street, Worcester, Mass., is chairman of the committee of arrangements. Miss Julia Lathrop, head of Children's Bureau; Miss Fannie Belle Curtis, a noted leader in kindergarten work; Miss Harrison, head of National Kindergarten College; Prof. M. V. O'Shea, Mrs. Percy Pennypacker, president of the G. F. W. C., and Mrs. Henry A. Holland, of Buffalo, N. Y., are among the speakers who have accepted invitations to speak at the Congress. Plans are being made to send Plainfield delegates from the Mothers Association and Parent-Teacher Associations.

The question box meeting at the Washington School last week proved most interesting. Mrs. G. O. Stevens, president of the Parent-Teacher Association, conducted the discussion. Some of the questions were the relationship of home and school, home work of the pupils, improvements in the school buildings and the opening of the school buildings for social purposes of the neighborhood. Refreshments were served and a social hour followed the regular meeting.

The officers of the High School Parent-Teacher Association have invited the teachers of the High School, members of committees, presidents of other Parent-Teacher Association and Dr. and Mrs. Maxson to an acquaintance party to be held in the High School library on Monday evening, February 24. This will be an excellent opportunity for teachers and parents to meet for an informal discussion of the work in school and home co-operation.

The Board of Education has done a very popular and helpful thing in opening the Washington School building every Saturday evening for social dancing. A lecture on Lincoln was given last week before the dancing program. This week C. E. Abbott, of New York, will speak on "Washington, the Father of Our Country." Visitors who are interested in social centres are welcomed.

Woman's World

Mrs. Sulzer Silent Partner of New York's Governor.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

MRS. WILLIAM SULZER.

When asked just before she went to Albany to preside at the gubernatorial mansion what she was going to do as first lady of the state of New York Mrs. Sulzer instantly replied: "Just what I am doing now—trying to make a good home for Will. We will live the simple life in our new position just as we have in the past, and if friends come in when we have pork and beans for dinner they must enjoy the pork and beans or go elsewhere. There will be no $5,000 dinners given in our home at Albany. Our home will be a real home. There will be no frills about it. Mr. Sulzer and I have no social aspirations."

There is a pretty romance connected with the Sulzer marriage. Mr. Sulzer first met the lady of his choice in Washington at a dinner in 1904. That he was peculiarly impressed for a confirmed bachelor was remarked at the time. Then he went west and did not see the then Miss Rodelheim for four years. When he came back and met her he calmly said:

"Don't you think it is time we were getting married? You know we have been engaged for four years."

She did not know it. But what woman could let a chance like that go by the board? For the Sulzer method of winning a girl was his convincing as his method of getting a vote.

In appearance Mrs. Sulzer is rather above medium height, graceful and with an urbanity that detracts nothing from the impression of force one gets from conversation with her. Her voice is well modulated and her diction remarkably clear. Mrs. Sulzer before her marriage was a trained nurse, which probably accounts for the soft, low voice—that most excellent thing in one of the nursing profession.

Mrs. Sulzer is the type of woman best fitted for the helpmeet of a man of strong ambitions like the Democratic governor. She is difficult to interview, for she insists upon keeping her own personality in the background. When her husband's name is mentioned her face at once lights up with interest and pride, but try to get her to speak of herself and she becomes at once as mum as the proverbial clam.

Improving Comic Supplement.

The distinction of having first taken up the work for the improvement of the comic supplement is claimed by the League of American Pen Women, of which Mrs. Josiah Quincy Kern of Washington is president. She is also chairman of the comic supplement committee for the Federated Clubs of the District of Columbia and is a member of the board of education of Washington. She wrote and circulated thousands of copies of the resolutions adopted by the League of American Pen Women and hundreds of other clubs and societies which declare "that the so called colored supplement is a menace to the culture and morals of children, begetting in them an admiration for deceit and cunning, misrepresentation and vulgarity, disrespect for the aged and infirm, a lack of reverence for sacred things and of sympathy for the unfortunate, encouraging bad manners, disregard for authority, incorrect language, low ideals of literature, distorted notions of art, the perpetuation of practical jokes, unpatriotic sentiments and general demoralization of character."

The Medici Collar.

Medici collars are the last cry in neckwear. You may make them of any sort of lace provided that the mesh is heavy enough to support a milliner's wire under its outer edge, or you may evolve them from chiffon, tulle or gauze ribbon provided that the material is closely plaited or fluted and made to stand far out from the throat at back and sides. In front the medici tapers into rather sharp points that join several inches below the throat or that run to either side of a V'd or squared neck. It isn't a street collar for winter, but it is a picturesque accessory for an afternoon house frock and attached to a plastron of malines or lace lends chic to the plainest of blouses.

"MAC" SAYS

What has become of the Y. M. C. A. first basketball team? Nothing has been heard from the association representatives in the last two weeks.

Basketball promises to reign supreme in sportdom hereabouts Washington's Birthday. There will be plenty of the indoor game in this city, North Plainfield, Dunellen and Scotch Plains.

Plainfield High School managed to take the first of the trio of interscholastic basketball matches carded for this week. The P. H. S. sophomores did the trick in Saengerbund Hall yesterday afternoon. The girls' team clash tomorrow and the boys' Saturday afternoon.

Both the N. P. H. S. and P. H. S. fives have been getting in some extra practise sessions this week and a new repertoire of tricks is being mapped out by each. The game ought to be one of the fastest decided here this year.

Grace Church springs into prominence again promoting the indoor game. The second five defeated Holy Cross last night by the close score of 21 to 18, while the Grace Church boys' club won over Hope Chapel with a count of 46 to 22.

Three games will be staged at Scotch Plains Saturday night. Manager Brodziak is evidently planning an all night session but Plains people never get too much of basketball and the program will without doubt be enjoyed by them.

The Nonpareil girls' team, of this city, goes to Newark tomorrow night to play the First Presbyterian girls' team of that place.

Dunellen will be the scene of a feminine game between the Plainfield Y. W. C. A. quintet and the First Presbyterian girls tonight.

P. H. S. added another to its long string of victories yesterday afternoon, taking the Princeton Prep team into camp with a large score. Jack Zerega was announced as a member of the visitors' team but was not brought to Plainfield. There's a reason.

Plainfield High School has yet to be defeated on its home court. Every one of the games played in the P. H. S. gym this year has resulted in a one-sided victory for the local boys. Why erect a new gymnasium when the old one brings so many victories?

If we are to take it as it skids along, the only part of New York Frank Chance and John McGraw won't own five years from now will be the air over the Woolworth building and the ground under the subway.

We may seem a trifle prejudiced, but we have never had much use for the Mexicans anyway since reading the story of Alamo. The only regret we have is that Sant Anna isn't alive today to assist in reorganizing that Central New Jersey Baseball League.

A number of the teams seem to be having their troubles trying to round up players and some are even fighting to get possession of their old playing grounds.

Must be pretty nearly baseball time. Louis Slocum, Otto Frederickson, Tommy Mullin and Eugene Lidgate have resigned their winter positions and are spending their spare moments in secret practise.

Judging from what we have lamped in print of late, the Tinker-Evers-Chance trio was more of a double cross than a double play combination. As to whether Tinker was a better shortstop than Evers was a second baseman—or back afound—we fail to see where any answer would figure extensively in the October standing of the clubs for 1913, which is always the last word in seldom repartee.

FORMER PLAINFIELD STAR WITH RED SOX

Albin Carlstrom Starts for Hot Springs With Champion Red Sox March 7.

Albin Carlstrom, who formerly played shortstop on the Plainfield baseball team, last night received orders from J. Garland Stahl, manager of the World's Champion Boston Red Sox, to meet the club at Jersey City on March 7, when the squad will start over the B. and O. Railroad for their training camp at Hot Springs, Ark. The Sox have signed comparatively few recruits for the coming season, and Boston dopers figure the lanky Elizabethan about the most promising of the new crop of youngsters.

Carlstrom will join the Sox with the record of having been the best shortstop in the New England League last summer. Maranville, who was snatched up by the Boston Braves after the Down East title had been decided, was rated second to Carlstrom by the scribes who had the picking of the All New England League nine, but he has made good with a rush and his making good gives Albie's prospects a still brighter hue.

There has been some talk that Stahl, recognizing the fact that he has not many more years left as a big league player, will endeavor to convert Carlstrom into a first-sacker. Carlstrom himself declares that he knows nothing of these plans, but the rumor has refused to be downed up Boston way. "Heine" Wagner, Red Sox captain, is another veteran about due to hit the long slide, despite the fact that he played good ball last summer. Wagner will probably be good for some time yet, but the big league managers are always preparing talent for the occasions when their veterans begin to go so it is not likely that Carlstrom will be turned loose should Stahl fail to make a first baseman out of a perfectly good shortstop.

NOW INSURE GOLF LINKS.

London, Feb. 20.—The recent outrages by suffragettes in destroying golf courses has led to the opening of a new form of insurance by Lloyds. The company now takes risks on golf links at 2 per cent. premium. Many golf clubs have availed themselves of the new offer to insure their courses.

GRACE BOYS' CLUB WINS BY BIG SCORE

High Individual Scores Rolled up by the Winners Results in Count of 46 to 22.

Playing on the court at the Grace church Parish House last night, the Grace church boys' club scored a 46 to 22 victory over the Hope chapel juniors. The game was a one-sided one throughout, the home players never relinquishing the early advantage they gained at the jump off and the Chapelites being contented to pull up as close as possible in the rear.

At the end of the first administration the score stood 18 to 12 in favor of Grace, but they started off with a rush in the final period and increased the margin that separated them from their opponents, scoring a total of 28 points in this half against their opponent's 10.

SOMERVILLE HIGH WON BY ONE GOAL

Scored a Victory Over the Rutgers Preparatory School Combination.

Somerville High School defeated the Rutgers Prep basketeers at Somerville yesterday afternoon by a lone field goal, the score being 23 to 21. The first administration ended in an 8 to 4 score for the visitors. The Prep school presented a crippled lineup yesterday afternoon and several of their best shooters were missing from the ranks.

The fact that Somerville put it over the strong Prep aggregation seems to point to an improvement in the Somerset county seat representatives' playing as Plainfield and North Plainfield High Schools both walloped the Somervillians and the New Brunswick school is considered as a formidable proposition for either of the local schools to handle.

ZIMMERMAN WOULD LIKE TO HAVE EVERS' BRAINS.

Joe Tinker tells a bit of inside baseball about a Brooklyn game. Nap Rucker was pitching against the Cubs and had nothing except speed; otherwise he was deficient, but he was shooting them over so fast the Cubs were looking for life insurance agents before going to the plate. Among those present was Johnny Evers, known as one of the craftiest exponents of the higher baseball.

Another prominent figure was Heinie Zimmerman, whose principal weakness is that he has arm trouble which prevents him from batting more than .400. Mr. Zimmerman, however, has no reputation whatsoever as a star at inside baseball. Evers barely dodged a high inside shoot from Rucker that would have brained the earnest second baseman.

Frank Chance was sitting on the bench and gasped out: "Gee! Nap nearly scattered Evers' brains over the whole infield!" "I wish he had," remarked Zim. "I'd tear out there and get a handful for future emergencies!" Which would indicate that Zim agrees with his critics and does not think he knows it all.

P. H. S. TROUNCED PRINCETON PREP

Excellent Teamwork and Superior Shooting Won Game for Home Players.

Another trouncing was handed out by the Plainfield High School basketball team in the local gym yesterday afternoon, the team from the Princeton Preparatory School being the victims this trip. The final score showed a mark of 43 rung up by the home players against 10 by the visitors. Speedy teamwork on the part of the winners, especially in the final period, was responsible for the one-sided victory. Time and again in the second half, Captain Woodhull and his followers carried the ball the length of the floor on short snappy passes and then dropped in their field goal at the end of the court.

Brynariski's work was particularly conspicuous in this game, and the husky P. H. S. star received rounds of applause from the sidelines for his long field goals made on his characteristic push up shots. Brynariski was not alone in the scoring work, Good counting for eight field goals and Heron an even half dozen.

At the end of the first half the score stood 12 to 4 in favor of the home team, but soon after the second period was ushered in, they rapidly increased the gap that separated them from the Prep school lads.

SECOND SCHOLASTIC FEMININE CONTEST

North Plainfield and Plainfield H. S. Girls Meet on Latter's Court Tomorrow.

A basketball contest of unusually interest, especially to High School followers, will be staged on the Plainfield High School court tomorrow afternoon when the North Plainfield and Plainfield High School girls are scheduled to meet for the second time this season. The opening game resulted in a victory for the boroughites after an uphill fight when they came out ahead by a small margin. In this contest the local feminine quintet was handicapped by the length of the borough court which was considerably larger than the one they were used to playing on and they were completely lost on the long court. The N. P. H. S. five, on the other hand, will have the same handicap to overcome tomorrow afternoon as the P. H. S. court is much smaller than the regulation court and the boroughites will be cramped for playing space.

The rival teams will probably line-up as follows:

N. P. H. S.	P. H. S.
Miss Burtis, forward	Miss Stryker
Miss Mair, forward	Miss Duncan
Miss McAuliffe, centre	Miss Rodenbaugh
Miss Debele, guard	Miss Morris
Miss Smith, guard	Miss Phillips

Close Game Won by Two Point Margin on the Saengerbund Hall Court.

Saengerbund Hall was the scene of an interesting interscholastic class basketball game yesterday afternoon when the Plainfield High School Sophomores barely nosed the borough second year men out of a game by the score of 23 to 21. In the first half the playing was loose and the local team had decidedly the better of the argument scoring at will and passing like veterans but the home players started to close up the gap in the final period of play and with the aid of a prolonged half nearly overcame the advantage secured by the Plainfielders.

For the winners "Dan" McNamee and LaRue were the stars, while Fetherstone and Abrams got in some good work for the boroughites.

HOLY CROSS BOYS LOST CLOSE GAME

Hot Game on Their Own Court Results in a 21 to 18 Victory for Grace Ch.

In a well played and closely contested game on the Holy Cross basketball court last night, the Grace church basketball team defeated the Holy Cross boys' club by a score of 21 to 18. The playing was nip and tuck at all stages of the contest and the winner was in doubt until the final whistle sounded, finding Grace three points in the lead.

Both teams were in excellent form and displayed some fine team work topped off by classy exhibitions of shooting. For the winner's, Bellows and McDowell were the leading scorers, the former getting two from the field and the latter three. All of the losser's scoring was monopolized by Boylan and Conroy, as far as field goals were concerned, each annexing a quartet.

HOCKEY MATCH WON BY P. H. S. SEVEN

High School Boys Swamp Leal School Representatives in a Wet and Slow Game.

Plainfield High School, not contented with monopolizing all the athletic honors along the football, baseball and basketball line in local interscholastic circles, proved its superiority at hockey yesterday afternoon, taking the Leal representatives into camp with an overwhelming count of 8 goals to 1. The match was played on the Cedarcroft rinks, which had become unusually slushy during the recent mild spell and both sevens were handicapped to a great extent in getting up speed to carry the puck.

At the end of the first period of play, the score stood 3 goals to 1 in favor of P. H. S. and during the final session the private school athletes were held scoreless.

Y. W. C. A. AT SCOTCH PLAINS.

The local Y. W. C. A. quintet will furnish the basketball attraction at the Scotch Plains Parish House gym Washington's Birthday afternoon, when they lineup against the girls' team of that place.

WHITE SOX TO COAST.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 20.—Piloted by Jimmy Callahan a score of the players upon whom Owner Comiskey depends to win the American League pennant for the White Sox this season leave Chicago tonight by special train for California, where the spring training of the Sox will take place.

At various points en route other of the players will be picked up, so that the entire line-up, including both old veterans and the "rookies" will be in the party when the destination is reached. The objective point is Paso Robles, where ten days will be spent in limbering up. Then the squad will be divided. The first team will play a two weeks' engagement in San Francisco, with short jumps to surrounding towns between games. The second team will play in Los Angeles in the meantime and at the end of the two weeks' period the two teams will change places. On March 31 the teams will start East by different routes and will engage in games in numerous cities in the Southwest and West before reaching home for the opening of the championship season.

HOG CHOLERA IN HOSPITAL HERD

Morris Plains, Feb. 20.—Because of an outbreak of hog cholera among the herd at the State Hospital, about 200 hogs were slaughtered there yesterday on the advice of officials of the State Board of Health, in the fear that if they are allowed to live they may become infested.

In all, seven hogs have been found with the disease, and all of them have been killed and buried. First intimation of the trouble was last Thursday, when it was discovered that one of the brood sows in a herd of eighteen was affected. This was in a pen in the rear of the main hog pen in the woods back of the hospital.

The affected hog was killed and an examination was made by three veterinaries, Dr. Henry W. Dustam of Morristown; Dr. Whitfield Gray of Newton, and Dr. Voorhees, of Somerville. They concluded Saturday that it was a clear case of hog cholera. Later six more hogs in the same pen became affected and were killed, but the others in the pen escaped. They are being permitted to live and are becoming immunized, it is said.

When it was realized that the condition was serious, a call was sent out for a special meeting of the board of managers of the hospital, which was held Monday night with a representative of the State Board of Health in attendance. The board of managers decided to let the disposition of the case rest in the hands of the State Board of Health, which recommended the killing of about 200 hogs not affected, which are worth $5,000.

Superintending the killing is Dr. Isaac H. Shaw, State inspector of meat. Before each hog is killed Dr. Shaw examines it, and he also examines it after it has been slaughtered to determine whether or not it is fit to be used for food. Yesterday morning Dr. Dustam was present and assisted Dr. Shaw and yesterday afternoon the duty devolved on Dr. Gray.

It is declared by Dr. Shaw, who has had experience with this disease in the Chicago Stockyards, that hog cholera is never spontaneous. He says that it is always carried to a herd by some animal affected. Belief here is that some of the wild dogs that come over the mountain and get among the herds for the sake of appropriating some of the feed the hospital provides must have brought the infection.

The pens already have all been disinfected. The wooden flooring has been torn out of the main hoghouse and a concrete floor will be substituted.

LAYS TWO EGGS DAILY.

Asbury Park, Feb. 20.—When Thomas T. Vile, of Fourth avenue, hitches up his pet pony, Lady, for an afternoon ride on pleasant days, he is usually acompanied by another pet, a white deghorn hen, Topsy. Recently, however, Topsy has shown a disposition to stay around the henhouse on afternoons. She has a separate run, and Sunday Mr. Vile accounted for her indifference by discovering that she had laid two eggs that day. Yesterday the feat was repeated. Topsy began to lay eggs at the age of seven and one-half months. This was on November 15 last, and to date Topsy hasn't missed a day. Hen and pony are great friends, and the leghorn rides about on the pony's back. Recently Lady stepped on Topsy's left leg and broke it. Mr. Vile and his niece, Miss Myra H. Vile, set the leg in bandages and splints, dressed it frequently, and today only a small ridge shows where the break occurred.

OFFICIALS OFFER DEFENSE.

New Brunswick, Feb. 20.—At a hearing upon charges preferred against them by Alderman Jelin, held here, the water commissioners offered advice of City Attorney Charles E. Tindell in defense. The commissioners, Elmer E. Wyckoff, Robert G. Huston, Henry H. Banker and Thomas Gavin, said that the reason they had not asked the Common Council for permission to expend more than $1,000 for laying new water mains was upon advice of the city attorney. The men also gave his advice as a reason for advertising for the construction of a $100,000 filtration plant, which it is held to be a violation of the law. The commissioners, in defense, questioned the citizenship of Alderman Jelin, who is bringing the charges against them. Testimony on five of the eleven charges brought against the commissioners will be taken next Monday night.

ELIZABETH FIREMEN FINED.

Elizabeth, Feb. 20.—Several firemen were tried and punished for alleged unbecoming conduct and intoxication at the armory during the industrial exposition by the Board of Fire Commissioners Tuesday night. Ladderman Charles Holt, of Truck No. 2, was fined five days' pay for misconduct. Engineer Thomas Donahue, of No. 3 Engine, was fined five days' pay for intoxication and thirty days' pay for remaining away from his post. Assistant Superintendent of Fire Alarms Augustus Brown, charged with being intoxicated while on duty, was fined fifteen days' pay. William Carr and Michael Van Pelt, of Truck No. 2, were fined two days' pay for fighting. The board decided to place new fire alarm gongs in several sections of the city and adopted the resolution of Commissioner Patterson providing that promotions be based on merit and length of service.

REGARDLESS OF WORTH

Many articles are badly damaged, others are simply smoked, while a large number of these offerings are unscarred—they being our showroom samples and sale stocks which were in our Market street store at time of fire. These goods are like new, but for reason of the loss of our reserve stock we are forced to sacrifice them, for in most instances they are styles that we cannot duplicate. Our sole aim and object is to close out the stock on hand as soon as possible in order to start the Spring season with everything new and fresh.

STATE MISSIONS IS THEIR SUBJECT

Local Baptists' Churches Institute Sessions Continued This Afternoon.

CLERGYMEN SPEAKERS

Rev. Dr. Riley A. Vose, Rev. Gabriel R. Maguire and Rev. Dr. W. T. Stackhouse Among Those Making Addresses.

State missions were discussed at this afternoon's session of the Missionary Convention and Institute being held at the First Baptist church, under the auspices of the First, Park Avenue, Temple and Seventh Day Baptist churches. Thus far all of the sessions have been largely attended by those interested in foreign and home missions and all have enjoyed the addresses of the able speakers.

The prayer and praise service which opened the afternoon session was conducted by Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church. The first address was on "Our State Missions," by Rev. Dr. Riley A. Vose, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Baptist church, Newark, in which he told of the excellent work being accomplished in the State by the Baptist churches. Dr. Vose pointed out the needs, as well as what had been done, which served to arouse a deeper interest on the part of all in the mission work of the State.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, then gave an address on "Africa," which is familiar to many Plainfielders who have heard this wonderful story. He pictured the needs of that country and told of the noble self-sacrificing work that is being accomplished there by missionaries. The afternoon session will close with an address by Rev. Dr. W. T. Stackhouse, representing the Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement. He will also conduct a conference on mission work.

Dr. Stackhouse will make the address of the evening at the session tonight on the subject of "World-Wide Missions." This will be followed by a "Missionary Pageant."

Perhaps, the most interesting feature of the convention was the illustrated lecture given last night by Rev. Dr. Frank S. Dobbins, of Philadelphia, on "China in Transition." The views, all taken by Dr. Dobbins, were in colors and the finest seen here, while the address was intensely interesting. The speaker pictured the civic, religious and political life of China, and particularly interesting were the views showing the remarkable progress of Christianity among the natives, as well as the vast improvements made throughout the country. His views also showed Chinese students following the higher branches of study, and the fine college buildings, including the University of Pekin.

During the devotional exercises there were cornet solos by Miss Jewell and soprano solos by Mrs. Robert Humpstone, with Howard Case at the organ. Mrs. J. V. Lattimer, wife of a missionary at Huchow, China, spoke of the work in the particular field in which she and her husband have been located.

The address of the evening was by Mrs. A. B. Coleman, of Boston, who gave an interesting survey of the foreign and home mission work being carried on by the Baptists. She touched upon every important phase of this work, showing that the Baptists are making rapid strides in carrying the Gospel to the nearby as well as remotest parts of the earth.

The evening session closed with a missionary drama entered "The Voices of Women," in which several young people, representing different mission fields appeared in costume as follows: Miss Carrie Kling, dreamer; Miss Ruth Maguire, conscience; Miss Anna Sherwin, Siamese; Miss Marjorie Phillips, India; Miss Marjorie Cubberley, Syria; Miss Evelyn Manley, China; Miss Elizabeth Mills, Japan; Miss Maurice Vaughan, Africa; Miss Beatrice Cottrell and Miss Bessie Case, widows of India.

Concluding the afternoon session yesterday there was a missionary tea, during which several young people presented what was called a medical sketch. Mrs. Lucie Rising represented the doctor, with Mrs. Francis K. Anderson as an assistant. The following representing Chinese appeared before the doctor for treatment: The Misses Elizabeth Nash, Alice Drake, Ethel Titsworth, Marjorie Cubberley, Violet Cronce, and Everett Case. Those who poured tea were Miss Gladys Marsh, Miss McKay, Miss Edna Beeching, Miss Violet Cronce and Miss Elizabeth Nash and they were assisted by other young people.

—Ritz Saturday special, chocolate covered caramels, 30c lb. ***

—There will be no edition of the Daily Press tomorrow, Washington's Birthday, and the Press office will be closed all day.

MORE TRUSTEES FOR COUNTRY CLUB

Committee Names Kaufman, Tilney and Mellick to Be Members of the Board.

At the annual meeting of the Plainfield Country Club held February 4, the president recommended reincorporating under the act of 1898, for the purpose of enabling the club to enlarge the Board of Trustees from nine to twelve members. This makes it possible for the club, in addition to the active officers and committee chairmen who must be trustees, to appoint from time to time at least one trustee who can be relied upon to assume active duties when a vacancy occurs on the board; and one or two trustees who can be appointed solely on account of their qualifications as directors without detailed committee duties.

The president's recommendation was unanimously approved, and the club at his suggestion appointed a special committee to name three additional trustees who will also act with the present nine trustees as incorporators under the statute. The special committee consisted of Messrs. Henry D. Hibbard, George S. Clay and Henry W. Brower, from the club at large, and also S. D. Lounsbery and the president, from the Board of Trustees.

The special committee has just made its report naming Messrs. W. T. Kaufman, Albert A. Tilney and George P. Mellick as additional trustees. Mr. Mellick was an official several years ago, but has always retained a strong interest in the club. Living next door to it as he does during the open season, his assistance will be available practically at all times, and especially in the absence of committee chairmen. Mr. Kaufman served on the board for a brief period about fourteen years ago. His interest in golf is well known and qualifies him for active work at any time. He is a good player and has recently taken a very generous part in the raising of a special fund to carry out the plans which have been under way for many years to complete the golf course.

Mr. Tilney was an official of the Brae Burn Club, in West Newton, Mass., before taking up his residence in Plainfield a few years ago. He has served on the house committee of the local club and is very much interested in its prosperity. His advice at trustees' meetings on all matters of business and financial policy will be valuable. The members generally are being congratulated that three men of such standing and business experience have consented to serve on the Board of Trustees. It shows a strong general interest among the members in the welfare of the club.

The annual reports of the officers and standing committees for 1912 will soon be distributed. The splendid financial condition of the club is seen from the fact that there is not a dollar of floating debt and a cash balance on January 1 of about $800 after payment of all charges and expenses, including the redemption of $1,000 of bonds during the year. While the club has an authorized bonded indebtedness of $35,000, there are only $27,000 of bonds issued and outstanding. The club owns 110 acres of land, with a clubhouse and other substantial buildings, and water and lighting plants of its own.

ARRESTED AS ALLEGED RAIDER OF HEN COOPS

Following the arrest of William Galloway, on Somerset street, last night, the borough police think they have obtained some light on the mysterious disappearance of some North Plainfield chickens during the past week. Many complaints have been received at the borough headquarters and many and varied have been the theories offered for the solution of the problem.

Roundsman Kellar was strolling down Somerset street last night when Galloway loomed up in the distance with a mysterious looking bag on his back. Kellar locked him up. The bag contained a chicken thought to be the property of Henry Overland. Galloway will be arraigned tomorrow morning.

THEY WANT NO $70,000 BUILDING

Citizens Express Views as to Whether P. O. Structure Should Be Erected.

TO WAIT FOR $50,000

Arguments Pro and Con and Mayor Stewart is Instructed to Communicate With Senator Martine and Congressman Tuttle.

That it would be wiser to wait until an additional appropriation can be secured before erecting the Federal building in Plainfield, was the opinion of the majority of citizens attending a public hearing arranged by Mayor Percy H. Stewart, last night, at his office to discuss the present situation, there being but $70,000 of the original appropriation of $100,000 on hand for the purpose. It was resolved that Mr. Stewart be authorized to inform Congressman Tuttle of the sentiment expressed and to frame a suitable telegram to be sent to United States Senator James E. Martine, in answer to his message that he had secured an additional $50,000. The Senator has prevailed upon the Sundry Service committee to insert an item of $50,000 additional in the bill but the measure has yet to come before the Senate and may then have to go to the House again.

Several persons thought that it would be best to accept the $70,000 and go ahead with the building, while others believed that the extra $50,000 would be secured soon and the city would have a structure that would be a credit to Plainfield, but in the final decision it was voted to advise the representatives at Washington that it would be best to wait for the added appropriation.

During the descussion there were many views expressed, the speakers admitting that they had no great

SMALLEY'S PETITION FAVORED BY BOARD

Utilities Commission Will Recommend Twp. Committee to Grant Request.

Jersey City, Feb. 21.—Former Mayor Newton B. Smalley, of North Plainfield, representing the Smalley Stone Company, appeared before the Public Utilities Commission here this morning to press his petition for permission to construct and operate a trolley line from the company's plant to a point connecting with Somerset street end of the trolley in North Plainfield.

The commission went over the matter carefully examining maps presented by Mr. Smalley and finally decided to recommend to the North Plainfield Township Committee that the petition be granted. The commission took this action for the reason that it questioned its own authority to grant the petition.

W. de la R. Anderson, of the North Plainfield Township Committee and Attorney H. O. Hance, representing the committee, sought to prove that the building of the trolley would be attended with more or less risk. The commission said that it would write the committee recommending that the petition of the stone company be granted.

ANNUAL SUPPER OF DUTCH ARMS

Galaxy of Good Speaking at Trinity Reformed Church Men's Banquet.

CLARK TOASTMASTER

Women Serve the Repast—Rev. Dr. W. Warren Giles Makes a Hit—Ruford Franklin Also Among the Speakers.

Inspiring addresses by able speakers furnished a pleasing feature at the fourth annual banquet of the Dutch Arms' Men's Club, of Trinity Reformed church last night in the church parlors. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, for the fourth time in as many years, acted as toastmaster.

Rev. Dr. W. Warren Giles, of East Orange, the next speaker, was introduced by Mayor Clark, as an after-dinner-orator possessing the eloquence of Chauncey Depew, and the wit and humor of Mark Twain. Dr. Giles, who is probably one of New Jersey's most accomplished ministers, reverted from the serious to the humorous continuously and had the two hundred or more diners thinking in intent silence one moment over a topic which concerns the country, only to move them to hearty laughter in his next utterances. In his opening words he commented on the Mayor's remarks regarding statuary. He said, "I do not know whether Mayor Clark, our able toastmaster, wants us to regard him as a work of ancient or modern art, but he truly embodies the beauty of Apollo and the effervescence of Appolinaris."

The speakers were Rev. Dr. W. Warren Giles, of East Orange; Ruford Franklin, of Summit; Rev. Al-

WANT ADVERTSING LAWS FOR CITIES

Chamber of Commerce Plans for Needed Legislation to Permit Publicity.

A small but enthusiastic group of Chamber of Commerce members gathered in the chamber rooms last night to discuss the subject of securing an appropriation from the city to cover the cost of advertising the city. Paul Burns made a motion which was passed to appoint a committee of five to draft two bills, one to allow cities to appropriate money for the purpose of advertising municipalities, and another to give boroughs of the first class the same authority. The following committee was named by Chairman Peter McDonough to present these bills to the New Jersey Legislature: Newton B. Smalley, chairman; Harry N. McMenimen, Charles Hand, David Carney and Winfield S. Angleman.

Charles Hand reported that two members of the Chamber of Commerce lighting committee, Morris C. VanArsdale and himself, had accompanied the Common Council lighting committee on its trip to New York to look over the street lighting question.

STATE MAY GET AN HISTORIC SITE

Bill in Legislature for New Jersey to Acquire Famous Washington Rock.

COMMISSION CONTROL

Charles W. McCutchen Obtained Title to Preserve the Tract and D. A. R. Has Erected a Memorial There—Text of the Bill.

With the purely patriotic motive of preserving to posterity of New Jersey a landmark of great historic interest, the tract of land upon which is situated Washington Rock, was acquired at considerable cost by Charles W. McCutchen, of North Plainfield, and the Daughters of the American Revolution of the State, has had a bill drafted to have the State acquire the property. The measure, known as Senate bill, No. 200, was introduced in the Legislature yesterday by Senator W. W. Smalley, of Somerset county, and was referred to the committee on miscellaneous business.

Since Mr. McCutchen acquired the property especially for Continental Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the chapter has erected a handsome monument thereon at an expense of $3,000, the fund being contributed by citizens. Margaret T. Yardley, State Regent of the D. A. R., sets forth the purpose of the proposed act as follows:

"The object of this proposed act is best introduced by reference to the following quotation from the work entitled 'Historical Collections of the State of New Jersey,' by John M. Barber and Henry Howe, published in the year 1844:

"'At an elevation of about 400 feet, on the brow of the mountain in the rear of Plainfield, stands Washington's Rock. It is one of very large size, being about twenty-five feet in

FIRE IN SOMERVILLE; DAMAGE IS $10,000

Somerville, Feb. 21.—Fire which practically destroyed the DeWitte Dyeing and Bleaching Works in the old Brown woolen mill building, was discovered at 1 o'clock this morning by Police Chief L. A. Bellis and Assistant Chief J. E. Griggs, of the fire department, who were conversing on the opposite side of the street from the burning building. The fire apparently started in the sulphur room on the top floor.

The fire department responded quickly in response to an alarm, and after a stubborn fight finally got the blaze under control, but not until the building was partially destroyed. The firemen did good work in preventing the flames from spreading to the plants of the Henry A. Dix Company, dress manufacturers; that of the Glen Rock Woolen Mills and the Somerville Manufacturing Company, all being located in the eastern portion of the old Brown building. The loss is estimated to be $10,000.

WOMAN VICTIM OF AN ASSAULT

Miss Nellie White Knocked Down and Brutally Beaten by a Strange Man.

SUSPECT IS ARRESTED

James Kiederling, of Scotch Plains, Held in $500 Bail After His Capture—Prisoner Has An Unsavory Record.

Miss Nellie White, aged about 40 years, employed as a cook in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen B. Laing, 48 Washington avenue, North Plainfield, was atrociously assaulted late last night, by a man who followed her from Plainfield to her home. She was rendered unconscious by a blow on the back of the head, several teeth were knocked out, she was beaten about the face, her pocketbook was taken, and her assailant left her lying in the yard of the Laing home, not knowing whether she would die or not.

The victim on regaining consciousness succeeded in reaching her bedroom, where her cries awoke members of the family. They found her covered with blood, and hysterical. Her clothes were torn and her general condition was considered serious. A physician was quickly summoned and Miss White is now under his care.

From information given by Mrs. Isaac P. Runyon, who lives next door to the Laing's, James Kiederling, of Scotch Plains, was arrested this morning on Watchung avenue by Chief Marshal Weiss, Mr. Laing and Alexander Milne, after a long search and a lively chase, and was held by Justice Snape, of North Plainfield, in $1,500 bail for the grand jury. The police believe that Kiederling was the assailant of Miss White, although he alleges he can prove an alibi.

Kiederling has a police record. He is now under probation in both Union and Somerset counties for previous offenses. At one time, it is alleged by the police, he attempted to commit suicide in the borough lockup; he was found guilty of stealing a horse belonging to Harry Parsch, the Somerset street butcher, and he was also found guilty of assaulting two women, one in this city and another in the borough, the police say.

Following last night's assault Mr. Laing offered $50 for the arrest of the assailant, and he said today that he would give the reward to Chief Marshal Weiss, so sure is he that Kiederling is the guilty man.

Mr. Laing's attention was directed to Keiderling through information given by Mrs. Runyon. She happened to be up last night attending to her husband, who is ill, and from her bed-room window she saw the assault and in the moonlight was able to get a good description of the man.

Marshal Weiss, Mr. Laing and Mr. Milne, going to Kiederling's home, found clothes which he had on last night, which were identified by Mrs. Runyon and Miss White. After a long search the party learned that Kiederling was working on Watchung avenue. Surrounding the house, while one of the trio went inside, Kiederling finally appeared and was met face to face by Mr. Milne. When told he was wanted, he tried to get away. He was chased some distance and was finally caught just as he was going over a fence. Later he was identified by Mrs. Runyon and Miss White as the one who assaulted the latter.

Mr. Laing has retained Councilman Francis J. Blatz to represent Miss White. In speaking of the affair today, Mr. Laing said that he would push the case against Kiederling to the limit. He declared that such a person is a menace to any community and should be placed where they can do no harm. He deplored the fact that such conditions made it unsafe for women to walk the streets of Plainfield either day or night.

PROCTOR'S PROGRAM.

"The Earl and the Girl," a Broadway musical comedy, with its fascinating love songs and Broadway musical hits, is easily the leading attraction on the Proctor week-end bill. Eight feminine beauties and two male characters make up the cast and the plot is based on an English love scene in which the lovers employ the English dialect to a marked advantage. The "Breakaway Barlows" present a thrilling areial act which holds the audience spellbound at times. Their ladder turn requires nerve that is seldom evidenced in vaudeville performances. Baker and Cook are a pair of laugh provokers that keep the house in a steady round of plause from the time they first step before the footlights until they are allowed to depart after many encores. Cook takes the part of an Italian bootblack while Baker acts the part of a college sport. Both of the performers render several vocal selections and Cook sings an Italian ballad. Mepo and Mepo take part in fifteen minutes of vocal and instrumental music. Their exhibition consists of classical songs and guitar, organ and piano playing. Grace Carr and Company present a comedy sketch entitled "The Grafter." The company consists of two male and one female characters who take the part of a seasoned old grafter, his young niece and her fiancee.

POSTMASTER RID OF JOB.

Freehold, Feb. 21.—J. Alexander Guy has finally managed to give up his job as postmaster at Holmdel. He decided nearly a year ago that he wanted to quit after robbers had on three occasions raided the postoffice and helped themselves liberally to the stock of Guy's own store. The robbers have made two more appearances during the last twelve months, and Guy, in desperation, notified Uncle Sam that he would close the office and leave town unless he was relieved of the responsibility. Postal inspectors could find no capable citizen willing to take the job and its attendant dangers. Alexander McCless, however, before the robber raids began, had filed a civil service application for the place, and although, like Guy, he had suddenly lost all interest in the appointment he has been persuaded to take the job of sorting the mail and frightening off thieves in the hope that Congress will advance his salary when it learns of the dangers confronting him in office.

FESTIVAL OF PURIM.

New York, Feb. 21.—Jews the world over today engaged in their annual observance of the festival of Purim, a holiday based on the biblical book of Esther, and celebrated as a commemoration of the downfall of Haman, the prime minister of King Ahasurus of Persia, who, according to the book, plotted the extinction of the Jewish race and was hung on his own gallows that he erected for Mordecai, a leader for the Jewish people at that time. The plans for the destruction of the Jews conceived by Haman were frustrated by Queen Esther, a Jewess, and the niece of Mordecai. Esther revealed the plot to the king, her royal spouse, and the perfidious prime minister was put to death. It was in gratitude for this miraculous deliverance that the feast of Purim was established. It is still a day of joyous celebration by the Orthodox Jews throughout the world.

P. O. S. OF A. BODY DINES.

Trenton, Feb. 21.—There were fourteen members of the Past State Presidents' Association of the P. O. S. of A., including their guests, in attendance at the banquet held in the Trenton House. Their guests included several prominent men in the organization, who made addresses on the work of the order. Arrangements were made for the holding of the next annual meeting on the Wednesday nearest to Washington's Birthday, 1914, in the Trenton House. The officers chosen at the meeting were President, Charles W. Petter; secretary, J. Wiggans Thorn, both of whom were re-elected. These two officers, together with Willard C. Cutler and Samuel L. Davis, form the executive committee.

Rev. Dr. W. E. Davis, of the Dutch Reformed church at Berne, New York, will address the meeting of St. Paul's Brotherhood of Trinity Reformed church Bible school, Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. All men are invited.

HERE AND THERE

This novel advertising scheme was originated by John Carty, who is connected with the local branch of the telephone company, and it has attracted widespread comment. The article appearing in "Playthings" was written by Paul H. Burns, former manager of the local exchange. Accompanying it is a letter from J. V. E. Vanderhoof, buyer for the Woodhull & Martin Company, in which he states that the exhibit "was the best drawing card we ever had. Everybody was talking about it, and I am sure it did its part toward getting us the biggest holiday trade this store has ever had.

Getting What We Pay For

The most perilous part of a business career is when that business attempts to give its customers one jot less than the best that's in them.

While this is true in ALL business it is doubly emphatic in stores that sell articles of wear.

And so to attempt to give a customer anything but the fullest measure in return for his or her money is suicidal.

The fact that my business is increasing from month to month is sufficient proof of the honest values I offer in men's and young men's wearables.

"JOKE" CAUSES THE VICTIM'S POISONING

Westfield, Feb. 21.—The victim of a practical joke, which nearly ended fatally, Frank Arrowsmith, an employe of the Watson-Stillman Works at Garwood, yesterday swallowed a mouthfull of an acid compound which he mistook for milk.

Arrowsmith was drinking a bottle of milk with his lunch and had set the bottle down. As his back was turned John Quinn, a companion, substituted a bottle containing the acid. Arrowsmith took the acid bottle, and not noticing that it did not contain milk, took a drink from it.

Arrowsmith was taken to the Alexian Brothers Hospital, Elizabeth. His condition is reported to be much improved and he will recover.

GIRL PREFERS THEFT TO WASHING DISHES

New Brunswick, Feb. 21.—"If I only hated stealing as bad as I hate dish washing I'd be all right," is the way Mary Sellers, fifteen years old, put it in court here. She had committed several thefts and had been arrested every time. Prompt confessions followed, but she expressed no penitence.

"I had to do it and I did it," was the way she phrased her feelings.

She was arrested recently for shoplifting and was detained until last Friday. In her detention she was visited by Miss Jessie Woodrow Wilson, daughter of the President-elect, who promised to help her to get a position. The girl says she's tempted whenever she sees something that isn't nailed down, but she is sure she'll get over that feeling.

ASSEMBLYMAN SUFFERS IN TROLLEY DISPUTE

Trenton, Feb. 21.—Assemblyman Charles A. Nutting, of Caldwell, came to Trenton yesterday with his right arm in a sling, resulting from a personal encounter the night before, with an inspector of the Public Service Railway Company.

The inspector, it is claimed by the Assemblyman, attempted to eject Mr. Nutting from a car at the Mountain House, between Montclair and Caldwell. He was prevented from doing so, it is declared, by the resistence of Mr. Nutting, followed by interference of other employes of the company.

Mr. Nutting said he would make a complaint, which will also involve the practice of the company in requiring identification slips from persons boarding cars at Montclair.

The dispute in which Mr. Nutting became involved was the outcome of a demand made by the inspector that he should either pay a second fare or produce an identification slip, for which the latter is alleged to have failed to ask for when he boarded the car at Montclair.

The incident occurred as Mr. Nutting was returning to his home after a day spent in the Legislature. The Assemblyman says he arrived at the Lackawanna Station at Montclair shortly after 8 o'clock and boarded a Caldwell car. When he paid his five cent fare he said nothing to the conductor about the identification slip handed to passengers as a means of distinguishing them from the passengers from whom a second fare is collected at the Mountain House.

DEPUTY SHERIFFS REFUSED.

Elizabeth, Feb. 21.—Efforts were made in several quarters yesterday by Geldman, Weinberg & Lebowitz, manufacturers of boys' trousers, with a plant in Chandler avenue, near St. George avenue, Roselle, to secure deputy sheriffs to protect their property from New York garment strikers, but the only result was the assignment of a patrolman to do duty there. Harold Depew, counsel for the concern, appeared before Judge Connolly in the County Court and endeavored to have the court assign deputy sheriffs there to prevent alleged intimidation, but the court, after listening to the stories of broken windows and hearing an affidavit from a member of the firm as to the need of protection, informed the lawyer that it had no jurisdiction. Mr. Depew then called upon Sheriff William H. Wright, but he declined to assign deputies to the place, saying that he thought the Roselle police competent to handle the situation. The Roselle police say that there has been no disorder at the plant and that it has not been proven that strikers damaged the factory. The damage did not assume serious proportions, they insist. There are from twenty to twenty-five workers at the plant, according to officials of the company, and none of them desires to go out on strike.

WOMEN TO BUILD PARSONAGE.

Asbury Park, Feb. 21.—Members of two societies of the First Baptist church have undertaken to finance the construction of a church parsonage on a site in Third avenue adjoining the church. The church already owns the ground and the women plan to spend about $6,000 on a house. These members comprise the building committee: Aid Society, Miss Lukens, Miss Neimeyer and Mrs. W. A. Atchley; O. and O. Society, Miss Lottie Grenelle, Mrs. Jennie Emmons and Mrs. Frederick A. Smith.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, FEBRUARY 21, 1913.

WASHINGTON.

The name of Washington is held in high esteem wherever man seeks equal opportunity. He is not only loved and honored, with us, but throughout the world. Wherever man is longing for individual and political uplift there Washington is the ideal. None other so completely meets the conditions. We do not celebrate his memory as we should. True it is we make his birthday a legal holiday. But that is not enough of itself. Parents should instruct their children. Teachers should impress his deeds upon their scholars and all of us should stop and think on the life and deeds of this really great American. He refused everything that this country might be a Republic, based on the individual, with an equal chance for every man in the race of life. When he refused the crown, which the Continental Army could and would have gladly given him, he made it impossible for any other of his contemporaries or co-patriots to be King, and, thus assured forever a representative republic in the United States. No successful leader of a revolution ever did the same thing before his day, and Napoleon did just the opposite within fifteen years afterward; and yet he had the same chance to make France a Republic that Washington had the United States.

Just now, owing to political conditions in our country, the life, character and deeds of Washington are especially impressive. We need the Washington spirit inculcated and impressed upon the leaders of our public and political affairs. The uppermost thought now is service for others, the destruction of selfishness, the spread of the idea of an equal opportunity for all. In all these respects Washington and his work are the ideals. He was the most unselfish of Americans in his every act and aim. His life was pure, his purpose high and his spirit ennobling.

He fought the revolution under most trying circumstances. He impressed the States with the need of a stronger government than that contained in the Articles of Confederation. His efforts produced the Convention which framed the present Constitution of the Nation in 1787. His service as the First President started the ship of state under that Constitution and established it so that it has lived these one hundred and twenty-six years. His advice and counsel, left to us in State papers, have been the sheet anchor of our faith in Republican institutions until this hour. If the people are true to his teachings, and the politicians follow his example, the country will continue on its safe and glorious career. Long live the memory of Washington!

JOHN FRANKLIN FORT.

WASHINGTON COUNTY.

Writing an editorial in fifteen minutes leaves room for criticism, but in noticing conditions and knowing Plainfield, I feel safe in saying that few people realize the advantages gained by those towns and cities, known as the county seats. The same is true of those located at the extreme borders of counties as our Plainfields are, together with nearby towns and hamlets and portions of the rural communities interested in the development of our city.

The agitation for a change in New Jersey's constitution offers the solution and this day provides the name that would make Plainfield famous for all time to come. Four miles from the railroad station, in all directions, would include territory enough to compose a new county called Washington, of which Plainfield would be the county seat. The demand for fairer representation in the counsels of the State would eliminate the strongest opposition to the scheme and would naturally encourage the changing of the county lines.

If we could revive the patriotism of 1776, not forgetting to recall the days that Washington viewing the enemy from the heights of Washington Rock, marching from New Brunswick to Morristown and maneuvering, as he did, from Middlebrook to Watchung, there would be no question about the result and our present council of war, the Plainfield Chamber of Commerce, would not be advertising what is best for Plainfield.

Something of this sort must be done promptly or the growth of this whole community will be effected. We will be leaving generations that follow an example unworthy those who love to recall the days of Washington.

Let us have the bugle call! Make it a committee of one hundred. Have the convention at Washington Rock July 4th next, and then not stop work when the battle is won.

We can, united, make this Plainfield of ours one of the greatest home cities in the whole country. Will we do it?

N. B. SMALLEY.

ITEMS OF INTEREST TO SEVENTH-DAY BAPTISTS

Frank J. Hubbard will speak to the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church on Sunday night. He will take as his subject, "A Description of the Proposed New Sewage-Purification Plant," a matter to which he has given considerable expert study, and a topic in which the people of the city are much interested. All the men of the church and congregation are invited.

The pastor, Rev. Edwin Shaw, plans to continue his sermons to the children in connection with the Sabbath morning service, taking as his topic tomorrow "The Patriot's Armor," while the theme of the sermon to the adults will be "Paul the Patriot," using the scripture text, "But now they desire a better country."

The missionary committee of the Women's Society for Christian Work will meet on Sunday afternoon in the church to pack a barrel of clothes to be sent to the mission at Attalla, Alabama. All material intended for this barrel should be left at the church before noon of that day.

POLAND'S FREEDOM.

A mass meeting to further the cause of the proposed revolution to free Poland from the Russian government, will be held Sunday afternoon, March 2, in the rooms of the John III Sobrieski Society, 834 East Second street. The movement is being held under the arrangements of several prominent Poles of this city. Admission will be free and a collection will be taken to be added to the war fund. Nearly $200,000 has been collected at similar meetings in other cities and sent to the Central Committee, in Paris, France.

WHAT A MAN OWES, WHAT IS EXPECTED

That a man's obligations are wider than his personal interests is an axiom of life; and every community has a right to look for a contributing interest from each of her citizens. This is the spirit of American institutions, and forms of Government whether local or national. The general response from the most substantial citizens of Plainfield to the promotion of our city's interest is worthy of thought and appreciation. Men of the most active and demanding vocations are always willing and anxious to undertake the worry and work of promoting the well-being of the whole community. There appears no thought as to what they get OUT of it; their apparent ambition is to put their best into the civic administration,—which is the business of every citizen. Should this sacrifice of time and attention be relaxed, the individual resident would suffer thereby. Those who enjoy a safe and salutary home in Plainfield cannot too highly appreciate the privilege they enjoy by the care and oversight of others.

Religious institutions are among the most essential agencies of any community, and our Churches have the same claim as the city upon the appreciation of the individual man. We enjoy a well ordered community, and these surroundings are directly or indirectly influenced by the moral out-put of the Churches. Whether we are Church-goers or not, the influence touches us on all sides. Every progressive citizen should for this reason recognize a well defined obligation to be a part and parcel of the general religious activity of his community. Many men have accustomed themselves to think of the Church as a detached factor, one which has a perfect right to accept or decline at will. Here is no detached factor. The Christian Church is interwoven with the very life of the people and nation. Only if we think we have a right to say "I have nothing to do with the town in which I live," have we the right to argue "I have no obligation to one of its principal factors?" No reasonable man will assume such an attitude towards his town. Then why towards his Church? Nor can we reason that it is our personal concern only whether or not we are vitally interested in religious affairs. It is the Church's concern. She needs our sympathy, our encouragement, our advice, our example; and if we do not give it we are doing the Church an injury.

Too much is thought and sometimes too much is said about what we get OUT of Church affiliation. Reasonable men, generous men, square men will think of what they can PUT into such an affiliation. There is something due from us to any movement which pretends to help and benefit the general condition of mankind. The Christian Church stands upon a long record of helpfulness, comfort, and encouragement. She has demonstrated her rightful place in every community, and challenges the help of men in a man's job. **

height and from thirty to forty in circumference. The bold projection which nature has given it, from the surface of the eminence, renders it a fine position for taking an extensive view of the country below.

"'In the summer of 1777 the American Army was stationed at various places on the plain below—at New Market, Middlebrook, etc.

"'After the retreat of Sir William Howe from New Brunswick, and upon changing his movements and marching from Amboy toward where Plainfield now is, Washington retreated to the heights in face of the enemy. The advance guard of Howe's army fell in with Lord Stirling's division. A skirmish ensued, and, upon the approach of the column under Cornwallis, Stirling was obliged to retreat. Howe pursued him to Westfield, and on the next day returned to Amboy. Washington was at this time on the Rock, inspecting the operations of the armies on the plain.

"'At various times he resorted to this place to ascertain the movements of the enemy. This circumstance has given the rock a sacred character to the people of the present day, which, in connection with the beautiful prospect it affords, has made it a place of resort for parties of pleasure.

"'The scene is one of uncommon beauty. The whole country, apparently, lies as level as a map at the feet of the spectator, for a circuit of sixty miles. On the left appears the spires of New York city, part of the Bay, Newark, Elizabeth, Rahway and New Brighton. Directly in front are Amboy and Raritan Bays. To the right, New Brunswick and heights of Princeton and Trenton; and far to the southeast the eye stretches over the plains of Monmouth to the heights of Navesink.'

"From patriotic motives and to preserve to the citizens of New Jersey a landmark of great historic interest, the tract of land whereon The Rock is situated has been acquired at considerable cost, and in addition to this expense a handsome monument has been erected thereon by means of a fund of over $3,000, secured by the Continental Chapter, of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

"This property, under the terms of Senate Bill No. 200, is now offered as a free gift to the people of this State, and every member of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey and every citizen thereof is urged to co-operate in perpetuating the memory of that time when the Liberty of our Country hung in the balance."

Senator Smalley's bill follows:

"An act to provide for the acquisition of 'Washington Rock' and adjoining lands in the county of Somerset and for the appointment of a Commission to improve and maintain the same as a Public Park.

"Whereas, General George Washington while in command of the Continental Army during the year 1777 did, by frequent observations from the rock known as 'Washington Rock,' on the brow of the Watchung Mountains in the county of Somerset, keep himself informed of the position and movements of the British troops then encamped in this State; and

"Whereas, the said 'Washington Rock' and ten acres of adjoining property has been acquired by Chas. W. McCutchen, Esquire, of the county of Somerset, to the end that the same may be preserved for public use in commemoration of the strategic advantages obtained by observation from the said locality by General George Washington as aforesaid; and

"Whereas, the Continental Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution has by means of private subscription erected on said lands a monument known as the 'Washington Rock Memorial' and has otherwise improved said lands; and

"Whereas, in order that the historic importance of the said 'Washington Rock' may be fully appreciated by succeeding generations, it is now proopsed that the said monument and lands shall be acquired by the State and maintained as a public park; and

"Whereas, the said Charles W. McCutchen, Esquire, is willing to convey the said lands to the State for such purpose;

"Be it Enacted by the Senate and General Assembly of the State of New Jersey:

"One. The Adjutant General and the Commissioner of Roads of this State for the time being, and five other persons, citizens of this State, to be named by the Governor, three of whom shall be members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, shall be and they hereby are constituted a commission to be known as the 'Washington Rock Park Commission,' with power in it to acquire by deed of gift in the name of the State of New Jersey, the land on which 'Washington Rock,' in the county of Somerset, is located together with adjoining lands not to exceed one hundred acres in extent, and to take over, care for, keep, improve, maintain and develop the said lands as a public park, in commemoration and appreciation of the importance of the events transacted in said locality during the Revolutionary War, which said park shall be known as the 'Washington Rock Park.' The said commission shall have full power to make rules and regulations for use and government of the said park. The Governor shall fill all vacancies that may occur by death, resignation or otherwise in that portion of the commission to be appointed by him as aforesaid. The members of the said commission to be appointed by the Governor as aforesaid shall hold office during his pleasure. No member of the commission shall receive any compensation for their services. Any four members of the commission shall constitute a quorum thereof for the transaction of business.

"Two. The sum of four thousand dollars be and hereby is appropriated when included in the annual or supplemental appropriation bill, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act. And the Comptroller of the State of New Jersey shall and he hereby is directed to draw his warrant in payment of all bills approved by said commission and the Treasurer of the said State shall and he is hereby directed to pay all warrants so drawn to the extent of the amount hereby or hereafter to be appropriated by the Legislature for the purposes of said commission; provided, however that before the payment of any portion of the said appropriation the person or persons holding the title to any and all lands to be acquired by virtue of this act shall convey the same by deed of gift to the State of New Jersey for the purpose of a public park.

"Three. This act shall be deemed a public act and shall take effect immediately."

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL MEETS WITH SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Arthur B. Vossler, supervising principal of North Plainfield's schools, is confined to his home at 86 Fairview avenue, by an injury to his left knee, which he sustained last Tuesday. The doctors in attendance were at first puzzled about the case, until an X-ray examination revealed that a cartilage had become loose and lodged in the joint. The injury was sustained when Mr. Vossler slipped on a rug in his home, causing him to reel backward and wrench his knee in such a manner that the cartilage was torn loose. The mishap caused great pain and water-on-the-knee has developed. It will probably be several years before the knee will be able to perform its regular functions properly again.

W. J. WINGES HEARING POSTPONED ONE WEEK

William J. Winges, of Lincoln avenue, Dunellen, arrested last night by Marshal Davenport, on the complaint of Mrs. Lydia Vail and Mrs. Louis Schneider, for disorderly conduct, did not appear before Justice Rene P. The spite fence which Winges erected about his property is now being painted black. This has aroused bitter feeling on the part of neighbors. It is claimed that Mr. Winges refuses to allow people to use the sidewalk in front of his property, and it is alleged that he recently thrashed Madison Vail and Ronald Noble, two boys, he caught roller-skating on the walk.

SUPPER OF DUTCH ARMS

bertus T. Broek, pastor of the First Reformed church, of Newark; Rev. W. E. Davis, of Bern, N. Y., and Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the church, and the president, Arthur B. Cole. Rev. Dr. Edward D. Read and Mrs. Read, Rev. Royal A. Stout, pastor of the Netherwood Reformed church; Paul A. Mertz, Miss Helen Westcott and Mrs. A. B. Cole, also occupied seats at the speakers table.

The church parlors were elaborately decorated for the occasion, American flags predominating. Bouquets of red and white roses formed the table decorations. The delightful dinner was served by the women of the church. While the dainty repast was being enjoyed Comb's orchestra accommodated with musical selections.

Speaking in a serious veln after telling several stories, Dr. Giles delivered an able address which could appropriately be termed a plea for efficiency justice instead of charity, and the promotion of christianity. The speaker gave his ideas of righteousness and of sin and declared the man of the hour is he who will give a part of himself to the community in which he lives. If we had justice, he said, charity in its full meaning would be eradicated. Prosecutor Whitman came in for high praise from the clergyman. Dr. Giles next discussed conditions in Japan, China, Turkey, Germany and England. The biggest man today in the British Empire, he asserted, is Lloyd George, who succeeded in getting home rule for the Irish. This great patriot and statesman, he declared, represents the new type of man which is today revolutionizing the world.

In closing Dr. Giles said the salvation of this great nation rests entirely in the manner and fidelity in which the mission of Jesus Christ is preached. He urged the proper training of the young people so that they become good citizens and not to allow them to grow up evil-minded. "The hope of the land lies in the youth of the land and the hope of the youth lies in the parents and the Church of God," the speaker added.

Rev. A. T. Broek in his address scorned those who are continually bemoaning the wickedness in the world and who long for a return to the old fashioned times. He said, "Give me the good old 20th Century, with all its problems, conditions, vice, etc., because the glory of the present time far outdistances the evil. Never in the history of the world has there been such a vast field for personal effort." The speaker continued urging the true spirit of patriotism toward city, State and country. He hit at those who side-step the duties of public service for their personal interests and said that he recently heard a well known judge complain that it is hard to convict some prisoners because he could not get decent men to serve in the jury box.

Following a short talk by Rev. W. E. Davis, Rev. John Y. Broek, pastor of the Trinity church, arose and in his opening remarks complimented Mayor Clark on his recent decision in ordering the places of business in North Plainfield colsed on the Sabbath.

The officers of the Dutch Arms who had the banquet in charge were: President, Arthur B. Cole; first vice president, Fred S. Cutter; second vice president, Paul A. Mertz; secretary, Charles Beiter, and treasurer, John C. Osborne. They were assisted by the "Willing Workers" class of the Bible school, who arranged and served the menu.

CLERIC REPRESENTATIVE ON BOARD OF C. O. S.

The Plainfield Ministers' Association at its meeting yesterday afternoon appointed Rev. William S. McCoy, rector of the Holy Cross church, as the association's representative on the board of the Charity Organization Society. The appointment was made at the request of the society, it being desired that the ministers be represented.

Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, of Grace church, has been arranging the religious services which have been held at Bonnie Burn Sanitorium, and the association decided to render such assistance as possible to Mr. Stevenson in conducting these services. It is possible that meetings will be held at the sanitorium every Sunday.

CONTEST OF GENERAL THOMAS T. ECKERT'S WILL DISCLOSES INTERESTING STORIES

The story of Richard Gregory Page, Jr.'s, rise from messenger boy for the Western Union Telegraph Company to that of confidential secretary and adviser to its president, a position in which he had control of negotiable securities valued at nearly $2,000,000, was told in Mr. Page's testimony when he appeared as witness in the contest of the will of General Thomas T. Eckert who died in October, 1910, leaving an estate of nearly $2,000,000.

By the will General Eckert, who was president of the Western Union Telegraph Company, left the bulk of his estate to a son, Thomas T. Eckert Jr., while another son, J. Clendennin Eckert, was to receive bequests of $225,000 The latter is contesting the will and alleges that his brother and Mr. Page exercised undue influence in inducing General Eckert to sign the document. General Eckert was ninety-two years old when he died.

knowledge on the subject. Donald McInnis, representing the Property Owners' Protective and Civic Association, with a membership of 125 opposed the $70,000 proposition, believing that the people should wait until the extra money was available. Gustav Meissner thought it would be too bad to delay the building longer. He believed that a fine building could be erected for $70,000, and then it would be possible to build additional wings if necessary.

Roger F. Murray explained at some length that what Plainfield needed first of all was first-class service, the question of having a building of stone, concrete or brick should not enter into the discussion. He believed there should be a tube extending from the new building to the railroad station to get the quickest service. Mr. Murray was not sure whether the Government would let Plainfield spend the money according to its ideas, but he thought that attention should first be directed toward equipment. He did not favor enormous appropriations, and in his opinion that seemed to be the feeling of the present Congress. Mr. Murray thought it might be true that the extra appropriation would be available and he had faith that Mr. Martine would get the money. He said that it was an unwritten law to extend Senatorial courtesy to a member when he wants anything for his home town.

Believing that it would be a mistake to go ahead now, Allan Cowperthwaite said that he thought it would be possible to get the extra money and put up a creditable structure. Alexander Milne took the opposite view, urging that the proposition be taken up at once. He said that it would be possible to make $70,000 go further now than a year from now, for the price of materials are going up, in his opinion.

Mr. Murray took exception to Mr. Milne's statements as to the rise in the price of materials. He felt sure that lumber would be put on the free list, that labor would be cheaper and that the operation of the "Seven Sisters" measure would be a great benefit.

If the building was to be erected with the idea of adding wings to it at some future time, it would be a hodge-podge structure, was the opinion of Harry Keith White, the architect. He gave the opinion that Plainfield could afford to wait a year or two and get more money, the $120,000 not being any more than would be actually required. He thought the building should be faced with stone and not of brick.

Rev. C. H. Mallery said he believed that the people should wait until they can get $120,000, and he did not think that it would be difficult to secure that sum. He opposed any action that would tend to embarrass the local Representatives in Congress. Barton Davis, of the West End Civic Association, favored waiting until the $120,000 was available. Ira LaRue thought action should be deferred until further information is received from Senator Martine.

William J. Buttfield said that a "bird in the hand is worth two in the bush," and he favored accepting the $70,000 and going ahead.

There seemed to be an impression that additional wings to the building could be secured later if necessary, but A. E. LaPorte, of the local postoffice, stated that this would be difficult as the Government plans to erect a complete building with the approval of an appropriation. He explained that the Treasury Department erects such buildings and they are then turned over to the Postoffice Department. As for service he said that the local office has everything necessary to give the best service.

Isaac Schwed stated that he had received authoritative information that if Plainfield accepted the $70,000 nothing more could be expected and that amount would be the limit appropriated for the building. Jacob Fass expressed the opinion that it would be better to wait for more money.

Communications were received from R. Henry Depew, the Painters' Union, Tracy & Swartout, the architects and others, all favoring the plan of waiting until an additional appropriation could be secured.

Among those present at the hearing besides Mayor Stewart were Allan Cowperthwaite, J. V. E. Vanderhoof, Roger F. Murray, A. E. LaPorte, Jacob Fass, Donald McInnes, Councilman A. D. Edgar, Isaac Schwed, Lamar Van Syckel, Barton Davis, Alexander Milne, Rev. C. H. Mallery, President of the Common Council George S. Clay, William J. Buttfield, Harry Keith White and Gustav Meissner.

PREACHER AT HOLY CROSS.

The preacher for next Sunday night will be Rev. Clarence C. Silvester, rector of St. John's church, Somerville. Mr. Silvester has a great many friends in Plainfield who will be glad to hear him. The service begins at 7:45 o'clock, and the public is cordially invited. At the 11 o'clock morning service the rector, the Rev. William S. McCoy will preach, his theme being "Why Prayers Fail." JOHN COCHRAN DEAD; AGED EIGHTY-SEVEN YEARS

John Cochran, aged 87 years, father of Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, of 950 Hillside avenue, died this morning at his home in Chester, Pa., following a short illness. He was born in Chester and always lived there. He was for many years prominent as a real estate broker and was also identified with the various charities in Chester. He was numbered among the most philanthropic citizens of that place.

Mr. Cochran was a life-long member of the First Presbyterian church of Chester and served as an elder for fifty years. He is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Frank Sprague Martin, of this city; Dr. Mary Cochran, of Bellevue, Pa.; Miss Anna Cochran, who lived at home, and two sons, Archibald and Samuel Cochran, of Chester.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Miss Gertrude Hitz, who is playing the role of Viola Hardcastle in William Hodge's new play "The Road to Happiness," is one of the youngest "leading women" of the stage and has advanced to the position she holds in a little more than two years of stage work. She gained her first recognition while appearing in stock in Cleveland, her home city, two years ago and developed a degree of ability that attracted general managerial attention. It was during her season in stock in Cleveland that one of the morning papers of that city promoted a "beauty contest" and Miss Hitz, who is an extremely modest and unassuming young lady, was surprised and, at first, inclined to be resentful when she found that her friends without consulting her, had submitted photographs of her to the paper and made her a contestant. Her resentment was appeased, however, when the judges in the contest unanimously chose her as Cleveland's most beautiful woman and awarded her the gold medal offered as the prize. "The Road to Happiness" comes to the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and evening.

—There will be no edition of the Daily Press tomorrow, Washington's Birthday, and the Press office will be closed all day.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

WHEN FRYING POTATOES.

THE secret of frying potatoes to make them palatable lies in having the fat very hot, if not boiling, when the potatoes are put in. Each piece of potato should be dry when put into the fat. If the potatoes are damp they will not fry crisp. When the potatoes are brown enough they should be taken from the fat and placed on soft paper before the fire to drain. Then scatter dried salt over them and they are ready to serve.

Ingeniously Cut.

Potatoes may be cut in any shape you like for frying. There are ingenious devices sold for cutting potatoes. One of these shapes them like a lattice and in this form they make an attractive garnish for beefsteak.

If you are frying cooked potatoes, cut them in slices and flour them before frying.

Ribbon Potatoes.—Wash and peel raw potatoes in the ordinary way. Then cut them into slices about half an inch thick. Proceed to cut each slice in a thin layer as if removing the skin from an apple, but being careful not to break the strip till the potato has been cut away to nothing, and a long curly ribbon hangs from the knife. When sufficient slices have been cut into spirals, cook them in a frying basket in boiling fat for about two minutes and serve them heaped up loosely on a napkin sprinkled with salt.

Reliable Methods.

Saratoga Chips.—Peel large raw potatoes and slice them as thin as possible. Put them in cold water for an hour and dry thoroughly on a cloth. Then fry them light brown in hot lard as you would doughnuts. Drain on paper to remove grease, then sprinkle with salt.

French Fried Potatoes.—Cut raw potatoes into any desired shape. Do not soak them in water. Put the pieces, a few at a time, into a pan of hot fat and let them boil. When the edges begin to turn a little brown lift them and drain. Place on a soft brown paper and let them stand until cold. At serving time put a few at a time into the frying pan, plunge them into hot fat (about 360 degrees F.), dip them up and down once or twice until they are puffed and brown; drain, dust with salt and serve at once.

Potatoes Saute.—Cut the potatoes into fancy shapes and parboil them. Then dry and fry until a golden brown in hot clarified drippings or butter. Serve hot.

Good Form

Art of Being Gracious.

The art of being gracious is a valuable asset not only in the social world, but also to the business woman or man. Merely knowing how to be courteous has won advancement for men and women, for it is not an easy matter to find employees who can deal with a disgruntled customer and still keep his good will. There are big business institutions that keep such men and women, and many of them draw handsome salaries.

A striking example of the value of politeness is told by a woman who was left to support herself and her child and who had never had any business training. Her husband had had an income of several thousand dollars a year, but it had all been spent on good living. After his death the wife applied for employment to a firm with which she had had an account.

"What can you do?" she was asked.

Partly in jest she replied she could write a polite note. To her surprise, she was taken at her word, for the firm was badly in need of such a person. She was told that it was difficult to find some one who could answer complaints in such a way that the friendship of the customer was retained. For several years she supported herself and her child by writing polite notes.

In another instance a young man arose from an insignificant position to that of secretary of the president and diplomat for the concern. He was never too busy to perform an act of courtesy, and it was noticed that he was bringing new business. He was not one of those young men who size up the clothes of a visitor, and his good treatment of one unfashionably dressed visitor got a $60,000 deposit for the firm. One of his duties now is to tour the banks of the country and get exchange accounts.

Often two people start a similar business in the same block. One will thrive while the other starves for lack of patronage. Near a New York college two young women opened manicure rooms within a few doors of each other. They had the same prices, but the grade of work differed. One woman was tactful and businesslike; the other was slovenly and offended her customers by telling them it was hard to make their hands look nice. The first one soon enlarged her quarters.

Do's and Don'ts In Mourning.

There has perhaps been no more sweeping or wise social reform than the one that has taken place so far as mourning is concerned.

No longer do people swathe themselves in wrappings of costly, fragile crape. Even a widow's weeds are so modified that she is no more a somberly conspicuous object. Sense and good taste have banished the deeply bordered handkerchiefs and the fearsome note paper and envelope with its inch border of black. We wear mourning still as a mark of respect and as a "protection," for seeing what we wear no painful questions are asked by acquaintances. But the mourning of today is neither uncomfortable nor ugly and certainly not the fearfully expensive business it once was.

All mourning should be of the most severely simple order. Elaborately trim a dress or hat and it ceases to be mourning for all its sable hue.

Black velvet or satin is not mourning, nor whilst in deep mourning must a really decollete evening gown be worn.

Almost all jewelry is barred while black is the only wear. Dull jet pins or a buckle to the waist belt are permissible, but not gold, silver or any colored stones. Rings should not be worn, with, naturally, the exception of an engagement or wedding ring.

Never wear a colored underskirt. Nothing looks worse than to catch a fleeting glimpse of color when the wearer moves, and embroidered or "lace" stockings are also in bad taste.

Suede or dull glace gloves are equally correct. The latter have the advantage of wearing better, and a black or dark gray mackintosh must be worn.

Never adopt the ridiculous device of a band on the left arm and imagine by this means to turn a colored coat into mourning. Such a band has only a meaning when worn with uniform.

Public Caressing.

The same quietness of demeanor which marks well bred people in public conveyances or meeting places should be practiced on the street. Caresses in public or calling to acquaintances the width of the street away is distinctly in bad form, and a lack of consideration for others is shown in the carelessness which does not keep to the right side of the sidewalk in promenading, which rushes through swinging doors without a backward glance to see whom the door may catch in the rebound, which presses in ahead at box office and ticket office with no respect for the rights of those earlier on the ground. Another violation of courtesy is to be laid to the charge of the man who smokes on the street when with a woman.

Etiquette For the Debutante.

Etiquette forbids a debutante to issue invitations to men. A written note signed by her and expressing the wish of her mother that she write is permissible, but engraved invitations must not be sent by unmarried women to their men friends.

Baseball weather here again. Those Central New Jersey League teams won't have to go South to train if this temperature prevails right along. One advantage of living in Plainfield!

It seldom happens that five games of basketball are played on the same court during the short space of twelve hours. This will happen at the Scotch Plains Parish House tomorrow, however, if Manager Brodziak's plans materialize.

At the Parish House in the afternoon the Y. W. C. A. girls will play the Scotch Plains maidens and the boys from the St. Stephen's Church, of this city, will lineup against the Parish House juniors.

Scotch Plains will get another dose of the indoor sport in the evening when the Nonpareil and Hope Chapel girl fives of this city meet, and the All Plainfield boys' team will play the Parish House first team. The Netherwood A. C. will furnish the preliminary with the 'Plains seconds.

Plainfield High School will be represented by a trio of track athletes in the Dickinson High School meet at Jersey City tomorrow afternoon. Day, Mann and Dennison are the color bearers.

All Stars at Somerville tonight. Wait for developments.

Newark will be the destination of the Nonpareil feminine quintet of this city tonight. They are scheduled to lineup against the First Presbyterian girls' team of that place.

HUNTING AND FISHING

Tomcods are biting well, but a warm spell will be better for the fishing. The Communipaw docks are good places to try for them.

The best of the spring flounder fishing is found along Great South Bay and other bodies of water on the Long Island coast. Some of the fish now being caught weigh close to two pounds.

"Germproof Eels for Sale," reads a grocer's sign at Trenton. It seems that the Capital City is using chloride of lime to purify their drinking water that comes from the Delaware River, and the natives refused to eat the pickled eels that bore the Delaware brand.

Fifty-eight fish and game bills make the situation look as though the record is to be broken this year. About twelve more added to the list will do that, and those twelve are walking around the State House now. New Jersey ranks fairly high as a game State, but it tops the list for producing fish and game bills, which is some record.

The long streak in the glass tube showed 60 degrees at Trenton yesterday, and it made the shad fishermen think of shad and a pay day. Some of the men started to look their nets over and get things ready.

The Legislature is working rapidly on the bill to protect Cape May lobsters. As soon as Commissioner Napier informed the members that the Federal authorities would plant 6,000,000 lobsters along the coast line of Cape May they decided not to let the opportunity pass. So, hence the passage of a protective measure. The credit for securing this vast amount of sea food for New Jersey belongs to Commissioner Napier, who has worked on this subject with the Federal authorities for two years.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

BASKETBALL GALORE ON 'PLAINS COURT

Five Games Will Be Staged on the Parish House Court Tomorrow.

One of the largest and most complete basketball programs ever presented to Scotch Plains sportdom will be held in the Parish House at that place tomorrow afternoon and evening and Banager Zurnett Brodziak is making preparations to receive the largest crowd that ever attended an athletic exhibition at that place. In the afternoon the Y. W. C. A. girls' team, of this city, will furnish the attraction against the Parish House girls and will be the guests of the 'Plains girls during the evening when the main games will be staged.

Two boys' games between four of the speediest amateur quintets in this vicinity are on the evening program as is also the Nonpareil and the Hope Chapel girls' game. The 'Plains boys' first team will lineup against the All Plainfield combination. When these two aggregations met on the theatre stage in this city two weeks ago the result turned out to be a 17 to 41 victory for the Queen City combination. Scotch Plains, however, will be playing on its own court tomorrow night and a much harder fight is anticipated by the Plainfielders.

This is the second meeting of these two girls' teams, the first having been staged on the Hope Chapel court early in the season and resulted in a victory for the Nonpareils. The Chapelties have improved wonderfully since that time, however, and have put up good games against the North Plainfield High School and Dunellen fives and are confident of making the Nonpareils hustle this trip.

The evening program will include the following characters:

All Plainfields.		Scotch Plains.
T. Heron	forward	Ricketts
McNamee	forward	Thompson
Doig	centre	Marsten
Moulton	guard	Bettman
Glover	guard	Anson

Nonpareils.		Hope Chapel.

MURPHY-WOLGAST BOUT.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 21.—Boxing fans are attaching much interest to tomorrow's contest between Tommy Murphy and Ad Wolgast, because of the bearing that the result may have on the lightweight championship. The Harlem fighter has been a contender for the title for years, but has always been just outside the pale of champions. In the half-dozen 20-round bouts in which he has engaged since coming to the coast he has demonstrated that he is a much better performer over the long route than in the 10-round bouts in which he made his reputation in New York. If he should manage to get the decision over former Champion Wolgast tomorrow afternoon he will naturally be in line for a 20-round contest here with Willie Ritchie for the championship. Today Murphy and Wolgast ceased training and both appear to be in good shape for the mill. Each expresses himself as confident of victory, and the concensus of opinion of fight followers pressages a fight that will be well worth seeing.

"MET" JUNIOR GOLF CHAMPS HERE AGAIN

Fox Hills Gets Another Amateur Championships and Plainfield the Junior.

Fox Hills has been selected as the course over which the metropolitan amateur golf championship will be held this year. The executive committee of the Metropolitan Golf Association, in addition to chosing the Staten Island Club, also set the date for May 21 to 24 inclusive, and named A. H. Pogson, of Fox Hills, as the third member of the tournament committee. Howard F. Whitney, of Nassau, is chairman, with Frederick H. Thomas, of Morris county, as the other member.

The metropolitan junior championship, which was first held last year in this city, will be held here again this season, the date being left for a later decision. Last year only one day was devoted to the competition, which was won by Stuart D. Connolly, of Rockland, and it was suggested that the coming tournament be for two days. The Plainfield Country Club left it to the decision of the executive committee, which in turn voted to leave the matter to the club.

The junior event is decided along medal play lines, and at the time of its being held last year it was suggested that match play be substituted after a testing round, flights of eight being formed, the whole to be run off in two days. It may be, however, that 36 holes of medal play extending over two days will be adopted.

Fox Hills was once before the scene of the metropolitan amateur championship, that being in 1905, on which occasion Charles H. Seely was the winner. Since that time the links has been considerably improved and extended to more than 6,000 yards in length.

P. H. S. TRACKMEN WILL HAVE TO RUN

Plainfield Trio Will Have to Show Some Great Speed to Defeat Cracks.

Plainfield High School will be represented by a trio of its cinder path followers at the Dickinson High School athletic meet in Jersey City tomorrow afternoon. Morris Mann, Tony Dennison and Alfred Day will sport the Queen City institution's silks and are looking forward to annexing some of the handsome medals offered as incentives to competition. Mann will run in the fifty yard dashes, Day in the mile and Dennison in the 300 yard run.

All three of the local boys have been training faithfully for the past month and are in the pink of condition for the event. In the mile run Day will have to compete against such school boy cracks as Joe Meyer, of Central High School, Newark; Ezra Wenz, who won from Meyer at the Central High School meet and who holds the interscholastic mile title; and many other stars of past meets. This will not be the first time Day has competed against the Roselle High School runner, as he was a member of the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. five mile team that ran against the Elizabeth association road representatives captained by Wenz last spring.

In the sprints, Mann will have to beat "Jiny" Gardner, the pride of Central High School sprinters and Bartsch, the speedy representative of Dickinson High School.

Abe Rubin, another Central High man is looked forward to as the "Dark Horse" in the 300 yard run which Dennison has entered and Eistenstein, of the same school, is considered as a likely aspirant for the runner up honors.

SECOND SCHOLASTIC CONTEST TOMORROW

Plainfield and North Plainfield on the Saengerbund Court Tomorrow.

The second game of the interscholastic boys' basketball series will be contested on the Saengerbund Hall court tomorrow afternoon, when the North Plainfield High School and Plainfield High School quintets face each other. The initial contest resulted in a victory for the local boys but they were forced to travel the limit in order to pull off a win and did it only by a small margin.

Both aggregations have been practising faithfully for the past week getting in many extra sessions in preparation for the cup fight. In the event that P. H. S. wins this game the trophy will become theirs but if the Plainfielders drop this contest a third and deciding game will be necessary to award the cup and medals.

The respective coaches have been drilling their men in new plays since the first game and each school will have its strongest representative lineup on the court.

The teams will face each other as follows:

Plainfield.		North Plainfield.
Woodhull	forward	Taylor
Heron	forward	Van Mater
Good	centre	Dunning
Brynarisk	guard	Townley
Peacock	guard	Burner

NONPAREIL GIRLS PLAY AT NEWARK

Good Game Expected When Locals Meet Newark Church Girls Tonight.

The Nonpareil girls' basketball team, of this city, is scheduled to play in Newark tonight against the First Presbyterian feminine quintet of that city. The Newarkers put out a speedy aggregation to represent them on the court and it goes without saying that the Queen City combination will have its work cut out when it stacks up against this church five.

Tomorrow afternoon the local girls will meet Hope Chopel on the Scotch Plains Parish House court for the second time this season.

PIN TOURNEY IN TOLEDO.

Toledo, O., Feb. 21.—With more than 500 five-men teams, 1,165 two-men teams and 2,367 individual entries, the thirteenth annual tournament of the American Bowling Congress will have its formal opening in this city tomorrow under conditions that promise one of the most successful events in the history of the organization. For weeks the local committee has been busily at work preparing for the tournament and the entertainment of the visitors. Regulation alleys that are pronounced by experts to be perfect in every particular have been installed in the big Terminal Auditorium, where the competitions will take place. Ample accommodations have been provided for the spectators. The best bowlers in the United States will take part in the tournament. The entry list shows that Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Milwaukee, Louisville, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh, Columbus and other big bowling centers will be well represented. Prizes aggregating almost $25,000 have been hung up for the successful contestants in the three weeks' battle, and the men who capture the national titles this year will not only reap a harvest of glory but a substantial sum of money on the side.

ROUGH GAME WON BY BOROUGH QUINTET

Fraternity Representatives Prove Themselves Masters on Rival's Court.

The Phi Pi Psi basketball team, which is composed of North Plainfield High School first team and class team players, journeyed to Bernardsville yesterday and defeated the High School team of that place by the score of 23-19. The game was exceedingly fast and rough and the local boys made most of their shots count. Captain Ashley Burner played the all-around game of the evening and was the whole spirit of the local team. For Bernardsville Obert played the best game. The trip was made by stage and a good crowd of rooters accompanied the team. Miss Casselle acted as chaperone.

The score:

COUNTY SCHOLASTIC ATHLETIC MEET PLANNED

Newton, Feb. 21.—Growing out of a project discussion at its meeting at Hamburg, the Sussex County Education Club is preparing for a county scholastic athletic meet on either the second or third Saturday of May at a place to be agreed upon later.

The affair will be similar to a picnic. Every pupil in Sussex county, together with their parents and members of boards of education, will be invited to bring lunch baskets and spend all day in pleasure seeking.

Acting as a committee to arrange for events and the various classes and decide upon conditions and prizes, the following principals will meet at Franklin Furnace Saturday: Stephen M. Case, Franklin; Charles Hoffman, of Newton; George Smith and W. A. Sohl, of Hamberg, and Harry R. Mensch, of Sussex.

The fixing of the exact date and the place for the meet will rest with the executive committee composed of Howard E. Shimer, Newton; A. Stanley, Sussex; W. H. Harris, Ogdensburg, D. Fred Aungst, and R. H. Salisbury, of Hamburg.

The Fact that the Demand for

M'CARTY'S REAL HARD LUCK STORY

Heavyweight Fighter's Manager Tells of Their Woes.

LIVED MAINLY ON TOUCHES

Held Bat Nelson Up For $50—Paid Him Back After Palzer Fight—Once Had No Place to Sleep—Ate Himself Out of Boarding House.

When Luther McCarty's manager mailed a fifty dollar check to Bat Nelson recently it was the end of the hardest luck story that has adorned the record of any world's champion.

"When I borrowed those fifty bones from Nelson," said McCarney recently, "Luther and I were at the lowest ebb.

LUTHER M'CARTY, CLAIMANT OF WHITE HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE.

In fact, the tide may be said to have gone out and left us stranded. We had pretty nearly taken the count.

"We had been hanging around Springfield, Mo., where I had horned into a fight club and was trying to get the cowboy started. We were literally down and out. We had stayed at the hotel on credit until the proprietor sadly notified us to brush along.

"I then farmed Luther out to various boarding houses, but he ate himself out of a welcome in one after another. His appetite didn't make him a good boarding house risk.

"We had to get along mainly on touches. It wasn't safe to wish me a pleasant good morning in those days.

"Luther never made a whimper. He would come around and make a touch from me, and I would let him have whatever I could. Sometimes I slipped him a dollar; sometimes it was only a quarter. I remember that once he asked me for money when I only had a quarter in the world. I split with him and gave him a dime. I will always remember the way he grinned and said: 'Bill, you ought to give me a little fatherly advice before you send me away with this. I am liable to go out and raise the dickens with this dime.'

"At last it got down to the place where we were dead broke. That was just a year ago. Bat Nelson had come to Springfield to fight a boy named O'Rourke for my club, and we were hoping that that would rehabilitate our fortunes.

"When night came Luther, who had used up his last boarding house, hadn't a place to sleep and nothing to eat. He sat down in the hotel office. I found a club sandwich that somebody had left and fairly poked this into his face.

"'Where am I going to sleep, Bill?' he asked.

"I thought a moment, then told him to sneak upstairs and crawl into Bat Nelson's bed. He disappeared, and after awhile there came a roar over the phone. Bat was demanding to know who the big bum was in his bed. At this demand I went upstairs, and together we surveyed the slumbering form of the cowpuncher.

"'I've batted him around for ten minutes, but I can't wake him,' said Bat. 'Who is the big tramp, anyhow?'

"'Why,' I said, with all the surprise I could muster, 'that must be Luther McCarty. He must have gone to the wrong room by mistake.'

"I politely pounded Luther awhile and told him to wake up and get out of Bat's bed, but Luther slumbered on. All he did was to curl up his legs.

"Finally I told Bat he had better give it up for a bad job and crawl in beside Luther. He did this, and Luther got a good bed for the night.

"We had expected to make a lot of money out of Bat's fight, but he succeeded in offending most of the white population of the town, and his fight was a frost. We didn't get enough money to pay Bat's $800 guarantee. We had to pay him his money, but I followed him to the train and begged him to give me some money back. He finally wrenched himself away from $50, giving me a check just as the train started."

STARS SHINE TONIGHT.

An all star aggregation, of this city, will journey to Somerville tonight, where it is due to clash with the representatives of that place on the basketball court. The local combination is composed of a number of former scholastic stars and a good game is expected.

HOPE CHAPEL IDLE.

No game has been scheduled for Washington's Birthday by Manager George Leighs, of the Hope Chapel first team and the players will be given a rest tomorrow. A number of the men are playing with other quintets on various courts.

FRESHMEN INVADE DUNELLEN.

The Plainfield High School freshmen basketball team is scheduled to go to Dunellen tomorrow night to hook up with the Monarch A. C., of that place.

WOODROW WILSON'S DOUBLE

The latest and most exact "double" of President-elect Wilson is Thomas A. Downs, a business man of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Downs' resemblance to Mr. Wilson is said to be striking.

At a recent banquet, when six hundred salesmen were present, Mr. Downs was elected unanimously to a place in the Cabinet of the new administration. Mr. Downs is to attend the inauguration and hopes to meet Mr. Wilson.

WELL DESERVED.

The Praise That Comes From Thankful Plainfield People.

One kidney remedy never fails.

Plainfield people rely upon it.

That remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills.

Plainfield testimony proves it always reliable.

Mrs. Earnest Dorflinger, 400 Clinton avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I hold just as high an opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as I have for years. The cure they made in my case has been permanent and consequently I am glad to confirm my former testimonial." (Statement given January 19, 1911.)

On August 28, 1905, Mrs. Dorflinger gave the following account of her experience with Doan's Kidney Pills. "The first symptom of kidney trouble in my case was a dull, heavy pain in my back and head. This was followed by a tired, languid feeling and I knew that my kidneys were gradually giving out. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and getting a box at Randolph's drug store, I began their use. Before long my condition improved and I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until I was cured."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

MINNESOTA RATE CASES' DECISION

The U. S. Supreme Court May Hand Down Important Opinions on Monday.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 21.—One or more decisions of unusual importance are expected to be handed down by the Supreme Court of the United States when the court reconvenes next Monday after a three weeks' recess. Again the prediction is being made that the decisions in the Minnesota rate cases and the Intermountain rate cases are at last forthcoming. Of the two cases most public interest is naturally attached to the so-called Minnesota case. The "Intermountain" or "Spokane" rate cases involve the constitutionality of the long and short haul amendment of 1910 to the act to regulate commerce, while the Minnesota case hinges upon the broad question of the power of a State to control the affairs of a company doing an interstate business. The Supreme Court's decision in this case promises to define more clearly the questionable dividing line between State and Federal rights. It was a recognition of the importance of the case from the latter standpoint that caused it to be seriously discussed at the memorable conference of Governors held at Spring Lake, N. J., several years ago.

The Minnesota rate cases have been under advisement for a long time. They originated nearly seven years ago in the action of the Minnesota Railway Commission in ordering the railways in that State to make a number of rate reductions, including many of the commodity rates, and reductions amounting to a little more than 20 per cent. on the average in the class rates.

An agreement was afterwards reached by the commission and the railways, by which agreement, in consideration of the commission withdrawing the commodity rates it had ordered, the railways agreed to the class rates ordered, accepting them as equitable. Notwithstanding this agreement, action was later taken against the agreed rates in the United States circuit court at St. Paul, the plaintiffs being, not the railway companies, but individual stockholders, the railway companies, however, financing the litigation and the railway lawyers conducting it. The result was a decision by Judge Sanborn that the class rates in Minnesota should revert to what they were before the 20 per cent. reductions were made.

The Minnesota Railway Commission appealed from the Sanborn decision to the Supreme Court of the United States. The decision of the highest tribunal in the Minnesota case will be of the greatest importance, both in its immediate bearing on the fortunes of the railways operating in that State and in its effect on the wider question of the right of a State Legislature or commission to control the affairs of a company doing an interstate business. The decision will apply not only to the Minnesota case but also to a number of similar cases that have arisen in Kansas, Kentucky, West Virginia, Missouri and other States.

The railways predict with every appearance of genuine confidence that the principle of non-interference by the States with rates, or other matters in connection with the operation of railroads doing an interstate business, will be finally laid down by the highest tribunal. In other words, they expect that the decisive victory won by the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Minneapolis and St. Louis, when the legality of the rate reductions ordered by the State Railroad and Warehouse Commission of Minnesota was passed upon by the judges of the Circuit Court, will be upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States.

MONROE AVENUE SOCIETY ENTERTAINMENT NETS $65

The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church realized $65 at the annual birthday social at the church last night. A program of songs, recitations and violin and piano selections were given. Rev. F. J. Hubach, the pastor, offered prayer.

Piano solos were rendered by the Misses Bessie Gunzelman and Louise Praed; vocal solos by Miss Post; violin solos, Miss Viola Staples; and songs, recitations and dialogues by a number of the small children of the Sunday-school. One of the features was a basket of articles known as a basket of fun, auctioned off by Rev Mr. Hubach, assisted by John J Praed and other members of the Men's Class. At the various tables scattered here and there in the church aprons, postcards, fancy articles, candy and refreshments were placed on sale. The chairmen were: apron, postcard and fancy article tables, Mrs. I. P. LaRue; candy table Mrs. John McCormack; refreshments, Mrs. J. J. Praed. Mrs. Theodore Van Pelt, as president, was the general chairman. Mrs. Frederick J. Hubach was chairman of the entertainment committee.

4 DAYS MISSION MEETINGS CLOSE

Rev. Dr. Stackhouse's Sermon Final Feature of Local Baptists Conference.

A STIRRING DISCOURSE

Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire Gives a Talk at the Last Showing of the Remarkable Missionary Exhibit at First Baptist Church.

"Consecration and Missions" was the theme of an eloquent sermon given by Rev. Dr. W. T. Stackhouse at the First Baptist church, yesterday morning, closing the four days' session of the Missionary Convention and Institute held under the auspices of the First, Park Avenue, Temple and Seventh-Day Baptist churches. Dr. Stackhouse is the secretary of the Baptist Laymen's Missionary Movement and is now engaged in the interest of the three million dollar campaign for missions.

"Consecration is a term much abused and misapplied," Dr. Stackhouse said. "It is vastly more than what many people seem to think it is. It is not merely a religious spasm, however fervid it may be. Consecration is much more than the understanding and staunch defense of any creed, however Scriptural that creed may be. The greatness of a man is determined not so much by what he says, as what he does.

"A man cannot be straight Godward and be crooked manward. Consecration means more than perfection of organization, however complete that organization may be. What we need as a church is not more cumbersome machinery with which to work, but more power to operate the machinery we have. Consecration involves all the powers of the human soul. It embodies love first of all, love, strong and enduring and unstinted. It is love that has made it possible for men and women to brave unnumbered perils and persecutions that they might give the Gospel of Christ to those, among whom were our own ancestors, who were living and dying in the darkness of heathenism.

"It was love that made man to be God's image; it was love that sent God to be in man's image; it is love that will bring both God and man into the same image. As God has loved, so we also must love both Him and His. If we have not that love, we are not the true Christians the Master intended us to be. That love will involve sacrifice, just as human love always involves sacrifice.

"Consecration is love, love in the broadest sense, love which includes the universal brotherhood and sisterhood of mankind. The missionary spirit is just that and nothing more. If we have this spirit we shall not begrudge anything for the cause, we shall give of our interest, our sympathy, our money, our very selves, after the manner of that one who came 'not to be ministered unto, but to minister.' It will involve our level best. God gave the best in heaven for us; Jesus Christ gave His best for us; do we not owe our best to Him?

"When every one of us is consecrated to the Master in the way we ought to be, then right speedily shall His deepest desire be accomplished that all the world shall be won to Him. It can be done in this generation with that kind of consecration and what can we answer Him, why we have not done it?"

The missionary exhibit was open in the afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, when the last opportunity was given to see the remarkable collection. In the place of the regular Sunday school session, Mrs. Gabriel Reid Maguire gave an interesting talk to the school and friends of the missions.

YOUNG "JOY RIDER" GETS JAIL SENTENCE

Blauvelt Files Bond After An Appeal Before Squire Geo. Hughes.

Bradford Blauvelt, the seventeen-year-old chauffeur for Andrew McCardell, who while driving a high powered Studebaker roadster along the Warrenville road on Thursday night, Feb. 13, crashed into two vehicles injuring five persons, was arraigned Saturday afternoon before Justice of the Peace George F. Hughes, in the Watchung court, on charges of assault and violations of the automobile law. The latter complaint covered the section of the law which makes it an offense to fail to give aid to the injured and to try to escape after causing an accident, an offense which the young prisoner committed at the time of both accidents. After testimony was heard a sentence of thirty days in the county jail was imposed on this charge.

The prisoner took an appeal and was released on furnishing a bond of $500 for his appearance when his case is called in the Somerset County Court. The hearing on the other assault charge preferred by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Drummond, of Springdale, will take place Saturday, Mar. 1.

Blauvelt was to have been arraigned before City Judge De Meza in the local police court preceding the Watchung hearing, but on motion of J. Henry Crane, counsel for the defense, the hearing was postponed for one week.

Helen Drummond, aged two years, who was badly injured when the machine Blauvelt was driving collided with the rig in which she was riding accompanied by her parents, will recover, although it is probable that she may lose the sight of her left eye.

At each guest's place a novel souvenir to commemorate the birth of the Nation's first president was placed and these lent a feeling of genuine patriotism to the occasion. Among those present were the Misses Roberta and Myrtle Reynolds, Miss C. Isabelle Randolph, Albion Ledbitter, Dr. and Mrs. N. W. Currie, Dr. and Mrs. H. V. OUR GOVERNMENT WON'T INTERVENE

President and Congress in Accord But Troops Are Ordered to Galveston.

MADERO PEOPLE FLEE

Murdered President's Followers Fear Like Fate—Wood Not to Consult President-elect Wilson—U. S. is Prepared for Trouble.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Feb. 24.—While still keeping it cutlas to the grindstone preparing for possible trouble, this government does not contemplate any move in the Mexican situation. The killing of Madero and Suarez, while causing indignation and disgust and furnishing another object lesson of the anarchy in Mexico, does not of itself warrant over-action on the part of the United States. The President and Congress are in accord inthat conviction and no public clamor will move them. President-elect Wilson is being supplied with information and will be kept in touch with the situation. Whoever may be the new Secretary of State a week from tomorrow, he will find a thoroughly organized diplomatic service fully posted.

Mexico City, Feb. 24.—Each train that left Mexico City last night and early today bound for the coast carried men who had been active in the support of Francisco I. Madero. These men feared they would be murdered as were the deposed President and Vice President.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Orders were issued today to the Fourth and Sixth Brigades of Infantry and the Third and Fourteenth Regiments of Cavalry to entrain for Galveston immediately. The Fourth Brigade of Infantry has its headquarters at Chicago; the Sixth Bride at Fort D. R. Russell, Wyoming; the Third Cavalry at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, and the Fourteenth Cavalry at Fort Riley, Kansas. This is part of the plan to assemble a complete military organization for any untoward events in Mexico. Major General W. H. Carter will be placed in supreme command.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Major General Leonard Good today denied the statement that he was going to Trenton to confer with President-elect Wilson regarding the possible intervention in Mexico.

London, Feb. 24.—The British Government will refuse to recognize the new government of Mexico until it has been confirmed by a general election, according to a statement made in authoritative quarters here.

The Daily Press Magazine Free

An Attractive New Monthly Feature to Appear Next Saturday.

Probably for the first time in any city of the size in this country, the Plainfield Daily Press has added as a feature a superb magazine to be given to its subscribers absolutely free of charge. The custom was inaugurated by the biggest newspapers in the United States, the New York Evening Post being the most recent to undertake the scheme, but heretofore it has always been considered beyond the reach of the smaller daily to introduce such an elaborate feature.

In most instances the great newspapers issue the magazine once a month as is the case with the New York American and this will be the rule with the Plainfield Daily Press, whose magazine will be the finest published today in connection with a daily newspaper. It will be printed on fine paper, with a handsome cover in colors, and its contents will be so attractive that every member of the family will be eager to read it from cover to cover.

An idea of the character of the publication may be gained from the fact that the leading story in the first forthcoming issue is written by one of the most famous short story authors of the day, Gouvernour Morris, and is illustrated by Henry Hutt, who has few if any equals as a magazine illustrator. The title of Mr. Morris' literary effort is "The Elect." The many other fine features of the initial number will be found in an advertisement published elsewhere in this issue.

The Plainfield Daily Press Magazine will be enclosed in the issue of the paper on Saturday, March 1, and in every issue on the first Saturday in each month.

As the supply will be limited and is sure to be exhausted early on the afternoon of publication, those who are not regular readers of the Daily Press should leave their orders now either at this office or with a newsdealer.

HELP, HELP, POLICE! ONLY A FALSE ALARM

Noticing a light in the residence of Burnett C. Kenyon, of 752 West Second street, Friday night and knowing that members of the family were at Palm Beach, Fla., Patrolman Nolan suspected burglars were at work. Patrolmen MacIntyre and Walsh were summoned from headquarters. One guarded the front while another "copper" hid in the rear to see that no one escaped. Nolan went to the front door and rang the bell. Finally he grew impatient at the delay and unceremoniously pushed his foot through one of the window panes and entered the house. No sound of retreating footsteps reached his ears and a thorough search failed to reveal the presence of any one in the place. Nor was any evidence of burglars to be found.

It later developed that the caretaker of the house had left the gas burning as a precaution against intruders.

IN GEORGE'S HONOR.

A Washington's Birthday entertainment was given Friday night by Mrs. John Melick and Mrs. William Wann, of 716 South avenue. The decorations consisted of flags and cut flowers. A feature was a vocal and instrumental program of music and dancing. The women wore costumes representing Martha Washington. A buffet luncheon was served. Guests were present from New York, Westfield and Plainfield.

CHICKEN OWNERS BEWARE.

Chicken thieves visited the coops of Charles E. Doane, of 58 Norwood avenue, Saturday night, and succeeded in "absconding" with ten of the feathered stock. Firty-one birds have been stolen from other poultry owners in the vicinity, A. W. Hauck, of 50 Norwood avenue, having been visited twice within two weeks by the thieves. Sergeant Flynn, of police headquarters, has been detailed to investigate.

The bride wore a gown of white charmeuse with pearl trimmings, en train and a veil and she carried bride roses. The maid of honor was Miss Annie Williams, of Brooklyn, whose gown was pink charmeuse, with pearl trimming and shadow lace and she carried pink rises. The best man was Harry Uhler, of this city, and the flower girl was Evelyn Meeker, niece of the bride. The page was Richard Meeker, Jr., nephew of the bride. The ring ceremony was used. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The Lohengrin wedding was played by Miss Irene Day, as the bridal party entered the parlor, followed by the Mendolssohn Wedding March. The color scheme was pink. The floral decorations were furnished by Stanley, the florist. The dining table was attractively decorated, pink and white being the prevailing colors.

Dancing followed. When the couple left for the wedding trip the bride wore a traveling suit of brown. A final tryout for places in the casts to compose the two Plainfield High School Junior class plays were held in the High School Auditorium Friday afternoon and a definite selection arrived at by the judges who were members of the faculty. The class will give two plays, probably on the evening of Saturday, March 15, the first "Ici on Parle Francais," being presented by William Thompson, Eynon White, Cortlandt Fleming and the Misses Elizabeth Doig, Jennie Peacock, Madlyn Moy and Margaret Mortimer; while the second., "A Case of Suspension," will be given by Rosamond Carey, Margaret Tubbs, Esther Phillips, Mary Hunting, Ethel Schuck, and Arthur Van Zandt, James Buckle, Harold Williams, Carter Goodrich and Elston Hoagland.

It has been the custom of the High School Juniors to present a play every year for some time past and as the class of this year has some particularly fine material enrolled among its number, the coming affair will without doubt be one well worth seeing.

STATE HEALTH BOARD HEARS CARNEY APPEAL

The Board of Health has reserved decision until the March meeting in the case of Andrew Carney, of the borough, whose petition for a plumber's license was denied by the local Board of Health. His counsel, W. S. Angleman, appeared before the Board on Friday and he claimed that the action of the local Board in denying his client a license is illegal for the reason that it did not comply with the State law, which provides that the examining board shall comprise a master and journeyman plumber and an inspector, while it now comprises three members of the board one of whom, Hugh Reilly, who has just been appointed, is a master plumber. Mr. Carney has been engaged in business as a plumber and tinner here for thirty-seven years. The reason for refusing him a license was that he did not pass the examination.

AGED HERMIT IS BURNED TO CRISP

Among Smoldering Ruins, Charred Body of Andrew Cullen is Found.

GRUESOME DISCOVERY

A Dunellen Expressman Finds Remains at Early Hour—Some Conjectures as to How Victim Met His Death.

Andrew Cullen, aged about 80 years, who for the past half century has lived as a hermit in a shack on South avenue, Fanwood, was found early this morning burned to death among the smoldering ruins of his home. It is believed that while the old man was asleep either an overheated stove or upset oil lamp set fire to the small one-story structure and he lost his life before he had an opportunity of escaping from the place.

The charred body, almost burned to a crisp, was found about 5 o'clock this morning by H. C. Smith, a Dunellen expressman, who was driving his auto moving van along South avenue en route for Passaic. His attention was attracted by the smoldering ruins in a hollow near the "Maples," and an investigation disclosed the dead body. Mr. Smith at once notified the neighbors, who in turn summoned Dr. F. W. Westcott, the county physician; Constable John Logan and Augustus Sheelen, who quickly appeared at the scene of the fire and took charge of the body, which was afterwards removed to the undertaking establishment of George W. Cole in this city.

Although Cullen had lived about Fanwood for many years and was known in a casual way by the people he never disclosed anything about his life and for this reason it is not known whether he had any relatives. He made a living as a gardener in the summer and during the winter found odd jobs about Fanwood and vicinity. At times he would disappear for several months and return just as mysteriously. Those who had an acquaintance with Cullen say that he had an excellent education. Mrs. Stephen G. VanHoesen, of Fanwood, saw Cullen Saturday evening about 7 o'clock walking to his shack and so far as known she was the last one that saw Cullen alive.

William J. Bryan to Be Premier of Government After March 4.

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 24.—President-elect Wilson today announced that an extra session of Congress would be called to convene on April 1. He could not say as yet what business he would ask the extra session to take up.

"I think everybody agrees there should be immediate currency reform," was his reply to a question. He hopes also that the trust question will be given attention.

William J. Bryan will be the next Secretary of State, but this is the only appointment that can be definitely announced at the present moment. This statement comes from a man very close to Wilson.

MORE DEPOSIT BOXES AT PLAINFIELD TRUST CO.

The superior safe deposit facilities afforded by the Plainfield Trust Company's massive vaults and the additional protection of the Company's fireproof building have created such an active demand for boxes that the Company has again been obliged to enlarge its equipment, this time by the installation of 248 individual safes of various sizes ranging in price from $5.00 to $150.00 a year. The smaller boxes are large enough to accommodate such valuable papers as insurance policies, bonds and mortgages, stock certificates, etc., and the larger ones are especially designed for the use of corporations or firms who do not wish to trust the office safe which has proved itself to be such an easy prey to the professional thief. With its enlarged facilities, confidential service, coupon rooms, fireproof building, etc., The Plainfield Trust Company's safe dposit equipment is now complete in every particular and offers all the advantages of a New York institution.

VIOLIN IS HERALDED AS A CURE FOR BALDNESS.

Expert Declares Stringed Instrumental Music Is Decided Aid to Hair.

"If you are bald, learn the violin," is the moral to be drawn from a startling statement made by M. Henri de Parville in London recently. According to this authority, music exercises a manifest action upon the nervous system, which itself also affects the nutrition of the bodily tissues; therefore it seems reasonable to conclude that in a general way music has an influence upon the physiological individuality.

Musicians, it appears, are bald in the proportion of 11 per cent. but among instrumentalists the influence of musical vibrations makes itself felt in two opposite directions, according to the class of instrument.

Thus, while string instruments prevent and arrest the falling off of the hair, the brass instruments exercise the most deadly influence upon the scalp. The piano and the violin, especially the former, have an undeniably preservative effect.

The trombone, however, is the most deleterious of all, for in five or six years the player has lost at least 60 per cent of his hair. This disagreeable result is known as "fanfare baldness" because the evil particularly punishes regimental musicians.

SURVEYING SOUTHERN SEAS.

Hydrographic Office to Make Approach to Canal Safe.

Mariners are warned by the navy hydrographic office of a dangerous rock just discovered by the surveying steamer Hannibal as she was proceeding to her working grounds on the east coast of Central America.

In anticipation of the opening of the Panama canal the Hannibal has undertaken a survey of the Central American coast to establish correct geographical positions of several points on the coast, where lighthouses, beacons and buoys will be constructed. At the present time almost all of the navigation aids are maintained by private firms.

The work plotted out for the Hannibal from Cape Gracias a Dios to Porto Bello will occupy her about ten years if she does it alone. The navy department hopes to put out the Leonidas to assist the Hannibal and thereby hasten the completion of the surveys.

CASH REGISTER FOR CHURCH.

Unique Collection Box Is Devised For Congregation In Pennsylvania.

A novel invention has been perfected by John Gilmore of Harrisville, Pa., which will be to a church what a cash register is to a mercantile house. Gilmore's unique contraption is a collection box which will signal just what amounts have been dropped in and who gave them.

An attachment to the box in the shape of a "tickler" can be used to awaken slumbering members of the congregation.

The collection box has several apertures of different sizes for coins to pass through after they are deposited. When a quarter is dropped it slides down a groove until it enters a hole just large enough for it to pass through, and the silence is unbroken. If it is a dime that is dropped a tiny bell tinkles; a nickel sounds a small whistle, and a penny causes a whir like the winding of a clock.

PLAINFIELD Y. W. C. A. FIVE FORFEITED THE GAME

Because of the North Plainfield High School and Plainfield High School basketball game that was scheduled to be run off Saturday afternoon it became impossible for the management of the Y. W. C. A. team to round her players together to keep their engagement with Manager Burnett Brodziak at the Scotch Plains Parish House and as a result the Plains girls and the association representative's contest did not materialize. Manager Brodziak, after doing some early morning hustling, finally succeeded in rounding up a combination team to meet his Parish House girls and the Scotch Plains' followers of the game got their allotment of afternoon basketball after all.

An Egotist is one who thinks that the only thing in the universe that cannot be improved upon is himself!

We discover traces of Egotism in some stores quite as often as we do in some individuals—those stores that are completely satisfied with themselves.

LOG CABIN CLUB'S BIG HOLIDAY SHOOT

Some Great Scores Made in Cups Contest on the Holiday.

Members of the Log Cabin Gun Club devoted practically the entire holiday (Washington's Birthday) to shooting.

There were nine men who had qualified in this and previous holidays for the Waring Holiday Cup, and in the final shoot-off D. S. Weems was high gun, winning from scratch with a score of 22, and George T. Van Boskerck was second with a score of 20.

George T. Van Bosterck won one point on the Simpson Cup. This competition is under Olympic rules and the cup goes to the one winning the most number of points during the season, a credit of one point being given for each win.

An interesting contest was held between George Schoonmaker and George Van Boskedck, which was finally won by the former, for a point on the Weems' challenge cup. Schoonmaker being high gun in the preliminary shoot, challenged Van Boskerck, the then present holder. In the first shoot off of 25 birds they each killed 19. In the second shoot off of 5 birds they each killed 4, and in the third shoot off of 3 birds Schoonmaker killed 5 straight, while Van-Boskerck missed his first bird, getting, however, the other 4.

The Ackerman Special Cup was won by D. G. Weems. In this contest the shooter was to take his position on the platform and traps were to be sprung at will of puller. Each shooter was given 10 birds which included one pair of doubles. Weems killed 8, two of which were doubles. Patterson, S. Huntington and Payne each killed one of their doubles, while the score for the others contesting averaged better than four each.

A match with a team from the Baltusro Golf Club is looked forward to at an early date.

NONPAREILS PLAYED ON PECULIAR COURT

Manage to Win Out After an Uphill Fight Against Speedy Newarkers.

Playing on a triangularly shaped court and cramped for playing space, the Nonpareil girls' basketball team, of this city, barely managed to nose out a victory in their game with the First Street Presbyterian church girls' five at Newark Friday night. Although the final score was 16 to 10, it was not until the final minutes of play that the Plainfield scoring machine got into operation and sewed up the game, the home team holding the van for the greater part of the contest. In the initial half the playing was slow and uninteresting, three of the Plainfielders plainly evidencing the effects of the severe strain they underwent in the P. H. S.-N. P. H. S. game the same afternoon. During this period the visitors were never in front and they were lucky in coming out of the half with the score a 7 to 7 tie.

The position of the goals, which were placed at sharp angles from a catacorner spot in the wall, was one of the greatest handicaps the Queen City aggregation had to overcome and they did not solve the mysteries presented by the tantalizing ball-holder until the contest was nearly over. Sensational work in the preliminary practice, especially on the part of Miss Clara Smith, had the home team on its nettle when the play started and the Plainfield guard further increased their anxieties by caging a goal from her position at guard almost the instant play started.

The visitors' lead was short lived, however, as the First Street five displayed some sensational shooting all through the initial administration while the Plainfielders dragged along in the rear contented to keep within winning distance of their opponents.

The final period started off with a rush and the speedy Newarkers kept the visiting guards constantly on the alert trying to ward off the heavy goal bombardment. Little scoring was done in this period until the final minutes of play when a spectacular overhead shot by Miss Ida Hummel and a quartet in quick succession from Miss Hummel won the game. For the home team Miss Wirth and Miss Clements played a prominent part in the scoring that was done.

NORTH PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS' SEXTET WON BASKETBALL CHAMPIONSHIP

A precedent was established by the North Plainfield High School girls' basketball team last Friday afternoon, when it defeated the Plainfield High School maidens on the latter's court by a score of 22 to 17. Never before in the history of local interscholastic feminine athletic competition has North Plainfield been able to register a ivctory over the Plainfield girls on the local court. After playing on a court that is much larger in every respect than the one at P. H. S., the boroughites came over on this side of the brook and demonstrated their superiority under this handicap.

The score was close at the finish but still closer at other stages of the game, neither team having a decided advantage over the other at any time. When one team was fortunate enough to register a field goal, the other aggregation evened up maters almost instantaneously and the battle seesawed back and forth, being anybody's until the sound of the final whistle. The contest was an unusually fast one for girl's rules and although many fouls were called, lenience was the cause of many petty infractions of the rules being passed up which, if penalties were levied for, would have only gone toward slowing up the battle. Each aggregation fought tooth and nail for every point garnered and it was with reluctance that every taliy was yielded.

As has been the case in the numerous North Plainfield victories chalked up of late, little Miss Marjorie Burtis was once more the star. This diminutive but versatile basket cager was directly responsible for ten out of her team's points and got in some of the best passing evidenced on the floor. Miss Mair was credited with four field goals, which Miss McAuliffe, from her position at center, secured a brace of goals in the last part of the second half that were not only spectacular, but in reality sewed up the game for the boroughites.

For Plainfield, Miss Mary Duncan gathered in all of the starring honors, counting for five field goals, three of which came in the last few minutes of play when P. H. S. flashed a spurt that savored of victory but which proved to be short lived. Miss Brynariski, playing her initial game as a regular, displayed her foul shooting ability as did also Miss Rodenbaugh. The losers were perceptibly handicapped in every department of the game by the absence of Miss Stryker, who was prevented from playing because of illness. Her shooting ability would have given the North Plainfielders a much harder run for the victory had she been able to get into the fray.

By virtue of their win the N. P. H. S. quintet are the claimants of the interscholastic basketball title and all that goes with the honor, having defeated Plainfield once before this season on the Saengerbund Hall court. The triumph is doubly sweet for the North Plainfielders, they having accomplished the same trick last year and some of the same players were members of the team at that time.

FRESHIES DEFEATED BY SOLITARY POINT

Plainfield High School Sophomores Were Victors in Another Close Fight.

One point separated the Plainfield High School Sophomores from their Freshman opponents Friday afternoon in their scheduled interclass clash when the final whistle was sounded. The second year men by caging a basket an instant before time was called, were able to hold fast to the bigger part of a 12 to 11 count.

At the end of the first half the score stood 8 to 6 in favor of the Sophs but the first year team pulled together better in the final period and scored 5 points against the winners' 4.

N. P. H. S. FIVE EVENS UP MATTERS WITH LOCAL SCHOOLBOYS ON BASKETBALL COURT

Playing on the Saengerbund Hall court which was little more than a skating rink to the Plainfield High School basketeers, the North Plainfield High School five evened up matters in the interscholastic basketball league standing by scoring a 41 to 35 deefat over their city rivals. Time and again when the local guards tried to guard their N. P. H. S. opponents they slipped to the floor and lay powerless while the forward shot the goal. The N. P. H. S. players were more familiar with the court and played to better advantage on it because of that fact.

Woodhull's foul shooting and Taylor's playing featured the contest. P. H. S. was never in the lead after the middle of the first half when a series on field and foul shots gave the boroughites a lead that they never relinquished. A detailed story of the Plainfield High School-North Plainfield High School game will be published in tomorrow's issue of this paper. The score:

FORTY-TWO TALLIES IN A SINGLE GAME

Miss Helen Hummel Has a Habit of Piling up Field Goals.

Playing their second contest in two nights, the Nonpareil girls' team, of this city, defeated the Hope Chapel girls to the tune of 62 to 12 on the Scotch Plains Parish House court, Saturday night. For the winners, Miss Helen Hummel, the captain, totaled up a string of twenty-one field goals or forty-two points for her team, while Miss Ida Hummel tossed nine of the field variety. It was in a Hope Chapel game last year that Miss Hummel [illegible] that will probably stand for some time to come in basketball when she chalked up forty field goals in one game. Her performance Saturday night is one that is not often equaled by a player of either sex.

For the losers, Miss Mary Duncan was the shining light, and together with Miss Helen Saffron did the bulk of the scoring. Miss Lucy Douglas played centre as a substitute for Miss McAuliffe on the winner's team and put up a sterling article of basketball.

AJAX GAME OFF.

The game scheduled to be played between the Y. M. C. A. Ajax and the Bayview basketball team, of Perth Amboy, on the former's court Saturday night, was called off by Manager Hetfield, of the Ajax. Several of the association players were in the N. P. H. S.-P. H. S. game in the afternoon and a second contest was not thought advisable.

PLAINFIELD HIGH SCHOOL BOYS MAKE BUM SHOWING

Plainfield High School's trio of athletes who went to Jersey City Saturday afternoon failed to get into the prize list in any of the events they entered and as a result the local school failed to score any points in the big Dickinson High School affair. Manhattan Preparatory School, of New York, and Dickinson High School, which held the meet, broke even in the point score for the meet which was held in the Fourth Regiment Armory in Jersey City.

The local runners who entered the meet were Alfred Day, Morris Mann and Tony Dennison. Day was entered in the mile run and was nosed out by such stars as Meyer, of Central High School, who took first place; Wenz, of Elizabeth, who took second, and Vivertio, of Manual Training High School, New York, who took third honors. The event was run off in the wonderful time of 4 minutes 6 seconds, a new indoor scholastic record. Mann was entered in two of the 50 yard dashes, the winners being Dwyer, of New York Military Academy; Rosenberger, Morris High School; Farrel, Anderson and Lehman, the New York Interscholastic champion.

Dennison ran in the 880 yard run in which Lagay, of Central High School, proved a dark horse; Piebes, of Commercial High School, coming in second, and Dougherty, of Manhattan Prep., third. The fact that none of the local boys received prizes is, of course, a cause for regret on the part of their followers and schoolmates but they received an experience in this big meet that will stand them in good stead in any other similar event they enter. Day ran in a race that resulted in a shattering of the former figures for them all and he was outdistanced from the start.

PARISH HOUSE TEAM WON A CLOSE CONTEST

Although Plainfield was represented by a basketball quintet on the Scotch Plains Parish House court, Saturday night, the Queen City aggregation was humiliated by the Plains first cam within count of 29 to 25. Manager Brodziak, of the home team, mislaid the score book and as a result no box score of the game could be obtained.

In the previous meeting of these two teams, the Plainfielders won by the same score and the series now stands evened up and the third game will probably be decided in the near future. The lineup was as follows:

Plainfield.		Scotch Plains.
Heron	forward	Ricketts

SPAGHETTI COMBINATIONS.

SPAGHETTI, though not so popular in this country as macaroni, is every bit as nutritious. The paste from which it is made is exactly the same as that used for macaroni. Instead of being formed into tubes spaghetti is made in the shape of threads. The glutinous flour of hard wheat from which these favorite Italian foods are manufactured is full of nourishment.

Spaghetti may be combined with other foods to make delicious dishes. Some recipes for these follow:

Spaghetti With Tomato Sauce.—Take a cupful of spaghetti and boil and blanch it. Butter a baking dish and pour the spaghetti in it. Add a cupful of strained tomatoes, a little cream sauce and sprinkle with breadcrumbs. Bake in a hot oven for twenty minutes.

To make the sauce place a tablespoonful of butter in a saucepan, adding a tablespoonful of flour. Mix these together and slowly pour in a cupful of cold milk. Stir these together until smooth. Then add a couple of tablespoonfuls of grated cheese, a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper. Mix all together and when smooth pour over the spaghetti.

Excellent Viands.

Eggs and Spaghetti.—Take some spaghetti and cook it with a cupful of grated cheese. When the spaghetti and cheese are cooked, add slices of hard boiled eggs. Serve in a bowl garnished with pieces of soft toast.

Spaghetti and Mushrooms.—Boil a pound of spaghetti for eight minutes in salt water. Then wash and drain. Pour into a saucepan a cupful of rich beef or veal gravy and put in the spaghetti. Cook and add a pound of fried fresh mushrooms, a very small quantity of finely chopped and fried onions and one cupful of stewed tomatoes. Season with salt and paprika and cook for ten minutes. When serving sprinkle grated parmesan cheese over it.

Spaghetti and Bacon.—Take a small package of spaghetti, half a dozen slices of bacon which have been cut into small squares and fried crisp and a half can of tomatoes. Turn the spaghetti into two quarts of rapidly boiling salted water, add a half teaspoonful of pepper and boil hard for twenty or thirty minutes; stir frequently to prevent scorching. Drain the spaghetti in a colander and rinse thoroughly in cold running water. Add to the bacon and tomatoes, season to taste and boil thirty minutes.

TAILORED SUITS.

Bright Colors and Ribbed Materials Lead In Spring Fashions.

It goes without saying that nicely and cleverly tailored suits of ribbed ratine and velours de laine cloths will be quickly bought up at the sales the shops are now offering. Those who think of the morrow will go for the lighter makes, as spring advances with positive strides once we are launched into the new year. She who is yearning for color will find these ribbed ratines peculiarly satisfying in vivid shades. It is a sure thing that such suits as these in cerise, purple or that nice green that is about just now will not have to wait long on their pegs.

Tailors are turning to color chiefly because these new tailor materials present it with such alluring texture. The less these fabrics are trimmed the better, just important buttons, with perhaps the collar facings of contrasting fabric, although even this last is at a discount, as ribbed ratine and velours make such agreeable collar facings themselves. By the way, there is a delightful chic about long wrap coats in these materials.

Making steady headway in the approval of all those whose aim it is to keep in the front ranks of fashion are the beautiful Bulgarian embroideries. These, for the nonce, have largely ousted the Japanese, Chinese and oriental fancies. "Bulgar" is the pet abbreviation of the moment. There is even a "Bulgar" cloth, a rather rough, clumsy weave with a patterned border, a woven effect to simulate the broderies characteristic of the troublous Bulgarian state.

To many minds, however, quite the most fascinating medium of expression is provided in some little colors, adjustable affairs, that give the most delightful and novel touch to either corsage or coat. The color harmonies introduced are singularly artistic, a dull oxydized thread frequently entering into the scheme, sometimes as a narrow bordering theme or again interwoven with the groundwork. The colors generally trend to somberness, but there is no mistake at all as to the extremely attractive nature of the "Bulgar" colorings and embroideries nor any doubt that they are prepared to take a leading place in the forthcoming season's fashions.

A FISHING PARTY.

Here's a Capital Idea For a Novel Church Entertainment.

Here's a novel idea for a church entertainment which requires little preparation.

A rustic bridge was built out from the stage, inclosing a spare space that was used for a fishpond. Rocks and ferns were grouped along the edge of the stage, the floor was covered with green carpet, and a pretty meadow scene painted on coarse cotton was hung at the back of the stage, making a very picturesque setting for the pond. Steps led up to the bridge, and at the foot was a rustic lodge, where, on payment of a fee, the prospective fisher was given a pole and a circle of cardboard, upon which was marked the number of times he was entitled to fish. Thus equipped, he went up on the bridge and fished in the pond. Tickets were also sold by the bridge keepers.

Refreshments were served, and there were a candy and cake table and two stalls where fancy articles were sold. One of these stalls bore the sign "Fish Market." Here fish of many brilliant colors and quaint shapes were for sale. There were blotters, shaving cases, pincushions and sachet bags.

On the cake table were many toothsome fishes—chocolate and clear candy fishes and boxes of candy decorated with water color and pen and ink sketches; also sandwiches cut out with fish shaped tin cutters; also cookies and small iced cakes.

At intervals singing, recitations and tableaux may be given for variety.

A Traveling Convenience.

When traveling it is often necessary for the girl whom nature has not blessed with wavy hair to carry a curling iron. And in this electrical age the old fashioned tongs that were heated in gas are no use whatever, so something else to meet this need had to be evolved.

The manufacturers recently have added to milady's comfort by making the new alcohol curling iron seen in the illustration. One can load this iron, as it were, before leaving home, if the journey is to be a short one, with alcohol, which is applied to a piece of cotton wadding that is then placed in the side of the iron having perforated holes.

It is but the work of a minute to put a match to the saturated wadding and thereby heat the curling iron to the right temperature. This iron is far ahead of the old curling tongs which were heated in an alcohol lamp.

Revelation of New Dress Goods
(SECOND FLOOR—MARKET STREET).

Every woman with visions of smartly tailored suits and fetchingly styled frocks, should visit the Bamberger dress goods department. We are so proud of the new spring and summer dress goods, that we are at a loss as how to express our admiration for it. But come and see for yourself. We will abide by your verdict, as to whether or no dress goods equally as attractive, are seen elsewhere in Newark. England, France, Germany and America have contributed their best weaves—and many of the patterns are exclusive with Bamberger's.

Waists at $2 That Are Real Gems
(THIRD FLOOR—WASHINGTON ST.)

It would be fruitless to attempt an adequate description of these charming waists here. In the first place, there are too many points of newness to be dealt with. Suffice it to say, that the women in search of chic waists at a moderate price, should find her quest ended the moment she sees those we have priced at $2.00. Some are made of cotton voile, and others of batiste with new Bulgarian embroidery trimmings. Some have lace yokes, while with others the new tucked front is the feature. Long and short sleeves, high and low neck styles. Every one a gem—at $2.

Dainty Crepe de Chine Petticoats $5

We have been fortunate to secure scores of soft and beautiful petticoats to sell at $5.00. Now, such undergarments are so extremely popular, we predict that hundreds of women will be here bright and early in the morning for them. You may choose from three different styles too. Some are trimmed with shadow, others with filet or German Valenceniennes laces, and each one is finished with a dainty ribbon rosette or bow. In pink, white and blue. Exceptional crepe de chine petticoats for $5.00 better setting for the fight to de- whether Francis I, Madero or Fe- tias should rule in Mexico could been picked out by the best of e managers than the historic Plaza a Constitucion, the largest open e in the City of Mexico. Upon this t the most important buildings of capital, in themselves combining hories of the past glories and great s of the country. In its day, 400 e ago, the geographical center of great Aztec capital of Tenochtitlan. plaza, also known as the Plaza de nas, the Plaza Mayor, the Plaza de Catedral and the Zocalo—has wit- ed scores of stirring events. The t tragic feature of the present con- perhaps, is that it threatens de- ction to some of the most distin- hed monuments of Mexico's great- links in the chain of tradition ch binds this Mexico of recurrent lt and modern aspiration with the of the Conquistadores, of Cortes Alvarado.

Temple of Aztec God.

n this Plaza de la Constitucion d the teocalli or temple of Huitzilo- otli, the Aztec god of war, and part t was included in the gardens sur- nding the enormous palace of Mon- uma, the Aztec emperor. Converg- canals crossed its surface, inter- ting it with impassable barriers. re in 1521 was fought one of the sanguinary battles between the niards and the natives, and after fall of Nenochtitlan before the ht of Cortes' arms the Spaniards nged themselves for all their suf- ngs by wrecking the massive tem- and palaces that ringed the square using the material thus obtained to in the canals. As it stands today, in t, the plaza is a depository of quaint tec sculptures, which every now and n are brought to light by the pick the laborer.

Here in the plaza, after the Spanish had been set up, the gallows was lt and the dread auto-de-fe of the uisition was held. On Sept. 27, 21, Augustin de Iturbide rode into square at the head of his victorious my and was cheered as a liberator. d on the night of May 18, 1822, he his wife crossed the square to the thedral to be crowned first Christian perer and empress of Mexico. In s vicinity centered the great revolu- nary riot of December, 1828, and the merican troops bivouacked in the aza in 1847, during the occupation by ott's army. In 1864 it was the cen- of the gay events of Maximilian's ief reign, and here, too, on June 21, 67, Porfirio Diaz was welcomed as a erator, even as was Iturbide. And it went through the rest of the cen- ry.

The Palacio Nacional extends along e entire eastern side of the plaza, th a frontage of 675 feet, and occu- es an entire city block. It is a gigan- c mass of buildings, two stories high, th thick and ponderous walls, pierced a dozen or more patios and gate- ys, and housing a dozen or so of the overnment offices as well as a mu- um, galleries of records and suits of ate apartments. Professor Butler f Princeton, who has just procured ermission from the Turkish govern- ent to resume his work at Sardis and ho left for Smyrna recently, discuss- d his project with a correspondent in ondon before his departure.

"If we discover this we shall also urely come to a tremendous find of he palace of Croesus," he said. "Be- ore leaving Sardis last year we dis- overed a stone inscription in front of he temple of Artemis, which we have ompletely uncovered. It is said that he great temple of Zeus was founded y Alexander the Great on the ruins of he palace of Croesus and not far away, eing in the same sacred inclosure, the emple of Artemis. There is corrobo- rative evidence of this on a coin of ardis now in the British museum which shows the temples of Artemis nd Zeus side by side."

JOAQUIN MILLER FINE CHARACTER

Poet of Sierras Lived in Odd Retreat.

WROTE MUCH ABOUT NATURE

Built Funeral Pyre in Fastness of Estate—Won His Pseudonym Through Strong Defense of Mexican Bandit. Didn't Like to Write—Wanted to Be a Gardener—Objected to Kipling.

Joaquin Miller, the "Poet of the Sierras," who died Feb. 17 at the age of seventy-one on his pretty estate in the Piedmont foothills overlooking San Francisco, was one of America's most picturesque characters. The poet had been one of the leading literary lights of his day, and for years the woodland retreat, where he lived in a cabin, was the Mecca for notable pilgrims. He lived with his aged wife and daughter, Juanita, each occupying a separate cabin. The family ate their meals in a special cabin.

Cincinnatus Heine Miller was the real name of the "Poet of the Sierras," and he was born in Indiana back in 1841. But the world had long known him by his pseudonym, Joaquin Miller, and for many years had associated him with the mountains and mines of the far west. Ever since his retreat in the seventies to the Heights, his high acres near Oakland, Cal., he has been looked upon as one of the picturesque figures of the Golden Gate, a figure inseparable from California, and with his high boots, buckskin clothing and broad sombrero resting on the massive head of flowing white hair, a figure that would soon pass, with other outposts of pioneer days, into the last great epic of civilization.

This removed life that Miller led in his last quarter century there on that high point where Freemont tented and from which he caught the view that led to the name, "the Golden Gate," gave him a reputation as a philosophical hermit—a sort of John Burroughs of the far west. Although Miller loved this picturesque retirement, there were occasional but marked lapses from his devotion to it. In the late nineties he suffered himself to be diverted to the Klondike as a special correspondent at that scene of interest, and it must be admitted that he sometimes went east to spend some days with the Roycroft colony at East Aurora.

His Funeral Pyre.

Miller loved his Heights, where he and his mother planted hundreds of trees, where he built his home and his chapel and "Abbey." Finally, he built the pyre—a cairn of rough stones inscribed "To the unknown" on which he gave directions that his body should be burned and from which the ashes were to be carried off by the winds through the cypress grove and over the mountains that he knew so well.

"More than twenty years ago," he wrote not so many years back, "I sat down here on a mountain side with mother and began to plant trees. Men and women came to work and to rest with us—men and women from colleges and universities. No one was ever asked to come; no one was ever asked to go."

Miller's family moved to Oregon when he was only thirteen, and from there he ran away to the California gold fields. Then followed several years of mining life close to the soil with the Indians, a bit of law study, a little law practice, some years on the bench as a country judge in California and then his first attempt at writing. This was as editor of the Eugene City Democratic Register, which was suppressed.

How He Got His Name.

The name of Joaquin came from his spirited defense of Joaquin Murietta, a Mexican bandit. The name stuck to him, and after several attempts to shake it off he shrewdly accepted it. One of his first attempts to sell a manuscript was in his offer of copy to Editor Bret Harte of the Overland, San Francisco, but his first verse attempts in this country—his "Songs of the Sierras"—were coldly received by eastern publishers. So he took them to London. There they were published and created a sensation. Miller was petted, lionized, exalted and a little spoiled.

His books are "Pacific Palms," "Songs of the Sunland," "The Ship of the Desert," "Life Among the Modocs," "First Families of the Sierras," "Shadows of Shasta," "Memorie and Rhue," "Baroness of New York," "Songs of Faraway Lands," "The Destruction of Gotham," "49 or the Gold Seekers of the Sierras," "The Life of Christ," etc. He wrote several successful plays, notably "The Danites."

Didn't Like to Write.

Miller always protested that he did not like writing and that he would stop as soon as he could afford to do so. He accumulated several thousands, but lost them, however, in Wall street, a most unheroic like thing to do, and it made writing all the more a necessity.

Miller's poetry almost exclusively dealt with the wonders of nature. He objected to Kipling because of the latter's proneness, as he said, to exploit war and warriors. When the English poet produced "The Female of the Species" Miller condemned the work in hearty terms. "Kipling was not sincere when he wrote it," said Miller.

THE MOST WONDERFUL BARGAINS OF ALL ARE IN OUR BEDDING DEPARTMENT

Our entire Spring line of bedding was in our warehouse, but not anywhere near the fire. Not an article was even scorched, but some of it became wet, and has long since become entirely dry. The Greatest Furniture Sale of the Age---The Money-Saving Opportunity of a Lifetime

The fire we had on February 1st destroyed only a small part of the Top Floor of our warehouse. We were heavily insured and the insurance companies have paid up their loss promptly. This leaves us with our complete warehouse stock practically paid for by the insurance companies, so that we are able to offer this stock of high-grade furniture at less than 25 cents on the dollar of what it originally cost us.

This is not an ordinary fire sale. The majority of the furniture is in almost perfect condition. Hundreds of pieces, on which the wrappings were either soaked or charred and which were paid for by the insurance companies as a total loss, when we came to strip off the wrappings were found to be absolutely perfect. Thousands of Chairs and Rockers are as good as when they left the factory, with perhaps a water spot here and there.

Every stick of the furniture has been marked to be sold at from 60 to 80 per cent. less than usual selling prices. Every piece is our standard guaranteed furniture, durable and well made. Pieces that are slightly damaged only are marked at prices less than you could buy the same amount of wood for kindling.

It's going to be worth your while to see these bargains, but we advise an early selection. Quantities are limited, and the biggest bargains are snapped up first.

WE PARTICULARLY WANT OUR OLD CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS TO GET IN ON THIS SALE.

Thousands of chairs were stacked in our warehouse—chairs for library, dining-room, parlor and bedroom; some cane seat, others wood seat, others cobbler seat. Some are upholstered in genuine leather, others in imitation leather. Hundreds were badly damaged, but thousands are still here as good as new. The insurance companies paid for them in full, and you consequently save fully 75 per cent. on every dollar you spend for chairs during this sale

WHAT INTERVENTION MEANS.

Five years of guerilla warfare extending into the mountain fastnesses of Mexico with an American army of upward of 250,000 necessary is what intervention in Mexico means to the United States, according to the statement of Frederick L. Huidekoper, the military expert.

"The hatred of the Latins for the Anglo-Saxon is intense in Mexico," he said, "and intervention in any form by this country means the welding of all antagonistic forces against one common enemy. The United States takes on her shoulders an enormous task, that of subduing a country where the lines of communication exist only in the settled parts. Three distinct campaigns would have to be waged in north, south and central Mexico to conquer the land. Central Mexico would be the only part of the country in which decisive campaigns could be fought. The others would be a series of long drawn out skirmishes—guerrilla warfare in its worst phase.

"The lines of communication are all remote," he said, "and when one point is conquered it will be necessary to maintain a defensive force. This would require an enormous number of men. In order to obtain such an army the militia of course would have to be drafted into service."

CHINA PLANS AERIAL FLEET.

Oriental Republic to Order Machines From French Makers.

The president of the Chinese republic, on the suggestion of his French military adviser, Major Brissaud Desmaillet, has decided upon the creation of an aerial fleet, the organization of which will be intrusted to French officers.

All Chinese staff officers, it was announced in Paris recently, will be required to pass through the aviation school either as pilots or observers, and a series of competitions, to which all aeroplane constructors will be invited to send machines, will be held in Peking in 1914.

The Chinese government, it is said, is anxious to have a great fleet of aeroplanes which will be used for police work in time of peace.

THE MISSOURI.

Following is the first verse of Miller's splendid poem entitled "The Missouri:"

Where roamed the black maned woolly bulls
By millions, fat and unafraid;
Where gold unclaimed in cradle-fuls
Slept and the grass roots gorge and shade
Where peaks companioned with the stars
And proomed the blue with shining white,
With massive silver beams and bars,
With copper bastions, height on height—
There wast thou born, O Lord of Strength!
O yellow lion, leap and lengthen
Of arm from out an arctic chine
To far, fair Mexic seas are thine!

JOAQUIN MILLER FINE CHARACTER

Poet of Sierras Lived In Odd Retreat.

Built Funeral Pyre In Fastness of Estate—Won His Pseudonym Through Strong Defense of Mexican Bandit. Didn't Like to Write—Wanted to Be a Gardener—Objected to Kipling.

Joaquin Miller, the "Poet of the Sierras," who died Feb. 17 at the age of seventy-one on his pretty estate in the Piedmont foothills overlooking San Francisco, was one of America's most picturesque characters. The poet had been one of the leading literary lights of his day, and for years the woodland retreat, where he lived in a cabin, was the Mecca for notable pilgrims. He lived with his aged wife and daughter, Juanita, each occupying a separate cabin. The family ate their meals in a special cabin.

Cincinnatus Heine Miller was the real name of the "Poet of the Sierras," and he was born in Indiana back in 1841. But the world had long known him by his pseudonym, Joaquin Miller, and for many years had associated him with the mountains and mines of the far west. Ever since his retreat in the seventies to the Heights, his high acres near Oakland, Cal., he has been looked upon as one of the picturesque figures of the Golden Gate, a figure inseparable from California, and with his high boots, buckskin clothing and broad sombrero resting on the massive head of flowing white hair, a figure that would soon pass, with other outposts of pioneer days, into the last great epic of civilization.

This removed life that Miller led in his last quarter century there on that high point where Fremont tented and from which he caught the view that led to the name, "the Golden Gate," gave him a reputation as a philosophical hermit, a sort of John Burroughs of the far west. Although Miller loved this picturesque retirement, there were occasional but marked lapses from his devotion to it. In the late nineties he suffered himself to be diverted to the Klondike as a special correspondent at that scene of interest, and it must be admitted that he sometimes went east to spend some days with the Roycroft colony at East Aurora.

His Funeral Pyre.

Miller loved his Heights, where he and his mother planted hundreds of trees, where he built his home and his chapel and where, finally, he built the pyre—a cairn of rough stones inscribed "To the unknown" on which he gave directions that his body should be burned and from which the ashes were to be carried off by the winds through the cypress grove and over the mountains that he knew so well.

"More than twenty years ago," he wrote not so many years back, "I sat down here on a mountain side with mother and began to plant trees. Men and women came to work and to rest with us—men and women from colleges and universities. No one was ever asked to come; no one was ever asked to go."

Miller's family moved to Oregon when he was only thirteen, and from there he ran away to the California gold fields. Then followed several years of mining life close to the soil with the Indians, a bit of law study, a little law practice, some years on the bench as a county judge in California and then his first attempt at writing. This was as editor of the Eugene City Democratic Register, which was suppressed.

How He Got His Name.

The name of Joaquin came from his spirited defense of Joaquin Murietta, a Mexican bandit. The name stuck to him, and after several attempts to shake it off he shrewdly accepted it. One of his first attempts to sell a manuscript was in his offer of copy to Editor Bret Harte of the Overland, San Francisco, but his first verse attempts in this country—his "Songs of the Sierras"—were coldly received by eastern publishers, so he took them to London. There they were published and created a sensation. Miller was petted, lionized, exalted and a little spoiled at his zenith.

His books are "Pacific Palms," "Songs of the Sunland," "The Ship of the Desert," "Life Among the Modocs," "First Families of the Sierras," "Shadows of Shasta," "Memorie and Rime," "Baroness of New York," "Songs of Faraway Lands," "The Destruction of Gotham," "49 or the Gold Seekers of the Sierras," "The Life of Christ," etc. He wrote several successful plays, notably "The Danites."

Didn't Like to Write.

Miller always protested that he did not like writing and that he would stop as soon as he could afford to do so. He accumulated several thousands, but lost them, however, in Wall street, a most unbecoming thing to do, and it made writing all the more a necessity.

Miller's poetry almost exclusively dealt with the wonders of nature. He objected to Kipling because of the latter's proneness, as he said, to exploit war and warriors. When the English poet produced "The Female of the Species" Miller condemned the work in hearty terms. "Kipling was not sincere when he spoke it," said Miller.

The Greatest Furniture Sale of the Age---The Money-Saving Opportunity of a Lifetime

The fire we had on February 1st destroyed only a small part of the Top Floor of our warehouse. We were heavily insured and the insurance companies have paid up their loss promptly. This leaves us with our complete warehouse stock practically paid for by the insurance companies, so that we are able to offer this stock of high-grade furniture at less than 25 cents on the dollar of what it originally cost us.

This is not an ordinary fire sale. The majority of the furniture is in almost perfect condition. Hundreds of pieces, on which the wrappings were either soaked or charred and which were paid for by the insurance companies as a total loss, when we came to strip off the wrappings were found to be absolutely perfect. Thousands of Chairs and Rockers are as good as when they left the factory, with perhaps a water spot here and there.

Every stick of the furniture has been marked to be sold at from 60 to 80 per cent. less than usual selling prices. Every piece is our standard guaranteed furniture, durable and well made. Pieces that are slightly damaged only are marked at prices less than you could buy the same amount of wood for kindling.

It's going to be worth your while to see these bargains, but we advise an early selection. Quantities are limited, and the biggest bargains are snapped up first.

WE PARTICULARLY WANT OUR OLD CUSTOMERS AND FRIENDS TO GET IN ON THIS SALE.
ANYTHING SELECTED WILL BE ADDED TO YOUR ACCOUNT WITHOUT ANY EXTRA DEPOSIT.

We will gladly sell any of these articles on our liberal credit plan. YOU CAN OPEN AN ACCOUNT WITH A SALE ARTICLE, WITHOUT HAVING ANY EXTRA CHARGES ADDED.

ALL MUST BE SOLD REGARDLESS OF VALUE WITHOUT DELAY

Look at these offerings, come in and examine the articles, compare the prices, and you will realize that you are face to face with the biggest furniture bargains of the century. Nothing reserved or excepted. This is an unparalleled opportunity to secure Furniture, Carpets, Rugs, Stoves, Bedding, etc., for every room in the house for a song.

There were 623 Brass Beds in our warehouse when the fire broke out, only a few of which had had the wrappings removed. Not a bed was near enough to the fire to even blister the lacquer, but we were allowed ¾ their value. That means a saving of 75 per cent. to you. These beds are the latest in design, in tubings up to 2½ inches in diameter. Some are bright finish, some poulet and others satin finish. Come early to secure the choicest patterns.

WHAT INTERVENTION MEANS.

Five years of guerilla warfare extending into the mountain fastnesses of Mexico with an American army of upward of 250,000 necessary is what intervention in Mexico means to the United States, according to the statement of Frederick L. Huidekoper, the military expert.

"The hatred of the Latins for the Anglo-Saxon is intense in Mexico," he said, "and intervention in any form by this country means the welding of all antagonistic forces against one common enemy. The United States takes on her shoulders an enormous task, that of subduing a country where the lines of communication exist only in the settled parts. Three distinct campaigns would have to be waged in north, south and central Mexico to conquer the land. Central Mexico would be the only part of the country in which decisive campaigns could be fought. The others would be a series of long drawn out skirmishes—guerrilla warfare in its worst phase.

"The lines of communication are all remote," he said, "and when one point is conquered it will be necessary to maintain a defensive force. This would require an enormous number of men. In order to obtain such an army the militia of course would have to be drafted into service."

CHINA PLANS AERIAL FLEET.

Oriental Republic to Order Machines From French Makers.

The president of the Chinese republic, on the suggestion of his French military adviser, Major Brissaud Desmaillet, has decided upon the creation of an aerial fleet, the organization of which will be intrusted to French officers.

All Chinese staff officers, it was announced in Paris recently, will be required to pass through the aviation school either as pilots or observers, and a series of competitions, to which all aeroplane constructors will be invited to send machines, will be held in Peking in 1914.

The Chinese government, it is said, is anxious to have a great fleet of aeroplanes which will be used for police work in time of peace.

THE MISSOURI.

Following is the first verse of Miller's splendid poem entitled "Thy Missouri:"

Where roamed the black maned woolly bulls
Bywildlloes, fat and unafraid;
Where gold unclaimed in cradle-tuts,
Slept mid the grass roots, gorse and shale—
Where peaks companioned with the stars
And proomed the blue with shining white,
With massive silver beams and bars,
With copper bastions, height on height—
There wast thou born, O Lord of Strength!
O yellow lion, leap and lengthi
Of arm from out an arctic chine
To far, fair Mexic seas are thine!

Mrs. Patricia M. Street, of Sydney, N. S. W., will be a leading figure in the woman suffrage pageant which will be held in Washington on March 3. The color scheme and costuming will be an important factor in this parade.

All the persons participating in the event will be included in the scheme. The first costumes will be in dark purple, which will shade down gradually to a pale blue and then to a dull white.

Mrs. Street emphasized the fact that Mrs. Glennon Smith Tinnin was responsible for the pageant, while Miss Hazel MacKaye would be the sponsor for the tableaux to be performed on the steps of the Treasury Building as the procession passes.

RUTGERS V. CADMUS GOES TO HIS REWARD

Venerable Resident of Borough Succumbs After a Long Illness.

Rutgers V. Cadmus, aged 89 years, one of the best known residents of North Plainfield, died at the Cadmus homestead on Greenbrook road last night, following a long illness due to the infirmities of age. Mr. Cadmus was the son of the late Cornelius Cadmus, and was born and always lived near the place of his death. Like his father he was a successful farmer, and he was active up to about five years ago. He was a man of the highest integrity.

Although he was a regular attendant of the First Presbyterian church, Mr. Cadmus did not unite with the church until he was seventy-five years old. Since then he had been a trustee and liberal contributor to the work of the church. His father owned several hundred acres of land in the borough, embracing most of that territory from the Mountain to Rock avenue, across the railroad easterly to Grant avenue. Since his death a large part of the tract has changed ownership.

Mr. Cadmus lived for amny years with his sister, Mrs. Sarah Gaunt, aged 91 years, who with several nieces and nephews survive. The announcement of the funeral will be made later.

KANE HEAD OF S. P. FIRE DEPARTMENT

Middlesex Volunteer Company Discusses Plan to Erect a New Building.

Officers were elected for the year and several matters of importance discussed at the annual meeting of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company at South Plainfield on Friday night. Among the questions discussed were that of installing two steel cells for the police department in the rear of the company's building, this being suggested by Committeeman Frank E. Faulks, and that of securing an additional fire hydrant near the plant of the Spicer Universal Joint Works, the nearest one at present being 500 feet distant. Chief Hamilton, Robert Horn and Harry E. Moss were appointed to take the matter up with the Township Committee.

The company also discussed the advisability of erecting a new fire house, it being considered unwise to spend any more money on the present building. Edward Horne, Charles Brantingham, William Hamilton, E. M. Ten Eyck, Harry Moss, P. F. Kaine and Frank E. Faulks were appointed to take the matter up and report at the March meeting. These officers were elected for the coming year: President, P. F. Kaine; vice president, E. M. Ten Eyck; treasurer, Harry Moss; financial secretary, Frank E. Faulks; recording secretary, Edward Horne; chief, William Hamilton; foreman, John Kaine; assistant, Michael Saverd.

PAY LAST TRIBUTE TO MRS. MARY A. BEAUMONT

The funeral service of Mrs. Mary A. Beaumont, widow of Henry Beaumont, was held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Sadler, 223 East Sixth street, this afternoon. Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring officiated. The burial will be at Fayetteville, N. Y., tomorrow.

Mrs. Beaumont was born at Malta, Saratoga county, N. Y., but spent the greater part of her life at Fayetteville. A year and a half ago she came to Plainfield to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Sadler, where she died on Sunday. She had been an invalid during her residence here. She is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Sadler, and four grandchildren, Miss Helen B. Sadler, a teacher in the Washington School; Miss Ruth D. Sadler, a teacher in the Franklin School; Harry B. Taylor, of Williamsport, Pa., and Clayton B. Taylor, of Fayetteville, N. Y.

THE SEWER PROBLEM.

The local sewer problem, of which he has made an inexhaustible study, was presented in an interesting way by Frank J. Hubbard, civil engineer, at the monthly meeting of the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night. The address by Mr. Hubbard covered a period of nineteen years, in which he touched upon the most salient points of this pertinent question. An extended report of his talk will be found in tomorrow's issue.

SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.

The pupils of the Plainfield night schools were entertained with a Washington's Birthday program in the Washington School auditorium, Saturday. Dr. Abbott, of New York, spoke on "Washington" and a number of pupils entertained with vocal and instrumental music. The chaperons in charge of the affair were Mrs. H. O. Smith and Mrs. Joseph Smith.

THE DAILY PRESS MAGAZINE.

Since the time, less than fourteen months ago, that the Plainfield Daily Press came under new ownership, the editors and managers have introduced many new features before then unknown to journalism in this section, and the newspaper has been practically rebuilt to compare favorably with any similar publication in a community of anywhere near the size. This is not said in a spirit of boastfulness, but simply to call attention to the fact that the promise made, on January 1,1912, to give Plainfield a paper creditable to the city will be kept and that improvements are being made as quickly and as frequently as circumstances permit.

Today, we wish to call attention to another feature to be introduced; one which we feel will be a most attractive one. It is the Plainfield Daily Press Magazine, a superb publication to be issued monthly. This will be given absolutely free to every reader of the paper on the first Saturday of each month. The first number will be found enclosed in the Daily Press next Saturday afternoon.

In this connection, we may be pardoned for stating that this newspaper is the first of any published in a town of this size to provide such a feature, for as a rule only in the very largest cities in the country have the newspapers felt that they could afford to give away a magazine of their own. More details will be found in an advertisement published in this issue.

IN A NUTSHELL.

When the educational campaign for the adoption of the commission form of government was being waged in Trenton, a municipality that is content under that rule, a pamphlet on the subject was compiled by friends of the movement. Among its contents was a terse summary of the scheme and what it means as herewith reproduced:

"Government by a single compact 'Commission' of five men elected at large. No other elective officers.

"Nobody they can blame but themselves if you complain.

"No lost motion—no pulling and hauling.

"Conspicuous responsibility—there is no such thing as inconspicuous responsibility).

"Each elective officer a shining mark for criticism—hence sensitive responsive government.

"A short ballot. Every citizen easily masters his job on election day, makes up his own ticket and knows what he is doing. Every citizen is a complete politician because the new politics is a osimple and clear.

"Politicians out of business—no need for them.

"No confusion, no obscurity, no chance for rascals to slip through at election time without detection.

"Non-partisan ballot. Nominations all by petition.

"The people without any moral revolution or sacrifice of earning power, sitting comfortably in the boss's chair.

"Officials give good government because that's the way to keep popular.

"Initiative, referndum and recall for emergencies, but you never use them because the 'Commission' responds so eagerly and deferentially to public opinion."

NEW JERSEY'S PEOPLE.

Some interesting facts concerning the composition and characteristics of New Jersey's population are to be found in an advance bulletin of the Federal Bureau of Census issued on Saturday. Of the total population of New Jersey, 1,009,000, or 39.8 per cent., it is stated, are native whites of native parentage; 777,797, or 30.7 per cent., are native whites of foreign or mixed parentage; 658,188, or 25.9 per cent., are foreign born whites; and 89,760, or 3.5 per cent., are negroes.

In the total population of the State there are 1,286,463 males and 1,250,704 females, or 102.9 males to 100 females. In 1900 the sexes were nearly equal. Among the native whites the ratio of males to femals is 98 to 100 and among foreign born whites 118.2 to 100. In the urban population there are 101 males to 100 females, and in the rural, 108.8.

As to the total native population—that is, population born in the United States—71.6 per cent. were born in New Jersey and 28.4 per cent. outside the State; of the native white population, 26.9 per cent. were born outside the State, and of the native negro, 58.1 per cent. Of the foreign born white population of New Jersey, persons born in Germany represent 18.7 per cent.; Italy, 17.5; Russia, 14.2; Ireland, 12.6; Austria, 8.6; England, 7.6; Hungary, 7.2; Scotland, 2.7; Holland, 1.9; Sweden, 1.6; all other countries, 7.1 per cent. FOOLED THE OFFICIAL.

Clever Trick a Daring Dacoit Played Upon an Englishman.

It was years ago in Burma. The English government was having trouble with a certain princely recalcitrant named Boh Toh, "the most daring and enterprising of the Dacoits." A heavy price had been set upon the rebel's head, but still Boh Toh was cunningly elusive.

At last, hard pressed, Boh Toh tried a new tack. He walked straight into the office of the commissioner.

"I am Boh Toh," he said simply. "I have come to surrender."

Exactly what he had counted on now happened. Fourteen years' experience with eastern subtlety and intrigue had taught the commissioner to be wary.

"Thank you," he said. "We will now proceed to discover who you really are and what you really want. Tell me, what do you expect to get out of this?"

"Ten thousand rupees," said the Boh quietly.

The commissioner, although a cool man, was a little staggered. "I don't quite follow," he murmured.

"Yet it's quite simple," whispered the Boh. "The government promises 10,000 rupees to the man who brings you the head of Boh Toh. I give it to you."

"Capital," was the wary answer. "But as you lose your head what good does the money do you?"

"My wife and children get the money."

"Pretty good, my man, but not quite good enough. Ten thousand rupees will be nothing to Boh Toh."

"If it were not I should not be here. I have been deserted and robbed. I am sure to be captured. My family might as well have the money while I can still command it."

"But why shouldn't I keep the money? I hand your head over, you know."

"Because you are an English gentleman. I chose my man, you see."

The commissioner mused awhile. Then he broke silence. "Look here, I know you are not the Boh. That is quite clear. I don't care who you are. But tell me frankly what you want."

The Burman hesitated awhile. Then he said: "You are right. But my life is worth as little as the Boh's. I have betrayed him and robbed him. He has sworn revenge. Give me an escort as far as Mandalay. Here, take these notes for 1,000 rupees"—he had laid them on the table—"and keep them if in twelve days' time I do not tell you how and when you can capture the Boh. Keep them till the Boh is caught if you prefer."

The commissioner thought hard and in silence for quite two minutes.

"I agree," he said at length.

So the Boh was safely escorted to Mandalay. Later the commissioner received a letter from him.

"You may keep those rupees," it ran, "which I, Boh Toh, left with you twelve days ago. I told you the truth. You would not believe me. The English government likes truth, and it likes money, but they never want both, I think, at the same time."—Youth's Companion.

Making More Room for the New White House Family

The White House

ONCE again important changes are to be made in that dwelling which, from every consideration of popular interest, sentimental regard, and historical significance, must be accounted "the first residence of America." Fortunately, for the sake of tradition, the changes in the White House which will be carried out this year, if Congress votes the money, will not alter the exterior appearance of the Presidential Mansion. Only the interior will be affected by this project, but, of course, that does not detract from its importance.

In this respect then, this present proposal for "doing over" the Executive Mansion is not so radical as that reconstruction of the White House which took place during the administration of President Roosevelt. But maybe it is just as well that it is not, for our readers may remember that a great hue and cry was raised when Roosevelt undertook to make over the Presidential Mansion under the guidance and advice of several eminent architects. It didn't seem to matter either that the strenuous tenant was aiming merely to restore the White House to the architectural status that obtained in the early days of the capital and to carry out the original ideas of the statesmen who planned a "President's Palace." The twentieth century critics lost sight of all else in the mere fact that a hallowed edifice was being tampered with and although the reconstruction project was pushed through to the ultimate satisfaction of nearly everybody it was done only in the face of a flood of letters and resolutions of protest.

When, early in 1913, it began to be whispered about in Washington that the powers that be had plans afoot for more changes at the White House there was every indication that another storm of protest was brewing. Thereupon the diplomatic Col. Crosby, U. S. A., lost no time in making public the most emphatic denial that there would be any architectural changes in the exterior of the time-honored building. Col. Crosby, it may be explained, might be termed the Superintendent of the White House—the general manager under the President. To be sure, his official title "Officer in Charge of Public Buildings and Grounds" conveys, to the uninitiated, no hint of his White House responsibilities but in reality the supervision of the Presidential Mansion and its grounds is about the most important of his varied duties. Why, he even attends to buying the furniture and furnishings for the White House.

Well, to make a long story short, Col. Crosby nipped agitation in the bud by announcing that the forthcoming changes in the White House would be confined to the interior and would be limited to the attic floor. He did not go into detail because he has not even yet determined just what will be done but his assurances acted as oil upon troubled waters. It will also make it the easier for Col. Crosby to induce Congress to make the needed appropriation, although there is little danger of a slip-up in that direction for it is a sort of unwritten law—a time-honored tradition as it were—that Congress must, without quibble, provide the President of the United States with any funds he may need for the maintenance of his dwelling and its furnishings. Moreover the whole amount needed in this present instance will be less than $10,000 so that there will be no chance for the cry of extravagance that has been raised against one or two of our Presidents in the matter of their White House expenditures.

On the face of it this latest scheme for enlarging the White House constitutes a project for providing more room for the new White House family—the new tenants that take possession on March 4. Yet, as a matter of fact, President-elect Wilson has been for the most part a passive figure in the matter. He didn't know anything about it or that it was contemplated until Col. Crosby journeyed to New Jersey one day early this year and submitted the plans which the President-elect hastened to approve. Thus, though this interesting project is to be carried out during the Wilson regime, it comes about through no initiative of the Wilson family who will benefit by it.

It is not, you understand, that this plan would not have worked out in just the same way if the President-elect had proposed it. Nor is it meant to insinuate that it would not have been etiquette for the incoming President to make such a wish known. On the contrary it is the privilege of a newly chosen Chief Magistrate to request any White House alterations that may strike his fancy, just as it is one of the perquisites of a new First Lady of the Land to order a new china dinner service if she is so inclined and Congress, as above explained, is in honor bound to foot the bill without hemming or hawing.

The main purpose of the White House changes of 1913 is to provide additional guest chambers in the Mansion. The need of additional accommodations of this kind has been a matter of comment for years past in intimate White House circles and the Taft family has been seriously inconvenienced on a number of occasions by the limited number of sleeping rooms. It would not be so bad were the White House occupied by a small family or by a large family that invited few house guests but when you have, as in the case of the Tafts, a numerous household so hospitably inclined that it is frequently desired to entertain for days at a time numerous guests there is more of a suggestion of crowding than is compatible with the dignity of the home of the ruler of the republic.

Under present conditions there are available for the use of the members of the Presidential family and their guests a total of just seven bedrooms. Or to state the case more correctly, it may be said that there are seven suites, for each of the bedrooms (of unusual size, by the way) has a private bath adjoining and five of the seven huge bedrooms have, in each instance, a smaller room, connecting, designed for use as a dressing-room. However, during the Taft regime, there has been such a tax upon the accommodations at the White House, particularly when the sons of the President are at home, that it has been found necessary to place beds in several of the so-called dressing-rooms and to have these rooms do service as bedrooms.

The officials whose duty it is to make the Presidential family comfortable while they are in the White House have figured it out that the Wilson household will in reality need more room in the private part of the Mansion than either the Tafts or the Roosevelts. To be sure, in number, the three junior members of the Taft family counterbalance those of the Wilson family but it must be borne in mind that two of the Taft trio are young men who have been at the White House but seldom save in college vacation intervals whereas President-elect Wilson has three grown daughters who will presumably be at home most of the time and who will probably invite more house guests than did the masculine members of the Taft family. As for conditions during the Roosevelt regime, the children, except one daughter, were younger at the time; the two oldest boys were away at school; and there were fewer house guests.

It has been accepted, all along, that the only way out of the dilemma at the White House was to provide more guest rooms, thereby relieving, of course, conditions affecting the suites of the members of the President's immediate family. But how to accomplish this has been another matter, inasmuch as most of the architects who have looked into the subject have declared that the only way to provide more rooms in the White House was to raise the roof and it was realized that such desecration would provoke opposition that Congress might be unable to ignore.

Now along comes the resourceful Col. Crosby with a solution which seems to be acceptable to everybody. He proposes, by a wave of the architectural wand, to create half a dozen rooms out of thin air in the White House attic and in doing so he proposes to disturb not a bit the aspect of the White House as viewed from the exterior. Indeed, Col. Crosby predicts that when the changes have been completed a person can walk all around the White House and view all of its four sides without being able to detect any evidence of alteration. As a matter of fact, it is proposed to admit daylight to the new rooms that are to be created by means of several new skylights and some additional windows but the former will scarcely be visible unless one inspects the White House from an aeroplane and the new windows will be completely hidden by the massive railing or balustrade which, fortunately for the present purpose, extends entirely around the White House and screens the mansard roof in which the new windows will be placed.

With the new quarters provided in the attic the White House will become in literal truth, a four-story mansion—quite a contrast from the two-story dwelling as it appeared in the eyes of tourists up to a few years ago. On the first or ground floor are located the coat rooms used as social functions; reception and retiring rooms for the guests; a corridor wherein is displayed the collection of White House china; the kitchens; and the laundry. On the second or main floor are the state parlors—the East Room, Green Room, Blue Room and Red Room—the state and private dining-rooms and a spacious butler's pantry. The third floor—the private apartments of the Presidential family—contains seven bedroom suites as above mentioned, a central corridor used as a family sitting-room; a library; and the President's study or "den," the most interesting room in the White House because it is most intimately associated with the personality of the President. The fourth floor is, of course, the attic the status of which under the new arrangement has already been explained. The White House "addition" will help to enable the President to spend his larger salary, for, whereas Uncle Sam will furnish the new rooms, the President will have to pay out of his own pocket for the chambermaids and other workers who may be needed to keep in order these additional apartments.

Fertilizer from FISH

A Fishing Steamer

Mending Nets

Drying Nets

Bailing Fish from Net to Steamer

ONE of the most important maritime industries along the Atlantic coast is the catching of menhaden and the making of them into oil for cheap paint and soap and into scrap for fertilizer. In this industry there is invested fully $50,000,000 in the gigantic factories and in the vast fleet of steamers and other craft. During the period that the fish run, from early in March until late in October upward of 10,000 men are employed. The catch runs into billions and the annual output of oil and scrap is valued at close to $100,000,000.

The menhaden industry began in New England scores of years ago when farmers used to catch the fish and spread them upon their land but since about 1865 the industry has taken on a new phase and the factories utilize the oil as well as the rest of the fish, obtaining two valuable products, whereas but one was obtained before.

Of the several species of fish that are not fit for food the menhaden is the most prolific. But little of its history or movements is known save that it is supposed to spawn in the Mississippi River during February and then immediately makes its way into the Gulf and thence up the coast. It is not a large fish, few ever measuring more than 9 inches or weighing more than 10 ounces but what the fish lack in individual size they make up in numbers in which they school, sometimes running two and three miles in length, as near as can be estimated by those who have spent years in the business.

The menhaden is known by at least three names—menhaden, moss bunker and pogie—the former name being applied in Southern waters and on the Chesapeake Bay, the second name along the Atlantic coast and the latter name on Long Island Sound, but no matter by what name it is the same little, oily fish, a relative of the ellwife and tastes no better.

It requires about 8,000 fish to make 14 or 15 gallons of oil and one ton of scrap and when it is stated that one factory in one season handled 85,000,000 fish it is evident that the entire catch must not only run into billions but that the production of oil at 45 cents to 50 cents a gallon and scrap at $33 to $34 a ton amounts to a large sum.

As a matter of fact the menhaden products rivals the output of oysters in value, and that is saying a good deal for the bivalve has long been considered one of the best financial propositions of the Atlantic coast.

For a considerable percentage of the men employed in the industry there is work throughout the entire year for the moment the fishing season closes a month or two is put in at the factories cleaning up and straightening up. Then many men are put to work on the vessels, giving them a thorough painting and by the time this is done the boats are ready to go to the shipyards for overhauling of boilers and machinery as well as painting below the waterline. By the first of February the Southern fleet is ready and it is not many days before some of the off shore pilots bring in the glad tidings that the menhaden have been sighted as they make their way from the Gulf northward to the cooler waters.

About the latter part of the month the fish are reported off Cape Henry, a couple weeks later off Cape Henlopen and two or three weeks later off Nantucket shoals so that by April the sea fishing season is in full blast from the coast of Florida to Long Island Sound and "all hands and the cook" are alert to get their toll.

If there ever was an industry which can be compared to hunting for a needle in a haystack it is menhaden fishing; it is a striking example of what skill, knowledge and keen eyes will accomplish for the catcher of the oil fish must possess all three of these attributes else he will not be successful.

Every fishing vessel, steamer, gasoline boat or sailing craft carries a "crow's nest" and there, 50 or 60 feet above the deck sits the lookout ever alert to pick out a school by the slight riffles on the water. There is never any certainty as to the number of fish that may be in a school for some of the largest schools swim deep with only a few near the surface while some of the small schools are almost wholly near the surface. It is almost as exciting a sport as playing blind man's buff when one is the "blind" man.

As a general rule the captain and his mate are the lookoutsmen as they usually work on shares, as does the engineer and his assistant. The skipper generally works entirely upon a commission basis, receiving 10 cents per 1,000 fish taken while the others named receive a few cents bonus in addition to small wages. By this means of operating the fish factory owners are assured that their vessels will always be busy and that the catch will be as great as possible.

From the "crow's nest" the skipper directs the course of the vessel, his commands being relayed by a deckhand to the pilot house and in response to "Starboard your wheel," and "Port your wheel," the course is steered.

When a school of fish has been sighted the vessel is run to within 500 to 600 yards and stopped. It is the clang of the bell in the engine-room to signal the vessel to stop that arouses the crew of 20-odd darkies who constitute the purse boat crew that their work is at hand and they nimbly spring to their stations.

First over the rail goes a small yawl in which there is but one man, the "striker," and as he rows rapidly toward the far side of the fish the darkies lower the purse boats from the davits, jump in, seize the oars and row to the near side of the fish, thus putting the fish between the boats.

In the meantime the "striker" has carefully noted the direction in which the fish are moving and he heads them off, turning them toward the purse boats. It requires a considerable knowledge of the habits of menhaden to drive them. Sometimes the school declines to be driven and rushes past the "striker" in spite of his splashing with his oars. Again the school dives deep, changes its course and escapes.

As a general rule, however, the "striker" is successful and as soon as he sees the fish turn he shouts to the purse boats and they separate, each boat paying out net until the boats are 600 feet to 900 feet apart with their net 20 feet to 25 feet deep. Then the two boats draw together until they have completed a circle around the fish.

Again comes a bit of delicate work for although the fish may be encompassed they are by no means caught and often the fish get away by diving under the net. The moment the boats are together the crew begins to haul the purse lines which draw together the bottom edge of the net, just like a purse, and once the net is pursed there is no escape for the fish.

Occasionally the fishermen will capture a school of blue fish that have been feeding on the menhaden and if they do they at once try to unpurse the net for the blue fish are fighters and it only takes a few minutes for them to render useless a net that costs several hundred dollars.

In this connection it is worth while to note that the menhaden fishermen rarely catch any food fish in their nets; indeed, they do not get enough to give the crew enough fish to eat, and this is because most food fish will not swim near a school of menhaden. The blue fish does, however, because it feeds on the menhaden. But the menhaden fisherman does not want the blue fish, at least not in any number, for it does more damage than it is worth.

When the net has been pursed the steamer is signaled and it comes up to the net. The upper, or float, edge of the net is made fast to the steamer's rail while the crew, taking in the slack of the net, work the fish into a pocket. To get the fish from the net to the steamer's hold a huge dip net, called a "scaup" is used. This net is not unlike the ordinary crab dip net but many times larger and holds about 1,000 fish. It requires three men and a donkey engine to work it. One man holds the long wooden handle and directs the net unto the pocket in the net, a second man, with a line, guides the net as he hauls it through the fish until it is filled. "H-o-i-s-t a-w-a-y!" sings out the skipper and the big net swings into the air to the chugging of the donkey engine and hangs its slivery, glittering contents over the hold. Then the third man makes fast the slack of the "dump" line and as the engine lowers the net it overturns and the fish rattle like hail on the floor of the hold. One "scaup" every 30 seconds is considered to be quick work and that means that the fish are taken on board at the rate of close to 2,000 per minute.

There is never any certainty of the number of fish that may be caught at one time, for the schools may run from 5,000 to one million and while the latter catches are few there are numerous instances of catches of 500,000; indeed, one steamer captain on the Chesapeake Bay in 1912 caught 3,000,000 fish in one week. Twice in that period he brought in his vessel laden to capacity, which is 1,000,000 fish, and on both occasions he caught all of his fish out of two schools.

The standing order to the fishermen is to "come in about sundown" therefore if there are only a few thousand fish in the hold when darkness settles the steamers make their way to the factories. This is due largely to the poor keeping qualities of the menhaden for, being so oily, they rapidly decompose when the weather is warm and in decomposing they lose much of their value as scrap.

Therefore as soon as a vessel is loaded or at sundown the fleet makes its way to the factory and when tied up the work of unloading begins. The steamers are unloaded with an endless chain bucket in a chute, pretty much like grain is handled. The big chute or elevator is lowered into the hold and a dozen or more men pitch-fork the fish into its mouth.

The elevator raises the fish to the very top of the factory and they are automatically dumped into a box which holds almost an even 1,000 fish. When the box is full a man pulls a lever which opens the bottom of the box and at the same time registers 1 on an indicator. As the fish drop from the box they fall on a bucket carrier which conveys them to the big steam cookers which have a capacity of several thousand each. After 30 minutes of cooking the fish are run into the presses and squeezed until they are mashed out of all resemblance to fish. It is at this point that the oil and the fish separate and the fish become what is known as scrap.

The oil is boiled and chemically treated and pumped into tanks where it is permitted to settle until ready to be drawn into barrels and go on the market.

The fish scrap is run from the presses into long iron cylinders in which there are coils of steam pipes, called driers and after being thoroughly heated and dried out, is run through other cylinders and twisted by big screw like arms until it has cooled, after which it is carried to the storehouse where it is bagged. In the handling of the scrap mechanical conveyors are employed and not until it reaches the storehouse is it touched by human hands and then only to be bagged.

STEPDAUGHTER OF CELEBRATED OPERA SINGER IS MARRIED TO COMIC OPERA COMEDIAN

MISS ELIZABETH WOLF

Keeping her intentions a secret from her family, Miss Dorothy Young, only daughter of George W. Young, president of George Young & Co., bankers, of New York city, went to Greenwich, Conn., and was married to Mr. Jay Leroy Atwell, comic opera comedian and playwright. The young bride is well known in musical and society circles in London and on the Continent as well as in New York because of her almost constant companionship for the last two years with her stepmother, Mme. Lillian Nordica, grand opera singer.

Miss Young, who is nineteen years old, and Mr. Atwell were accompanied to Greenwich by Miss Elizabeth Wolf, daughter of L. L. Wolf, a newspaper man of Pittsburg, and a classmate of Miss Young at the Castle School, at Tarrytown, N. Y., and Trafton Pullen, of New York, a friend of the bridegroom.

Mme. Nordica is now on the Pacific coast on a concert tour.

SUFFRAGETTE LEADERS INVOLVED IN BLOWING UP HOME OF LLOYD-GEORGE

MRS. FLORA DRUMMOND MAKING A SPEECH

MRS. EMMELINE PANKHURST

Mrs. Pankhurst, one of the leading spirits in the militant suffrage movement in England, admits that suffragettes were responsible for the blowing up of the country residence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. David Lloyd George. "We did it," she declared in addressing an enthusiastic meeting of suffragettes. Mrs. Pankhurst said if she were sentenced to penal servitude she would go on a hunger strike.

"The government will then either have to set me free," she added, "or let me die. If I drop out a hundred women are ready to take my place."

T. C. SMITH HAS PASSED AWAY

Father of County Chairman F. H. Smith Succumbs to Uraemic Poisoning.

HAD BEEN ILL A YEAR

Highly Respected Citizen—Survived by Wife and Two Children—Native of Rhode Island Who Had Long Lived Here.

Thaddeus C. Smith, aged 69 years, father of County Registrar Frank H. Smith, died last night at his home on Madison avenue, following a long illness but which had only been acute during the past two weeks. Death was due to uraemic poisoning. Last year Mr. Smith experienced a serious illness, but he recovered sufficiently to return to his position at the Potter Printing Press Works, but later was obliged to give up. Since that time he had been under the constant care of a physician.

Mr. Smith was born at South Kingston, Rhode Island, in 1845. He removed to this city when the Potter Printing Press Works, by which he was employed, brought its plant here in 1879. He learned the trade of machinist with the company at its plant in Rhode Island and remained with the concern until his death. He was held in the highest esteem not only by his employers, but by his associates and all who knew him, for his many admirable qualities. He possessed a quiet, genial disposition which won for him many friends.

Mr. Smith was a life-long member of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and a regular attendant at the services. He was also a member of Unity Lodge, No. 102, Knights of Pythias, of which he was a past chancellor; Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., and the Mutual Benefit Society, of Potter Printing Press Works. He is survived by a wife, a daughter, Mrs. Ernestine Burdick, wife of Dr. Charles Burdick, of Central Islip, L. I., and one son, Frank H. Smith, county registrar and chairman of the Union County Republican Committee. The announcement of the funeral will be made later.

IT WAS MILITARY NIGHT AT THE JR. O. U. A. M. FAIR

It was "military night" at the Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., degree team fair, last night. Co. K, after forming for assembly and roll call, dispersed and mingled among the crowd, enjoying the dancing and other amusements. There was a record-breaking crowd present.

The members of William G. Holton Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., of Dunellen, will attend the fair tonight and assist the committee in charge. Tomorrow night will be known as the Plainfield-Benevolent councils night and the two lodges will attend in a body.

CO. K WILL PARTICIPATE IN A BATTALION DRILL

Company K will participate in the battalion review to be held in the Elizabeth Armory Thursday night. The local company will form in the armory at 7:20 o'clock and will proceed to the Plainfield station where they will leave on the 7:41 train. The olive drab uniform with the olive drab cap, white gloves, canvas puttees, russet shoes and blue overcoats will be worn. Privates Edson Cardner, Harvey Houston and Augustus Kmosko will report to Lieut. Bohn upon the arrival of the company in the Elizabeth armory. Admission tickets, which will include dancing, will be issued at the local company's rooms.

The local command will leave on a special train for Trenton, Monday night about 7:30 o'clock for the Inauguration. After joining with the rest of the Second Regiment in the armory, a train will be taken on the Pennsylvania railroad about 11 o'clock. On the return from Washington the train bearing the Jersey militia will leave about 12 o'clock Tuesday night.

LOSES FINGER END.

Oliver R. Pierson, Jr., the seventeen-year-old son of Letter-carrier and Mrs. O. R. Pierson, of Manson place, caught his hand in a machine at Pond Tool Works, a few days ago, losing the end of a finger. The member was injured so badly that Dr. P. B. Cregar found it necessary to amputate it at the first joint. Pierson only had his new position three weeks.

Purchased 1913 Cadillac.

Mr. Morton V. Brokaw, of Bound Brook, has just purchased a new six-passenger Cadillac car from Thompson Auto Co. ***

INVESTIGATE DEATH OF A LINDEN MAN

County Detectives at Work on Case of Martz, Who Was Killed by Car.

County Detectives Gallatian and Lowden are investigating the circumstances surrounding the death of John Martz, of Washington avenue, Linden, as the result of injuries received when run down by an automobile on Wood avenue, Linden. The machine was owned by Dr. J. S. Young, of Rahway. He was driving at the time of the accident.

Martz's skull was fractured and he was bruised about the head and body. Dr. F. W. Westcott, who viewed the body, was of the opinion that the killing was accidental, but owing to certain circumstances he ordered an investigation. Dr. Young informed the authorities that he did not know he had hit a man until after he stopped and retraced his steps. It is alleged that Martz had been drinking and unconsciously got in the path of the automobile. The dead man was 58 years old and had no family.

Dr. F. W. Westcott has decided to hold an autopsy tonight at the dead man's home to clear up any doubts there may be regarding the case.

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE ACTION TOMORROW

House to Decide on Resolution Passed by the Senate Last Week.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—The woman suffrage resolution will come up for final action in the Assembly tomorrow. Assemblyman Egan, the Democratic leader in the House, gave this assurance to Mrs. Minnie J. Reynolds, the legislative agent of the organized suffragists, last night. Mrs. Reynolds said that Mrs. Everett Colby, chairman of the Legislative Committee of the five affiliated suffragist organizations, had sent out a call for all women suffrage advocates to come to the State House on Wednesday to watch the action on the resolution.

The Senate woman suffrage resolution, which passed the Upper House last week, was received in the Assembly last night and was referred by Speaker Taylor to the Judiciary Committee, of which Mr. Egan is chairman. If this resolution should be taken up and passed no further action would be required this year, but if the Assembly resolution be passed it will have to go to the Senate for action there. It is considered likely that the Assembly will favor the proposition. If a resolution is passed this year it must also be passed by the next Legislature and then be referred to the people for their approval.

HE FELL THROUGH COAL CAR AND ESCAPED DEATH

Edward Doran, an employe of the Dunellen Supply Company, Dunellen, had a narrow escape from being killed yesterday afternoon when an iron wrench with which he was opening the pockets of the coal car snapped and he was thrown head first a distance of fifteen feet through the car and coal shute. He landed on the ground in an unconscious condition and it was fifteen minutes before he was found by fellow-workmen.

Restoratives were administered to the injured man and in the meantime a physician was summoned. An investigation disclosed general contusions, but no serious injuries. Later in the afternoon Doran was able to return to work.

AND THEY WENT INTO AN EXECUTIVE SESSION

The North Plainfield Board of Education met in the Somerset School last night and after considering several applications for working papers went into executive session to discuss the budget for the ensuing year. Dr. J. H. Cooley, president of the board, said today that after considerable debating it was decided to defer any definite action regarding the budget until the completion of the investigation being made by the special committee on the borough's finances, of which George T. Rogers is chairman. The applications for working papers were referred to the grievance committee for disposition.

Cause 3,000 Workers to Strike—Flynn Woman is Ordered out of Town.

Paterson, Feb. 25.—The meeting of the striking silk workers and dyers was broken up by the Chief of Police. A number of deputies swooped down upon Turn Hall and arrested Elizabeth Flynn, Carlos Tresba and Patrick Quinlan; all members of the Industrial Workers of the World. All three were taken to the station, followed by more than 5,000 sympathizers. Miss Flynn was ordered to leave town and her male companions were held by Recorder Carroll. The meeting followed a violent demonstration of several thousand strikers who paraded around the mills in an attempt to get the other operators to strike. Seventy-five policemen and private detectives charged the crowd and used their nightsticks freely. Many broken heads and arrests resulted.

Paterson, Feb. 25.—Eighteen silk mills and dyeing establishments were today made the target for a strike attack by the Industrial Workers of the World. One thousand of the 25,000 men, women and children employed in the mills left their looms at 8 o'clock and by 9:45 o'clock more than 3,000 silk operatives and dyers were on strike. The strikers demand a return to the two-loom system for silk operatives and eight hours and a minimum wage of $12 a week for dyers.

PLEYDELL EXPLAINS PEIRCE'S MEASURES

Plainfielder Discusses the New Tax Bills at Hearing at Trenton.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—Alleging that the general purpose of the six Tax Reform bills introduced in the Senate by Senator Pierce, of Union county, do not meet the desired result, and that they are therefore bad, John P. Dullard, tax expert of this city, appeared before the Committee on Revision and Amendment of the laws, at a hearing yesterday and opposed the bills. All the measures were drafted as a result of the investigations of the Tax Commission appointed a year ago, and of which Senator Pierce was chairman, and seek to correct the evils of the existing tax laws.

Previous to Mr. Dullard's attack on the measures A. C. Plydell, of Plainfield, a tax expert and a member of the Tax Commission which drafted the bills addressed the committee, analyzing each bill, telling the purport of the various measures, and at the same time furnishing some information as to what the committee found in its hearings in every county of the State.

"The primary object of the measures," said Mr. Plydell, "is to remedy the inequalities of assessments." According to Mr. Plydell the hearings conducted by the commission developed not only great inequalities in the assessments but also an absolute lack of responsibility on the part of any for these inequilities. He said that in some instances it was found that the actual work of assessing was not done by the regularly appointed or elected assessor, but by some one hired by the official for that purpose.

The bills Mr. Plydell explained abolish the State Board of Assessors, transfering the work of that board to the State Board of Equalization, which body is vested with increased authority; establish a standard table for the guidance of Assessors, especially in their work of fixing assessments on manufacturing plants and expensive residences; provides for the reorganization of County Tax Boards by adding a supervisor of assessments who shall be held responsible; the creation of a State Supervisor of Assessments; the consolidation of districts; permits taxing districts to issue bonds in anticipation of taxes and provides for the exemption of household goods.

Mr. Dullard followed Mr. Plydell. He held that household goods should not be exepmted from taxation, especially where they run into the thousands of dollars. He suggested that there might be a limit of $200 fixed however. He analyzed each bill carefully and provided much information for the committee.

John Howe, a Newark assessor, also opposed the bill relative to the exemption of household goods, saying that its passage would mean the loss to Newark of taxes on five and a half million dollars worth of household goods. John R. Conolly, of Elizabeth, and Mayor William Riddel, of Atlantic City, both spoke on the bills, the former opposing and the latter favoring them.

LOCAL SILK CO. IS A BANKRUPT

H. W. Runyon Appointed Receiver for the Watchung-Mitchell Concern Here.

LIABILITIES $180,000?

Strikes of Employees During the Year Have Hurt Company—Charles Reed Retained by the Defunct Concern.

Recent strikes by the employes of the Watchung-Mitchell Silk Company, whose plant is in Chatham street, are largely responsible for the downfall of that concern which, it has just been announced, has gone into bankruptcy. Howard W. Runyon, of Jersey City, has been appointed receiver by Judge Joseph Cross, of the United States District Court. The application for the order in bankruptcy was made by J. B. Sturm, a raw milk importer, of 445 Broome street, New York, who is one of the largest creditors. The liabilities and assets are said to be approximately the same, viz.: $180,000.

According to Eugene M. Laing, secretary of the bankrupt firm, there has been several meetings of the creditors and an effort will be made to have the works continue and all difficulties straightened out. An order has been issued allowing the works to continue until 6 o'clock tonight, to effect this, if possible. Former State Senator Charles A. Reed has been retained to represent the defunct concern.

The officers are: T. J. Mitchell, of Paterson, president; vice president, J. F. McDonald; treasurer, W. R. Codington, and secretary, Eugene M. Laing.

If the Watchung mill is closed down tonight, over fifty persons will be thrown out of employment. Of this number many are foreigners. To avoid this state of affairs, it is expected that a meeting of the officers and financial backers of the silk company will hold a meeting tonight, and try to prolong the life of the firm.

The present firm, known as the Mitchell-Watchung Silk Co., when first established in this city about six years ago, was known as the Watchung Silk Co., and was controlled by local capital. Mr. Mitchell, a well known silk manufacturer from the Silk City, became interested in the plant several years ago and purchased a controling share in the business.

During the last year a series of strikes have taken place which has seriously handicapped the progress of the firm and caused them to be extensive losers financially. The most serious strike took place this summer when the weavers were "out" over a month. In each incident an attempt to secure more wages was the cause of the trouble.

Speaking to a Daily Press reporter this afternoon Mr. Laing said the mill has several large orders to fill and that the plant would continue as usual until a definite decision is reached by the creditors. "We may shut down in twenty-four hours," he said, "or we may run for two years; it is solely up to the creditors."

HUNT FOR BROTHER OF A DEAD HERMIT

Body of Andrew Cullen, Who Was Burned to Death at Cole's Place.

The dead body of Andrew Cullen, the hermit, which was found in the smoldering ruins of his shack at Fanwood, yesterday morning, is still in charge of Undertaker George Cole, of West Second street. It is said that Cullen had a brother, who is supposed to be living in the vicinity of Bernardsville, and the Fanwood authorities are now endeavoring to locate him. In case of failure the body will be buried tomorrow at the expense of the county.

Further investigation has disclosed the fact that Cullen was very intemperate at times, and while his condition was not known Sunday night, it has been intimated that he might have gone to bed in a drunken stupor and allowed the stove to become overheated or else upset a lighted lamp.

There was a rumor in circulation today that another man was in the shack at the time of the fire, but that he escaped. An investigation failed to confirm the truth of this report. Cullen, it is said, had never been ambitious and for years had lived through help given to him by people of Fanwood and the township. He would never give any information about himself and for this reason practically nothing is known of his affairs. The shack he lived in was owned by the Peter Breidt Brewing Company, of Elizabeth, and was at one time used by the Fanwood Bottling Company. There was no insurance on the building, the company cancelling a policy on it issued some time ago.

RAINEY'S PICTURES OF AFRICAN HUNT

Great Show at Theatre on March 7 for Benefit of Smith College Fund.

The graduates of Smith College residing in this city and vicinity have decided to co-operate with other graduates of the college from all parts of the country in aid of the competition of the million dollar endowment fund for the college, and the alumnae in this city has arranged for an exhibition of the Paul Rainey African Hunt Pictures at the Plainfield theatre on the afternoon and evening of March 7.

These pictures are considered by the American Geographical Society and the American Institute of Natural History as the most marvelous motion views ever taken.

Probably more than in any pictures of recent years do these films, made by Rainey in the jungles of Africa, have a genuine educational value. They should, at any rate, prove more attractive to the average theatregoer and seeker after knowledge, than any book or play could possibly hope to accomplish. Hunting big game with a camera has been one of Mr. Rainey's hobbies for years, and when he plunged into Africa with a moving-picture operator, he could hardly have expected to achieve the results that will be shown at the Plainfield theatre, when these pictures are presented for the first time.

PRINCETON MONUMENT IS ASSURED THIS YEAR

Princeton, Feb. 25.—Confirmation by the Secretary of War at Washington of the design adopted by the Association for the Princeton Battle Monument and submitted to the Secretary makes it certain that the memorial to the soldiers will be erected this year. The approval was required because of the appropriation made by the National Government, which would not have become available unless the Secretary had passed on the design.

All necessary official approval has now been received and the commission is ready to go ahead with its plans.

Congressman Ira W. Wood was instrumental in getting the passage of the bill making the national appropriation of $30,000 toward the monument fund of twice that sum. This was in 1907, after several years of unavailing effort to have Congress make an appropriation for the monument.

ASKS LOCAL POLICE TO FIND HER BOY

Who Would Not Help a Widow's Son to Be Restored to His Mother?

Mrs. J. W. Baldwin, a widow of Keyport, has written to Police Chief P. S. Kiely requesting him to assist her in finding her sixteen-year-old son, Frank, who disappeared from his home a few days ago. Mrs. Baldwin says that she has reason to believe that her son is in Plainfield or vicinity. She declares that the young man left his home for no known reason. The mother describes the youth as being 5 ft. 4 inches in heighth, with brown hair, blue eyes and a scar on his neck near the chin.

The letter received by Chief Kiely indicates that Mrs. Baldwin is heartbroken over her son's disappearance, and both the letter and envelope bear tear marks. She says: "If you could find him for me you would receive the heartfelt thanks of a distracted widowed mother."

BOARD OF HEALTH STARTS CRUSADE

To Exterminate the Fly and to Prevent Spread of Tuberculosis.

WAR ON SKEETER, TOO

Health Authorities to Put a Stop to Use of Public Drinking Cups and to See That the Anti-Expectorating Ordinance is Enforced.

The Plainfield Board of Health has decided to inaugurate a vigorous campaign against the flies during the coming season. While its policy is not yet definitely decided upon, the members agree that nothing should be left undone in ridding the community as far as possible of this common nuisance. To a large extent the campaign will be one of education. A sanitary survey of the city will be made with a view to locating and abolishing all spots which might be considered nuisances. Breeding places for mosquitoes will also come under the observation of the board for the purpose of chasing these insects. The board will seek the co-operation of everyone in this work.

The board is also planning better methods for handling tuberculosis cases, and applying the preventive measures so well known by almost everyone. As a means to carrying on this work, the police will be requested to enforce the "no spitting" provisions of the law. So far as known no arrests have been made in Plainfield for violations of this law.

The attention of the board has been directed to the fact that there are a few public drinking cups in use about the city and steps will be taken to have them abolished as they are a violation of the law. The new sanitary code which was drafted last year was not adopted for the reason that the old board preferred to turn it over to the new board. The code is now under consideration and it is expected that definite action will be taken within a short time.

The health authorities are planning an active campaign along all lines of sanitation in this city, it being the purpose to make Plainfield as healthful as possible. The new members of the board are especially interested in health matters and with the experience of the older members it is believed that much can be accomplished during the coming year in abolishing many nuisances throughout the city.

TO AIR NEIGHBORS ROW IN THE DUNELLEN COURT

The hearing in the case of Mrs. Lydia Vail and Mrs. Louis Schneider, of Dunellen, against William J. Winges, also of that place, charging the latter with disorderly conduct, which was set for Friday morning, has been postponed to Friday afternoon by Justice Rene P. F. vonMinden at the request of Francis J. Blatz, of counsel for the defendant, who cannot be in Dunellen in the morning.

The "spite fence" being eercted by Winges is now completed and has been given a coat of black paint. The neighbors are very indignant over this action of Mr. Winges and declare that they will take steps to have it removed if possible. It is understood that the complainants have engaged Frederick J. Pope, prosecutor of Somerset county, to represent them in their action against Mr. Winges.

KINEMACOLOR PICTURES AT PROCTOR'S THEATRE

Proctor & Sanderson announced today that beginning Saturday, March 8, the famous Kinemacolor motion pictures will be exhibited daily at Proctor's theatre. These pictures are considered the last word in perfection in the motion picture world and the announcement that the local playhouse is to have them as an added attraction is being received with more than usual interest. F. F. Proctor has made a contract whereby the Kinemacolor pictures are to be shown in all his theatres.

Workmen are now engaged in making the necessary changes at Proctor's theatre preparatory to exhibiting these pictures. At present an alternating electric current is used for moving pictures, and this will be changed to a direct current. Extensive changes are also to be made in the operating department at the theatre to insure the best possible production of the pictures. The Kinemacolor views to be exhibited here are in the natural colors and the subjects are the best obtainable.

Egotists

An Egotist is one who thinks that the only thing in the universe that cannot be improved upon is himself!

We discover traces of Egotism in some stores quite as often as we do in some individuals—those stores that are completely satisfied with themselves.

The proprietor of Rothberg's shop is not satisfied with his store and hopes he never will be. When you feel that you have reached the best that's possible, inertia will surely send you tumbling.

Rothberg's "Shop" is in the process, just as all successful institutions are.

It is today a better store than it was six months ago. In six months it will be a better store than it is today.

Defeat stands still, but Victory marches upward and onward—ever upward and onward.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Werba & Luescher have scored a tremendous success with "The Master Mind" at the Harris theatre, in West Forty-second street. That the cast headed by Edmund Breeze has met with a hearty reception is shown by the universal favorable comment of the dramatic critics and as a result seats are selling eight weeks in advance. Matinees are given on Thursdays and Saturdays and at the Thursday matinees popular prices prevail. The Evening Sun says the show is "a gripping play of mystery, love and revenge," while the New York Press refers to it as "a second Raffles." "An emotional ripper admirably acted," is the comment of the Tribune and the Evening Telegram adds that "Nick Carter never did anything quite so wonderful." The World announces that it is "full of thrills," and all the other critics say about the same. The seats are sold out at every performance and it is well to get them in advance.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue theatre this week houses a Carnival Bill of International headliners, the 12 featured acts being natives of as many different lands. Gus Edwards' Kid Kabaret leads in fun-making, the clever youngsters of the turn seeming to evince added ability at each performance; M'lle Minni Amato, danseuse appears in the dramatic pantomine, "The Apple of Paris;" Walter Law and Company presents the astounding hit of tense realism, "The Seal of Silence," a powerful defense of the confessional; Chung Hwa Comedy Four are Chinese exponents of fun and harmony; Donovan and McDonald essay their artistic character portrayals of two ould tads from the Emerald Isle; Myares, Buban wire bounder makes his American debut; Wilson Brothers, Teutonic cut-ups in cruel assaults on the English language. Edison's talking moving pictures demonstrates its nearness to perfection, while the remainder of the entertainment is constituted of such favorites as Dooley and Sayles, Irish wits; Ramsdell Trio, German dancing adepts; Cunningham and Marion, Scotch comedians, and Joe O'Gorman, eccentric Hibernian monologist.

PROCTOR'S NEW BILL.

If you want to laugh and keep on laughing for fifteen minutes and then some, just look over Searl Allen and Company's comedy sketch entitled "The Promoter" at Proctor's the forepart of this week. The act is full of laugh provoking intricacies that bring down the house. Allen poses as a debtor of great magnitude and his devices and schemes employed to outwit his creditors are novel and the last work in originality. Mastin and Melvin, the messenger boy and the actress, are a second set of mirth makers. Their jokes are something new along the fun line and the characters seem particularly adapted to their parts. Walsh and Reading in "The Hod Carrier and the Boy" present some genuine Irish patriotism that is so characteristic of the Emerald Isle. A pair of singing and talking musicians together with "Presto," the novelty musician, are also well worth seeing to say nothing of the five reels of motion pictures that change daily.

BOSTON'S BIG DOG SHOW.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 25.—An entry list of 1,572 was practically filled when the doors were opened this morning for the annual show of the Eastern Dog Club in Mechanics Building. The record of entries from New England was broken, and there were many exhibits from New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Buffalo and Pittsburgh, as well as from Canada. A large number of the winners at the recent New York show were among those to be seen here. As usual with bench shows in this city, the Boston terriers led the list of entries, although there was a large array of many other popular breeds.

APPEAL IN GOMPERS CASE.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—In the District of Columbia court of appeals arguments were begun today on the appeal of Samuel Gompers, John Mitchell and Frank Morrison, the American Frederation of Labor officials who are under jail sentences for contempt of court in connection with the famous Buck Stove and Range Company case. It is expected the argument will occupy two days. Judge Alton B. Parker, of New York, and Jackson H. Ralston, of this city, appeared in behalf of the convicted labor leaders.

ROB'T H. M'ADAMS NOW DISTRICT COURT JUDGE

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—Robert H. McAdams, who was recently appointed judge of the District Court to succeed Clark McK. Whittemore, was sworn in by County Clerk James C. Calvert yesterday, and will preside over the court for the first time on March 11, the first session following the expiration of Judge Whittemore's term. The fact that Mr. McAdams was to take his oath of office was not made known, and consequently the witnesses were fewer than those who saw the same ceremony two weeks ago when Judge Connolly was elevated.

Former Mayor Alfred A. Stein is now the only one of the new county appointees that has not been sworn in. He will succeed C. Addison Swift as prosecutor of the pleas.

N. P. H. S. NOTES.

At a meeting of the junior class, Ashley Burner was elected vice president to succeed Augustus Van Deventer, who left school to take a position in a local office.

Two freshmen have left school since the beginning of the year, which leaves the first year enrollment now 55.

Charles Beckman, editor of the High School "Scout," has become "society editor" of The Review.

Edmund Kenney, who graduated from High School last year as salutatorian, and who has been back this year taking a post-graduate course, has left school and taken a position in the assembling department of the Saurer Motor Car Company, at Clinton avenue.

At a meeting of the Junior class yesterday it was decided to give the Seniors their annual banquet in the early part of April instead of waiting until the first week in June as has been the custom in past years.

Mr. Mertz, coach of the Athletic Association play, has decided on "Batchelor Hall." The play is a comedy in every sense of the word and has a laugh in every line. There are twelve characters and Mr. Mertz has picked the following persons to take part: Thomas Fetherstone, as "The Hon. Geoffrey Myrtleton;" Ashley Burner, as "Silas Jervis;" Estes Small, as "Elisha Bassett;" Carroll Taylor, as "Ensign Jack Meridith;" Attwood Giddings, as "Pinkerton Case;" Elmer French, as "Vere Lee;" Charles Beckman, as "Jasper;" Newton Spencer, as "O'Rouke;" Lucille Ewart, as "Betty Vance;" Edith Dalley, as "Polly Reynolds;" Mildred McAuliffe, as "Mrs. Van Styne," and Mary Martin, as "Claire Van Styne." The play is to be staged in the latter part of April and Coach Mertz is rushing three and four rehearsals a week.

Manager Carroll Taylor will probably arrange a game with Bernardsville H. S. at Saengerbund Hall for next Saturday as a practice game before the final game with P. H. S.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

Saturday afternoon and evening will mark the first appearance here of William A. Brady's production of George Broadhurst's play, "Bought and Paid For." The story of the play, briefly told, follows Robert Stafford marries a telephone girl. Stafford is kind-hearted, generous, considerate, and deeply attached to his wife, but he has one fault. His besetting sin is drink. He is a gentleman souse. At such times, his wife, who has grown to love him, is in mortal terror, not so much for fear of his striking her, but because she feels that when he is under the influence of liquor, he is another man—as though she, a wife, was being caressed by a drunken stranger. It is while Stafford is on one of these sprees that his wife repulses him and exhibits her disgust. She refuses to kiss him and her attitude arouses the man's obstinacy until he frankly informs her that she is bought and paid for; and that she would not have married him if he had not been rich, that he paid her price and that she is his property. The truth of the statement is forced upon her and, screaming, she runs to her bedroom and locks the door. Stafford picks up the iron tongs from the fireplace and breaks in the door. This is one of the strongest scenes ever staged.

JACK JOHNSON TO THE BAR.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 25.—After spending an amount estimated at $20,000 and carrying his case to the Supreme Court of the United States in a vain effort to have the indictments against him dismissed, Jack Johnson, the negro champion pugilist, was arraigned in the United States District Court in this city today to stand trial on charges of violating the Mann white-slave act.

HEBREW CHARITY BALL.

The committee of arrangements on the Hebrew Charity ball to be held in Sebring's auditorium Monday night, March 24, have planned for one of the most elaborate Jewish affairs ever held in this city.

FOWLER'S SEVENTEEN TALKS ON CURRENCY

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—"Seventeen Talks on the Banking Question Between Uncle Sam and Mr. Farmer, Mr. Lawyer, Mr. Merchant, Mr. Banker, Mr. Laboring Man and Mr. Manufacturer" is the title of a book that was placed on sale in this city yesterday.

The author is Charles Newell Fowler, former Congressman and head of the Congressional committee on banking and finance, and who has a law now pending before the House, introduced by request, looking to the reformation of the present banking system of the United States.

One of the features of Mr. Fowler's "Seventeen Talks" is an attack upon the Aldrich currency plan.

HEPPENHEIMER NAMED FOR COURT OF ERRORS

Trenton, Feb. 25.—Governor Wilson sent to the Senate last night the appointment of Ernest J. Heppenheimer, of Jersey City, as Judge of the Court of Errors and Appeals to succeed Judge John J. Treacy, resigned. Judge Treacy, who also resides in Jersey City, sent his resignation to the Governor yesterday. The reason he gave was that he desired to resume the practice of law.

Mr. Heppenheimer is a Wittpenn man and was backed by the Jersey City Mayor. He is president of the Jersey City Board of Aldermen, president of the Colonial Life Insurance Company and a brother of General William C. Heppenheimer, well known throughout the State as a Democratic leader.

The Governor also sent in the appointment of Dr. J. E. Raycroft, of Princeton, as Member of the Board of Managers of the State Insane Hospital, in this city. Wilbur E. Young of Angleses, was reappointed to the Cape May County Tax Board.

The Senate held an executive session last night but did not confirm any of the appointments made by the Governor last week.

WOULD SERVE UNION AS PROSECUTOR'S SLEUTHS

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—In spite of the fact that attaches to the prosecutor's office claim to be protected by civil service, aspirants to succeed them have begun to spring up among friends of the incoming administration. There is a bill before the Legislature, which, if it becomes a law, will remove the civil service cloak of protection from County Detectives Frank V. Louden and John A. Galatian, and in this event, there would be a lively scramble for the appointments.

David McCandless, John A. Walsh and John J. Coughlin, all of whom have been prominent workers for the Democratic party in past campaigns, are among those who are figuring most prominently, and should civil service be knocked out, it is not unlikely that the two positions mentioned might be filled from selection among the three.

The bill also aims to take attaches of district courts from civil service protection, and, anticipating the success of this legislation, Judge McAdams has received many applications for the position to succeed George J. Smith, as clerk of the court, and Oliver Conlen, as sergeant-at-arms.

TO COMBINE LOCAL AND SUBURBAN PHONE LISTS

New Jersey telephone subscribers are to receive a new form of directory beginning with the February edition. In place of the present "local" and "suburban" books, the one small and the other large, a single compact, lightweight volume will be provided.

A new style of type, made especially for the directories, will allow three columns of listings on each page. The contents will be arranged alphabetically by towns.

The local district agent of the New York Telephone Company, in explaining the scope and make-up of the new directory, said yesterday:

"Heretofore local directories have been issued three times a year, supplemented by a general suburban directory issued in May. We have realized that some inconvenience has been caused by having two books to consult, for while the local books have satisfactorily covered the local field, reference to the large suburban directory was necessary in order to reach people located outside of the immediate vicinity.

"The new books will be issued in February, May and October."

THE TEST.

In discussing commission government before the Jersey City League a few nights ago, Mayor Donnelly told what great results had been obtained at the State Capitol city since the adoption of the plan there. He said:

"The real scintillating feature of our administration has been the attitude of the people towards its governing body. They have shown a spirit of confidence in our efforts that was never before manifested. Probably this is due to the fact that all our records are open for the inspection of the public, and that every item of business is conducted in the public limelight. Politics in Trenton, so far as its municipal government is concerned, is dead. In substantiation of this you have but to look at the records of our meetings. The commission is composed of three Democrats and two Republicans, but in the eighteen months of our administration not one party vote has been recorded."

Commenting on Mayor Donnelly's assertions, the Elizabeth Journal, which like most of the progressive newspapers in the State, is an avowed believer in the commission for municipal administration, says:

"That is the heart of the success that has attended commission government wherever it has succeeded. Men are coming to see that it isn't important whether a Republican or a Democrat looks after the schools, the sewers, the streets and other city departments. But it is important that honest and capable men look after them. That commission goverment encourages the choice of this type of municipal officials is more and more widely admitted."

ILLITERACY IN NEW JERSEY.

It may seem startling that in this enlightened State there are 113,502 illiterates, but when it is considered that the number represents but five and six-tenths per cent. of the total population ten years of age and over the situation is not so bad. And what is more, the number of illiterates is constantly decreasing. In 1900 the percentage was 5.9. These facts are gleaned from the advance report of the Federal Bureau of Census, on which comment was made yesterday. It may be interesting to know in this connection that the percentage of illiteracy is 14.7 among foreign-born whites, 9.9 among negroes, and 0.9 among native whites.

For all classes combined, the percentage of illiterates is 5.8 in urban communities and 5 in rural. For each class separately, however, the percentage of illiteracy in the rural population exceeds that in the urban.

For persons from 10 to 20 years of age, inclusive, whose literacy depends largely upon present school facilities and school attendance, the percentage of illiteracy is 2.4.

Is it not possible for the proper authorities to put a stop to the scattering of newspaper wrapping and other papers on West Front street, littering up sidewalks and gutters on Sunday mornings? Every Sunday, as people pass from the Postoffice corner to Somerset street, wastepapers and parts of newspapers that would fill at least half a barrel are in the gutters and on the sidewalks. Last Sunday, with a high wind blowing, they were an unusual nuisance all day, but every Sunday they are in evidence. They come in part from newsboys unwrapping bundles of Sunday newspapers in the street and throwing the wrappers down on the sidewalk. As there is an ordinance forbidding it, the police could first warn and then arrest the perpetrators of a nuisance. A private citizen cannot well handle the matter, but the authorities can.

It is not surprising that the most distinguished member of American yellow journalism—what's in a name—is working overtime in trying to foment a war with Mexico just precisely as it did during the trying days when the lamented McKinley was doing his utmost to avert strife with Spain. Taft, like McKinley, calm but resolute, most wisely is now reluctant to plunge his country into a costly war, one which would mean not simply the expenditure of millions of dollars but the sacrifice of hundreds, thousands and possibly tens of thousands of noble lives, and so long as the "life, limb and property" of the foreigners are not endangered what right, what excuse, has these United States to interfere with Mexico's civil troubles, granting that the deposed President was murdered by orders of the new administration?

While it is a rule among such great newspapers as the New York Mail and the New York Evening Post to make a charge of five cents for a copy of the newspaper when their magazines are enclosed, the Daily Press will make no extra charge for its magazine, which will be superior to that of either of the newspapers named. The first issue of the Daily Press Magazine will appear on Saturday and thereafter regularly on the first Saturday of each month. If you are not a regular subscriber to this paper, it will be well to leave your order now either at the office or with your newsdealer.

The greatest obstacle encountered by the American suffragists in promoting their righteous cause is the tactics of the English suffragettes, who bring the blush of shame to womanhood. Fortunately the average English woman is not to be judges by these lawbreakers who seemingly stop at nothing to "promote" as they apparently believe a cause which they disgrace.

Just a gentle reminder—order the Saturday issue of the Daily Press now and get a superb magazine free.

And did 'Col.' Craft call 'Gen.' Rosalie "cat," or what swear word did she use?

PHYSICIAN IS ACCUSED BY MURDER SUSPECT

Trenton, Feb. 25.—Charging that some strange influence had been exerted over him for some time previous to his alleged confession, William Atzenhafer, charged with the murder of Luella B. Marshall, has again repudiated his recital of the supposed crime and charges Dr. Joseph G. Denelsbeck with dosing him with morphine and whisky. Atzenhafer is positive that he will be cleared of the crime and he asserts he can prove an alibi.

Dr. Denelsbeck admits giving the man morphine, but says it was after the confession and it was administered so that the fellow would sleep during the night. No indictment has yet been returned against the alleged murderer.

FIND CRADLE OF A NEW RACE.

Theosophists Hit Upon Spot Near Los Angeles For "Sensitized" Beings.

That the Krotona institute, the new theosophical school on the hills back of Hollywood, near Los Angeles, which formally was opened recently with a dedication service by Mrs. Marie B Russank, the personal representative of Annie Besant, will be the center of knowledge which shall overlook the cradling of a new race is the belief of a certain part of the local theosophical colony.

It is claimed there has been occultly revealed to their leaders a glowing iridescent light, bathing San Gabriel valley as a symbol that hidden in the bosom of the valley there is a talisman, planted generations ago by Apolonias of Tyana, whose work was to place talismans for the guidance of future works, to magnetize centers which shall be the cradle of a new race of universal brotherhood.

"This race will be highly sensitized," said A. P. Warrington, head of the American branch of theosophy. "It will be of high mental type, with enormous clairvoyant powers. The little children now born 'queer' are those born in this new race, trying out its qualities. They will be dedicated to a race of universal brotherhood."

FISH PULLS CAPTOR ON ICE.

Angler Is Towed Out Into Lake by Finny Creature.

The 1910 fish story season was opened in Chicago recently by the Rogers park police, who were called to the lake front. When they arrived they found James Clark, a fisherman, pulling ashore with a passenger whose teeth were chattering so rapidly his features were barely discernible. The passenger when warmed sufficiently to speak explained he was Daniel Reed, with a strong bent toward fishing.

He said he was perched on the edge of the ice when there was a violent tug at his line. He braced his feet so hard that the ice broke, and he was carried off toward the Michigan shore on a cake of ice, the fish supplying the motive power.

The ride was terminated by the breaking of the line. Then Clark caught the signals and effected the rescue.

FUND FOR SALVATION ARMY.

Post at Detroit Is Given Property Valued at $50,000.

Officials of the Salvation Army post at Detroit, Mich., recently reported that a charitable woman of that city had donated property in the city valued at $50,000 to the post as a memorial to the late General Booth.

The general's memorial fund, which is being raised to establish new training colleges for the Salvation Army work at New York and Chicago, now totals more than $100,000.

Japanese Flock Into Mexico.

Mexican Consul Lozano of Laredo reported to Consul General Manuel A. Esteva at Santonio, Tex., recently that more than 5,000 Japanese and several hundred Germans have crossed from the United States into Mexico within the previous week.

EXPECT WM. E. TUTTLE TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

Fifth District Democrats Advance Name of Westfield Congressman.

While arrangements are under way to launch tonight the gubernatorial candidacy of Mayor H. Otto Wittpenn, of Jersey City, in the "camp of the enemy," where the Smith-Nugent forces hold sway, there comes from Union county channels the news that Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, may add one more to the list of aspirants for the chief magisterial honors in New Jersey. That Mr. Tuttle will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the governorship in the September primaries is the word that is being passed around in Union.

ASBURY PARK AVIATOR TO RETURN TO MEXICO

Asbury Park, Feb. 25.—Hector Worden, of this city, the aviator, who, as a captain under General Victoriano Huerta, now the Provisional President, saw duty an as aerial scout with the Mexican army in the overthrow of Porfirio Diaz, is preparing to return to Mexico as an aviator for the Moissant Company, which has again been employed by the government. Captain Worden saw thrilling service during his year's stay in Mexico, and he had many narrow escapes.

Mr. Worden is of the opinion that the revolution in Mexico has only begun, and he predicts great fighting in the southern part of the republic during the coming months. On his former trip to Mexico the aviator was accompanied by Mrs. Worden, who is the daughter of Charles Imlay, a letter-carrier, of Fifth avenue, this city.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR PATROLMAN CHAS. WICHT

Relatives and friends of Patrolman Charles Wicht tendered him a surprise last night at his home, 29 Somerset street, in observance of his thirty-third birthday. Games were played and a number of the guests entertained with instrumental and vocal selections. The table decorations consisted of trimmings of purple and gold and a huge birthday cake bearing a candle indicating each milestone which Mr. Wicht has passed formed an appropriate centre-piece. Table bouquets of carnations of several colors also formed part of the decorations.

The guests included Mrs. Adelaide Egan, Mrs. Emma Kohl and Mrs. Gildersleeve; the Misses Adelaine L. Egan, Mary Egan, Irene Keniff, Katherine Mermet; James Egan, Alfred Wicht, C. R. Schollenberger, Charles Dow, Webster Gildersleeve and several relatives from Newark, Elizabeth and Dunellen.

TAFT MUCH RELIEVED OVER THE SITUATION

Washington, Feb. 25.—President Taft is very much relieved over the Maxican situation and thinks the crisis is over for the present. Ambassador Wilson's news is of a reassuring character and as analyzed by the officials here is an appeal to give the next Mexican government a chance to make good. That is quite satisfactory to Washington as something of a change is impending in our own government and it is agreeable to all parties not to start anything until the new administration in both Mexico and the United States get well under way.

HERE IS YOUR HAT WHAT'S YOUR HURRY

"Uncle Joe" and the Other "Stand-patters" Say "Good-bye."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 25.—Many noted leaders of the Senate and House today entered upon the final week of their congressional careers. When the Sixty-third Congress assembles in extraordinary session a few weeks hence there will be much about it strange to those who have long been familiar with the personnel of past Congresses.

In the House the most conspicuous thing will be the absence of "Uncle Joe" Cannon. It is more than forty years since Mr. Cannon was first elected a member of the House, and he has occupied a seat in that body ever since, except during the term 1891-3. He has served as a member of the House longer than any other man that has ever occupied a seat there, and his service as Speaker exceeded that of any other man except Henry Clay.

But Mr. Cannon will not be the only member of the House who will be missed after March 4. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, and McCall, of Massachusetts, who for years have been shapers of Republican tariff policy, will be among the missing when Speaker Clark raps the Sixty-third Congress to order. The tidal wave in Illinois wrought notable changes. Among the members of the Prairie State delegation left out in the cold are George E. Foss, George W. Prince, William A. Rodenberg and William B. McKinley, the last named widely known as the chairman of the Republican congressional campaign committee.

Other well known members of the House who will be relegated to private life one week hence are Nicholas Longworth, of Ohio; James C. Needham, of California; Ebenezer Hill, of Connecticut; Edgar D. Crumpacker, of Indiana; George P. Lawrence and Butler Ames, of Massachusetts; Martin W. Littleton, of New York; Victor Berger, of Wisconsin, who has been the lone representative of the Socialist party in Congress; William B. Wilson, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the committee on labor, and Arsene Pujo, of Louisiana, chaser of the "money devil," chairman of the committee on banking and currency.

In the Senate the changes will be marked by reason of the character of the men who are to retire and of the marked contrast in some instances between them and the men who will take their places. The Republicans in the Senate have suffered very serious losses, while the Democrats have made a distinct gain in capable and energetic young men who will come over to the north end of the Capitol from the House of Representatives.

Cullom, of Illinois, and Crane, of Massachusetts, will be the most conspicuous absentees from the Senate when the curtain rises on the extra session. Culom was defeated in the primaries and Crane declined to be a candidate for re-election. Bailey, of Texas, has already withdrawn and Wetmore, of Rhode Island; Guggenheim, of Colorado; Burnham, of New Hampshire; Briggs, of New Jersey; Brown, of Nebraska; Gardner, of Maine; Paynter of Kentucky; Curtis, of Kansas; Richardson, of Delaware, and Bourne, of Oregon, will step out at the end of the present Congress.

In the new Congress Democratic senators will succeed Republicans as chairman of all the important committees of the Senate. The prestige of the Democratic party and the fate of the Wilson administration will turn largely on the use the Democratic senators make of their new power. Whatever else may result, it is certain that the retirement of so many of the old leaders will have the effect of bringing to the front a number of senators who have heretofore been kept in the background, principally because they were on the minority side.

Senator Martin, of Virginia, probably will continue to be the recognized leader of the upper house. But other old-timers like Bacon of Georgia, Stone of Missouri and Simmons of North Carolina, will certainly be found close to the head of the Democratic council board. If he so desired Tillman, of South Carolina, undoubtedly could have the chairmanship of any important committee he might select, but the health of the South Carolina senator is extremely delicate, and his friends believe he hardly would dare attempt the grilling work incident to the chairmanship of one of the big committees.

Conditions never were more propitious for new men to make their mark, and senators like Hoke of Georgia, Morris Sheppard of Texas, John W. Kern, of Indiana, Luke Lea of Tennessee, James A. O'Gorman of New York, Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas and a few others are bound to attract the notice of the country in the next few years.

GLEN GARDNER PROTEST ON CURB UP TO BOARD

Glen Gardner, Feb. 25.—Lebanon Township committee was waited upon here by a delegation of citizens who presented a resolution adopted at an indignation meeting and signed by more than twenty property owners along Main street. The resolution was a protest against paying for the curbing recently put along Main street. Action was deferred.

Several years ago a special road district was set off from Lebanon Township by an act of the Legislature, known as Mondalia road district. A part of the road money was set off each year to keep the streets and sidewalks of this village in repair.

When the State macadam road was built through the town last fall the citizens of Mondalia road district voted to have Main street curbed, and an agreement was entered into with the committee of Lebanon Township for a loan of $2,000, of which $200 was to be repaid each year.

The curbing was finished, but not in a satisfactory way. The committee, over protests, paid almost the whole amount of the contract and about $40 for an inspector. It was this action of the committee, at its former meeting, that called forth the indignation meeting Friday night.

SHOT IN A BATTLE WITH RIVER PIRATES

Jersey City, Feb. 25.—John Long, a watchman, thirty-two years old, of 210 Third street, was shot in the neck yesterday in a fight with river pirates on Pier 10 of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, at Communipaw.

Long and Joseph Magee, another watchman, were standing near the end of the piet when three men appeared from the side of a box car.

"Where are you fellows going?" commanded Long, pulling his gun.

"That's where," said one, and fired at Long. The bullet hit him a glancing blow on the neck, but Magee and Long then fired.

All three men hiding behind freight cars opened fire and for a time there was a regular fusilade.

The men escaped over the side of the pier, jumped into a boat and rowed off. Long was taken to the City Hospital. His condition is not serious.

WOMAN, AGED 80, HURT IN FIGHT WITH SON-IN-LAW

Paterson, Feb. 25.—In a fight with his eighty-year-old mother-in-law, Mrs. Margaret Stimson, over some beer, Edward Haslam, of 303 Grand street, is alleged to have struck her with a beer glass, causing severe injuries. Haslam was arrested and sentenced yesterday morning to thirty days in the county jail. The injured woman is at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Haslam went for the beer, and on his return Mrs. Stimson, thinking he had taken her portion, struck him, it is said, with a tin cup. He retaliated with a class mug, striking her behind the ear and rendering her unconscious. Efforts to stay the flow of blood were unavailing and after several hours elapsed Dr. M. J. Whalen was summoned. The physician ordered the woman taken to the hospital.

EDWIN GOULD IS 47.

Edwin Gould, second son of the late Jay Gould, the "wizard of finance," was born at the family home in New York city, February 25, 1866. His education was received principally in private schools, supplemented by a tour of Europe. Since he attained his majority Mr. Gould, emulating the example of his elder brother, George J. Gould, has devoted himself assiduously to the care and development of great railroad, financial and industrial properties, many of which had been controlled by his father. He has served as president of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company and as a director and one of the controlling factors in the Diamond Match Company, the Western Union Telegraph Company and many other large corporations. In 1892 Mr. Gould was married to Miss Sarah Shrady, of New York. The couple have two sons, Edwin Gould, Jr., and Frank M. Gould.

RETIREMENT FUND.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—The Egan Teachers' Retirement bill which has already passed the House, was amended in the Senate last evening so that it includes industrial teachers, and also to allow those who have taught 20 consecutive years and are over 70 years of age to retire. The former amendment was offered by Senator Leavitt, of Mercer county, and the last named by Senator Barber, of Warren county.

TREASURER'S DEPUTY.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—When Democratic State Committeeman Edward E. Grosscup takes office as State Treasurer next Saturday, succeeding Daniel S. Voorhees, Republican, he will appoint as his Deputy Treasurer, John S. Ware, secretary and treasurer of the Cumberland Trust Company, of Bridgeton. Mr. Ware is very well known throughout South Jersey.

LIKELY SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR

EDWIN L. NORRIS.

Edward L. Norris, of Montana, will likely be named as the new Secretary of the Interior.

MATE, MISSING EIGHT WEEKS, FOUND DROWNED

Elizabeth, Feb. 25.—The body of the man found floating in Staten Island Sound at the foot of the Central Railroad dock by Rokos Mills, a watchman on the steam lighter Grasselli, was identified as that of Henning Jonasson, thirty years old. He was mate of the steam lighter Maine, owned by the Cooney Eckstein Company, of New York, and disappeared from the boat while it was anchored here in December. As there were no circumstances to indicate that his death was due to anything but an accident, County Physician Dr. Thomas E. Dolan granted a burial permit.

The body is now at Martin's morgue. Jonasson was born in Sweden and left there a year ago. His parents recently wrote Captain John F. Jonasson, of the Maine, that they had not heard from his since he left home.

PIERCE INVESTIGATOR.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—President of the Senate Fielder, last evening named Senators Pierce, of Union, and Barber, of Warren counties, to act upon the committee to investigate the affairs of the Soldiers' Home at Kearny. Assemblymen Bracken, of Essex, and Conrad, of Ocean, are the other members of the committee. President Fielder in making the appointments urged upon the members the necessity of making a report to the Legislature before its adjournment.

is not over yet. There are plenty of fine days, all through the winter when painting can be done as well as in mid-summer; and it will last better, if the painter knows his trade. The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

CORNED BEEF.

CORNED beef is a useful food to have in stock. Like ham, it is handy to have in the house in a crisis, such as a rainy day, when it is inconvenient to send to the shops for supplies.

Beef may be pickled at home in comparatively small quantities if you prefer.

Home Pickling.

To prepare homemade corned beef make a brine of three quarts of water, one cupful of coarse salt, one-half cupful of brown sugar and saltpeter the size of a hazelnut. Boil all together and let cool. Select the piece of meat you prefer, put it into a crock and turn the brine over it. Let stand about six days with a weight on to keep under the brine, when it is ready for use.

It is a good plan to take out your corned beef the day before you wish to use it, cover it with cold water and let it stand until the morning.

Homely Boiled Dinners.

Corned Beef and Vegetables.—Brisket of corned beef is best for this. Take a good sized piece, according to the requirements of your family. Cut a cabbage into quarters and turnips into slices about an inch thick. Then take six carrots, parsnips and potatoes and cut them into slices. Put the corned beef on the fire in a large pot and boil for five hours. Add the vegetables an hour before serving and cook until tender. Serve the meat on a large platter surrounded by the vegetables.

Corned Beef With Dumplings.—Boil the corned beef as usual. In the meanwhile prepare the dumplings as follows: Take two cupfuls of sifted flour, a half cupful of minced suet, a half cupful of cold water, one egg and mix all into a stiff dough. Drop the dumplings into the vessel containing the corned beef and boil from four to six minutes. When done they must be taken out of the vessel. Small carrots and turnips may be boiled in the liquor with the beef and served on the platter with the dumplings. Serve with horseradish sauce.

Savory Hashes.

Corned Beef Hash.—Take cold corned beef and cold potatoes in equal quantities. Baked potatoes are the best for this purpose, and the beef should be nicely minced. Mix well and put into a hot frying pan which has been greased. When heated add half a cupful of milk for each quart of the hash and stir lightly. Then put into the oven and bake for twenty minutes. It will have a light crust on both sides.

Miss Milholland to Lead Suffrage Parade.

MISS INEZ MILHOLLAND.

Miss Inez Milholland of New York city is to lead the suffrage parade in Washington on March 3. Wearing the livery of a herald of medieval times, Miss Milholland will prance down Pennsylvania avenue ahead of a woman's band, which in turn will lead a troop of "petticoat cavalry." It has been announced in Washington that several hundred striking women garment workers from New York and Baltimore will march in tatters and rags behind a float depicting the injustice of the sweatship system.

To demonstrate further in spectacular manner the advancement of women the managers of the parade have invited Miss Bernetta Miller, a woman aviator, to swoop down into Pennsylvania avenue in her aeroplane with a message for "Miss Columbia," who is to be the central figure in the tableaux which will be staged on the steps of the treasury building.

The message, it is planned, will be a pronunciamento setting forth the strides made by modern women and urging that they be placed on a political equality with men. The aeroplane, if the fair aviatress can manage it without danger, will be covered with "Votes For Women" banners.

KAISERIN'S PET HOBBY.

Her One Extravagance Is the Raising of Siamese Cats.

Apart from the usual homely German national domestic virtues—the cult of her well stocked linen chest, the catering to her husband's individual taste in the daily menu, the strong personal supervision not only of her own children's and grandchildren's health and comfort, but also the moral and physical well being of such small waifs and strays as abound in Berlin's charity institutions—the kaiserin possesses one really extravagant and aristocratic hobby. She collects cats, breeds and buys cats—Siamese cats, the beautiful, sleek and glossy creatures whose light fawn and dun colored bodies are surmounted with dark gray, sable or black heads lighted up with pale blue or gray eyes.

Pure bred specimens so marked have been known to fetch between $5,000 and $6,000. They are lineal descendants of the king of Siam's own cats and some years ago were so highly prized in Paris that no elegante of those days could successfully hold her place in aristocratic society without possessing at least one of them.

The kaiserin owns and breeds these cats. She gives them her personal attention.

Mrs. Wilson Will Bar Turkey Trot.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the president elect, does not approve of "turkey trotting" or other extreme forms of dancing, and there will be none of it in the White House while she is there. She made this clear recently, when in conversation with an intimate friend she said:

"Of course I cannot regulate the dancing at the inaugural ball if the ball is given, but future events in Washington where this mode of dancing is permitted or encouraged will not have my sanction. The twostep and waltz I love to see."

Mrs. Wilson particularly objects to elaborate dress and heartily disapproves of women smoking and drinking cocktails.

As Mrs. Wilson's daughters share her opinions on these subjects, the social events of the younger set of Washington doubtless will follow along these lines.

THAT'S THE WAY TO EAT HUMBLE PIE, SCOOP

"MAC" SAYS

Where will the third N. P. H. S.-P. H. S. game be played? Although it was agreed to decide this question by a flip of the coin, some dissatisfaction is prevalent because someone booted the quarter on its third return trip. And now they want to raise the admission price! What for?

Although defeated the P. H. S. boys seem to be able to unearth a number of causes for their downfall, principally the "skating rinkety" condition of the floor. But with all of the excuses you have to hand it to N. P. H. S. for the game that quintet put up.

Taylor was held without a field goal until the opening of the second half, and then—well then he caged them at will. Twenty-one points isn't so bad, after all.

Something unusual was pulled off by Captain Townley, of the N. P. H. S. five, when he held slippery little Johnny Heron scoreless until the middle of the second half. John says that two slippery things don't go well together. Yes, the floor was a little icy, too.

Woodhull was another that failed to count until the final period was nearly up. Both of the N. P. H. S. guards did some tall sticking.

A double triumph for N. P. H. S. Just the same as last year when the boys won from P. H. S. one day and the girls came back the next with a victory, or vice versa. A big time in the village of Canada.

The girls have won their title but the boys still have another mixup to travel through.

Some more titles are due to be decided this week, one feminine and one masculine match. Both are due to be corking good battles in every sense of the word.

On the Saengerbund Hall court Friday night the Nonpareil girls, of this city, will play their second game of the series with the Trenton Y. W. C. A. representatives. The first was won by the Capitol City aggregation by two points and the locals will have to win the second to get a look-in at the New Jersey feminine title.

Saturday night on the Saengerbund court, the Ajax and Hope Chapel quintets will clash in the third and deciding game for the series championship. The Ritz cup is at stake and the battle ought to be one for blood.

New York Elks bowl here tonight. Captain Blatz and his crew will act as hosts.

Don't forget that Central New Jersey Baseball League meeting in the Frost building at 8 o'clock.

BASEBALL PRACTISE BEGINS IN EARNEST

Captain Good Will Put His P. H. S. Candidates Through a Stiff Training.

Baseball practice will be ushered in in earnest at the Plainfield High School this week when Captain Good will have his large squad of candidates on the gym floor for training under the watchful eyes of head coach Jack Martin and his assistants, Tommy Mullin, Eugene Lidgate and Louis Slocum. Material galore is available of the highest order and it now looks as though the coaches were going to have their troubles in picking nine of the best men without slighting anyone who is really worthy of an opportunity to display his ability against a rival scholastic aggregation.

The High School gym, while small, is adequate for a limited amount of practice such as will limber up the candidate's arms. No batting drill can be held in the small space but the pitchers and catchers will get their preliminary innings during the coming months while indoor work is on the card.

SPORTS OF ALL SORTS

A DETAILED ACCOUNT OF THE N. P. H. S. FIVE'S NOTABLE VICTORY OVER P. H. S.

A detailed score of the North Plainfield-Plainfield High School interscholastic basketball clash that took place on the Saengerbund Hall court last Saturday afternoon is given below with all of the minute scoring and penalty features of the game. The boroughites, it will be remembered came out on the larger end of a 41 to 35 score, thus making a third game necessary to decide the league title.

From the score below it can be seen that individual fouling was a prominent factor on the part of Townley, Heron, Brynarski and Good each of whom were penalized four or more times. N. P. H. S. committed fifteen fouls against the local player's twelve, while P. H. S. made good on nine tosses from the foul line against seven by the boroughites. Taylor was the high individual man, totaling up 21 points, while Good came next with ten. Taylor was held without a single field goal in the first half but scored all but one field goal in the final period and that one was made by Van Mater.

First Half.

Dunning was hurt during the first fifteen seconds of play and after claiming the allotted time out returned to the fray seemingly none the worse for the accident. Johnny Heron was caught walking with the ball and Taylor draw first blood on the foul attempt. Woodhull tied the score with the first of his string from the foul line when Taylor was caught fouling. Dunning soon put N. P. H. S. in the lead with a well directed field goal shot and Good evened matters up once more with the first of his contribution of field goals. Burner then rang up two points and Good once more retaliated with another. Woody made the score 6 to 5 when he was accorded another opportunity from the foul line when Townley held. P. H. S. took the lead for its last time during the contest when Brynarski registered a neat one from the field, "Skipper" hanging up two more penalties when Townley was censored and N. P. H. S. got two men in the way. Taylor bagged another foul and Van Mater then took a hand getting a field goal which was promptly squelched by Peacock with a similar shot. The score now stood 12 to 8 and with the aid of successive field goals by Van-Mater and Dunning, Taylor's fourth foul when Brynarski pinned him down, N. P. H. S. brought the score up to 16 to 10 and from then on never relinquished their lead.

After this bombardment Woodhull took advantage of another infraction of the rules levied on Captain Townley for holding, and this put an end to the P. H. S. five's scoring in this half, although Woodhull was given another try from the foul line and failed, after pocketing five in succession. After P. H. S. let up Taylor got a point on Brynarski's holding, Dunning managed to push the ball in for two points after Taylor missed a try and at this stage Brynarski was compelled to retire for three minutes with a rap on the head. Dunning was knocked out once more a few minutes after Brynarski returned and returning to the game promptly caged the final basket of the first administration.

Second Half.

P. H. S. opened the final period with a rush, Good caging the first goal but this one was quickly followed by Taylor's first field goal of the game. Taylor then missed a foul levied on Peacock, Good bagged another two pointed and Townley got a beautiful field goal while lying on the floor. Taylor took another and Woodhull registered a foul when Dunning was caught snuggling too close to Good and another when Rimmer levied a two man penalty. Burner was discovered pushing and Woodhull again did the trick. Brynarski took a hand in the foul shooting when Dunning was penalized and made good. P. H. S. continued its short lived scoring spasm when Good rang up a two point fare his third of the half, Brynarski missed a foul when Dunning clinched again and Wodhull missed another when Townley was caught holding Heron.

Taylor broke in at this juncture with a field goal and Heron pocketed a long chance, his first of the game. Taylor took another field goal and "Skip" annexed a spectacular side shot, the prettiest of the contest. Heron got another field goal, Woodhull and Brynarski missed penalties levied on Taylor and Dunning and Taylor broke in with another field goal. Heron chalked up his third field goal of the half and Brynarski was forced to retire with a rap on his head. At this juncture the principal of the North Plainfield High School showed some rare evidences of "sore head" when he openly declared that Brynarski was "putting on" and had nothing the matter with him. It is a well known fact that the P. H. S. guard has had considerable trouble with his head in games this year and would be the last one to be accused of such a misdemeanor. Just a little case of wanting to have something to say!

After a brief interval the P. H. S. guard returned to the game and Taylor started some more scoring on Heron's foul. Woodhull missed a foul called on Van Mater and Taylor counted for a point when two P. H. S. men came into contact. Peacock came into the limelight here with a field goal which was followed by the prettiest piece of work in the game. By some brilliant team work N. P. H. S. sewed up the game when it scored a trio of consecutive field goals following each other almost instantaneously. Taylor made two of these and Van Mater one and Good completed the scoring of the memorable contest with a field goal. North Plainfield High School 41, Plainfield High School 35.

AUTO CARS TO RACE.

Westfield, Feb. 25.—Resulting from a long-standing difference of opinion between Harry Miller and William Weldon, as to the relative speed possibilities of their cars, they are to have a race over the Long Island course next week, for a distance of five miles, owners to drive the cars. To avoid the possibilities of being haled to court, as they were a year ago, when they had a trial of speed on Broad street, they are going out of the State to try conclusions.

NEW YORK ELKS IN SERIES WITH LOCAL HERD TONIGHT

The Plainfield Elks' bowling team will entertain the antlered bowlers of New York on the local alleys tonight in the series that was originally scheduled for Thursday night. The metropolitan manager requested the locals to roll tonight instead of Thursday and his request was granted.

A large delegation of rooters are expected to accompany the visitors on their trip to Plainfield tonight and as the New Yorkers are fighting hard for third place in the league race the followers' enthusiasm has been keyed up to a high pitch.

STATE TITLE GAME HERE FRIDAY NIGHT

Nonpareils and Trenton Y. W. C. A. will Meet in Second Game in Saengerbund.

Trenton Y. W. C. A. will send its representative basketball quintet here next Friday night to contest the second game of the series for the New Jersey feminine basketball championship with the Nonpareil girls' team, of this city. The second contest will be played on the Saengerbund Hall court and because this floor is neutral to both of the contesting teams the game ought to be an especially close one. The initial game was played at Trenton, Saturday night, February 8, and resulted in a defeat for the Plainfielders, their first of the season. Although the Capitol City five pulled out ahead by a slim margin of two points it plainly exhibited its superiority over the local aggregation on the Trenton floor and the Queen City representatives anticipate a stiff fight in the second contest.

In the first of the series the Trenton players had the advantage of playing on their own court and their familiarity with their own floor plainly exhibited itself, both in shooting and passing. At Trenton the winners had a band of cohorts numbering close to 500 and when they come to Plainfield this means of spurring the team on will be absent, although the present holders of the State title have won a host of admirers in this city, where they have appeared in a number of closely contested contests.

Each of the aspirants for the State laurels have an individual point gainer that has scored most of their respective points in each contest played this and other seasons. Trenton has the wonderful little Miss Dorothy Hayes, who has gained a State wide reputation for her basketball prowess. Not only does she possess unusual basketball ability but is an all around athlete, taking an active part in track and gymnasium work. The Plainfielders have Miss Helen Hummel to rely on for their scoring and the tallies she has run up while playing forward have won many contests for the Nonpareils. The game will probably resolve itself into a scoring battle between these two point getters and as both are unfamiliar with the Saengerbund court it will also give somewhat of an insight to their respective ability.

COURT BATTLE FOR SERIES CHAMPIONSHIP

Hope Chapel Will Meet the Y. M. C. A. Ajax on Saengerbund Court Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. Ajax and the Hope chapel basketball teams will meet in the third game of their series on the Saengerbund Hall court next Saturday night, each aggregation having annexed one contest to date. As an incentive to spur on the rivalry existing between the two teams, if an incentive is needed, the Ritz Company has offered a handsome silver loving cup to be awarded to the winner of the series and the trophy is now on display in their store windows. The intense rivalry that exists between these local basketeers is of the friendly sort and as both of the contenders have a large contingent of loyal supporters the game Saturday night will probably be one of the most interesting staged in this city during the present season.

Hope chapel has been piling up an endless string of victories having met with but one reverse this season and that one was administered by the Y. M. C. A. Ajax, the same team that they will line up against on the Saengerbund Hall court Saturday night. The Ajax, on the other hand, have been putting up a great article of basketball, but their string is by no means as creditable as the Hope contingents.

MANAGER SPENCER ANNOUNCES DATES

N. P. H. S. Schedule Contains 22 Games Including Interscholastic Series.

Baseball practise at the North Plainfield High School will be started as soon as the weather permits and Captain Frank Dunning is watching the tactics of the weather man for indications of a warm spell. Manager H. Newton Spencer has completed a schedule of twenty-two games and but three games are pending. The card this year is one of the stiffest ever placed before a borough nine and besides the series for the interscholastic championship consists of contests with New Brunswick, Somerville and Summit High Schools.

An abundance of fast material is available and there are a number of last year's veterans still in school around which a nucleus can be formed for a championship nine.

The schedule of games as arranged by Manager Spencer is as follows:

Saturday, April 4—New Brunswick, here.

Wednesday, April 9—Roselle, at Roselle.

Saturday, April 12—Somerville, at Somerville.

Wednesday, April 16—Woodbridge, here.

Saturday, April 19—Summit, here.

Wednesday, April 23—Leal's, at North Plainfield.

Saturday, April 26—High Bridge, at High Bridge.

Wednesday, April 30—Bernardsville, here.

Saturday, May 3—Plainfield, at North Plainfield.

Monday, May 5—Reading Academy, here.

Wednesday, May 7—New Brunswick, at New Brunswick.

Saturday, May 10—Pending.

Wednesday, May 14—Roselle, here.

Saturday, May 17—Somerville, here.

Wednesday, May 21—Bernardsville, at Bernardsville.

Saturday, May 24—High Bridge, here.

Monday, May 26—Summit, at Summit.

Wednesday, May 28—Leal's, at Crescent Oval.

Saturday, May 31—Pending.

Wednesday, June 4—Pending.

Saturday, June 7—Plainfield, at Parker Field.

Wednesday, June 11—Reading Academy, at Flemington.

The Interscholastic League will be run again this year and the games mapped out for N. P. H. S. are in this schedule. No trophy has as yet been offered but it is probable that some local merchant or someone interested in the athletic welfare of local schools will place one up for competition before long.

DONLIN TO PLAY, BUT NO BASEBALL

Statement He Made to a Daily Press Reporter is Coming True.

Mike Donlin, the famous ball player, who appeared in this city last month as a member of the play "Between the Showers," seems to be making good on the statement he made to a Daily Press reporter when in this city to the effect that he would not let the National pastime conflict with his theatrical engagements under any circumstances. Manager Dooin, of the Phillies, has about made up his mind that he will have to do without Donlin for the season as the versitile "Mike" has informed him by letter that he thinks he will retire from the game and stick to vaudeville.

When in this city Donlin said his theatrical engagements would carry him far into April and the season will be so far advanced then that Donlin does not think he can get into condition to be of any service to the Phillies this year. Manager Dooin says if the mighty swatter stops now he will never be able to play baseball again.

Donlin would not be blacklisted for failing to report to the Phillies but would simply be carried on the reserve list for a couple of years and as far as organized baseball is concerned would still be their property.

ANOTHER VICTORY FOR FIRST CLASS

Freshies Increase the Length of Their Fast Growing String of Victories.

With only one break in their long string of victories the Freshmen basketball team again defeated the Seniors at Saengerbund Hall yesterday by the score of 36-30. The game was very slow and neither team was sure of the victory until the final blow of the timer's whistle. The scoring was of a zig-zag nature from the start and the first half ended with the first year men leading by eight points, the score being 22-14.

In the second period the Seniors made a desperate spurt but failed to obtain the lead by only four points.

BASEBALL LEAGUE MEETING TONIGHT

Consultation for the Purpose of Reorganizing the Central N. J. League.

A meeting of the baseball promoters in the Central New Jersey Baseball League will be held in the Frost building tonight to make final preparations for the opening of the 1913 pennant race. At the preliminary meeting held here several weeks ago the initial call for teams was issued and since that time the response has been general, numerous aggregations signifying their intention of securing franchises in the organization. The promoters have been looking around for the best nines playing the game and only those of representative strength will be accorded a berth on the league circuit.

Among the teams that were in the league during its regime two years ago and one that looks like a strong contender in the coming race for title laurels is High Bridge. A large gathering of rabid fans in that burg was held in Croendyke's store the other night for the purpose of reorganizing the nine and the High Bridge Athletic Association will once more control the interests of this baseball combination. It has been rumored that Jack Torpey, the veteran backstop, will manage the High Bridge team and under his guidance it goes without saying that the villagers will be heard from. New officers were elected at the meeting and it was voted that the team make application for admittance into the Central New Jersey League.

Besides the High Bridge delegation a number of other old time ball teams have already started the process of reorganization and will have representatives at the meeting tonight. Among the latter are Somerville, Bound Brook, Cranford, Westfield and New Brunswick.

PHILLIES TO SUNNY SOUTH.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 25.—With a big bunch of players in his squad, Manager Dooin, of the Philadelphia National League team, left today for the spring training camp at Southern Pines, N. C. The Phillies will spend about three weeks at the training grounds. On the way home they will engage in a number of exhibition games, the last of which will be with Baltimore, March 30 and 31. The spring series with the Athletics will begin on the home grounds here April 1 and continue to April 8. The next day the Phillies will have the honor of playing the first championship game at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn.

SHEDS SOME LIGHT ON SEWER PROBLEM

Frank J. Hubbard's Instructive Discourse on History Disposal Question.

Having made a careful study of the local sewage problem and being well versed with the many details, Frank J. Hubbard was invited to address the Men's Club of the Seventh Day Baptist church and he reviewed the whole agitation from its inception nineteen years ago when Plainfield's first system was installed.

Mr. Hubbard said in part:

"Up to the present time the whole problem has been as to methods of sewage disposal and as the state of the art has advanced we have kept fairly close pace with it, being driven thereto by the necessity of keeping Green brook as 'pure' as possible. The original disposal plant was nothing more or less than a sand filter on which we discharged the sewage in its raw state. The sewage percolated through these sand beds to pipes at the bottom leading to the brook and for a year or two the effluent was as clear as crystal. The dried sludge was raked off the surface of the beds and the process repeated. This worked with entire satisfaction at first, but the sand was too fine for the amount of sewage and quickly clogged until the method was discontinued in 1900 and the present plan of septic tanks and contact beds was adopted. These were condemned after ten years of service as inadequate.

"Some of you know that when the sewers were originally built the sewer beds were proposed to be located below Dunellen on the very site now selected for the new plant, but the plans were changed owing to opposition. Keep in mind that the present location was much more isolated nineteen years ago and there was less objection to placing that part of the system in the then far off limits of the city.

"The present proposed plan began to take definite shape two years ago when engineers were called in to investigate and report. Their recommendations in April, 1911, were for the entire rebuilding of the plant, substituting the Imhoff tank, at a cost of $180,000. At this point North Plainfield came in and from that time has been directing our destinies.

"The first proposition was that Plainfield build a plant and take in the borough on the basis of a fixed price per gallon of sewage purified. Beyond any shadow of doubt this was the best solution of the problem if for no other reason than to avoid complications bound to arise in future extensions. In fact it has been said that an agreement was made verbally on the basis of about $25 per million gallons of sewage treated.

"With the abandonment of this plan our troubles commenced and there has been more discussion about where to go with our disposal plant and how to get there. Not less than six plans have been presented, designated as the Zvolnak site, Cramer site, Darling site, direct line, gravity line, Bonhamtown site, etc.

Mr. Hubbard then described somewhat in detail each plan and the sites mentioned. When the Darling site proposition came up, Mr. Hubbard thought to throw a little real light on the subject and submitted a plan for pumping the sewage to a point near Bonhamtown, where it would be purified in an almost desolute region—the effluent to be turned into tide-water. Mr. Hubbard speaking of this said: "No less a person than Frank Bergen, an authority on the water supply of this section and a deep student of the sewer problem on account of its relation to his water interests, said that this was the best solution of the problem that had been presented. The cost was estimated at half a million dollars and the present annual pumping expense about $3,500.

"The city estimated the cost of their plan, exclusive of disposal works, at $107,000, with a small pumping charge to add—the borough got out their figures as $140,000, and showed from their point of view, that it would be necessary to pump continuously on the city proposition at a cost of not less than $3,500 per annum, which amount, capitalized at 5 per cent., would be $63,000, thus bringing the cost of the city plan up to $170,000 or $30,000 in excess of the borough plan.

"But in all this comparison of figures some things appear to have been avoided, or at least overlooked.

"First, a gravity sewer will mean an additional pumping plant for Plainfield, to take in the lower end of the city below Clinton avenue. This will cost not less than $15,000 and involve a capitalized operative cost of at least $20,000 more. Second, Dunellen will have to pump all of her sewage for a long distance, for which a capitalized cost of $10,000 would be ridiculously low. Third, the right of way cost will undoubtedly be $7,000 or $8,000 more on the gravity line than on the direct line owing to the longer distance it will be necessary to go through private property.

"As affecting Plainfield, then, we would pay 68 per cent. of $140,000 estimated cost and of $8,000 additional cost of right of way, plus $35,000 for the additional pumping plant, or a total of $135,600 as against 68 per cent. of $170,000 or $115,600. In other words, I believe that $20,000 is a conservative estimate of the excess cost Plainfield will have to bear by reason of adopting this round-about gravity line, rather than the direct line.

"In addition to the $20,000 added cost noted above it might be well to note that the line passes directly through the Cramer site and the cost from there to the Darling site is $20,000, of which the city pays 68 per cent. or $14,000."

Referring to the system proposed Mr. Hubbard said: "On the other hand there are certain disadvantages in the use of the Imhoff tanks such as greater expense in construction and in cost of treatment. This latter item is largely due to the facilities that must be provided for the digestion of sludge in chambers holding accumulation of perhaps six months. Another item of added cost is the royalty of about $50 per 1,000 population served. This is a license for the use of the process during the life of the patent. In the case of Plainfield it would amount to about $1,200 to $1,500.

"So much for the system. Probably ninety per cent. of the people say, 'Why don't we go to tide-water? Well, for two or three reasons, one of which is that it would cost about a million and a half to continue on down Green brook and the Raritan River to tidewater and another is that after we got there we would have to build just the same kind of disposal works as those we are now planning—further than that, after we got beyond Bound Brook we would have to pump every gallon of sewage.

"Eliminating from consideration the Bonhamtown plan, which I proposed, I have no hesitation in saying that some such general scheme as the present one proposed is the best possible for the communities interested if we can 'put it over,' but whether we can or not remains to be seen.

"As to the agreement between Plainfield, North Plainfield and Dunellen, it fixes the proportion of cost and operation for Plainfield at 68 per cent., North Plainfield 25 per cent. and Dunellen 7 per cent. Under the law this gives the city and borough each one vote and Dunellen has no vote. It may be that the tail is wagging the dog but the tail and the dog have certainly got to wag together in this case.

"Dunellen has the use of its force main entire, while the borough has the use of 25 per cent. of the capacity of the Rock avenue siphons which it cannot possibly use, and the borough is given the right to rent its percentage of capacity to any corporation, individuals or municipalities that may require the use of two twenty inch siphons.

"In other words, when Plainfield needs this capacity in full, as she very likely will in a few years' time, then we will have to pay the borough rental on this siphon, or if Fanwood, Bonnie Burn, Mt. St. Mary or any other place sewer through here the borough would reap the benefit. The measure seems to be to put Plainfield in a very unfortunate position to pay rental to North Plainfield for something they particularly desired for their own benefit, and all the more so because it will probably be but a short time before we need it and have to pay rent."

JUBILEE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR THOMAS HENDRY

In honor of his fiftieth birthday anniversary, which occurred on Friday, February 21, a "jubilee birthday party" was arranged by William T. Hendry for Thomas Hendry, of West Fourth street. Donald McInnes, on behalf of the guests, presented Mr. Hendry with a handsome gold pin set in pearls, with an amethyst centre. In addition Mr. Hendry received many other gifts from relatives and friends.

Mr. Hendry in responding said that the tributes made him feel as though he was only in the infancy of his age instead of being fifty years old. During the evening there was an informal program of vocal, instrumental music and recitations by Miss Grace Blair, Miss Lena Burke, Miss Elizabeth Doig, Miss Edith Robinson and Mr. Page. Dancing and refreshments were also features, and the company joined in singing the "Star Spangled Banner" before going home.

Although of Scotch descent, Mr. Hendry loves the land of his adoption, where he has spent more than half of his life. He has lived in this city a quarter of a century. He is president of the Men's Club of Hope chapel, where he is popular with the men. There were guests at the party from Scotland, New York, Brooklyn and Plainfield.

TEACHERS' TENURE REPEALER.

Trenton, Feb. 25.—Miss Elizabeth A. Allen, of Hoboken, secretary of the Teachers' Retirement Fund, was at the State House last night circulating copies of a circular letter sent broadcast over the State to Boards of Education and purporting to be signed by the Pleasantville School Board. The circular urged the School Boards to unite in favor of the passage of an act to repeal the teachers' tenure of office law. The New Jersey State Teachers' Association claims the circular was a fake and was not formally issued by the Pleasantville Board. Miss Allen is also secretary of the legislative committee of the State Association.

A FEW LEADING CHARACTERS WHO FIGURE IN THE DESTINIES OF WAR SCARRED MEXICO

At a moment when things in Mexico seemed at last to be approaching a peaceful settlement as a result of the ousting of President Madero and the birth of a new form of government, headed by General Huerta, the news was flashed that another uprising is imminent. Reports received from the stricken country make it evident that the insurrectionists in the outlying States would continue their fighting. General Pascual Orozco is the leader of this new movement. The latter opposes the selection of Huerta as President. Marcia Hernandez, whose portrait is shown herewith, was stabbed while walking along the street and was killed. He was a brother of the Madero Minister of the Interior.

General Victoriano Huerta, right hand man of Francisco Madero, is now the Provisional President of Mexico.

General Madero has been thrown in prison by General Blanquet, whom he trusted as one of his commanders.

Every other member of the Madero Cabinet has been put in prison, with the exception of Ernesto Madero, an uncle of the General, who heard of the impending arrests and fled.

General Blanquet is considered the prime mover in this sudden switching in the revolt.

MARTINE LAUDS HIS OWN STATE

Belittling Words of Senator Owen Stirs "Our Jim" to Jersey's Defense.

HE TAUNTS OKLAHOMA

Man From Baby State Poked Fun But the "Farmer-Orator" Got Back at Him in Great Style by Telling Some Facts.

Washington, Feb. 26.—Herewith is presented for the perusal and admiration of all those who read Senator Martine's penegyric of his own beloved common wealth. It was inspired on the floor of the Senate Monday afternoon by the disdainful attitude of Senator Owen, of the faroff and infant State of Oklahoma.

The man from the baby State poked ridicule upon the appropriations for some of our best known waterways, such as Cheesequake Creek, Raccoon Creek, Woodbridge Creek and the much-abused Elizabeth River. But listen to the man from Plainfield tell it to the man from Oklahoma, as officially reported by the Senate's most competent stenographer.

"I was absent from the chamber during the remarks of the Senator from Oklahoma (Mr. Owen), but I feel that I would be utterly an insufficient Senator if I should keep my mouth closed after the unfortunate reference made in a belittling way to the appropriations for the commonwealth which I in part represent.

"I realize that many of these names may not seem dignified to the Senator from Oklahoma—Raccoon Creek, Toms River, Shrewsbury River, Tuckerton Creek, Woodbridge Creek. How blessed Oklahoma would be if it had the most insignificant one of these creeks wandering through your commonwealth;"

"We would be glad to have them," interjected Mr. Owen.

"My friend from Oklahoma refers in a belitting way to these various appropriations, such as the Elizabeth River improvement. According to the report submitted the amount is $15,543. Let me say to you, I am proud of it that I appeared before the committee of the House and urged that appropriation should be made $50,000, and I did it for this reason:

"I realize that Kill von Kull and Elizabeth River, passing up from the great harbor of New York city, bears a tonnage each year that outstrips the tonnage that passes through the great Suez Canal. The great contest is for cheaper transportation, cheaper bread and butter. The wharves and docks in the great city of New York, my birthplace, are fairly congested, until now the problem confronts us, where can the great ships that are building for maritime commerce of the world find a mooring?

"There seems to be no hope on the New York side, but just across the Hudson River the State of New Jersey offers them an abiding place, and the world's commerce, in fact, may be taken care of there.

"We ask that this channel of Kill von Kull and the improving of Elizabeth River may have attention in order to afford better shipping facilities and thereby cheapen food, cheapen bread to the country and to the world.

"Here, for Newark Bay and the Passaic River and improvements, $300,000 is appropriated. Remember, this is right at the threshold of the great metropolis of this country. The city of Newark has a population today of about 370,000 people. We are a thriving hive of industry. Everything in the manufacturing line, from a cambric needle to a locomotive, is manufactured there. We are a great shipping point.

"For improving Shrewsbury River and maintenance is the sum of $10,000. The shipping that passes through there each year runs into hundreds of thousands of tons. Toms River is not dignified much in name, but they only ask for a pittance of $1,000. That is one of the paltry sums that my friend would sneeringly refer to.

"Woodbridge Creek is within eight miles of my home. It it were called Woodbridge River it would have more character, for the name creek seems insignificant. Let me say to you that Woodbridge Creek and the whole section thereabouts is fairly laden with a clay product that is manufactured into almost every conceivable shape that is known to civilization today, and thousands upon thousands of tons each year are shipped from that point, and more would be shipped with more liberal facilities.

"I have no cavil with the Senator from Oklahoma, but, oh, that he might get out and with bigger, broader lens see the splendid coast of the great country of which he is an humble member."

HAROLD SERRELL GOES TO REWARD

Aged Lawyer Succumbs to Complications After a Long Illness.

A FORMER CITY FATHER

Prominent Locally and Highly Respected—Wife and Five Children Survive Him—Funeral Plans Not Completed.

Harold Serrell, aged 61 years, died this morning at his home, 36 Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, following a long illness of complications attended with severe heart trouble. His death, however, was sudden and rather unexpected for the reason that about a week ago he appeared to be improving and the family was able to dispense with the services of a trained nurse. While Mr. Serrell's illness was of long duration it was not until last November that he was compelled to give up business. At times since then his condition was critical, but he would rally and revive hopes that he might recover.

Mr. Serrell was the oldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel W. Serrell, who lived for many years on West Front street, occupying the property now owned by Mrs. George Giebelhouse. Mr. Serrell was born in Brooklyn. He came here with his parents in 1870 and after residing in this city for a number of years removed to Myrtle avenue, the borough. He was elected a member of the Common Council from the Fourth ward in 1896, serving but one term. He was a member of the finance, laws and ordinances, lights and trees committees, being chairman of the laws and ordinances committee.

Mr. Serrell was engaged in business in New York as a patent lawyer, having succeeded his father, the latter having taken the business upon the death of his father, who established it originally. Mr. Serrell had been successful, maintaining the established reputation of the business. Mr. Serrell, although he never held but the one public office, that of councilman, always evidenced great interest in civic affairs both in the city and borough.

He was also deeply interested in the work of the First Baptist church, of which he was a member for many years and a teacher in the Sunday-school. He was a member of the Plainfield Country Club and until ill-health prevented was an active golfer.

Mr. Serrell is survived by a wife, two daughters, Mrs. John Peeg Reynolds, Jr., and Mrs. Charles P. Lyman; three sons, Arthur, Edgar and Walter Serrell; one sister, Miss Ella Serrell, and three brothers, Lemue W. Serrell, of this city; Wallace Serrell, of Chicago, and George Serrell of California. The notice of funeral will be given later.

BLACKSMITH SEEKS ABSOLUTE DIVORCE

Peter Hoagland Begins Suit and a Cross Bill is Filed—He Makes $15 a Week.

Trenton, Feb. 26.—Peter Hoagland, a well-known blacksmith of Bound Brook, has filed a suit for divorce from his wife, Ella Hoagland, on statutory grounds. He has retained George Anderson, of Somerville and Plainfield, and E. R. Fisher, of Bound Brook, as his counsel, while former Judge Charles T. Cowenhoven, of New Brunswick, represents Mrs. Hoagland.

Mrs. Hoagland, through her counsel, filed a cross bill, requesting that maintenance be given her pending the suit and that counsel fees be allowed. A hearing on the cross will was heard in the Court of Chancery yesterday, when the court directed that Mr. Hoagland pay his wife $8 a week and give her $25 for counsel fees.

The hearing developed the fact that Hoagland was making $15 a week. The couple were married in New Brunswick in 1906, the wife being Miss Ella Hoagland, a cousin of Mr. Hoagland.

SAVED FROM DROWNING.

George Doran, of Brook avenue, saved a little colored hunchback boy from a watery grave yesterday afternoon, when, with the aid of his overcoat as a rope, he pulled a little fellow out of Green brook at Tier's pond, between Westervelt avenue and Elm street. Mr. Doran, who was on his way to lunch, saw the little fellow fall through the ice and disappear twice below the surface. Rushing to the spot he crawled out on the ice and threw his overcoat to the lad, who caught it as he was going down for the third time.

RAISE A BURIAL FUND FOR VICTIM

Those Who Employed Aged Hermit See That Body Does Not go to Potter's Field.

SCOUT MURDER THEORY

But When George Shea is Given "Third Degree" it is Noticed That His Eyelashes Are Singed and Inquiry Continues.

Through the efforts of Mrs. S. G. Van Hoesen, of Fanwood, Andrew Cullen, the aged hermit, who was burned to death in his shack on South avenue, Fanwood, will not be buried by the county, as was planned. She succeeded in raising a sufficient fund among the people for whom Cullen worked for funeral and burial expenses.

Arrangements were made with George Cole to hold the funeral services at his undertaking establishment at 2 o'clock this afternoon. One of the priests from St. Mary's R. C. church officiated and the burial was made in St. Mary's cemetery, Father Bogan having kindly consented to give a plot in the cemetery for that purpose.

There was a report in circulation yesterday to the effect that Cullen was murdered. The fact that County Detective Gallatian and his assistant, Joseph Lowden, had been asked to investigate the case, probably was responsible for the wild rumor. George Shea, a well-known character about Fanwood, who was known to have visited Cullen frequently, was taken to the county jail, yesterday afternoon, by the detectives for an examination.

Shea had previously been closely questioned by Recorder Charles Sheelen, of Fanwood, and the latter says he is satisfied that there is absolutely nothing in the murder theory. The questioning disclosed the fact that Shea had been with Cullen at his shack Sunday night, but he declares that he left there early to go home. He claims to have absolutely no knowledge concerning Cullen's death other than that he lost his life in the fire.

People who had known Cullen more or less for many years and had seen him about Fanwood say that he was a person of uncertain habits and owing to his advanced age, being about 70 years, was quite likely to be careless about his home. Mr. Sheelen said today that he had talked with persons who had passed Cullen's home about midnight Sunday and they saw sparks coming from the chimney, indicating that the hermit was burning a wood fire.

Mrs. Mary Shea, the wealthy mother of George Shea, this afternoon retained V. W. Nash, Jr., as his counsel. Mr. Nash said to a reporter that he would see his client late this afternoon.

Elizabeth, Feb. 26.—George Shea, of Fanwood, who was arrested here and brought to the county jail on suspicion of knowing something of the death of Andrew Cullen, the hermit who is believed to have lost his life when his shack burned down Monday morning, was put through the "third degree" by Detective Galatian today. It was said that an investigation had disclosed the fact that Shea's eyelashes were singed and that blood was found on his hands.

Another fact that seemed to be the basis for suspicion was that Cullen's head, arms and legs were missing when the body was discovered. The county authorities apparently believed these things of sufficient importance to make an investigation. Another man's name has been mentioned in connection with the case, but the authorities refuse to disclose his name at present.

BURGLAR SCARE.

The local police were summoned by a phone call at 5:30 o'clock this morning to the home of Alonzo Aldrich, of 900 Sherman avenue, where it was supposed burglars were ransacking the house. When Roundsman Saffron and a squad of men under his charge arrived at the Aldrich residence no evidence could be found to confirm the fears of the family. The telephone call was sent by a servant from the home of Mrs. Charles W. Leveridge, at 828 Sherman avenue.

YOUTH WANTS HIS WEDDING VOIDED

Clyde R. Blair, 19, Married May Snyder, 16, But She Won't Live With Him.

Clyde R. Blair, aged 19 years, living near New Market, who was married to Miss Mary Snyder, aged 16 years, daughter of Mrs. Edwin Snyder, of West Front street, Plainfield, on Washington's Birthday, appeared at police headquarters this morning and wanted to know if there was not some way by which he could compel his wife to live with him. Questioning developed the fact that Mrs. Blair upon learning how badly her mother felt over the marriage, had returned home and it is said that she now wants the marriage annulled.

The bridegroom was informed that the only way he could secure the desired result was through a civil action. Blair said that he and Miss Snyder were married on Washington's Birthday by Rev. George Vassar, pastor of the New Market Baptist church. The couple took advantage of the absence of the bride's mother, who was in Paterson, went to Dunellen, where they secured a marriage license from Charles Coriell. It is said that the young woman gave her age as 18 years, while she is said to be 16 years old. The couple was accompanied by Mrs. George Penrose, sister of Blair. The latter is said to have gone to the Snyder home, but was denied admission. He then went to police headquarters in the hope of getting some relief.

Mrs. Russell Dorr entertained the members of the Women's Current Event Circle of the First M. A sextet with Miss Nichol at the piano and Miss Lanson and Miss nderson, violin obligato, gave a number of selections. Miss Samuels, soprano soloist of the First M. E. church, and William G. Smith, soloist at Holy Cross church, also sang a number of songs in their usual pleasing way.

SENTENCE SUSPENDED.

Charlesy Hurley, a driver employed by Marshall's laundry, was arraigned before City Judge DeMeza, this morning, charged with allowing a horse to run at large. Yesterday afternoon he left the animal untied while he entered a house at Belvidere and South avenues with a parcel of laundry. The horse became frightened at a passing automobile and bolted down South avenue. Joseph Cashin, of East Sixth street, captured the runaway at Berckman street. After giving the driver a reprimand the judge suspended sentence.

The funeral of Thaddeus E. C. Smith will be held at the late home on Madison avenue, Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Edwin Shaw, of the Seventh Day Baptist church, will officiate. The burial will be in Hillside cemetery.

TRUELL HALL IS ON THE MARKET

Big all the Year 'Round Resort in Netherwood Section is Offered for Sale.

NEVER GREAT SUCCESS

Built by the Late Charles Hyde and Has Passed Under Many Managements—John R. Truell Now Wants to Dispose of It.

Truell Hall, once known as the Netherwood Hotel, perhaps one of the best known all-year-round hostelries in the State, is on the market for sale, according to well authenticated information, and it is believed that the property will change ownership in the very near future. Since the resort was built many years ago, it has had a varied career, at no time being considered a great success.

After remaining unoccupied for a number of years, the late Mrs. John R. Truell, who had been successful in conducting a chain of boarding-houses, including Truell Court and Truell Inn, gained possession of Netherwood Hotel, which she named Truell Hall. Under her management there was perhaps some degree of success. Upon her death Mr. Truell took charge, and the hotel was placed under the management of Mr. Truell's daughter, Mrs. Violet Truell Johnston, who continued in that capacity until last August.

Mrs. Johnston went away for her summer vacation and upon her return she learned that she had been superceded in the management and shortly afterward John R. Allen was made manager, having been engaged by Mr. Truell for that purpose. Recently Mrs. Johnston has been living at Truell Inn.

In speaking of the matter today, Mr. Allen, the manager, said that so far as he knew no one had any financial interest in the place except Mr. Truell. He admitted that the property was on the market for sale, and that a local real estate broker, in company with two promoters, visited the hotel yesterday and inspected the place. He did not know who the out of town men were, nor did he learn that any agreement had been reached for a change in ownership.

Mr. Allen stated that at present there are forty-five guests stopping at Truell Hall. When asked if he did not think that the hotel would pay if it had bar privileges, Mr. Allen stated that he thought it would. He considered that possibly the present owner might ask for such priveleges if he had any assurance that he might receive them.

The hotel was built by the late Charles Hyde and among its managers from time to time were Mr. Woodruff, the father of the actor; John R. Breslin, a famous hotel man, and the late Major Coleman. Mrs. Truell made a contract with the Hyde estate for its purchase.

SCHOOL BOARD FINDS A HARD NUT TO CRACK

The location of Piscataway Townships' proposed new school has developed into a question which has far outgrown its original boundaries. The matter has now become one occupying the attention of the State Legislature, the Attorney General, the Board of Proprietors of New Jersey, Prosecutor George S. Silzer, Township Attorney William Spencer, of Perth Amboy, and other public spirited individuals who never lived in or owned land in Piscataway. The proposition at first received much favor and the Raritan Township School Board attempted to bond the township to raise sufficient cash to build the new school and that is where the snag first cropped out.

It has developed that the land proposed for the erection of the new school was originally deeded for military purposes and the schoolhouse could not legally be erected on the site. A meeting was called for the discussion of the matter last night and there were about forty citizens on hand besides the State Board none favoring anything but an effort to gain legal possession of the ground. William Spencer, Martin Conway and Charles Martin were appointed as a committee to wait on the attorney general and learn his opinion on the matter as to whether or not the State Board of Proprietors has a legal right to make the School Board's title a legal one. Another meeting will be held Monday night when the committee will submit its report.

T. W. MORRISON PASSES AWAY

Veteran Newspaperman, Once Owner of Local Daily, Dies at Spring Lake.

AGED SIXTY-FIVE YEARS

Veteran of Civil War Founder of Plainfield Evening News—He is Survived by Two Sons and a Daughter.

Thomas W. Morrison, aged 65 years, widely known as a newspaper man, and for several years proprietor of the Evening News, Plainfield's second oldest daily newspaper, died yesterday in the Ann May Memorial Hospital, Spring Lake, where he had been under treatment since Thanksgiving Day. His death was due to pneumonia and heart trouble.

Mr. Morrison was a veteran of the Civil War and at one time was vice president of the New Jersey Editorial Association. At one time he was engaged in newspaper work in New Brunswick, being associated with the Times. Leaving there he went to Newark, where he exploited what was known as the Morrison sewing machine. This venture did not prove very successful and in 1884 he came to Plainfield and founded the Evening News, which was a successful publication for several years. The plant was eventually sold to the late Frank W. Runyon, who was then publishing the Courier, and the two newspapers were afterward published as the Courier-News, the name being retained after Mr. Runyon disposed of his plant to George H. Frost, the present owner.

During his residence in Plainfield Mr. Morrison always took an active interest in city affairs. He adopted a liberal policy for his newspaper and it met with considerable success. Mr. Morrison's wife died about twelve years ago and from that time until he went to the hospital he lived at the Marlborough Hotel, Asbury Park He was a familar figure on the boardwalk and at the piers.

There survives two sons, Henry Morrison and George W. Morrison, both of whom have been very successful in business and one daughter, Mrs. Clark Dillenbeck, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at Ivy Chapel, Philadelphia, where the burial will take place.

DEFUNCT SILK CO.'S PLANT IN OPERATION

None Can Tell When the 500 Employes Will Be Told Plant Will Close Down.

Officers of the defunct Mitchell-Watchung Silk Company, which has gone into bankruptcy, as told exclusively in this paper yesterday, are unable to say when the factory in Chatham street, where about 450 men and women are employed, will be shut down. They say future proceedings are entirely up to the receiver, Howard W. Runyon, of Jersey City, who has visited the local mill several times in the last few days and who today began the taking of an inventory.

J. F. Mac Donald, vice president of the firm, said today that although the local mill is liable to shut down for a time at least, he cannot state when operations will be stopped. He confirmed statements in the Daily Press story of yesterday to the effect that the creditors of the company are in favor of having operations continue. It is probable that a meeting will be held within the next few days.

Charles A. Reed, counsel for the concern; W. R. Codington, the treasurer, and Eugene M. Laing, the secretary, were unable to throw any further light on the situation when asked about the bankruptcy proceedings today.

As related yesterday, J. B. Sturm, a raw silk importer, of 445 Broome street, New York, an extensive creditor, made the application for the order in bankruptcy and a receiver was appointed by Judge Joseph Cross, of the United States District Court. The cause for the alleged failure of the firm is said to be due to the recent strikes of the employes which the concern has had to contend with. The liabilities are said to be $180,000 and the assets are placed at approximately the same amount.

HEGEMAN SCORES STOCK EXCHANGE

Tells Governor Sulzer it is "Greatest Body of all Gamblers in World."

IT IS UNSCRUPULOUS

In Urging That it Be Compelled to Incorporate, Hegeman Says He Has "No Sympathy With a Scoundrel or Thief."

W. J. R. Hegeman, of Sycamore avenue, North Plainfield, who has been supporting the movement to have a law passed in New York State, compelling the New York Stock Exchange to become an incorporated body, has written Governor Sulzer commending and urging the adoption of such a law. The Governor yesterday made public Mr. Hegeman's letter, in which the latter calls the Stock Exchange "the greatest body of all gamblers in the world." He says that the Exchange should be made to incorporate and urges the Governor to go a step further and urge a State prison sentence for a broker who accepts orders to sell securities not actually owned.

Mr. Hegeman was quoted by New York newspapers as being "one of a multitude of victims," but in an interview today he denied this statement. He did say, however, that a number of his friends had lost every dollar they had through the unscrupulous methods permitted by the Stock Exchange.

"The State should not allow the Exchange to make certain false representations and thus hoodwink the public and intimidate honest investors. I am bitterly opposed to this wholesale slaughter of stock in excess of value and to the constant misrepresentation made by these gamblers.

"Do you think it is right for these people to circulate a report that J. P. Morgan is dead, when he is alive and well? Such things are only done for one purpose, and that is to affect business, and people who are responsible for such reports should be sent to jail. I have no sympathy whatever for a scoundrel or thief. The Exchange business should be so safeguarded that there is no possibility for people to be hoodwinked by unfair methods.

"If the Exchange is compelled to incorporate then the President and other officers would be liable and instead of being obliged to subpoena every member of the Exchange in case of violations of the law, it would only be necessary to call the officers. I feel sure that right and justice will prevail in this matter.

"I have written Governor Sulzer urging him to secure the adoption of a law compelling the Exchange to incorporate so that it will be impossible for the members to sell something which does not belong to them. My securities are locked up in my safe deposit box, and personally I am not affected, but many of my friends have lost every dollar they had and I want to do all I can to prevent a repetition of such work."

George P. Mellick, of this city, is a member of a committee appointed by the Exchange to meet Governor Sulzer for the purpose of suggesting recommendations to be made in the management and conduct of the Exchange. Mr. Mellick's personal views have received considerable attention on the part of the Governor.

It is evident that someone has stolen the animal.

LENTEN SERVICES FOR CHILDREN OF PARISH

The children's Lenten services on Friday afternoons at 4 o'clock in the Church of the Heavenly Rest are proving interesting and helpful. Rev. C. H. Mallery, the rector, is reading a simple "Life of Christ" to the children, accompanied with comments and questions. The special Lenten meditations on "Christ's Temptations," being given by the rector on Thursday afternoons at 4 o'clock, are also very profitable to those who attend. The last of these talks will be given tomorrow and the following Thursday will be given up to a few thoughts on "The Christian Warfare."

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with phosphate powder:

68¼ Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67¾ Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

FATHER FEDERICI HAS PASSED AWAY

Former Asst. Priest of St. Mary's Succumbs to Great White Plague.

Rev. Leonardo Federici, who was one of the assistant priests at St. Mary's R. C. church, about seven years ago, and who has been the pastor of the Italian Church of the Holy Rosary, at Sixth and Monmouth streets, Jersey City, died yesterday of tuberculosis, with which he had been a sufferer for some time. He had been in charge of the Jersey City church since 1906. During his pastorate a new parochial school was erected by his efforts.

Father Federici was born in Castelgrande, Italy, in 1875. He studied for the priesthood in Muro College, Barsilicata. He came to this country in 1901 and his first charge was as an assistant at St. Mary's church, this city, and he was also an assistant at the Sacred Heart church in Bloomfield, under the Rev. J. M. Nardiello, for a time. He left here to go to Jersey City.

During his last hours, Father Federici called for Father Nardiello constantly and the latter hurried from the West Indies, where he was spending his vacation, to be with his former curate, but he arrived in Jersey City two hours after Father Federici's death. During his residence here the dead priest performed an excellent work and was beloved by the parishioners of St. Mary's church.

HE ORDERS ALL DOGS TO BE CHAINED UP

Dunellen Mayor Takes Precaution Against Outbreak of Mad Canines.

Mayor Richards, of Dunellen, has caused notices to be posted about town ordering all dog owners to keep their canines confined. The notices state that all dogs found on the street whether licensed or not will be shot. His action is due to the fact that Edward Pennock, president of the Board of Health, received a letter from the State Board of Health at Trenton confirming the telegram sent on Sunday stating that the dog shot last week by Thomas Wyckoff was a victim of rabies. There is some dissatisfaction shown, however, by a number of the residents because of the methods employed by the authorities.

It is feared by the authorities that a number of the dogs bitten by the rabid canine last week will develop the disease and that the lives of people will be endangered. Marshals Davenport and Goldson Smalley have been running down stray dogs this week and on Monday killed twelve of them. The marshals have said that their orders are to shoot any dogs, whether licensed or not, that they find on the streets, regardless of ownership.

A LITERARY EVENING ENJOYED AT Y. W. C. A.

A costume party marked the last of the literary evenings given by Mrs. Robert Lowrie for the members of the Y. W. C. A. last night in the association rooms. The members appeared dressed to represent the characters found in different books and enjoyed guessing games and a general social time.

Among the features of the evening were two tableaux taken from Charles Dickens books "David Copperfield" and "Nicholas Nichleby." Miss Faith Parmelee read the different passages from the books dealing with the tableaux. Refreshments were served and a generally social time which included vocal and instrumental music was enjoyed.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

So much interest has been shown in the literary meetings held at the association rooms during the past month that a Reading Club has been organized and will meet every Saturday night during the month of March with the exception of next Saturday night. The first meeting will be held Saturday night, March 8.

The new term of gymnasium classes will begin work next week. A new feature of the new term will be the folk dances every Wednesday night.

Miss Wetherell, the physical director, is trying to organize a women's class to meet some morning through the week. The class will be organized providing enough names are registered for it.

W. W. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, led the third of the Lenten lectures in the association rooms this afternoon. The topic of today's lecture was "Jesus and the Crisis of Life." He will also lead the Vesper service Sunday afternoon.

The Yellow and Blue teams in competition for the banquet to be given the winners to the losers of the membership contest organized last month are at the present time tied for first place with a total of 42 points apiece. Either one team or the other will have to hustle to win the banquet, because the contest closes the latter part of next week.

AUTO LAW AMENDMENT.

Trenton, Feb. 26.—The automobile laws of the State were further amended in the Senate yesterday when Mr. Smalley, of Somerset, introduced a bill requiring all numbers to be displayed on a sign not more than 48 inches instead of 36 inches from the ground on all machines. Another of Mr. Smalley's measures provides for the appintment of a recorder in any township or borough in any county other than first class, the Governor to make the appointment and the appointee to be an attorney at law.

Egotists

An Egotist is one who thinks that the only thing in the universe that cannot be improved upon is himself!

We discover traces of Egotism in some stores quite as often as we do in some individuals—those stores that are completely satisfied with themselves.

The proprietor of Rothberg's shop is not satisfied with his store and hopes he never will be. When you feel that you have reached the best that's possible, inertia will surely send you tumbling.

Rothberg's "Shop" is in the process, just as all successful institutions are.

It is today a better store than it was six months ago. In six months it will be a better store than it is today.

Defeat stands still, but Victory marches upward and onward—ever upward and onward.

PLAINFIELD ELKS MADE CLEAN SWEEP

Took all Three of the Contests Rolled Against New Yorkers Here Last Night.

Captain Blatz and his crew of antered pin smashers sprung a surprise both on the New York Elks and themselves last night, when they made a clean sweep in their three-game series bowled with the metropolitan quintet. The visitors came here with a shattered lineup, having only three regulars ready to do battle when the contest was called, and the substitutions made considerably weakened the strong aggregation. Charlie Starr, who has been making such sensational marks during the past week on various alleys, especially on their home lodge on Forty-second street, failed to get in any of his good work last night and time after time missed one and two pin spares that he would have ordinarily found easy.

Although the New Yorkers lay their poor showing partially to the patched up condition of their team, it is doubtless if they would have overwhelmed the locals even if they had had their regular lineup here last night, so sensational was the pinning of the home tribe. High scores and consistent bowling brought victory to the Queen Cityites three times in quick succession and incidentl the locals made somewhat of a record along the winning line, having annexed the last eleven out of their twelve starts in a quartet of series.

In the first game, when Plainfield came out with a count of 993 against their opponents' 919, Blatz, Kiely and Campbell all passed the double century mark, while Schuler and Miller accomplished the same stunt for the visitors. Stout came up a good deal stronger in the second game and was the only 200 man in that game. New York once more failed to get a man in the select clash in the final struggle but two more Plainfielders came to the top with 200 or over scores, Kiely getting his second, and Nash his first.

Starr failed to get below 150, 173 and 158 scores, and plainly showed that he was experiencing an off night. On his last appearance on the local alleys this phenom rolled exceptionally high scores, so his poor showing could not be attributed to the alleys.

The scores:

PLAINFIELD
Blatz	201	113	196
Kiely	224	162	233
Stout	146	207	167
Nash	175	185	211

GRADE CROSSING BILL NOW UP TO GOVERNOR

Trenton, Feb. 26 (Special).—Another of the Democrat's administration measures passed the Senate yesterday when the Grade Crossing bill, introduced by President Fielder, was brought up on third reading. The consideration of the bill developed quite a debate as to its merits and demerits, in which Senator Pierce, of Union county, was arrayed against the Senate's head.

Senator Pierce made an effort to have his Senate bill No. 31 substituted in its entirety for the Fielder bill. He urged that the provisions of his bill, especially the clause stipulating the plan of elimination, were far better than those of the Fielder bill which he claimed would work a hardship upon the railroad companies. Senator Fielder replied in defense of his measure, pointing out the fact that the entire question of which crossings and how many were to be eliminated is left to the Utilities Commission. Senator Pierce's offer was rejected by a vote of 12 to 9.

Senator Pierce followed up his previous efforts by offering an amendment to the Fielder bill providing that ten per cent. of the cost of the work be levied on trolley companies in such instances where trolleys cross at the point of elimination. Senators Edge and Read spoke with Senator Pierce in urging the adoption of the amendment. It however was also voted down 10 to 8.

When the Fielder bill was put up to the vote of the Senate it was passed unanimously, there being 21 votes for and none against the measure.

NEXT ATTORNEY GENERAL?

ROBERT LEE HENRY

Representative Robert Lee Henry, of Texas, it is believed, is being considered as the next Attorney General.

ANOTHER GREAT CROWD AT THE JUNIORS' FAIR

Another record breaking crowd was present on the third night of the Franklin and Somerset Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M. degree team fair being held in the Company K armory, on West Front street, last night. For some reason the members of William G. Holton Council Juniors, of Dunellen, who were supposed to attend in a body did not appear. The floor committee has had no trouble for there has been no attempt on the part of patrons to introduce any gay dances.

Tonight will be known as the Plainfield and Benevolent councils night and the two organizations will attend the fair in a body and assist the committee in charge to the best of their ability. Tomorrow night will be the Franklin Council degree team night and the members of the team will appear on the floor in full uniform.

David Clarin, of East Front street, has been spending a few days at Lake Hopatcong.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Young, have removed from 420 West Fifth street to 435 West Fifth street.

Harry Smith, of Grandview avenue, who has been confined to St. Peter's Hospital in New Brunswick with scarlet fever, is now able to be about.

PRETTY MANICURIST DESERTED BY FIANCE

MISS SALLIE LOUISE SMITH

Arrangements for the wedding of Miss Sallie Louise Smith, a pretty manicurist of the Taft Hotel, New Haven, Conn., came to an abrupt end when she received a telegram from her fiance, Frank R. Hall, said to be the wealthy son of one of the founders of the Herring-Hall-Marvin Safe Company, which read as follows:—

"Hope to be forgiven; am heart broken; leaving for Chicago."

Much interest is being taken in the case, as Mr. Hall's disappearance, as well as identity, bears an air of mystery.

MURDER-STAINED GOV'T.

It is astounding that Ambassador Wilson should recommend that the United States Government recognize the government "established" in Mexico by General Huerta, who has seized the Presidency and announces his purpose to rule with an iron hand. Surprising as was Wilson's message setting forth that our Government should accept in good faith the version of the Huertes faction, which made a most implausible explanation of the death of the deposed President, Madero, who would believe that our representative would go to the length of asking recognition of a government popularly accused of murder of the country's chief magistrate? Fortunately there is such a thing as the "recall" for ambassadors and it would not be shocking to learn in the course of a fortnight that Wilson is given the hint to return to Washington.

IN CLEVELAND'S MEMORY.

Honoring the memory of the only Democratic President in the last fifty years, representative men from all parts of the Union will gather at the hamlet of Caldwell, N. J., on March 16, the anniversary of the birth of the great Grover Cleveland, to dedicate to public use the little and unpretentious parsonage, which will formally be transferred to the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association on that occasion. Hard by, a memorial library will be erected and the celebration will be made notable by the presence of the only Democrat since his day who has been exalted to the high office of chief magistrate of this nation. Members of Mr. Cleveland's cabinets and other celebrities will take a prominent part in the demonstration. Herein is an instance where the good men do "live after them."

Don't procrastinate—if you are not a regular subscriber to the Daily Press order it in advance at this office or from your newsdealer for otherwise you are apt not to be able to obtain a copy of Saturday's issue in which will be enclosed the Daily Press magazine. This publication, a monthly feature of the Daily Press, is given absolutely free and it is far superior to those issued by metropolitan newspapers which raise the price of the paper containing their magazines.

Some one has said: "The secret of the success of the Commission Plan lies in the fact that the governmental power is taken out of obscurity and placed upon a pinnacle of light where all the citizens can watch it." And it has also been written: "Democracy does not consist in electing everybody, but in controlling everybody."

Congressman Tuttle has decided to recommend former Mayor Patrick J. Ryan for the postmastership at Elizabeth, but what concerns us is who will be chosen by our congressman for the postmastership here.

Report has it that the irrepressible Oscar Hammerstein has entered into a new contract being a party to a bond of matrimony. As confirmation is lacking, we may dismiss the story with the knowledge that Oscar is the best press agent in America.

The contributing editor for Saturday's issue will be a retired newspaper editor, who is now editor of a law magazine. What he will have to say will be of general interest.

It will be noticed that our Senator, Carlton B. Pierce, is cutting some figure at Trenton and that he is carving a name for himself in Union county history.

Mr. Wilson is peeved because some ninety millions of people are curious to know who will be in his cabinet. What impertinence on their part!

The Inaugural Committee has hired snow shovellers for March 4. Can it be that they expect a cold and stormy reception for Mr. Wilson?

HACQUER GOES WEST FOR BENEFIT OF HEALTH

Archibald Hacquer, until recently city editor of the Plainfield Daily Press and acknowledged to be one of the best newspapermen in this section of New Jersey, left at noon today on a Mallery steamship boat for Galveston, Texas. He intends to go to Phoenix, Arizona, where he expects to reside temporarily for the benefit of his health. His wife and child will remain here for the present at least.

For more than three years past, Hacquer has been in declining health and gave up his position on a Daily Press desk on his physician's advice and the job will be held open in the expectation that he will return fully restored in health.

SPECULATION STILL RIFE ABOUT CABINET PLACES

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, Feb. 26.—Speculation over the cabinet continues to be a kind of a shell game. "Now you see it and now you don't." There is wide diversity of opinion over the attorney generalship. One line of gossip insists that Chancellor Walker, of New Jersey, is sure to be the man, while from another source comes denial. Everybody seems to agree on W. J. Bryan for Secretary of State, and William G. McAdoo for the treasury, while Representative Burleson, of Texas, and Josephus Daniels are still on the slate for minor cabinet appointments. The fact is believed to be that President-elect Wilson still has a few places unfilled and may not make up his mind until the last moment.

TURKISH PEACE EFFORT FAILS.

His object was to persuade the European powers to support Turkey's stand for the retention of Adrianople. He was unable to prevail upon the Ambassadors of the powers to accept the Porte's reply to the European note as a basis for fresh negotiations for peace and contrary to rumors he had no authority to go beyond the proposals contained in Turkey's response.

The flames were confined to the hold.

NEW JERSEY MEN TO BOOST THEIR STATE

Recently Formed Chamber of Commerce Will Be a Big Press Agent.

Trenton, Feb. 26.—The State of New Jersey has a new press agent. It is a recently organized Chamber of Commerce, formed in Jersey City by a number of men who are leaders in business and public life, for the purpose of taking up and vigorously pushing every project that affects the commercial and industrial development of the State. In addition to its function of letting the world outside know all about the good things in the State, the chamber will also do the work of a State Board of Trade.

The first and most important project with which the founders of the scheme have concerned themselves is the establishment and construction of an "intra-coastal ship canal," to run across the State and connect the Delaware and Hudson Rivers. This idea has already received the approval of the War Department's engineers, who have made a survey. The legislature in 1910 recognized its importance by passing an act pledging the State to acquire a right of way across and appropriating money to the New Jersey Ship Canal Commission for the purpose of making a permanent survey and the erection of monuments.

The project is now regarded as being in a favorable stage, but unfortunately the money appropriated has been exhausted. The new Chamber of Commerce has therefore presented a petition to the State Legislature, through the Committee on Appropriations, to set aside $30,000 for the completion of the preliminary work, along lines laid out by the Federal engineers. A copy of this petition was received this morning by the committee.

The range of work of the chamber is indicated by the committees on commerce and interstate trade, harbors and navigation, transportation, agriculture, education, immigration, natural resources and development, public health, public utilities, roads and highways, fire prevention and insurance, legislation, local organization, press and publication and taxation. The chamber will also have five expert departments to supplement the work of the trustees and committees.

The officers of the chamber are: President, Frederick Frelinghuysen, of Newark; vice presidents, George A. Viemann, of New Brunswick; William C. Heppenheimer, of Hoboken; Ferdinand W. Roebling, of Trenton, and Thomas A. Edison, of Orange; treasurer, Robert D. Kent, of Passaic, and secretary, Ryerson Ritchie. The main office of the organization is located in Jersey City at 15 Exchange place and branches will be established in Camden and Trenton. The first annual election and meeting is to be held on March 20.

The intra-coastal ship canal plan is now before Congress for consideration, and the New Jersey organizations that are pushing it hope to move the Legislature to favorable action at once, so that the Federal end of the plan may not be interfered with.

PETER'S PENCE DONATION MARKS DIOCESE RECORD

Announcement was made yesterday in cable dispatches from Rome of the receipt there yesterday by Pope Pius of the annual Peter's Pence donation from the diocese of Newark.

The presentation was made by Monsignor Thomas F. Kennedy, rector of the American College at Rome, and the amount contributed was $13,600.

Bishop O'Connor said yesterday at his Episcopal residence at South Orange that the contribution this year by the local diocese was a record. It far exceeded, he said, any amount ever before contributed by local Catholics.

The prelate some months ago sent a special letter to each rector of the diocese asking them to urge their congregations to make a special offering toward the Peter's Pence. The collection in the various churches were generous as a result of the plea.

Bishop O'Connor explained that the money was sent to Monsignor Kennedy at Rome to transmit to the pontiff. This is the usual custom he said.

RUSHMORE SUPPORTS SCHOOL CONTRACTOR

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

May I ask the courtesy of your columns to correct the erroneous belief that I am responsible for the delay in the early completion of the heating and ventilation of the Somerset School, North Plainfield, for which I have the contract. I would state that my contract confines me to the use of material of certain manufacturers; material to be specially made up for this job and no substitute. A number of changes were found necessary when work was under construction. I was to be furnished details of special work as stipulated in my contract. It should be taken into consideration that work had to be installed so as not to interfere with the occupancy of building. The delay in my receiving the above mentioned material on time, necessary changes made, delay in receipt of details were the causes of delay; matters over which I had no control.

Respectfully,
DEN. J. GALBRAITH.

This is to certify that I made a thorough examination of this matter and find that Mr. Galbraith is not at fault.

FRESHMEN WON CLASS BASKETBALL TITLE

By Defeating the Sophomores Earn Right to N. P. H. S. Interclass Championship.

By defeating the Sophomores on Saengerbund Hall court yesterday with a score of 47 to 28, the Freshmen team practically clinched first place in the class league championship race. The game was very slow and uninteresting throughout and the Freshmen shot at will from all parts of the floor. Fouls were numerous but neither side took advantage of its many free throws. Captain Townley scored nine field goals and Kirch was a close second with eight to his credit. Edson Day was the mainstay for the Sophomores, getting seven field goals and one foul.

The score:

PLAINFIELD CONTRIBUTES LIBERALLY TO 1913 ORGANIZED BASEBALL RANKS

One of the largest contributions of ball players ever sent out from this or neighboring cities will go from here to the major and minor organizations this year for preliminary tryouts. Ball players who have been fostered and reared on the sandlots of Plainfield and some who have already had some league experience will sally forth trained to the minute during the coming month to get on the payroll of one team or another. Some will make good, others will be farmed out and others will probably return to "Home, Sweet Home," where they learned what they knew about the national game and will be sent back to gain what they let drop by the wayside in their youth. Plainfield has of late years always had one or two players leave for the bigger circuit but never before in the history of this city has such a large and promising delegation been drafted by the various league team pilots. Local enthusiasts expect a majority of the youngsters to make good and while none of them have established a berth on the organization they have signed to play with it is safe to say that some of them, at least, will stick.

Probably the most conspicuous figure in the eyes of Plainfield baseball enthusiasts will be Jack Martin, who has been signed by Frank Chance to cavort around the territory between second and third base. Martin has been with the Yankees before but was returned to the Rochester team of the International League for further seasoning. He comes back to the big league with a firmly fo[illegible] "rep" as a ball player and his [illegible]ends in this city expect wonders from him on the diamond this year. Jack starts for the South next week and says he is in the finest kind of condition and that his competitors for the shortstop berth will have to put up some sensational ball in order to uproot him. He has been getting some preliminary training in the Plainfield High School gym where he has been coaching the candidates for the school baseball team.

Next to Martin, comes Slocum and Frederickson. These two youngsters were favorites on local diamonds last year and if they twirl the article of ball they did at the beginning of last season they are both bound to be heard from before the season gets far under way. Both of the twirlers have been signed by Manager Charles L. Clancy, of the Winston-Salem team, last year's champions of the Carolina League, and will report for duty the first part of next month. Louis is a port sider while Freddy is a south paw and the phenomenal pitching and strikeout records they both established here last season has gained a warm place for them in the hearts of local fans who would like nothing better than to see them make good in Winston-Salem with the double two team. These two players have also been getting in some preliminary work at the High School and have even ventured out of doors occasionally for a workout.

Tommy Mullin, who says little but thinks much, will soon report to the Petersburg combination of the Virginia League and if anybody has a better license to compete for a place on a big league team he is yet to be discovered. Tommy has kept more or less in the background during his ball career but it is a well-known fact that he has the goods and a chance will probably prove this fact. Mullin says he never felt better and although he is taking on considerable weight lying idle he will be able to dispose of this with a little stiff practice work. This is Mullin's first appearance with a professional aggregation and when he leaves Plainfield he will go forth with the best wishes for future success from every baseball fan. The little shortstop has had a difficult time trying to display his ability on surrounding semi-professional teams the same as many other excellent players have had in recent years. Although Mullin has never been accorded a fair tryout by the local baseball team yet he is considered as minor league material. This brings out the same old story of too much out of town material coming to this city and crowding out local aspirants.

Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, who is claimed as a Plainfield player, although he lives in the wild and wooley part of the State, will go to the Baltimore "Orioles" for a tryout on the catching staff. "Liddy" is a former Plainfield High School athlete and was widely known throughout the State as an all around athlete and pitcher and catcher of no mean ability. While in High School Lidgate was recognized as a star and played a number of games with the Plainfield baseball team while yet a school boy.

Although nothing definite has been made public as to Jim Emery's big league aspirations, it is thought that he is at present considering an offer from one of the bush leagues which may be the stepping stone to his success.

Albie Carlstrom, the Elizabeth boy, who played short stop on the local aggregation [illegible] years ago, will report to the champion Boston Red Sox March 7. Albie was with the Bostons during the latter part of last season and his playing so attracted the officials of that club that he was sent a contract for this year.

While this list includes all of the contracts that have been made public it is known that a number of other ball players in this city are considering contracts to play professional baseball and more stars may crop out before the playing season opens.

P. C. C. NOTES

The sanction for the annual twenty-five mile handicap road race held here on May 30 has been received by the club officials. Some of the prospective contenders are out already trying to get into condition for the coming event.

April 1 (no joke) the P. C. C. will celebrate its fifth birthday. Wooden anniversary and lots of wood will be present.

The first club run will be held on April 1 as in previous years.

Ernest Mantz, the club champion, is riding better than ever. Erne will be right in the running when that quarter century race comes off.

George Simon, the phenomenal little long distance road man, expects to make them all hustle this trip to get into the first prize list.

Frank Kramer, the world's title holder, won his first start in Paris, February 9, in the 500 meter (546 yards) with a mark of 34 seconds.

Krebs and Coburn, of Newark won the St. Louis six day race.

Here's a new one. The club will hold a "bicycle clam bake" this season. All persons participating in the event to come and go on their wheels and they say it is some job to ride a wheel after you get "clammy."

HOPE VS. AJAX.

Hope chapel and Y. M. C. A. Ajax basketball players are putting on the finishing touches for their championship battle on Saengerbund Hall court next Saturday night. Swamped the Private School Basket Cagers on the Somerville Court.

Although the Leal School basketball quintet, of this city, was able to score a 39 to 17 victory over the Somerville High School players earlier in the season on the Y. M. C. A. court, when it went to Somerville yesterday afternoon the tables were turned by just about the same margin, the final count being 35 to 15.

The winners won their game on remarkable exhibitions of passing, frequently taking the ball the length of the floor on short snappy returns. Roberson, the colored guard, and Kershaw, were the greatest point getters for the victors, while Jimmy Nash did the best work for the private school boys.

The score:

"MAC" SAYS

Plainfield High School has consented to play the third game of the interscholastic league at Saengerbund Hall. Looks like sure money for N. P. H. S. but the local boys are famous for their uphill fighting and may give the boroughites a rub at that.

Two officials better fitted to officiate at a game of such importance as the last N. P. H. S.-P. H. S. battle, than Martin and Rimmer would be hard to find. Although these two men did the bulk of the work, little credit was forthcoming for the efficient way in which they accomplished their respective tasks.

There is a rumor prevalent that this same pair will arbitrate the coming Ajax-Hope chapel match. So much taken care of anyway.

Two important contests are on the bill for this week. Friday and Saturday will be championship nights at Saengerbund Hall.

Plainfield High School will lineup against the strong Yonkers High School combination at the Y. M. C. A. Friday night.

According to forthcoming dope the third interscholastic match will be staged March 8.

Manager Newton Spencer, of the North Plainfield High School aggregation, is the first local game booker to complete his list of dates.

Brrrr—Last night was a pretty cold one to talk baseball but some of the business disposed of was hot off the griddle.

Local fans can be assured of having a Central New Jersey League after the enthusiasm displayed on all sides last night. But we won't play ball until the middle of May. It may be warmer by then.

Some people are born knockers, others simply acquire the habit. Do you catch the drift? Take it home with you.

As we understand it, abit further on, after another day's inspection, Jim Thorpe will be a peach of a ball player, if he can only be taught to hit and field. The fellow who wrote that knew something. He said a mouthful. Is sounds like good dope to us anyway.

Look, for example, what a ball player somebody made who taught Wagner how to bat and field. He came pretty near making a real ball player out of Honus with these two minor side lines alone.

A noncombatant sends us in sure proof of Spring's advent—into the hearts—if not the hearts of men. "I was walking," he writes, "when I heard a truck driver slip this to his horse, pulling out of a rut' 'That a-boy, old top, that a-boy; keep on a-working; you've got 'em, you've got 'em.'"

Ban Johnson has issued an edict that hereafter in his circuit no ball players shall be allowed to write for newspapers. This is the first time we knew ball players were guilty of such an offense. We've seen a package of stuff ball players have signed, but nothing that a player ever wrote.

It's the old gag. "What are you bawling me out for?" one player asked another recently in regard to a certain article. "Did I bawl you out?" asked the other in astonishment. "I'll go buy a paper and see what I wrote."

The safest way to break up this practice would be to make a player write what he signed. After which a sudden lull would develop in one angle at least of the popular literature of the period.

It's an even break at that. There are a number of good writers among ball players as there are good ball players among writers, the score at the end of the third quarter standing 0 to 0 with the ball in the middle of the field.

CENTRAL NEW JERSEY BASEBALL LEAGUE FORMED WITH SIX TEAMS LAST NIGHT

Although the atmosphere savored nothing of baseball last night, the promoters of the proposed Central New Jersey Baseball League reorganization idea met in the Frost building and held a warm and profitable session without the aid of stimulants. Enthusiasm was evident on every side and the eight promoters present were anxious to get the league under way and have everything in readiness to stage the opening game sometime during the early part of May. Schedule complications, playing grounds, forfeitures and many other important preliminary steps that go with the formation of every organization of this nature were hashed over at last night's meeting and everyone of the prospective magnates went away from the scene of the preliminary indoor fight with a clear understanding regarding the Central New Jersey League proposition.

The main complications presented to be threshed out before the body was the circuit—whether it should include six teams or eight and what aggregations should be awarded franchises. A league was formed with Plainfield, New Brunswick, Westfield, Somerville, Bound Brook and Dunellen as members but the officials still have a number of fast semi-professional nines under close observation and if it is considered advisable the organization will be increased to take in eight aggregations. Among those on the waiting list are High Bridge and Rahway. Both of these towns are baseballically inclined, especially the former, which is just aching to get into the league. Those present last night seemed to favor admitting High Bridge but important business engagements prevented the representative of that place from being present, so nothing definite could be done without hearing him on the subject.

As told in the Daily Press during the early part of the week, several of the prospective leaguers have been scouting around for suitable playing grounds and although most of the teams have their eyes on some sort of a ball park, all of them have not as yet landed the fields. Edward Hoagland, the Bound Brook manager, said that it would be impossible for his team to get a lease from the Pillar of Fire people, on whose grounds they played last year, because that religious organization was planning to build on the site about the first of April. Hoagland said he had several parks in view, among them Riverside Park and the East Bound Brook field but he will not be able to learn anything definite until the next meeting, which will be held Tuesday evening, March 18. Westfield and New Brunswick also have some business to transact before they get their grounds but the representatives present at the meeting last night from these two towns appeared to look on this matter lightly.

At the next meeting officers will be elected and committees appointed to serve during the coming season. A salary limit was also discussed but no definite conclusions arrived at.

BASEBALL NOTES

Catcher Jim Archer and Pitcher Larry Cheney are the only holdouts among Johnny Evers' Chicago Cubs.

Manager George Stallings, of the Boston Braves, believes he has copped a star in Frank Metz, the Texas League heavy sticker.

President McAleer, of the Boston Red Sox, says that he has all his men in line with the exception of "Duffy" Lewis and Bill Carrigan.

The Philadelphia National League Club has signed Pitcher Joe Finneran, who worked for the Norfolk team, of the Virginia League, last season.

Mike Mowrey signed his contract with the Cardinals early this year. Last season Mike didn't report until after the team returned from Spring practice.

Eddie Plank has promised Connie Mack that he will sign and go South with the Athletics. Eddie says that he has decided to stick to the game "just one more year."

Johnny O'Neill, who at seventy-six is one of the most enthusiastic of fans, has booked to take the proposed trip around the world with the Giants and White Sox.

George Moriarty, third baseman and official song writer of the Detroit Tigers, has signed his 1913 contract. George asserts that he is all "tuned up" and ready for the first number.

The Utica New State League team will furnish two college baseball coaches this Spring. Pitcher Buck will coach the Colgate University nine and Jimmy Dowd will develop the Amherst battery material.

Heine Zimmerman, champion batsman of the National League and star third baseman of the Cubs, attributes his success as a slugger to the game of golf. He says that playing the old Scottish game gave him a keen eye and a free natural swing.

Mayor Rosslyn M. Cox, of Middletown, N. Y., will act as president of the recently organized New York and New Jersey League. Teams will be placed in Middletown, Long Island City, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh and Kingston, N. Y., and Paterson, N. J.

The National League gave Brooklyn permission to open the season in their new park the day before the scheduled opening in the big leagues, but at the same time handed the Dodgers an awful twist in the way of conflicting dates with the American Leaguers at the Polo grounds.

WITH THE BOXERS

Jack Dillon and Jimmy Clabby, the two clever middleweights, have received offers to go to Paris and box.

Spike Robson, the ex-champion bantam-weight of England, plans to make another visit to this country.

Charley Thomas, the Philadelphia boxer, who has been in Paris for several months, has returned after a successful campaign.

John Townsend, a London boxer, was fined $5.50 in that city the other day for boxing as an amateur, whereas he was a professional.

Frankie Conley, who is in Mexico, declares that he will become a professional bull fighter in the near future. This sounds like a "bull" is mixed up in it some where.

SEYMOUR SIGNS WITH BOSTON.

Boston, Feb. 26.—Cy Seymour, outfielder of the New York and Cincinnati National League teams for many years, has been signed by the local National League club. Announcement to this effect was made today. Only four members of the world's champion Red Sox have yet to come to terms with the management. William F. Carrigan, of Lewiston, Me., the first string catcher, having signed his contract at the club offices today. Carrigan is to receive a higher salary than that paid him last season.

CLABBY-ZANDERS BATTLE.

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 26.—Fight fans of Chicago and vicinity are manifesting a little interest in the ten-round bout scheduled for Hammon, Ind., tomorrow night between Jimmy Clabby, the clever Milwaukee fighter, and Ernie Zanders, who recently returned from a successful campaign in Australia. Both fighters are of the hard-hitting variety and it is expected their meeting will furnish the biggest pugilistic attraction that has been staged hereabouts in a long time.

THIRD AT SAENGERBUND.

Plainfield High School has agreed to play the third game of the interscholastic basketball league on the Saengerbund Hall court and the contest will probably be staged Saturday afternoon, March 8. At first it was thought that the local boys had decided to protest the flip of the coin which touched a spectators foot on its third and deciding return trip but they have shown their good sportsmanship by agreeing to play the contest on their rival's court.

BASKETBALL NEXT.

A series of basketball games are scheduled for the Color League teams at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night. The organization is reaching the end of the schedule and all members are striving hard to place their team in the van for the silver loving cup to be awarded to the highest point getter when the organization draws to a close.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES

At the regular meeting of the Plainfield Motorcycle Club at its rooms on Somerset street, the following were elected to serve in official capacities during the coming season: President, Dr. Roger L. Cooley; vice president, M. L. Allard; recording secretary, R. B. Mantz; financial secretary and treasurer, Jack Horner; road captain, G. B. Johnson; first lieutenant, B. R. Howell; second lieutenant, Julius Dickhundt.

The first anniversary dinner of the club will be held at the home of Jack Horner on Linden avenue, March 3. The club will be one year old at that time.

Ex-President Ralph Auerbach has promised to attend.

Raymond Mantz has a new Minneapolis twin.

L. Dutcher, of New Market, had a fine ride on his new Indian twin last Sunday. He was paced by that old timer from the same town, Fred Flemming.

Ben Howell has ordered a new Indian. Now for speed.

Somebody help Gus Johnson to make up his mind as to what machine to buy. Help! Help!

J. Dickhundt—"I say Les have you heard about the new Mexico tire?"

L. Thompson—"No; what is it and why do they call it Mexico?"

J. Dickhundt—"Because it makes so many revolutions without becoming tired out."

You should have heard the motorcycle bugs buzz at the last meeting. It's a great game.

J. J. Moore expects to use his motorcycle this year between here and Jersey City, where he is employed by the U. S. Express Company.

Distant thunder—M. L. Allard's motorcycle is on the way home.

C. Bissell has ordered an Indian two speed with all attachments.

A. Herrlich dropped in yesterday and unfolded a tale of woe about having to get a new machine with tandem attachment so the family can go riding too. No more solitary rides for the "New Market wanderer."

L. Hampson has a twin motorcycle on the brain. Some load for little Les!

What a bunch will be on the runs this year.

Nick Thul has a contest on with Rip Van Winkle. All the boys are betting on Nick.

The P. S. C. has ordered three new 1913 Reading-Standard chain drives for use in their department.

Don't forget the feed March 1.

HUNTING AND FISHING

Only a few gunning parties can be found along Barnegat Bay these days. It needs milder weather to bring the geese into the stools.

The deep sea fishing along the northern coast of Jersey is at a standstill because of the uncertainty of the season. A captain might round Sandy Hook on an even keel going out, but an hour later he will have a hard job to get back. The fishermen know this and seem willing to wait for the first run of blackfish in April.

The weather is playing hide-and-seek with the flounder. One day the sun warms the water and the flounder comes out of the mud and stirs about and the next day the biting wind chills the water and back goes Mr. Flounder into the mud. One week of even temperature at about 40 and there would be some fine flounder fishing within a few miles of this big town.

Although the gunners pay for the maintenance of the State game farm with their dollar license fee, it is up to the Legislature to say how that money shall be spent. An instance was seen yesterday when a bill was passed allowing the Fish and Game Commission to increase the expenditures so as to meet the growing conditions. It works well and has the approval of the commissioners. It might be interesting to know that the superintendent of the farm receives $900 per annum and house rent free, and he earns every cent of it. He was formerly the game keeper at Allamuchy, and that he is thoroughly competent, can readily be noticed by one who saw the land when he took charge seven months ago and then compares it with its condition today. Second to none is the opinion of many who have seen the transformation.

Times do change. For the last seven years an attempt has been made to have the fresh water fishing season open on June 15 and it always failed to pass the Senate. Yesterday a bill was taken up by that body making the open season from June 15 to November 30, and it passed without a dissenting vote. As the bill passed the Assembly, where it originated, all that is necessary to make it a law is the signature of the Governor, and it will in all probability receive that before the week is over. The game fish included in this act are black bass, white bass, crappie, calico bass, pike, perch and pickerel; the law relating to January fishing for pickerel also being repealed by this act. It has always been the contention of sportsmen that bass spawn during the month of May and into June and that if there was to be any future fishing along these lines the season would have to be set back until the middle of June. This arguments has always been opposed by the hotel proprietors at the fishing lakes, but this year no opposition was raised by them and the bill has clear sailing. The same arguments have always been set forth on the law that permitted the catching of pickerel in January. One side claimed that such winter fishing disturbed the fish and it has also been hinted that other fish than pickerel were taken, but as no one opposed that section of it, the bill passed along with the rest.

LOCAL BOYS INTERESTED.

Among the exhibits at the Madison Square Garden Sportsman's show which opens today is one from the Jersey Boys' Camp at Lake Wawayanda. Many boys from this city spent their vacations at this popular Northern New Jersey resort and some of their work will probably be included in the exhibit.

ARRANGE FOR MEMORIAL ON CLEVELAND BIRTHDAY

Services on Grover Cleveland's birthday, March 18, and also the Sunday night preceding, are being arranged in Caldwell to mark the taking over of the old manse of the First Presbyterian church, that borough, in which the President was born, and transforming it into a memorial in his honor.

It was announced by William H. Van Wart, secretary of the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association, that $18,000 had been raised with which to purchase the historic property. Before the anniversary of the President's birth it is expected that the memorial association will have taken title to the property.

President-elect Wilson is expected to speak at the Sunday service. Dr. John H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, who presided at a memorial service a year ago, when the plan to purchase the birthplace was launched, has been invited to conduct the exercises.

Details of the memorial program will be considered at a meeting of the association to be held within a few days, it is stated. The following have also been asked to attend the service:

Former Governor David Rowland Francis, of Missouri, President Cleveland's Secretary of Interior; Hilary Abner Herbert, his Secretary of Navy, and Charles S. Fairchild, his Secretary of Treasury.

Fanny Crosby, the hymn writer, who will be ninety-three years old, March 24, and who was an intimate friend of Mr. Cleveland in his youth, has been requested to compose a hymn for the ocasion. She is also expected to be present if her health permits.

The manse in which Cleveland was born is occupied by Rev. Nelson B. Chester, pastor of the church in which President Cleveland's father was minister. The plot which the memorial association proposes to purchase has 300 feet frontage on Bloomfield avenue, and is 200 feet deep. Trustees of the church are searching for another dwelling suitable for use as a manse.

The Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association has filed articles of incorporation in Trenton.

FOSSIL MOUNTED, AGED ABOUT 1,500,000 YEARS

Princeton, Feb. 26.—A mounted skeleton of an animal, considered about 1,500,000 years old, the only one of its kind known in the world, has just been placed in the museum of Guyot Hall at Princeton University. The bones were collected more than ten years ago by O. A. Peterson, now of the Carnegie Museum, and the late J. B. Hatcher, in the volcanic ash deposits of Patagonia and southern Argentina.

The scientific name of the fossil is Nesodon Imbricatus, literally "folded island tooth," from an island-like lobe on the inner side of the upper molar teeth. It was first described by Professor Richard Owen in 1847 from specimens taken to England by Captain Sullivan, but until Mr. Hatcher made his collection for Princeton little was known of the animal as a whole.

Although almost 100 specimens of Nesodon were brought back by Mr. Hatcher and Mr. Peterson, none was complete enough to show the whole skeleton, and it has been necessary to combine eight or ten, matching parts as carefully as possible to get them of the proper proportionate size.

The animal, whose skeleton has now been mounted, was a plant feeding form belonging to the extinct group of the Toxodontia, bow-toothed, so called, because the molar teeth are slightly arched. There are no living animals to which it is even remotely related, or with which it can be compared. It is not known whether it had a covering of hair or not.

The heavy head, short legs and deep chest are apparent in the skeleton. Why the group to which it belonged became extinct is not known, but it is regarded as probable that so far as the individuals from the Santa Cruz formation are concerned, many of them were exterminated by showers of volcanic ash that smothered the creatures.

The period in which the animal lived can hardly be approximated. It has been placed in the Miocene period of the geological time-scale, which has been estimated as 1,500,000 years ago, more or less.

Princeton has many exclusive fossil vertebrate specimens, but these have been long immured in storerooms. They are now being removed from storage as rapidly as possible and placed in the museum.

By next commencement it is expected that another rare fossil will be mounted. This is a complete skeleton of a huge extinct pig-like animal from South Dakota called Elotherium. Only one other skeleton of this animal is known, this being in the Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh.

Frank Bien, of Newark, has returned home after a week's visit with Mr. and Mrs. Jens Claassen, of Liberty street.

J. Archibald Davie, of Manning avenue, returned home yesterday from Muhlenberg Hospital, where he underwent a slight operation a week ago.

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

NUTRITIOUS LENTIL DISHES.

LENTILS may be served in many palatable forms. Dried or canned lentils are suitable for the following dishes; if dried lentils are used they should be soaked in clear, cold water overnight and in the morning drained and rinsed:

Boiled Lentils.—After the lentils have been soaked all night and then washed place them in a saucepan and cover with soft water. Bring them quickly to the boiling point and let them cook gently for about an hour. Then drain and cover with fresh water. Cook them this time until tender. Drain them and toss them in butter or a little cream, adding a seasoning of salt, pepper and a tiny onion. Serve them very hot and garnished with parsley. The onion may be fried in butter, the butter thickened to a very thin paste with flour and given a tang with a few drops of vinegar and thus forming a delicate sauce over the lentils. A little stock may be added if one desires a gravy.

Carefully Baked.

Lentil Loaf.—Take three cupfuls of stewed lentils to two cupfuls of cold boiled potatoes and a cupful of breadcrumbs. Add to these a few celery leaves and run the whole through a vegetable or meat chopper. Season with salt, pepper and butter, shape into a loaf and bake in a buttered pan until it is well browned. Serve on a handsome platter on a bed of heart of lettuce leaves and with tomato sauce.

Succulent Viands.

Lentil Salad.—Take cold boiled lentils, drain them carefully and place on the ice to become very cold. Add one-eighth of their weight in tiny cooked onions and an equal amount of celery. Heap the salad in a mound on a platter, garnish with slices of beets cut in fancy shapes and cover with a boiled salad dressing.

Creamed Lentils.—Take a pint of lentils, boil, drain and add a cupful of cream sauce. To make the sauce take a tablespoonful of butter and put it into a saucepan. Melt it and add a teaspoonful of onion juice and a tablespoonful of flour. Stir these together and add very slowly a cup of cold milk, stirring the sauce until it is creamy and smooth. Then mix in a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of pepper.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Women and The License Zone.

Local agitation regarding the restriction or extension of the "license zone" is apt to arouse even in women who under ordinary circumstances "do not care for the vote" a desire for the right to express their wills on the keeping their home city safe and decent. If this were a matter to be settled directly by ballot and if the women of Plainfield were voters there would be no question as to what the outcome would be.

Hereupon perhaps someone says: "But what about those California women? They didn't stand by the anti-liquor movement in their State."

No. But this was because the measure while ostensibly aimed against the liquor traffic was so framed as to actually complicate, if not wholly defeat, the very cause that it pretended to help. The California women were keen enough to realize this instead of being carried away by the pseudo reform; which perhaps would indicate that women as citizens can be trusted not to be so emotional over moral issues as to be blind and unable to distinguish the real from the false.

Someone else is very likely to say to this:

"Oh yes, those California women! They are keen and well informed. It certainly wouldn't be easy to hoodwink them. But think of what votes for women must mean in those western States. Why there must be a lot of Indian women out there who have votes. Think of it!"

Yes. So they have. Here is a case in point.

Out in Idaho there is an Indian tribe known as the Nez Perces. Even the worst of Indian haters has to admit that these particular Indians are a fine race, not merely brave and hardy according to their own traditions but law-abiding and decent to a degree that puts the white man to shame when one recalls how he has broken his treaties with them and robbed them of their birthright. Worst of all the Government that was supposed to protect them had little by little actually allowed them to become the victims of the white man's whiskey trade. This is the way one newspaper tells the story:

"All this is part of the reason why the Indian women of Nez Perces county banded themselves together to defeat the liquor sellers, and why, when the registrars tried to bluff them out of registering, as they often did, the women were ready. When they came to the polls they were well equipped, having trained themselves by sample balloting, until, as one of them said, 'I wasn't a bit troubled when I went up to vote. I think I could have done it in my sleep.'

"Their long hyphenated polysyllabic names were a constant excuse to the rigestrars to pretend not to be able to find their registration. When white friends offered help in interpreting, such aid was refused by the official 'wets.' Still an Indian is not patient to no purpose, and the women would not go away until their names were found. Occasionally, one—a little less sure of herself—would get confused as to where to put her marks on the ballot, and the officials permitted no assistance.

"'Put the mark on the left,' called out Im-na-kin-ml, an' old Nez Perces woman, in her own language, which no official understood.

"By night the 'wet' majority had been defeated by more than 200 votes, and the 'drys' wore a broad and cheerful smile. The papers reported that the election had been carried by Indians and women."

No wonder that Englishman who returned to his native land from the States the other day reported that so far as he could see suffrage where it had been granted over here "had done no harm." That is only the negative British way of saying that wherever tried it has done actual good and once tested has never been revoked. This remains the fact whether the vote is in the hands of the typical western American woman or the squaw, for after all they are "sisters under the skin."

1,200 New Spring Negligee Shirts for Men 79c
(FIRST FLOOR—MARKET STREET).

There is going to be some "lively selling" in the men's shirt department Thursday. Those who will take advantage of this special event will get as fine shirts as ever sold anywhere for 79c each. The shirts were made by one of the best houses in the land—right here in Newark. Every one was cut by the patterns that are used in making our higher priced shirts. This means that the bodies are full and properly shaped, the sleeves are in the correct length and allow ample "elbow room" and the neck bands are properly sized. If you had a factory's entire line of materials at your disposal, you could not choose better patterns and colors. The new designs in the striped effects will certainly please you, and the fine quality of the percales will surprise you. These negligee shirts have coat fronts and laundered cuffs attached. All sizes from 14 to 17. Get here early in the morning and lay in a spring and summer supply.

Women Will Fall in Love with the New Serge Dresses at 8.50
(THIRD FLOOR—MARKET STREET).

Some of the best values in women's serge frocks we have ever announced are included in this collection at $8.50. They are "too good to keep," so you shoudn't delay coming fo rone. The dresses are made of the best double-warp serge, French serge and men's-wear serge, and they are well made, too—nothing skimpy about these frocks in any way. The styles are as pleasing as they can be. There are dresses with fancy braid and satin vests and the new crush girdles. Others have the new Bulgarian batiste collar, while some tailored frocks are fashioned with satin and button trimmings. May be had in all the new spring shades—as well as navy blue and black. Just as a special introductory feature, we have marked them at only $8.50

$23 Ostermoor Mattress 12.95
(FIFTH FLOOR—HALSEY STREET).

As a matter of fact, the mattress we offer for $12.95 is five pounds heavier than the regular $23.00 Ostermoor, which adds a great deal to its goodness. Naturally, you think they are defective in some particular. The Ostermoor people say that the tickings are mis-matched, but if you weren't told so you'd probably never discover it. And, after all, what difference does a slight mis-mating of ticking amount to? The mattressse are finished with care, are an inch thicker than the regular Ostermoors and have round corners. Choice of twelve patterns of the best tickings to select from. Regular $23.00 Ostermoor mattresses $12.95
(Fifty cents extra in two parts).

FURNITURE SELLING

A good furniture store must be more than a place where you can select chairs and tables, look at a tag and pay the price. It is the selection that counts. Whenever we make a sale we also hope to make a friend. The best advertising we have is the large number of homes we have so satisfactorily furnished and especially so during these weeks of such splendid values.

THIS IS THE TIME OF BIG MONEY SAVING IN ALL OUR LINES.

BIBLE CLASS BUSINESS.

The McWilliam's Bible Class of Hope chapel adopted the by-laws and constitution presented by the committee composed of Robert Sowden, James Penny and Clarence Mundy at the regular February business meeting of the class held in the chapel last night. The nomination of officers was made for the annual election which will be held at the next meeting. A committee composed of James Penny and Clarence Mundy was authorized to have the bowling alleys repaired and put in first class shape for the use of the class members. After other routine business was transacted the meeting was adjourned.

Needs Little Care

TWO trips a day to the cellar is all the trouble a SQUARE POT FURNACE will give you—unless the weather is pretty cold—in that case you might have to go three times. These furnaces run with the steadiness of a clock and regulate almost to a degree, so that one firing develops sufficient heat for several hours comfort. Besides (which is well worth considering) they give all the available heat in the coal.

It's the square firepot that does it. This is a great improvement over the traditional round form of pot and actually increases furnace efficiency without adding to up-keep cost. If you want a furnace economical of coal and attention, investigate the SQUARE POT FURNACE

An Advantageous System of Exchange.

We are seeking to avoid every phase of dissatisfaction in the handling of music rolls for player pianos, and we think we have devised a scheme by which users of music rolls will be able to have all the variety of music they desire at minimum cost.

We now have a library of more than 3,000 new up-to-date Universal Music Rolls, including both the 88 and 65-note size.

We are going to sell you rolls worth $1.75 for only $1.

HURT BY THE COLD—THINK OF IT! AND IT BRINGS THE PRICES DOWN.

A Carload of Governor Refrigerators, porcelain lined inside, white enameled outside—beautiful boxes, truly; intended for the finest homes; but we find that thru some carelessness on the part of the railroad company they were left in the open during the severe weather, which caused the outside enamel to check.

While this checking does not in the least affect the usefulness of the refrigerators it does somewhat mar the appearance, and if you are willing to waive the mere matter of looks you can buy one of these splendid refrigerators for very much less than they are worth.

Two Foreign Explorers Meet In U. S. and Lecture With Peary

THREE leading polar explorers on the same platform at the same time was the unusual entertainment carried out by the Geographical Society of Philadelphia recently.

The noted guests of the evening were Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary, discoverer of the north pole; Captain Roald Amundsen, discoverer of the south pole, and Sir Ernest H. Shackleton, the intrepid venturer who blazed the way for Captain Amundsen's exploit. Captain Amundsen and Sir Ernest Shackleton are recent arrivals in this country, having come largely in accordance with plans for the notable meeting with each other and Rear Admiral Peary.

Captain Amundsen has a very interesting lecture which he is delivering on his tour of the country, entitled "How I Discovered the South Pole." On the frequent occasions when Sir Ernest is called upon to speak he also has an entertaining version of antarctic adventurings. Sir Ernest came within ninety-seven miles of the south pole, but was forced to give up the attempt owing to lack of food. Captain Amundsen profited by the information as to route and geographical conditions given him by the unsuccessful explorer. Thus Sir Ernest is generally conceded to be largely responsible for the success of the captain.

Captain Amundsen has the highest kind of praise for Rear Admiral Peary, giving the latter unqualified credit for reaching the north pole. He has an altogether different comment to make upon Dr. Frederick A. Cook's claim for the same honor.

"Formerly I honored and respected Dr. Cook," said Captain Amundsen. "When I heard he had announced his discovery I believed him. But when I got to Norway and looked at his proofs I lost all the confidence I had in him. I no longer know Dr. Cook."

Speaking of his proposed trip to the arctic, Captain Amundsen said he hoped to leave San Francisco in August, 1914, and get back to civilization in 1920. He plans to drift with the ice north of this continent and be the first man to go from the Pacific to the Atlantic by the northern channel.

Captain Amundsen, who laughed at the idea of wearing an overcoat in a climate so balmy as New York's, had a very bad cold when interviewed. He's wearing his overcoat now. He will remain in the United States delivering lectures and accepting gold medals until the first of June. Then he'll go back to Norway and return to New York in March, 1914.

THE ONE MAN WHOM THE ENTIRE WORLD IS WATCHING.

PRESIDENT HUERTA OF MEXICO

The eyes of the world are now turned upon General Huerta, who has become Provisional President of Mexico, following the overthrowing of Francisco I. Madero. His iron rule policy, which it is believed by many caused the tragic death of the deposed President and Vice President, is a source for much comment. Just what his policy is still remains a puzzle, but unless he succeeds very soon in crushing the new revolts, as well as accounting for the death of Francisco I. Madero and Pino Suarez, intervention by the United States is most likely.

THIS GREAT STORE OPENS SATURDAY

RIGHT at the beginning we mean to tell you frankly that we are out to win and hold your patronage.

And we know the only way we can do so is to give absolute satisfaction with every purchase made here.

Nothing but the most dependable merchandise will be sold. We want you to feel that you can rely upon our goods. We want you to have confidence in the Goerke-Kirch Company, so that when an article is required, you will come here FIRST.

While we're determined to sell as low, if not lower, than stores of other cities, in no instance will merchandise of questionable character be sold simply to create the idea that the article is a bargain. AN ARTICLE MUST GIVE entire satisfaction to be a bargain.

Furthermore, our liberal policy of refunding money in case you are not pleased in every way with your purchase is the best protection in buying.

This store will open soon, and we know that when you once step inside of it, you will be as proud and as enthusiastic over it as we are. For, after all, this will be YOUR store.

JAMES FAIRMAN FIELDER

Who Becomes Acting Governor of New Jersey on Saturday, March 1, and Whose Candidacy For the Democratic Nomination For Governor Is Expected to Follow the Inauguration.

THE inauguration of James Fairman Fielder as acting governor of New Jersey will take place next Saturday, March 1, when Governor Wilson's resignation takes effect.

While the inauguration in itself will be an important event to the state, it will have added importance from the standpoint of the future of the state beyond the Fielder short term, for it is confidently expected that his inaugural will either be accompanied by the announcement of his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for governor or that it will be closely followed by that announcement.

Arrangements For Inaugural.

Extensive arrangements are now being made for the inaugural ceremonies, which will be held in the assembly chamber at a joint session of both branches of the legislature.

Governor Wilson will deliver a farewell address upon his retirement as governor and will then deliver the great seal of the state to his successor.

Chief Justice Gummere will administer the oath of office to Senator Fielder which will make him governor, and the new executive will then deliver his inaugural.

Senator Johnson of Bergen county, who is to succeed Senator Fielder as president of the senate, will be the presiding officer at the inaugural, assisted by Speaker Leon Taylor of Monmouth.

The assembly chambers and gallery will be open to the public. The members of the senate and house will occupy seats in the auditorium. At the conclusion of the ceremonies they will march into the executive offices, where the new governor will hold a reception.

Plans have been made in nearly every county in the state for delegations to go to Trenton to take part in the inauguration demonstration, and it is expected that it will be one of the most notable events in the history of gubernatorial inaugurals at the Trenton capital.

Colonel Thomas A. Birch of Burlington, who is personal aid to Governor Wilson, has been selected to serve in the same capacity for Senator Fielder when he becomes acting governor. Other members chosen for Mr. Fielder's staff are Colonel William Libbey of Princeton, Colonel Ralph W. R. Donges of Camden, George F. Perkins, Jr., formerly captain of the signal corps, Jersey City, and Colonel William E. Schauffler of Lakewood. They will accompany him to Washington when he rides at the head of the New Jersey militia in the inauguration parade of President Elect Wilson.

PRIMARY NOMINATION METHODS MEASURE

Trenton, Feb. 26 (Special.)—Important changes in the method of making political nominations are contained in a bill introduced in the Senate last night by Senator Leavitt, of Mercer county. It was put in by request. It provides that any person may have his name printed on the official ballot of his party by applying to the proper committee of his party.

For State nominations, the application shall be filed with the State Committee, for Congressional nominations, to the Congressional Committee; for county nominations, to the County Committee, and for municipal nominations, to the local committee.

Wherever application is made to more than one committee in a Congressional District for Congressional nominations, the application must be certified by all to entitle the applicant to have his name put on the ballot. This applies to districts which do not have regular Congressional Committees and the various County Committees act

BICYCLE THIEVES.

Bicycle thieves have again become active in this city. John Herman, of East Fifth street, had a valuable mount stolen yesterday from in front of a Park avenue hotel and Leonard F. Bennett, of East Sixth street, reports to the police that his wheel, which he left standing in front of the Woodhull & Martin Company store, in East Front street, yesterday afternoon, mysteriously disappeared. Chief Kiely has a description of both vehicles and an effort will be made to have the stolen property returned to the owners and the miscreants punished.

HOUSE APPROVES WOMEN'S VOTES

Assembly Concurs in Equal Suffrage Resolution Passed by Senate.

MRS. COLBY DELIGHTED

Former Plainfielder, the Wife of Everett Colby, Says Campaign for Approval by Next Legislature Will Begin Now.

Trenton, Feb. 27.—With only five votes registered against it, the Senate Concurrent resolution providing for an amendment to the State Constitution giving women the ballot, was passed by the Assembly yesterday afternoon. Those who voted against it were:

Griffin, Leonard and McLoughlin, of Union county; John A. Matthews, of Essex, and R. A. Roe, of Passaic, all Democrats.

There was a long debate on the resolution which was listened to by many suffragists in the Assembly galleries, and when the vote was announced, the ladies who would like to vote loudly applauded.

After the Assembly had adjourned, Mrs. Everett Colby, wife of the former State Senator, chairman of the legislative committee of the organized suffragists, declared that the advocates of equal suffrage were highly delighted with their victory. In few States have the suffragists got a law through the Legislature in two years' campaigning. The New Jersey suffragists only began their fight in the Legislature last winter. Mrs. Colby and the other leaders of the movement worked hard all yesterday to get votes in favor of their resolution.

"We are greatly pleased at the attitude of the Legislators this year," said Mrs. Colby. "We have had eminently fair treatment. Everything has been perfectly straight on our measure and no attempts whatever were made to play political tricks with us. We are delighted."

Mrs. Colby stated that the fight will be continued until the right to vote is accorded the women of the State. This resolution must now be referred to the next Legislature, be passed there and then be adopted by the people before the amendment becomes a part of the constitution. Mrs. Colby and her lieutenants stated that the campaign for getting the resolution through the next Legislature will be begun at once and maintained throughout the year. Plans are already being made to get a woman suffrage article in the proposed new State constitution provided the constitutional convention bill becomes a law.

Assemblyman John A. Matthews, of Essex, was the only member to speak against the resolution.

Assemblyman Egan, of Hudson, who handled the resolution, declared the only question involved was whether the people of the State should be permitted to express their opinion on the question, and the members of the Legislature should not stand as a bar to that expression. He urged every member to vote for the resolution.

Assemblyman Hennessy, of Bergen; Richards, of Atlantic; McDermott and Fisher, of Essex; Bredenbek, of Hudson, and Ackley, of Cumberland, all spoke in favor of the resolution.

A. H. RICHARD PRESIDENT OF PLAINFIELD'S Y. M. H. A.

These officers were elected at the semi-annual meeting of the Young Men's Hebrew Association last night: President, Arthur H. Richard; vice president, Samuel R. Meyers; secretary, Louis Rothberg; treasurer, Harry Robinson, and sergeant-at-arms, Emanuel Block. Following the election of officers a smoker with refreshments was enjoyed by the members. The committee in charge of the smoker were Arthur H. Richard and Henry Trottner.

During the meeting it was decided that a theatre party be organized and that the members attend a performance of "Joseph and His Brethren," at the Century theatre, New York city.

ARRANGE CHURCH SOCIAL.

The Laidies' Aid Society of the Temple Baptist church has decided to hold a social and entertainment at the church on Thursday night, March 6, for the members and friends of the church. A feature was musical selections by Mrs. William Crow. Refreshments were served.

Miss Helen Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson, of Summit avenue, is detained at home by illness.

DETECTIVE GETS 2 BLACK-HANDERS

Prisoners Held for Grand Jury Demanded $2,000 of a Westfield Grocer.

THREATENED HIS LIFE

The Italians Caught by a Ruse—Put Through the Third Degree—Both Men Carried Revolvers When Captured.

Westfield, Feb. 27 (Special).—"Place $2,000 in a newspaper tomorrow and drop it at the corner of New York avenue and First street. If you do not we killa you and your familee and blow up your business."

Such was the warning contained in a missive signed "Black Hand" and decorated with skeletons, daggers and the "crooked finger." It was sent on Thursday, February 20, to John Capitelli, a well-to-do grocer, of Spring street, this city.

As the result of investigations by County Detective John Gallatian, Joseph Jenoluso, alias Joseph Cupi, and Phillip Caspiglio, tailors of Monroe street, New York city, were arrested last night by Detective Buckley.

Jenoluso, arraigned this afternoon before Justice of the Peace E. R. Collins, charged with sending the threatening letter, was held in $5,000 to await the action of the Grand Jury.

When arrested both men carried .38 calibre revolvers, fully loaded, and Jenoluso had several fuses commonly used among members of the Black Hand Society to set-off high-powered explosives. On the strength of this incriminating evidence the prisoners were charged with carrying concealed weapons and were held in $1,000 bail each to await the action of the Grand Jury. Immediately after arrest the men were taken to the Plainfield police headquarters where they were subjected to the "third degree" by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr.

Capitelli, upon receiving the money-demanding letter, which bore a Westfield postmark and was dated February 20, became greatly frightened and sent his wife and children to the homes of relatives in Elizabeth. Then he reported the matter to the local authorities and County Detective Gallatian was notified. Investigation disclosed the fact that two strange Italians were seen in the neighborhood and his suspicions being aroused that these were the Black Handers, Gallatian detailed Detective Buckley to shadow the men.

The day designated in the letter on which Capitelli was to produce the money, Jenoluso and Caspilgio visited the grocery store and in the course of a conversation remarked that he, Capitelli, seemed worried and asked what the trouble was. The unsuspecting storekeeper with trembling voice unfolded the story of attempted extortion. They asked him if he was going to pay the money and he said he did not have it to pay but would have it in a week. While this conversation was taking place Buckley lay in hiding under a counter.

From that day until their arrest the two New Yorkers were constantly shadowed from place to place by Gallatian and Buckley. By a ruse yesterday afternoon a copy of Jenoluso's handwriting was secured and the arrest of the two men followed. The writing was identical with that of the letter sent Capitelli.

When told they were under arrest the two men showed fight but were soon overpowered by Buckley and several local policemen. Despite a grilling cross-examination to which they were subjected to in the Plainfield police station they remained silent thereafter. Their tailoring establishment in New York will be searched for further evidence. It is probable, the police say, that they belong to a gang of blackhanders who have been terrorizing their wealthy countrymen throughout this section of the country. That they are learned in the use of explosives and that their tailoring shops is in reality a bomb-making laboratory is the belief of the county authorities.

MOOSE COMMITTEE.

A meeting of the ball committee of Plainfield Lodge, No. 310, Loyal Order of Moose, will be held in the Grand Union Tea Store tonight at 8 o'clock. Reports from the committee on arrangements will be read and a discussion will follow to give the members some idea what they need do to perfect their arrangements. The committees as a whole are working to make the ball which is to be held in the Saengerbund Hall, Monday night, March 24, a decided success.

BULL MOOSERS ENJOY A FEAST

Osborne and Bainbridge Colby Thrill Diners at Union Co. Progressive Banquet.

PLAINFIELDERS THERE

Former Mayor G. W. V. Moy Among the 400 at the Tables—John K. English Acts as the Toastmaster.

The Union County Progressives held a banquet at Turn Hall, Elizabeth, last night, and enjoyed the eloquent speeches by Edmund B. Osborne, chairman of the State executive committee; Bainbridge Colby, of New York, and Welcome W. Bender, chairman of the Elizabeth committee of the Progressives. John K. English, of Elizabeth, chairman of the Progressive League of Union county, was the toastmaster. There were about four hundred at the banquet, including former Mayor G. W. V. Moy, William Jeffrey, I. B. Hill, Stanley Gunison, Jr., and I. B. Hill, Jr.

Mr. Osborne, the principal speaker, referring to the party platform, said in part:

"It is the noblest platform any political party has ever issued. It marks a new era of altruistic politics and of public morals. It was very radical last August, but it is not so radical today.

"The Democrats and the remnant of the Republicans are swift to read the meaning of the lesson of last November and they already openly or tacitly agree to so large a portion of our platform that, if they keep on, we shall soon not have enough left to be worth fighting for.

"We have to take advanced and higher ground if we are to keep up the fighting. Neither of the old political parties will again risk themselves on the wrong side of the great issue of popular government—that is already as good as won. The popular election of United States Senators is a foregone conclusion. The worst of the reactionary States will soon make all nominations by direct primary. The initiative and referendum are coming as fast as the States can revise their constitutions—even now neither of the old parties would dare risk an open fight against the initiative and referendum."

"It has been my privilege, within the last two weeks, to meet the Progressives of three States, Illinois, Nebraska and Vermont," said Mr. Colby. "The dinner given to Miss Jane Addams in Chicago, by the Progressive Club of that city, was the largest dinner in point of attendance ever held in Chicago. On every hand the party gives evidence of solid growth, bouyant spirits and an absolutely confident survey of the future.

"For years the people have been denied any opportunity of political expression. They feel at last that they have such an opportunity in this party. They love the party. They feel that it is their own. It is this enthusiasm in the rank and file of the Progressive party, which is building it beyond the dreams of its founders; which is refuting the direful predictions of its standpat enemies, and which has opened a new and lustrous page in the history of liberalism in America."

Mr. Bender praised Mr. English for his work at the head of the county organization and made a plea for increased activity on the part of all Progressives.

"We don't begrudge the Democrats their present good fortune," said Mr. Bender. "We expect the same happy days, but we don't intend to wait twenty years for them. The Republicans believed that soon after the last election the Progressives would join their ranks. All plans for amalgamation met with a decidedly adverse response and the open declaration to the world that we are in the field to stay.

"Half the battle is won. We have conquered the Republican party and the likelihood is that the other party will wreck itself before another campaign rolls around."

LOST ARTICLES FOUND BY DAILY PRESS ADVS.

Twice within the last ten days the value of the Plainfield Daily Press advertising columns have been conclusively demonstrated, for lost articles of value have been restored to their owners. On Monday of last week, Mr. Booker, of 611 East Third street, advertised a gold watch which he had lost on the preceding day, and early on Tuesday morning the timepiece was returned to the Daily Press office. On Tuesday night, of this week, a resident of Lenox avenue advertised that she had lost two $5 bills, and this morning these were returned to the Daily Press office by the honest person who found them. Both returns came directly as the result of the advertisement in the Daily Press, and they prove that the classified columns of this newspaper are carefully watched by its readers.

MISS M. F. STAATS BRIDE OF ELLIOTT DILLARD

Somerville, Feb. 27.—Miss Myrtle Florence Staats, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Staats, and Elliot N. Dillard, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dillard, both of Somerville, were married at noon yesterday at the home of the bride's parents, by Rev. Frederick J. Soule, pastor of the First Baptist church. There was present a large number of relatives and friends.

Miss Mae Staats, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor, and the Misses Mable Staats, sister of the bride, and Mary Dillard, sister of the bridegroom, were the bridemaids. The best man was Harold Sutphen, all of this place.

The bride was gowned in a suit of brown with hat and gloves to match and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and sweet peas. The maid of honor wore white satin and carried a bouquet of roses; while the attendants wore light blue voile, over silk, and also carried roses. After congratulations a wedding breakfast was served. The couple left for New York State on a wedding trip. They will reside in Somerville. Among the many gifts was a check for $500 from the bride's grandfather, Henry Reimer, of this place.

PIONEER ELK IN PLAINFIELD LODGE

Frank C. Langhorne, Sole Surviving "Jolly Cork," Joins No. 885.

A FOUNDER OF ORDER

Harry S. Sanderson, Past Exalted Ruler of No. 1 Lodge, New York, is a Frequent Visitor at Plainfield Lodge.

Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., held a meeting of unusual interest, last night, when Frank C. Langhorne, the photographer, was initiated into the membership of the lodge. The special interest centred in the fact that Mr. Langhorne is the last surviving charter member of "The Jolly Corks," out of which grew the order of Elks. Mr. Langhorne dropped out of the original organization about forty years ago, and while he always retained a general interest in the Elks it was not until recently that he decided to become a member of the order.

Plainfield Lodge, the members say, is naturally quite proud of the fact that it now numbers among its members the surviving member of the parent organization, and Mr. Langhorne says he was welcomed into the local lodge in a way that will always bring him pleasant recollections. Another veteran Elk of this city is Harry S. Sanderson, of Proctor & Sanderson, who is a past exalted ruler of Lodge No. 1, of New York, and is also a life member of the order. Mr. Langhorne and Mr. Sanderson are warm friends, their ties of friendship being strengthened by incidents of the early days of the order in which they were both interested.

Mr. Langhorne, while in a reminiscent mood, recalled some interesting facts regarding "The Jolly Corks." He said that Charles Vivian, an English actor, was responsible for the formation of the original organization. There were ten members and they organized and met in Elm street, New York. Later they removed to Delancey street. It was at this place that suggestions were made that the name be changed. Someone proposed the name of Elks, while another member suggested the names of Buffaloes. Eight members voted for the former name and seven for the latter. It was then voted unanimously to use the name of Elks.

Of the original ten members, Mr. Langhorne is the only survivor, while of the subsequent fifteen members he and one other man, the latter living in the west, are the only ones living. After the organization had been given the name of Elks quarters were leased in what was known as Military Hall on the Bowery and meetings were held there for several years. That was the original lodge of Elks, being known as New York Lodge, No. 1, B. P. O. E. Today the members have a handsome building in New York the cost of which is estimated at over one million dollars.

Following the initiation last night the lodge held a social session.

JOSEPH HUGHES DEAD AFTER LONG ILLNESS

Joseph Hughes, aged 25 years, a former resident of Plainfield, died of tuberculosis at the Metropolitan Hospital, New York city, on Monday, following a long illness. He was a baker by trade and since leaving Plainfield a number of years ago had lived in New York and Elizabeth. He was a nephew of Miss Mary Winston, of this city.

The funeral services will be held at the home of Edward Cohill, 516 Meadow street, Elizabeth, tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock and at the Sacred Heart R. C. church, Elizabeth, at 9 o'clock, where a high mass will be celebrated for the repose of his soul. The interment will be in St. Mary's cemetery, this city, tomorrow.

ENGINEERS TO MEET.

Plainfield branch, No. 12, National Association of Safety Engineers, will hold an open meeting at Exempt Firemen's Hall, Friday night, March 21, when the State officers of the order will be present. An entertainment will be provided, Billy Murray, the celebrated soloist; Joe McKenna and others having been engaged for that purpose. Refreshments will be served.

HARRIGAN'S PLANS.

Joseph Harrigan, of South avenue, has had plans drawn for concrete coal sidings and chutes for his yard. The siding will be 250 feet long and when approved by the Jersey Central Railroad will be submitted to Building Inspector Doane. The cost of the improvement will be $5,000.

AGED MAN PUTS END TO TROUBLES

William Mattis, Ill and Despondent Committed Suicide by Using Gas.

FOUND BY A BROTHER

Retired Contractor Left Note—County Physician Issues Burial Permit—Wife Died Eight Years Ago.

When Garret Mattis, of 412 New street, paid his usual visit, this morning, to his seventy-five years old brother, William Mattis, who keeps a boarding-house at 210 Evona avenue, he found him dead in bed, a victim of his own hand by gas. On a chair beside the suicide was a note addressed to his niece, Mrs. James D. Anderson, of 412 New street, saying that he had grown despondent because of ill health and financial reverses. After telling of the troubles which prompted the aged man to end his life the missive directed the disposition of his personal belongings.

Mr. Mattis at one time was a prominent building contractor at Somerville, but many years of retirement had reduced the small fortune which he had made. Garret Mattis, also retired, had for some time made it a habit of visiting his brother daily. As he descended the stairway leading to his relative's room on the second floor this morning he detected the odor of gas and bursting open the door found his brother lying dead on the bed and gas fumes issuing from a fixture close by. The dead man was lying apparently asleep and only the note telling of his act proved whether death had been accidental or suicide.

After determining that life was extinct, Union County Physician F. W. Westcott was summoned, who said Mattis had been dead several hours and he granted a burial permit. The body is now in charge of Walter G. Runyon, an undertaker, of Dunellen. Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Speaking of the matter to a Daily Press reporter, Mrs. Anderson said: "I cannot understand my uncle's action in taking his life. He knew that any time he needed help financially or personally, we were always ready to do him service. But he had such a proud nature."

Born in Hunterdon county, Mr. Mattis came to this city early in life. He later made his home in Providence, R. I., for fifteen years, going from that city to Somerville, and thence to this city again. Besides Garret Mattis, he is survived by two other brothers, Richard and Andrew Mattis; a daughter, Mrs. Eugene Codington, of North avenue, and Mrs. Anderson. His wife died eight years ago.

POLING IS GONE; IS HE BIGAMIST?

Married Man Disappears and One of Like Name Weds Millington Woman.

THE BRIDE ANNOUNCES

Mrs. Fennimore Gives Notice She Become Wife of Frank a Poling, of Plainfield—One of Same Name Left Wife and 8 Children Here.

"The marriage is announced of Mrs. N. A. Fennimore and Frank A. Poling, of Plainfield. The couple have gone on a short wedding trip, after which they expect to reside in Atlantic City."

This announcement appeared in last week's issue of the Bernardsville News, which according to a statement made by the editor of the News to a Daily Press reporter today was furnished his newspaper in the handwriting of the bride. The woman in question had been for several years the Millington correspondent of the News.

Frank A. Poling, the only person known in this city by that name, was employed by Harry Werner, the West Front street clothier, as a salesman. He has a wife and eight children residing at 673 West Fourth street.

According to Mr. Werner, Poling left the store Saturday night, February 15, and did not return. Mr. Werner says he knows nothing of the man's whereabouts, and so far as known Poling's family has not heard from him since he left the city.

Mrs. Fennimore is the daughter of Charles H. Ames, of Millington. She was a widow, her husband having died several years ago. She is said to have been a most estimable woman and highly respected in the community where she resided for many years.

Mr. Ames, father of Mrs. Fennimore, came to Plainfield on Tuesday in search of information concerning his daughter. He called on a lawyer and Mr. Werner and at both places exhibited a copy of the Bernardsville News containing the announcement of the marriage. It was reported today that Mr. Ames, through a letter which his daughter had written home, traced the couple to the Glen Island Hotel, New York, on Tuesday, and when he confronted Poling with the declaration that he had a wife and children in Plainfield, the latter is said to have denied the accusation, claiming that he had never been married before. The couple is supposed to have gone from New York to Atlantic City.

Kennedy, and her husband, who are missionaries in Turkey, in a letter dated February 8 and written at Monastir, Turkey, Mr. Kennedy writes: "Am on my way to Kotcha from Salonica, where I secured $440 for relief work. I bought sixty sacks of flour at Salonica and Prince Nicholas, of Greece, is helping us in having it shipped to Kotcha free of cost—as war material.

"Mrs. Kennedy writes me that she is well and that the girls' school is going on as usual. The people in the villages are starving. One of the mission helpers came from his village reporting that the people had bread enough for two days only. His mother was taking two small loaves to be baked in the village oven. A soldier meeting her grabbed it away and devoured it ravenously in its raw condition." MR. PIERCE INTRODUCES SOME MORE TAX BILLS

Trenton, Feb. 27.—Two additional tax bills were introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Pierce, of Union county. One provides for the taxation of all property, real and personal, of all persons, corporations, copartnerships and associations operating as Public Utilities companies. One of the vital features of this measure is in the fact that it vested in the State Board of Assessors, the power to examine all books and records of such companies in order to properly arrive at their assessments.

The other of Senator Pierce's measures provides that all assessments in various taxing districts of the State must be made as of May 20 and that the work of assessment must be completed before July 1; and that the result must be forwarded to the county boards as now. It fixes September 1 as the date for the mailing of assessments and provides that all appeals must be determined before November 1.

JUDD BUYING MORE LAND.

Newton, Feb. 27.—A deed has been recorded in the county clerk's office by which Orrin R. Judd, of Brooklyn, at the head of three large electric companies that propose to dam the Delaware River, will receive 3.09 acres more of land on the Sussex county shore. The land is in Montague Township and near the Milford Bridge, across the Delaware River. The deed was given by Mrs. Godfrey Weiland, of Montague, to Mr. Judd, who controls the Delaware, Milford and Bushkill Hydro-electric companies, whose announced project is to dam the river at three points opposite the Sussex shore and generate electric power. The land conveyed is a part of a twelve-and-a-half-acre tract Mrs. Weiland purchased from the residuary legatees of the late Maxwell Sommerville, of Philadelphia, who, at his death, conveyed this land, together with large tracts of land in other parts of the country, to several charitable institutions.

INAUGURATION OF PRESIDENT WILSON IS GREATEST OF ALL

Quarter Million of Persons Will Crowd Into the Capital City.

Event Not So Serious as Putting Ruler of Mexico In Office, but More Showy.

By JAMES A. EDGERTON.

INAUGURATING a president of the United States has come to be a serious proposition, but not so serious as inaugurating a president of Mexico. In this country we use only our troops for marching purposes. Our inaugurals are divided into three parts, like all Gaul in Caesar's Commentaries—the inaugural address, the inaugural parade and the inaugural ball. This year the inaugural ball is chiefly conspicuous by its absence, which is also a serious matter—for Washington modistes and dealers in white dress gloves.

Every inauguration sees a larger crowd than was ever beheld in Washington before; at least so the newspapers say. This year will be no exception to the rule. The committees in charge already have assurances that 20,000 will participate in the parade, and 20,000 human beings properly strung out and interspersed with bands playing "Hail to the Chief!" and with the customary number of banners and colonels on horseback make an imposing pageant. In addition to the marchers, the office seekers, the college students, the tourists drawn to the capital city by the show and the plain Democrats who attend out of pure patriotism, there will be several thousand suffragists left over from the pageant on the previous day. So it is altogether within bounds to say that more people will attend the inaugural of Woodrow Wilson than have appeared at the induction into office of any of his predecessors.

After all, the inaugural ball is not going to be missed, except by those who hire out dress suits and the committees who collect the $5 for ball tickets. As to the visitor, he will find other things for which he can spend his five; likewise a few other fives. Congressman Carey of Wisconsin has introduced a resolution in the house to prevent ambitious Washington tradesmen—hotel, boarding house and restaurant keepers—and other people who need the money from charging two or three prices during the glad festival, but it will require something stronger than a congressional resolution to discourage this imitation of high finance.

Take Your Roll.

Here is a private tip that will not cost you a cent—that is, the tip won't: If you are going to the inaugural take along your roll. You may need it, even though you do not enjoy seeing the deft ways by which it is taken from you. Washington is the soul of hospitality, and the people there are nice and gentle in annexing your negotiable securities, currency and other assets. You must admire their polite methods.

President Elect Wilson requested Democratic simplicity of the Jeffersonian brand in his inauguration, and the committees promised to comply so far as lay in their power. But when a quarter of a million people go to their capital city to see a show Democratic simplicity is not as simple as it sounds. There are all those that want to parade and all the others that want to see them do it and all the due and ancient forms to be followed, so that when the committees had got through and had cut down each function to its irreducible minimum they were about where they were before. If Mr. Jefferson were to see this latest example of simplicity called after his honored name he would flee in terror. In his day Washington was a muddy and straggly country village and the whole country had about 7,000,000 inhabitants. There were no railroads, no millionaires, no trusts, no high financiers, no telegraphs, no movies, no telephones, few snobs and no billion dollar appropriations.

At that time Democratic simplicity was easy. In fact, there was little else in the country. But in this day it is different. The dear people demand some formality and doings when their highest official is sworn in, and who is to say them nay? Trimming the wings of an inauguration is like economy in congressional appropriations. When the committees have cut down every possible item and have elicited yells of anguish from the various governmental departments in the paring process the total appropriations still aggregate that good old billion. And when the inauguration ceremonies have been sliced to the very quick there still remain the time honored twenty thousand to parade and the various other items that make up the imposing day.

Will Wear a High Hat.

While Mr. Wilson objected to the inaugural ball, he has promised to be good in all other ways, even to wearing a high hat. This point being settled, everything is as it should be, and the procession can move on. We shudder to think of just what might happen to an inauguration in which the chief figure did not wear a high hat. It would lack not only some of its glitter, but a few of the heads of the honorable committees might faint. This is a progressive era, but we cannot smash the silk tile—at least not yet.

All now remaining is that the weather man be put under bonds to keep the peace. Some of my friends object that I have been too severe on inauguration day weather, but I have not been half as severe as the weather itself. To settle the matter I appointed myself an investigating committee and looked into the subject. In the 124 years since this government was founded there have been exactly thirty-one public inaugurations. Just nine of these—nine, count 'em—have been fair. The remainder have ranged all the way from "cold and cloudy" to blizzards. Taft's was about the worst. There was such a storm that the wires were down, Washington was almost cut off from the rest of the country, and the inaugural address had to be delivered indoors. Now, what kind of a day is that on which to start a new administration?

© by American Press Association.

MAJOR GENERAL LEONARD WOOD.

The inaugural committees, of which William Corcoran Eustis is chairman, have been sending out various advance sheets telling of all the good things that will be pulled off on March 4, and they get a man all worked up until he is ready to borrow money or mortgage his wife's furniture to go. From these preliminary chants of joy the conclusion is reached that the committees are really glad the ball was sidetracked. It will enable just so many more people to see the unparalleled fireworks. The display will be on the ellipse, south of the White House. Observe the pyrotechnics in the following:

A Skyrocket Joy Ride.

The program prepared by the fireworks committee will open with the firing of the national salute of 101 guns from steel mortars. A special President Wilson bomb and a special Vice President Marshall bomb will be included. There will be pictures of Wilson and Marshall and a huge American flag wrought in fire.

Other features of the program include 1,500 rocket bombs, 1,100 colored lights, 500 batteries, 15,000 candles, 1,600 bombs, 50 balloons, 50 aeroplanes, 20 geysers, 100 mines, 500 flashes, 100 turbillions and 200 aerolites. The display will be brought to a close with "Good Night" and "Feu de Joi" in six foot black letters surrounded by glory fires.

Now, I do not know exactly what a "turbillion" is, but it sounds turbulent and numerous, so it must be one of those sizzling and perfectly gorgeous things that bring "ohs" and "ahs" from all the girls in the crowd. You know how your best girl clutches your arm and emits exclamations when the rockets riot through the sky. That "feu de joi" touch is also good. In fact, the whole fiery program sounds like a skyrocket joy ride. But there is more to come.

From the ellipse the big inaugural crowd, at the conclusion of the fireworks display, will pour into Pennsylvania avenue. This broad thoroughfare, which extends in a straight line between the capitol and the treasury building, will be the scene of enthusiasm that will continue unabated until well past midnight. The illumination committee plans to make a great red way of Pennsylvania avenue by burning red fires at short distances along the street. The committee is arranging for the illumination of the city generally on an elaborate scale.

Now, is not that better than attending a crowded and stuffy ball, tickets to which cost five bones, wearing a boiled shirt, an open faced vest, a spike tailed coat, a collar that gouges you under the chin, gloves that make your hands sweat and patent leathers that squeeze your pet corns, and dancing where it is so crowded that you have to pay more attention to dodging other couples than you do to the dance itself? I appeal to you. In the name of the constitution and the immortal bill of rights, isn't it better?

Parade Will Be a Model.

The parade promises to be a wonder—that is, if it doesn't snow. Then it will be a torture. It will start at 2 o'clock from the capitol, march the mile down Pennsylvania avenue, past the treasury building and the president's reviewing stand in front of the White House and then continue its way through the beautiful parked streets of the residence section of Washington.

General Leonard Wood, the grand marshal of the day, says, "We intend to make the military section of the parade a model for other nations." There will be four grand divisions. The first will contain representatives from the army, navy and marine corps, the West Point cadets and the midshipmen from Annapolis. The second will consist of the militia from the various states and cadets from schools and colleges. The third will be made up of veteran and patriotic societies, including the Grand Army of the Republic and the Spanish war veterans. The fourth will be composed of civic organizations, clubs, societies, and the like. The college men will have a section of the parade, in which there will be 1,000 students from Princeton and representatives from every big university and college in the country. There will be no women in the lines. Probably this is just as well, since most of them will have sore feet from marching in the suffragette pageant of the day before.

A Warning to Colonels.

The governors of many of the states have promised to participate with their glittering array of colonels, heading the militia from their respective states in the second grand division. Governor Sulzer of New York will be among these. When, a few years ago, Governor Charles E. Hughes had to officiate in a similar function he took riding lessons, as he had never been on a horse before. But Governor Sulzer is an old horseman and will ride as though he enjoyed it. All of the other governors or colonels who are not quite up to the part would do well to follow the Hughes plan, since falling off a horse in the middle of the parade might detract from the impressiveness and dignity of the occasion. If they fail to take this warning, however, and do fall in consequence the boy scouts will be present to offer first aid to the injured. There will also be emergency hospitals along the route.

Blooded foxhounds from Virginia are to participate, preceding the members of a Virginia hunt club. More Jeffersonian simplicity!

College yells are not to be permitted in the parade, perhaps for the reason that they might scare the mounts of members of gubernatorial staffs, with disastrous consequences. There is to be a wild west section of the parade, made up of cowboys, Indians and rough riders. These are also requested not to yell.

Chief Justice White will administer the oath to a president for the first time, the late Chief Justice Fuller having officiated during the past six inaugurals.

There is one other feature I had almost forgotten. Woodrow Wilson will become president of the United States and William Howard Taft will qualify as a professor at Yale.

ILLITERACY.

After showing that the number of illiterate persons in these United States had decreased in the last forty years from twenty to seven per cent., United States Commissioner of Education Claxton in an address before the National Educational Association at Philadelphia last night ventured the prediction that by the end of the next decade illiteracy in this country would be a zero quantity. Among the whites the percentage of illiteracy in the last four decades dropped from 12 to 3 per cent., and among the colored people from 95 to 30 per cent. Among the foreign-born in this country the percentage fell from 14 to 12½ per cent., and today the percentage of illiterates among the children of foreign-born people is only 1 1-10 per cent. "May we not hope," said Mr. Claxton, "that in another ten years illiteracy in this country will be stamped out altogether?

"What we want first of all," declared the commissioner, "is to have no illiterates among us, and this can be accomplished by compulsory education and by providing equal educational opportunities in every part of the country. We still have a great problem of illiteracy before us, for there are more than 5,500,000 illiterate men, women and children over 10 years old in this country. Of this number three-quarters of a million are between 10 and 21 years old, and almost 5,000,000 are 21 years old or over. Nearly 2,300,000 men of voting age are unable to read and write."

And yet there are some people who say that the public school is a failure.

WOMAN'S VICTORY.

In the brief period of one year there has been a most remarkable change in public sentiment in New Jersey regarding the agitation for equal suffrage and this is undoubtedly due to the eminently practical educational methods pursued by the zealous advocates of the proposition. One year ago when the suffrage leaders appeared at the State House they were treated with little consideration and indeed there were few among the lawmakers who appeared to take them or their principles seriously. But what a marked contrast the last few weeks have afforded. Both the Senate and the House have passed a resolution which has as its object an amendment to the Constitution according women the right to vote, and there is every reason to believe that the next Legislature will take similar action. Then the question will be up to the people to decide for themselves.

Woodrow Wilson's last day in the gubernatorial chair of New Jersey will be tomorrow for he has resigned the commission placed in his hands by the people of New Jersey to take effect on Saturday. In no State, in no generation, has a Governor accomplished as much for the welfare of the whole people as has the man whom the tricky politicians at first derided as "The Schoolmaster" and whom they learned to fear and envy if not to love and emulate.

If United States Senator James Edgar Martine will put as much ginger into the argument for an additional appropriation for the proposed Government building here as he did in defense of New Jersey rivers appropriation we'll get that $50,000.

Delays are dangerous and therefore we advise any who are not regular subscribers to the Daily Press to place their orders now for a copy of Saturday's issue when the Plainfield Daily Press magazine will be given free. This superb publication will be a regular feature on the first Saturday of each month.

The contributing editor for next Saturday's issue will discuss a subject of timely interest and as he is a veteran editorial writer his subject will be presented in forceful style.

CLAPP PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT BULL MOOSE DINNER

Washington, Feb. 27.—Senator Moses E. Clapp, of Minnesota, accepted an invitation yesterday to be one of the speakers at a dollar dinner to be given by the Progressive Committee of Mercer county, at Trenton, in April. The day for the dinner has not yet been positively set.

The invitation to Senator Clapp was extended by Everett Townsend, a well-known Trenton manufacturer and Bull Mooser. Mr. Townsend also urged Gifford Pinchot, president of the National Conservation Association, to attend the dinner. Mr. Pinchot, however, told the Jerseyman that he had decided not to make any more speaking dates until he had finished three books on economic subjects which he is now writing.

"I've been on the stump for eight months straight now," said Mr. Pinchot, "and I'm going to quit long enough to do some other work. I expect that the Progressive Party campaigns in the different States will open about July 1, and I want to get everything out of the way so that I can be free to get back into the fight then."

Senator Clapp assured his Trenton visitor that he, for one, did not take seriously the efforts of the Republicans to revive the old party. "Of course," he said, "Penrose and others can say they're Republicans, and they can even pretend to be led by LaFollette, but the country knows them too well to trust them. The time is past when leaders can get together and put their feet on a mahogany table and agree to deliver votes. Men don't come together by agreement. They come together by gravitation. It was force of gravity that created the Progressive Party, and the same force is going to keep it going."

Former Governor J. Franklin Fort, Everett Colby and George L. Record will be other speakers at the Trenton Bull Moose dinner.

WIFE BEATER IS FLOGGED.

Prisoner Chooses That Punishment and Thanks Sheriff For Lashes.

"Much obliged, sheriff," said Robert Phillips of Frederick, Md., recently after he had received fifteen lashes of the whip for beating his wife.

The court had sentenced the man to sixty days in jail, a twenty-five dollar fine or the whipping post. Phillips chose the post.

Sheriff Fagan administered the lashing. The sheriff is a lifelong friend of the prisoner, but he showed no mercy in inflicting punishment.

Phillips' hands were cuffed to the bars of a jail cell, and, with fifty spectators present, his back was bared, and the sheriff entered with the whip.

"I don't like to do this," said Fagan, "but a man who would beat his wife deserves it."

"I know it, Mr. Fagan," said the prisoner, "and I don't blame you."

War to the death on all cats was declared in Berkeley, Cal., recently by the police department in the interest of public health. A theory that cats are responsible for spreading smallpox caused the campaign against them.

Extermination began, and policemen armed with small rifles shot cats on sight without regard to pedigree or ownership.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

The Kinnemacolor Company, of America, through its president, Henry J. Brook, has just signed a contract with F. F. Proctor, whereby the newest natural color photoplays, now being produced by the Kinnemacolor Stock Company, under the direction of David Miles, at Los Angeles, and wonderful Western scenes in all their vivid hues, as well as the contributions of camera experts who are filming the characteristic scenery and costumes of foreign lands, from Egypt to John O'Gaunts will be presented in all the theatres of the Proctor circuit, including four New York houses.

By this arrangement these pictures will be shown at Proctor's theatre this city beginning on March 8. Mr. Proctor was one of the pioneers in combining moving pictures with vaudeville and while the popularity of his theatres has superinduced a host of invaders in the same or similar fields, this is practical proof that he proposes to keep at the head of the procession. Mr. Proctor proves his perspicacity by selecting the best "tried and tested" novelty in the moving picture world, for it seems that like Cleopatra—whose real Kinnemacolor has recently invaded and [illegible] in all its gorgeous hues, "A[illegible] not wither nor custom stale [illegible] infinite variety."

The Kennard Iron Works, of this city, has the contract for making extensive improvements at Proctor's theatre, preparatory to the introduction of the Kinnemacolor moving pictures on Monday, March 10. A new fire-proof booth is being erected, and a 5 horse-power motor with a dynamo is being installed to provide a direct current so as to give the pictures the most positive effect. When this work is completed, the theatre will have the most modern and up-to-date equipment of any playhouse in the country.

PUBLIC SCHOOL FAULT?

Editors, Plainfield Daily Press:

I want to enter a protest through your columns against the prevailing rule in the Plainfield public school requiring children to do so much home study. I have a daughter eight years old who is subject to this rule and I speak from personal experience. She is compelled to put in so much time doing her "home work" that she has absolutely no time for the proper amount of exercise and play, and as a result her health must suffer if she is to observe the rules laid down by the Board of Education.

Nowadays the children are compelled to bring all of their books home and in this way they are robbed of their hours for play. I hope that the parents of children will present such a strong protest against this practice that the Board of Education will see the wisdom of changing the rule. Another thing I desire to protest against is the long lessons given to the children. Before they are properly learned the child is physically tired out and it makes it just that much harder to retain in the mind what has been studied. I don't think that this is the purpose of education. With study periods in the class rooms, shorter lessons, better progress would be made by the children and at the end of the school year, a majority of the class would be promoted, instead of a number being held back to go over the same hard grind another year.

I would suggest that the Daily Press publish a coupon for a few nights thus giving parents an opportunity to register a protest against what I think is entirely wrong.

U. S. TO PREVENT INVASION OF MEXICO BY TEXAS RANGERS.

To prevent an invasion of Mexico by four companies of Texas militia stationed at Brownsville, Texas, troops of the United States Army, under command of Brigadier General E. Z. Steever, are hurrying to Brownsville. Governor Colquitt, of Texas, who sent the Texas Rangers to the border town, also sent a warning to the Mexican chieftain at Matamoras, Mexico, that his own life would be demanded if a single American was killed in that town.

Major General William H. Carter is commanding the Second Division of the United States army, which is being mobilized in Texas.

PROMINENT LEADERS LIKELY TO TAKE PART IN NEW REVOLT IN MEXICO.

GENERAL FIGUEROA, WHO COMMANDS 10,000 RURALES IN REVOLT

Suppressing one revolt in its very beginning, the new Provisional President of Mexico to-day faces active insurrection in at least five Mexican States and disaffection in as many more. Nothing but a display of iron handed rule and unusual military ability, it is asserted, can suffice to maintain him in power.

Most formidable of all the half dozen revolutions in progress in various parts of the country is that of General Ambrosiano Figueroa, the Inspector General of the Rurales, who has placed himself at the head of ten thousand men in the State of Guerrero ready to oppose General Huerta.

General Figueroa has always supported the existing government. He was loyal to Diaz when he was in power and later to Madero. The report in Mexico City is that the treachery through which Madero was deposed prompted him to revolt. General Figueroa is of Spanish descent. He was educated at Cornell, is a remarkable military leader and politician and has a great personal following.

The Tlalpam cadets were among the first to revolt and are taking a prominent part in the new revolution.

Brigadier General F. A. Smith is in command of the Fifth Brigade of the Second Division of the United States Army, consisting of three thousand men in all, which has been ordered to Galveston, Texas, where they can be swiftly transported to Mexico.

BOY CATCHES RECORD SKUNK.

New Providence, Feb. 27.—Obeying the command of his father, former Township Committeeman Frank C. Shaffer, of Berkeley Heights, to gather all his traps from along the Passaic River and to give up trapping entirely, nine-year-old Clifford Shaffer Tuesday was gone so long that his parents grew concerned over his safety. A search party organized by the boy's grandfather, Rudolph Shaffer, went out and met him returning with one of the largest skunks ever captured in this section. The lad had been gone nearly five hours, and much of his delay was occasioned by a battle with the animal. The skin was sold for $3.50.

WASHINGTON READY FOR THE INAUGURAL

"The Avenue of the Conquerers" Prepare dfor Presidential Festivities.

(By Herman B. Walker.)

Washington, Feb. 27.—Pennsylvania avenue, the Avenue of the Conquerors, is being made ready for the inauguration of Woodrow Wilson as President of the United States.

A measured mile and a quarter of asphalted boulevard, a hundred feet from curb to curb, straight as an arrow, with the great dome of the Capitol rearing its stately head above the treetops at the East, and the sober dingy and massive old granite pile that is the Treasury Department—the National strongbox—at the other end of the long tangent.

Down this great National roadway, the main artery of the nation's Capitol, marched, at the close of the Civil War, the worn and ragged but victorious army of the North, filling the muddy, unpaved way from curb to curb as, like a mammoth centipede, it held the road for days stretching unendingly to the East and disappearing around the corner at the jog in the avenue, past the Treasury, and then out again onto the continuation of Pennsylvania avenue and past the White House, to be reviewed by Lincoln and Grant. Along this way, before and since, from the days of Washington, have come the Presidents; political conquorers, with troops and civilians to escort them, after taking the great oath of loyalty to the American people and the Constitution in the shadow of the Capitol's solemn dome.

And along this way the stage is being set for the inaugural ceremonies of next Tuesday, when the first Jerseyman to become President of the nation, will assume the great responsibility of directing the fortunes and welfare of the youngest and greatest of the nations, and triumphant Democratic hosts will acclaim their victory over the ruins of the once great Republican party, in a mighty pageant such as no other President has reviewed.

Not for this alone, but for the big preliminary parade of the suffragists on Monday, is the stage being set for inaugural visitors who arrive the day before inaugural day will see not only the triumphal march of the Democratic hosts, but the demonstration of the women of the nation in demand of the right to vote. It is estimated that there will be 37,000 marchers in the inaugural parade and a third as many men and women, on the day before, will by spectacular means of music, marching and floats, call the attention of the nation and the incoming administration to the injustice of a people half unfranchised.

Hotels, office buildings and stores line the Avenue of the Conquerors for most of its distance, ordinarily. Today only the upper parts of these buildings are visible, while below is a mile and a quarter of rough new carpenter work. By next Monday these crude scaffoldings on which workmen are hammering furiously and feverishly, will be balconies, piazzas and grandstands, covered and decorated with two miles and a half of bunting and flags, and with tickets already sold, for the most part to inaugural visitors who will fill the seats, hang from windows and even peer down from reserved roof stands to witness the passing of the two processions.

On the East steps and over the plaza in front of the Capitol, are three acres of seats and stands where those favored ones able to obtain tickets, will sit while Woodrow Wilson, with his hand on the Bible will take the oath of fealty and deliver his inaugural message to the people.

While within the White House, the Taft family packs its trunks and prepares to move out, the carpenters in front are building the Court of Honor through which the new President will be escorted to the Executive Mansion, hidden behind the rows of stands. Of the White House itself, nothing now is visible from the avenue. These grandstands before the White House, on both sides of the street, are roofed over, and enclosed at the ends, for protection against wind and storm.

Wooden pillars painted white, to be draped with bunting and with electric lights festooned between them, will line both sides of this Court of Honor for two long blocks. The President's stand; from which he will receive the salute of the marchers, has been designed and facaded in fac-simile of the front of Monticello, Thomas Jefferson's Virginia mansion. Down in front of this, just above the sidewalk level, there is being built a semi-circular box, like a trolley vestibule, enclosed with glass to protect the health of the new executive during the five or six hours he will remain in sight reviewing the passing regiments and triumphant legions of Democracy.

There will be no presidential review for the suffragists. Taft is not an advocate of suffrage, and Wilson has maintained a discreet silence on the question. Miss Boardman, the best friend of the Taft family, is one of the managers of the anti-suffrage National headquarters recently established here. The marching women, and the men who will march with them, will not even use the seats and stands built by the inaugural committee for the Wilson reception. Instead, they are erecting long tiers of circus seats at other points along the streets, and seats on these stands are selling at the same prices being asked for grandstand seats for the inauguration. The women have asked for an escort of troops, and it isn't certain yet whether they will get that. They say there would be no hesitancy about it if they had a vote.

The House of Representatives has passed a bill making it a misdemeanor for hotel men and other landlords to raise rates for rooms and food during the inaugural fete, but the bill probably won't pass the Senate and the hotel men are not worried. Single windows commanding a view of the line of march are selling in office building at $25 for the two days, and are scarce at that. Hotel rooms with windows on Pennsylvania avenue are rented for the days at $50 a day and there are no more to be had. The furniture houses are working overtime delivering cots and mattresses to boarding and rooming houses, and $5 a night for a cot to sleep on, in a room full of cots, is the standard price of accommodation for those who want to save money.

GUBERNATORIAL BEE BUZZES ABOUT W. E. T.

"Shall Gladly Follow Wherever That Way Leads" Opines Congressman.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Reports linking his name with the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination next fall were complacently received by Representative William E. Tuttle, of the Fifth Congressional District, yesterday. He believes, and says so, that he is not beset by any "gnawing ambition," and that the Gubernatorial situation will work itself out to the satisfaction of the party.

When Mr. Tuttle was questioned about the reports this morning, he refused to become disturbed. He contented himself with making this statement:

"It is a very great compliment my friends back in New Jersey are paying me in discussing me as a possible nominee of my party for Governor. I have not had the remotest personal connection with this discussion, and am not aware of any gnawing ambition, and am too absorbed with my present public duties to be diverted by the dangling honor of the Governorship.

"Party sentiment will find its own means of expression, and a wise leadership will follow that expression. I shall gladly follow wherever that way leads."

TUTTLE'S VIEW OF ONE CENT POSTAGE

Our Congressman Beseiged for Lower Mail Rate Expresses Opinion.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Agitation in favor of reducing the rate on first-class postal matter from two to one cent is becoming quite lively these days. Practically all the members of the House are receiving letters and telegrams urging them to support the Weeks bill, which is designed to bring this about.

From Newark there have come several communications favoring the legislation—including a letter from the Newark Hardware Supply Association, which has adopted the slogan that "Half Your Postage Is a Tax"—to Representative Tuttle, who is a member of the committee on postoffices and post roads. He is strong for the reduction.

"My business experience teaches me," he said, in reply to the Newark association, "that the lower rate is possible of attainment with a wise and efficient reorganization of this great business department, but a scientific reorganization seems impossible among all the conflicting interests that are represented in Congress. I believe that the lower rate is all the burden that the correspondence of business should bear, but the cold facts of receipts and expenditures make the proposed change only another reform to be hoped for.

"It is estimated that the surplus arising from the two-cent postage is $58,000,000 annually. There is annual loss of $30,000,000 on rural free delivery and $20,000,000 on the carrying of second-class matter at the present rate of one cent a pound.

"You must recognize the simple business problem involved, and its solution is in bringing the conflicting interests together on a basis of exact justice."

FOR THE BOYS.

Charles R. Bostwick, director of Parker Field, will talk to the boys of Plainfield on "Scoutcraft" at the Y. M. C. A. on Saturday morning. There will be a reel of interesting motion pictures thrown on the screen for the benefit of the boys. C. William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., has arranged this meeting in connection with his weekly rallies and extends an invitation to all boys to be present.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

EGGS IN CROUSTADES.

EGGS may be served in croustades of bread, rice, potatoes or pastry. The bread croustades are stamped in diamonds, rounds or other forms with a cutter. When shaped take the point of a sharp knife and mark a line a half inch from the edges. Then scoop out the bread inside the lines so that these will hold the egg.

Pastry croustades are shaped from ordinary puff paste and then baked. Patty cases are often substituted for them.

Making the Cases.

Potato croustades may be made of mashed potatoes, given firmness before baking by brushing with egg yolk diluted with milk.

Plain rice croustades are made in much the same way. Rolls are sometimes used as croustades instead of bread.

Eggs in Bread Croustades.—Slice the bread about two inches thick, then shape with the cutter. After bread rounds are shaped put on a pan in the oven and brown. When ready to use immerse quickly in hot salted water and then break one egg in the center of each and place small pieces of bacon around the edge. Put it in the oven and bake until it is as firm as you like it.

Croustades of Eggs With Cheese.—Slice the bread an inch thick and cut in squares. Butter these and let them toast in the oven. Beat six eggs well, put a tablespoonful of butter in the double boiler and turn in the eggs. Cook till creamy, but not lumpy or tough. This means slow cooking. Stir in six tablespoonfuls of Swiss cheese grated, one spoonful at a time, and stirring till entirely mixed. Add two tablespoonfuls of cream and half a spoonful of butter. Pour this over the toasted bread.

A Cereal Crust.

Rice Croustades and Eggs.—Take a half pound of rice, parboil in water for about six minutes, then drain. Rinse in cold water. Pour a pint of nice chicken broth into a saucepan and add the rice to it, together with an ounce of butter and a tablespoonful of salt. Cook untill tender and then add three tablespoonfuls of grated cheese—Parmesan or domestic—and the yolks of two eggs. Spread the mixture in a buttered baking pan, allowing it to be about two inches deep. When it is cold take a round cutter and cut out in pieces two inches in diameter. Remove the centers, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, brush with beaten eggs and sprinkle with more breadcrumbs. Fry in deep, hot fat until golden brown. Drain on paper and fill each center with a poached egg.

Anna Thompson.

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

Skirts that give a panel effect at the front are extremely becoming both for between seasons and for spring wear. This one is fine for the small woman and for young girls, and it is given a stunning touch by the shaping of the panel, but there are figures to which the perfectly straight lines are better suited, and in such cases the extension can be cut off and the panel left plain.

For the sixteen-year-old size the skirt will require four and five-eighths yards of material twenty-seven inches wide. The width of the skirt at the bottom is two and five-eighths yards when the plaits are laid.

This May Manton pattern is cut in sizes for girls of sixteen and eighteen years of age. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 749, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

MOTHERS' WORK

Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association. Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.
Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, Mrs. Jos. Smith, Mrs. Wm. M. Sandford, Jr.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Chestnut Street School was held on Tuesday, February 18. The formation of a charity organization in the association was reported. This has for sub-committees clothes, visiting, sewing and sunshine. The association voted to join the Congress of Mothers. A "grateful box" has been placed at the door during meetings. Gifts of money from those who have been helped can be placed therein.

A loan library of books on subjects of interest to the association is in charge of one of the members. The president recommended the book "Plant and Abnormal Children and How They Grow."

Major Irwin, of Elizabeth, county probation officer, addressed the meeting on the care of the feeble-minded and on probation. There were about sixty members present. Tea was served.

The "acquaintance party" given by the officers of the High School Association to the members of committees and teachers, Monday evening, was a great success. A short program consisting of vitaphone solos and recitations was most enjoyable. Mrs. Gustafson amused the audience with Uncle Remus stories and Miss Pauline Gates with monologues. Linsay Best principal of the school, spoke of his great interest in the association and what he hoped would be the outcome of the work. Mrs. William M. Sandford, chairman of the State Parent Teacher extension committee, made a brief address, giving encouragement and enthusiasm to the new association. Refreshments were served by the social committee. A social hour followed, giving an opportunity to the working force of the association to become better acquainted with each other and the teachers, nearly all of whom were present.

The social centre committee, under the direction of the Board of Education, is planning a meeting on social centre work to be held in the High School Auditorium, March 14. Mr. Collier, of the Playground Commission, New York city; Mr. Kiernan, supervisor of social centre work and Mr. Bergen, president of the citizens' extension committee, Jersey City, will be the speakers. The Board of Education has already started the social centre movement in this city by opening the Washington School building each Saturday evening for social dancing and lectures. A volunteer corps of chaperones has been organized and a committee of young women has taken charge of the music. In connection with this a committee on lectures will provide lectures on civics and other subjects preceding the dancing. Great interest is manifested on the part of those who attend. All who are interested in the work are invited to visit the Washington School, Saturday evenings.

A fitting costume for our school girl should take into consideration the physical needs of the child. The school-girl is growing rapidly, her bodily development is necessarily affected by confinement in the school room and mental application. It should not further be impeded by improper clothing. Especially should articles of clothing which exert a pressure on any part of the body be condemned. For our public school girls a uniform seems impossible. Many parents whose children attend the city schools are already making every sacrifice in order to give them an education. In lieu of uniforms a one piece gown of cotton, linen or wool, made simply, with very little trimming suggests itself as the best substitute. Let the girl herself understand that absolute cleanliness of person and neatness of detail in dress count for far more in attractiveness than showy gowns or elaborate coiffures. Let simplicity, moderation and neatness be the watchword for school-girls' dressing, regulating gowns, coiffures, shoes and hats alike then shall they not go far astray. The women teachers, as a rule, set an admirable example of appropriate dress in their school-rooms.

JUNIORS' FAIR.

Plainfield and Benevolent Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., were well represented last night at the fair being held in the Company K Armory by the degree teams of the Franklin and Somerset Councils this week. The crowd last night was larger than any of those on previous nights. The returns at the door showed that 500 tickets had been taken.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gannon, of West Fourth street, are the parents of a boy born on Monday.

THREE GOVERNORS FOR JERSEY IN THREE DAYS

Trenton, Feb. 27.—Jersey will have the unique experience of having three different Governors within as many days.

With the resignation of President-elect Wilson the Senate and House in joint session on Saturday will inaugurate President of the Senate James Fielder as acting Governor and again on Monday, Speaker of the House Taylor will become Jersey's executive when acting Governor Fielder goes to the inauguration at Washington.

INCOME REPORTS MUST BE FILED BY MARCH 1

Saturday will be the last day in which reports of the net income of corporations can be filed with the collector of internal revenue. Nearly 75 per cent. of the 8,000 corporations in this district, which includes all of northern New Jersey, have filed their reports. Those failing to comply with the law that requires the figures to be in by March 1, will be subject to a fine of $1,000, and an increase of 50 per cent, in tax, if their incomes are open to taxation.

Incomes are taxed now at the rate of 1 per cent, for all incomes over $5,000 for the year. There are 2,000 such corporations in the district. The tax last year amounted to $1,036,000.

New Brunswick, Feb. 27.—Members of New Brunswick Truck Company, who resigned upon not being able to agree with the fire committee of Common Council as to the appointment of auto drivers, are selling the possessions of the company, most of the goods being purchased by members as souvenirs. Four beds have been placed in the truck house for the use of Fire Chief Harry J. Francis and the drivers of the auto truck and auto engine that will be received by Liberty Hose Company. George Kuhn, Jr., and John Deitze, members of Liberty Hose Company, have been selected as drivers for the apparatus.

ON TO WASHINGTON.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 27.—The first of the many changes in the State House incidental to the changes in the Governor's office on Saturday came when Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to Governor Wilson, resigned to arrange his private affairs preparatory to assuming duties in Washington as private secretary to the President after inauguration. Warren Johnson, of Trenton, will accompany Mr. Tumulty as his personal stenographer.

FIREMEN'S STRIKE.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

New York, Feb. 27.—Albert Phillips and A. W. Atterbury, the two arbitrators appointed by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and the Board of Railway Managers, announced this morning that they had been unable to agree on a third man as arbitrator to consider the demands of firemen on the 54 eastern railroads for higher wages and better hours. Under the Erdman arbitration act the two officials had five days in which to choose the third man.

WOULD GIVE UP ADRIANOPLE.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

London, Feb. 27.—A despatch from St. Petersburg says that confirmation has been received of the statement that the Ottoman Government has expressed its willingness to surrender the fortress of Adrianople. Russia, despatch added, had declined to support the demand by Bulgaria for a war indemnity from Turkey.

Two palefaces were made Redmen last night when the degrees were conferred on them at the meeting of the Miantonomo Tribe, I. O. R. M. A social time was held and corn and venison were served by the good and welfare committee. Speeches were made by Chief of Records, Past Sachem Charles L. Holstein and Past Sachem Peter Sheridan, songs were sung by Past Sachem Charles L. Holloway, Past Sachem Thomas N. Parson and brother brave Joseph Wallis. Peter Sheridan will be the delegate and Past Sachem Charles L. Holstein will be the alternate to the Great Council to be held in Atlantic City next Wednesday.

WILLIAM C. SMITH, JR., HAD BIRTHDAY PARTY

A party of fifty friends gathered at the home of William C. Smith, Jr., on Watchung avenue, last night to assist him in celebrating his birthday anniversary and they made merry until the early hours of this morning playing games, singing and enjoying instrumental music. Eleven tables at which "500" was played were kept busy all the fore part of the evening and the prizes for this game were won as follows: Women's awards—first, Mrs. Kype; second, Mrs. Walter E. Heidloff; third, Mrs. William C. Smith, Jr., and fourth, Mrs. Gibbons; Men's awards—first, Harold Cook; second, John Carr; third, Robert Cline, and fourth, Allen Codrington.

The guests presented Mr. Smith with a handsome fountain pen and the host responded with a brief speech thanking his friends for the token of their esteem and said that every time he used the pen he would be reminded of the split and friends who prompted it. Mr. Smith sang a number of selections and also rendered several pieces on the piano.

SEVENTH-DAY BAPTIST ENJOY THEIR SUPPER

"At the Sign of the Cocked Hat" everybody stopped and supped at the Seventh-Day Baptist church last night, where they found the waitresses dressed in colonial costumes. The refreshment committee of which Miss Mildred Green was chairman, served the diners while a program of colonial entertainment was being arranged by Mrs. Charles Naegle, chairman of the social committee.

After the dinner the guests enjoyed Mrs. Neagle's life representation of "The Girls of All Ages." Those taking part in the tableaux were the Misses Stephana Shaw, Ruth Maxson, Ethel Titsworth, Madella and Helen Ford, Dorothy Hubbard, Celia Cottrell, Mary Hunting and Helen Rogers, and Mrs. Belle Randolph, as the "Belle of Saratoga," and Mrs. Charles Titsworth and Mrs. William C. Hubbard as George and Martha Washington.

CO. K. PREPARES.

Recruit drills have been held each night this week by different non-commissioned officers of Company K to get the new men in shape for the Inauguration Parade in which the local company will participate next Tuesday afternoon. Last night twelve men assembled in the administrative rooms for an hour's drill and Corporal Augustus Van Arsdale put them through the preliminary exercises and the manual of arms. Tonight the local boys will go to Elizabeth and review before some of the State officers. The company will assemble in the armory at 7:20 o'clock and then proceed to the Plainfield station where they will take the 7:41 train.

BASEBALL PLAYERS OPPOSE SALARY CUT

International League Clubs Face Crisis in Putting New Limit in Force.

Club owners of the International League are facing a crisis in the shape of a ball players' strike, due to the enforcement of the new salary limit. With the exception of the Newark club, which has signed all of its men, the entire circuit is up against a serious revolt. C. T. Chapin, owner of the Rochester club, has taken the bull by the horns. He has sent a telegram to each Rochester player still unsigned that unless he comes into the fold on or before March 1 he will be suspended for the rest of the year.

The salary limit in the International is $6,000 a month, arbitrarily fixed by the National Asociation of Minor Leagues and subsequently approved by the National Commission. Before the International swallowed the pill several of the more influential clubs fought bitterly to have the plan abolished, but when it came to a vote of the clubs in that circuit they found themselves in the minority. The Jersey City club is a fair example of the trouble brought about by the new limit. Last year the Jersey City club's payroll called for $8,000 in salaries each month, or $48,000 for the entire season. Under the new arrangement the Skeeters must pay $12,000 less this year or be severely disciplined by organized baseball.

James J. Lillis, president of the Jersey City club, and his new partner, Thomas Fogerty, said yesterday that they still opposed the $6,000 limit and that they believed each club should pay as much salary as might be necessary to satisfy reasonable demands from the players. Lillis pointed out that he had been compelled to reduce the pay of nearly all of his men and that he was experiencing as much trouble in getting them into line as any of the other clubs in the circuit. The Jersey City club so far has signed Manager Schlafly, Jack Knight, Wells, Mains, Thompson, Viebahn, Purtell and Doescher, with Bradley, Breen, McHale, Carroll, Kelly, Meyers, Lonergan and others on strike. Contracts were sent to all the players in January. The Skeeters are booked to sail for Bermuda next Tuesday.

Under baseball law the International club owners are powerless. They have offered their recalcitrant players as much salary as possible and now must await results. President Barrow, it is understood, is considerably exercised over the unpleasant situation.

LOCAL SCOUTS IN SPORTSMAN'S SHOW

No. 5, of This City, Will Climb Barriers at New York Tomorrow Night.

Wetumpka Sentinel Troop, No. 5, of the First Presbyterian church, this city, has been picked by A. R. Forbush, Deputy National Field Commissioner, of the Boy Scout Headquarters, to compete in the barrier climb at the Madison Square Garden in New York, tomorrow night. This event will be a feature of the annual Sportsman show which opens tonight.

Scoutmaster Allen E. Beals, First Assistant Scout Master Wendell C. Glover, Second Assistant Scoutmaster A. V. Searing, Jr., and Third Assistant Scoutmaster E. W. Poineer, who has been the special instructor in scout athletics for the troop since last summer, will take the boys, numbering thirty-five, to New York in full uniform with the national, troop patrol and signal flags. They will meet at the North Avenue station in time to catch the 6:40 train to New York and those living in Netherwood will meet the train at that station at 6:43. Assembly will be sounded on the bugles at 6:35 sharp. Those boys who will entrain at Netherwood station will report to Second Class leader John Causbrook and will place themselves under his orders.

The barrier team is composed of First Class Merit Leader William Thompson, Second Class Leader John Causbrook and Tenderfoots Byron Farland, John Cartright, Joel Angerbauer, George Jackson, Carlton Dunham, Paul Pope, George Walsh, George Jackson and substitutes, A. S. Dealaman, Alfred Smalley, Stockton Burr and First Class Scout Charles E. Rice.

The time in which this team can get over a sheer ten foot wall, including the last man, has been reduced from the three minutes and nineteen seconds established at the Scout Show given by Troop 5 last summer by more than half and yet when Commissioner Forbush witnessed the feat last summer he said he knew of only one other troop in the whole Boy Scout organization that could come anywhere near it. That was a Chinese Troop in New York. Since then, other troops from different parts of the country have come forward with better records and these have been gathered together to establish a national championship in this event.

The parents of the members of Troop 5, the Scout Commissioner Charles R. Bostwick and other scoutmasters and members of other troops of this city, as well as the officers and members of the First Presbyterian church Sunday-school and church are invited to accompany the local troop to the show on Friday night.

At the meeting of the Wetumpka Sentinel Troop on Tuesday night, three applications for membership were received. Plans are underway for a big scout rally to take place some time next summer in this city similar to that which will be held in East Orange on Saturday afternoon, April 5, to which all the local troops have been invited. Plans are also underway for Troop 5 to give a sketch of "A Day in a Scout Camp" for the benefit of the Italian Mission on March 17.

Scouts who expect to take the trip to New York on Friday night will report direct to their leaders and rally under their patrol flags. Canteens and haversacks will not be carried.

LOCAL SCHOOLBOYS IN CLINTON MEET

Several P. H. S. Track Men Are Planning to Enter Metropolitan Event.

Plainfield High School athletes who are planning to enter the De Witt Clinton High School meet in New York city at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, Friday evening, March 7, will have some of the same runners to contend with that they lined up against at Jersey City last Saturday afternoon. Alvah T. Meyer, the famous sprinter of the Irish-American A. C., has also sent in his entry to run in the 220 yard handicap open to ex-members of De Witt Clinton and this race will likely be one of the most interesting of the meet.

It is understood that Al Meyer, of Central High School, who hung up a new record for interscholastic competition in the mile event in which Alfred Day, of this city, was a contestant, has filed his application for entry, as has also Ezra Wenz, the national two mile champion, who came in second in this event. As a feature of the meet, a special three mile run open to A. A. U. athletes is offered. In this event Harry Smith, G. Strobino, Harry Jordon and a host of notable distance runners have expressed their intentions of competing. Besides these there are two interscholastic events, similar to those in the Dickerson meet, a 220 yard dash and a mile run.

EXPERTS TO WRITE FOR DAILY PRESS

New Feature of the Sporting Page Will be Ushered by Jack Martin Saturday.

Beginning next Saturday afternoon the Daily Press will publish a weekly story on some live sporting topic written by some local authority on athletics activily engaged in the furtherance of the same in this city. These stories will be of a general nature dealing separately with baseball, basketball, hockey, tennis, golf and gymnastics and will be of interest to every one interested in sports.

Jack Martin, the New York American League team's shortstop, who makes his home in Plainfield, will introduce the new feature with a discussion on baseball next Saturday. One better fitted to deal with this branch of athletics and one who has had a wider experience would be hard to find. Jack is well known to every sport enthusiast in this city and his article will be a source of intense interest to all.

TEACHERS TAUGHT SOME BASKETBALL

Professors Reign Supreme in Classroom but Bow to Seniors on Court.

Although it took sixteen players to overcome the comedy resorted to by the Plainfield High School Faculty basketball team in its annual game with the Senior class aggregation on the P. H. S. court yesterday afternoon at the end of forty minutes of continuous laughter the "profs" were in the rear by a count of 23 to 14. Various incidents featured the contest to act as fun provokers and what the teachers failed to accomplish along the basket caging line they made up for in spilling their opponents and forcing the dignified Seniors to go through a number of embarrassing movements in order to keep on their feet any length of time.

Many and original were the costumes brought into use by the faculty members in an effort to produce cases of "cold feet" among the senior ranks, one of the sedate professors being rigged out as a clown and another had a "real" basketball suit on, a thing that did most toward producing a scare among the fourth classmen. In the first half, which savored of fun from start to finish, the teachers came out with the bigger end of the score in their possession, claiming a count of 12 to 7, just five points to the good. Their credits rapidly diminished in the final period, however, when they laid their joking aside and resorted to basketball alone and it was not long before the mighty army of seniors rushed in to turn the trick had accomplished their end and passed the school room kings. Each of the sixteen Seniors just got started, or warmed up, when he was yanked out to make room for another aspirant who had an account he thought he would take an opportunity to square up with the "profs" and was given his chance of seven minutes in which to do his worst.

Individual starring cropped out at times but every member of either team did his utmost to bring home the victory, especially the Seniors, who were out to secure revenge against the teachers who administered such a decisive walloping to the graduating class last year, and they got their dessert, good and plenty. The "profs" were in the running at all times and in many ways and positions, but failed to stop the school boys when they once got under full sail.

"MAC" SAYS

P. H. S. Seniors beat the faculty! And they did it with a little to spare at that. The contest was one of the mirth provoking kind, a feature that is so characteristic of these annual games.

North Plainfield High School was the first of the two interscholastic league combatants to break the rest spell after that gruelling struggle on Saengerbund court last Saturday afternoon. The boroughites went to Westfield yesterday.

The N. P. H. S. coach is a firm believer in hard work and his team will probably be kept right on edge on frequent doses of this tonic.

Manager Hetfield, of the Y. M. C. A. Ajax, and Manager Leighs, of Hope Chapel, were seen inspecting the Saengerbund Hall court last night. Various reasons have been advocated for their frequent visits to the scene of the third game. They might be watching for a warm spell to melt the ice on the borough court. Then roller skates would have to be substituted for the frozen water variety.

Only two more days remain until that Ajax-Hope Chapel series is decided. Wonder who will take home the silver mug?

Tomorrow night the second game of the State feminine championship will be decided on Saengerbund Hall court.

Watch this page for Jack Martin's article on the national game in Saturday's issue. Jack throws out some excellent advice and inside knowledge.

Nothing has been heard from Manager Brodziak, of the Scotch Plains Parish House quintets, in regard to his Saturday night bill, but it is understood that the 'Plains court will not be used this week-end.

Bowling is taking a prominent place in local sporting circles this year. There are teams of all calibres and some star pinners have cropped out during the present season.

At Westfield last night, a number of bowling enthusiasts had pins set up in the middle of the main street, practising toppling them over. Although witnesses saw no very high scores chalked up they had to admit that the bowlers were getting in a little extra practise.

Ashley Burner, the star guard of the N. P. H. S. basketball team, was severely injured at Westfield last night in the boroughites' game with the Mt. Ararat representatives. He had the misfortune to push his arm through a pane of glass and cut the limb from the wrist to the elbow.

A number of Plainfield High School athletes will probably enter the Rutgers College interscholastic meet to be held May 31. Last year the local school was one of the point winners with Franklin Newell in the high jump.

N. P. H. S. PLAYERS WON AT WESTFIELD

Score Their Second Defeat of the Season Over the High School Five.

Accompanied by a large delegation of rooters, the North Plainfield High School basketeers went to Westfield yesterday afternoon to engage in a court battle with the representatives of the Mt. Ararat High School. The boroughites exhibited their same sterling article of basketball that they put up against Plainfield last Saturday and walked away with a 40 to 27 victory.

The condition of the court which was enclosed by a net and the position of one of the goals greatly handicapped the visitors but their speedy team work and accurate shooting ability while in possession of the good goal overcame this difficulty. Burner and Pearsall suffered severe lacerations when they ran through a pane of glass on one side of the gym, and Pearsall, who is captain of the Westfield team, was forced to retire.

SWEDISH SECRETARY ON ACTION IN THORPE CASE

James E. Sullivan, secretary of the American Committee for the Olympic Games, yesterday received a reply from the Swedish Olympic Games Committee in regard to the Jim Thorpe case, the details of which were transmitted to Sweden by Mr. Sullivan as soon as it became known that Thorpe was ineligible to represent the United States in the recent games at Stockholm. The Swedish Committee will take up the matter for full consideration at its next meeting.

In a personal letter to Mr. Sullivan from Kristian Hollstrom, secretary of the Olympic Committee, the latter takes occasion to commend the Amateur Athletic Union for its prompt action in the Thorpe case, and adds the wish that other nations will be as prompt whenever a similar case comes up.

Blimm came in for close second honors jumping eighteen feet, seven inches and Keller was third just one inch behind the runner up. BASKETBALL TITLES IN WEEK END GAMES

Two Important Contests Due to Be Played at Saengerbund Friday & Saturday.

Two games of basketball, one girls and one boys, will be decided during the coming two days on the Saengerbund Hall court and each of the contests is due to decide a championship and both will probably evoke more than passing notice. Tomorrow night the Nonpareil girls' quintet, of this city, will meet the Trenton Y. W. C. A. maidens in the second contest for the New Jersey feminine basketball title. The initial contest was played at the Capitol City and resulted in a two point win for the Trentonians and in the event of their annexing the second contest the title will become theirs, but if the locals win tomorrow night a third contest will be necessary.

Saturday night on the same court, the Hope chapel and Y. M. C. A. Ajax will meet in the third and deciding game of their series to decide the winner of the Ritz loving cup offered for competition between these two fast male teams. The game will probably be a hot one from every point of view as the court on which the contest is scheduled to be played is a neutral one, neither team having played a game on it, and the respective contenders represent two of the most evenly matched aggregations in this city.

HUNTING AND FISHING

The Legislature takes a rest until March 10 and meanwhile there will be a few more bills drawn for presentation at that time. While there will be several changes in the laws there will be very few that will injure the sports of hunting and fishing.

There will be a strict administration of the life preserver law with small boat owners this year. Extra inspectors are to be assigned to this work and they will cover all motorboat ports in the country.

Many fishermen are now getting in their supply of hooks and sinkers for the coming season. An early season is expected and better selections can be made when the stock in the stores are new than by waiting until the fishing season is upon us.

The Senate appointed a committee yesterday to visit the State game farm at Forked River today and report to that body at the next session as to the result of the trip. The committee appointed by President Fielder was Senators Colgate, Lew, Edge and Reed. The object of the trip is to gather information regarding some of the proposed improvements contemplated. Incidentally the Senators will go out on the bay and try their skill at shooting wild geese.

The bill to permit the killing of starling was defeated in the Senate yesterday. But two votes were in favor of the bill while seventeen were recorded against it, notwithstanding that it had passed the Assembly. One of the arguments against the bill was that it would permit boys and reckless gunners to roam around the country shooting everything under the pretense that they are shooting starling. The Audubon Society also protested against the bill as a destructive measure and when the announcement was made by one of the Senators that the society had appealed to him to vote against the bill it brought others to the same way of thinking. Senator Colgate described the bill before the vote was taken.

Here are pictured Mrs. Francisco I. Madero, Sr., and the Misses Angela and Mercedes Madero, mother and sisters respectively of Francisco I. Madero, Jr., who is believed to be at the bottom of the new revolts in Mexico, which threaten a far greater revolution than that which has just occurred. In the belief that General Huerta, now provisional President, intends to exercise his iron hand policy to the limit, the various members of the Madero family who have not already left Mexico are making hasty flights to other countries. However, the Maderos are determined that sooner or later they shall regain their power and be able at least to avenge the deposed President's death.

Juan Sanchez Azcona, who was secretary to Francisco I. Madero, Sr., it is constant, has been put to death.

BASEBALL NOTES

During the past ten years no less than fifty-three men have managed clubs in the American and National Leagues. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates; Connie Mack, of the Athletics, and John McGraw, of the Giants, are the only managers who are now piloting the same teams which they were leading in 1903. Some of the fifty-three varieties have drifted from one club to another in the same circuit, and have occasionally transferred their operations to the other league. The clubs, the managers and the order of their succession follow:

National League—New York, John McGraw; Pittsburgh, Fred Clarke; Chicago, Frank Selle, Frank Chance, Johnny Evers; Philadelphia, Charley Zimmer, Hugh Duffy, Billy Murray, Charley Dooin; St. Louis, Patsy Donovan, Charley Nichols, Jimmy Burke, John McCloskey, Roger Bresnahan, Miller Huggins; Cincinnati, Joe Kelley, Ned Hanlon, John Ganzel, Clark Griffith, Hank O'Day, Joe Tinker; Brooklyn, Ned Hanlon, Patsy Donovan, Harry Lumley, Bill Dahlen; Boston, Al Buckenberger, Fred Tenney, Joe Kelley, Frank Bowerman, Harry Smith, Fred Lake, Fred Tenny, John Kling, George Stallings.

Evansville has dropped out of the Kitty League and will re-enter the Central League the coming season.

The Chicago Cubs will play ten games with various hotel ball teams while the team is training in Florida.

Lew McAllister, "Gabby" Street and Charley Schmidt, three old-time big league back-stops, will work in the Southern League next season.

Del Gainor, of the Detroit Tigers, says that Sam Crawford and others need not worry about playing first base, for he intends to do so himself next season.

Pitcher Otto Hess has signed for his second season with the Boston Nationals. Hess won eight straight games last year and also pitched a no-hit and a 19-inning game.

New York fans are discussing pro and con Hal Chase's ability to play second base. A left-hander covering the keystone position of the infield will be a decided novelty.

Wirt Cannell, the well-known ball player, was recently appointed coach of the Tufts College nine. He formerly played with Boston, Toledo, Toronto, Allentown, Williamsport and Reading.

Jack Egan, former member of Ban Johnsons staff of umpires, is now a jewelry manufacturer at Providence, R. I. Jack claims that he is making more money selling jewelry than he did in baseball.

Back in 4900 a young man joined the Cubs as a pitcher, but was cast adrift. Next week the same young man, who is none other than "Rabbit" Bresnahan, will rejoin the Cubs as the highest salaried catcher in baseball.

Manager Dick Smith, of the Scranton New York State League team, is strong for Three-I players, the league in which he was formerly a manager. He recently purchased Shortstop Hill and Outfielder Donahue from the Quincy Club.

THE PLAINFIELD THEATRE

William A. Brady, who can always be relied upon for the best, is sending us "Bought and Paid For" by George Broadhurst, recognized in the theatrical world as the most interesting work from this author's pen. It seems to be alike a man's play and a woman's play, appealing with pretty nearly equal force to both sexes. Most women believe that they would do as Virginia Stafford does when her millionaire husband comes home over-charged with champagne and forces his caresses upon her. On the other hand, most men think that while in Robert Stafford's place they would never submit to flat dictation on the point of swearing off champagne forever. Thus there is something for most married couples (and some intending marriage) to discuss over the supper table after the performance, and discussion is good for the mind. The play has been one of the pronounced successes of the past two seasons. It is being brought here by a company which everywhere this season has been greeted by big houses and given great pleasure. "Bought and Paid For" will appear at the Plainfield theatre, Saturday afternoon and evening.

There is no more famous big game sportsman in America today than Paul J. Rainey, a young man of wealth, who conquered the animals of the Far North before venturing into the African jungle. Mr. Rainey equipped the costly expedition, and with J. C. Hemment, an expert photographer, who had previously accompanied him on a trip to the Arctic, and two big hunters, penetrated the heart of the Nairobi country—the wildest in all Africa—for the purpose of photographing the wild beasts in their native haunts. The thrilling and educational pictures taken on the trip will be seen at the Plainfield theatre on Friday afternoon and night, March 7. Prof. Edmund Heller, of the Smithsonian Institute, accompanied this expedition to preserve specimens, and to direct the trap-setting when it was found desirable to capture the wild animals alive, and Dr. M. E. Johnstone, of Lexington, Ky., was also of the party. The proceeds will go toward the million dollar endowment fund for Smith College.

The Volunteer Bible Class of the Park Avenue Baptist church will hold a sale of home-made cake and candy at Scheuer's grocery store Saturday morning, the purpose being to raise a fund to pay off a certain indebtedness.

PENNILESS HE'LL HIKE WITH BRIDE

Couple Married in New Brunswick Yesterday Start on a Five Years' Tramp.

ON A $5,000 WAGER

Hassler Must Be a Vegetarian and Wife a Meat Eater—They Must Register in Every Town and Get Money Without Begging.

New Brunswick, Feb. 28.—Hubert G. A. Hassler, twenty, and Mabel V. Broadie, sixteen, were married here yesterday by the Rev. William W. Knox, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in the presence of the bride's mother and the pastor's wife. This morning Hassler in khaki and the bride in hiking dress visited Mayor Gaynor at the City Hall, in New York. Having obtained his receipt for a letter addressed to him, they set out on a honeymoon walk that is scheduled to last five years. If they do what they undertake they are promised $5,000 each from the Majestic Athletic Association of Jackson, Miss.

The declared purpose of the contract they hold is a test of the merits of meat and vegetable foods as a basis for physical endurance. Hassler must cling strictly to a vegetable diet, and his wife to a meat diet throughout the trip. Proof that they comply with this condition will be furnished by restaurant slips, which must be filled out wherever they eat. These will be pasted in scrap-books and forwarded to Jackson.

The contract provides that they must register in every town and city through which they pass and obtain a certificate of having done so from some one in authority. They must have a similar certificate from athletic clubs and Y. M. C. A. associations. In every capital they must get a certificate on official paper with the State seal. In Washington they must obtain the signature of the President or his secretary and of one Congressman from each State.

They start out penniless, cannot work for wages, sell anything or beg. The contract permits them to make speeches wherever they like and to accept voluntary contributions, but not to take up collections. They must visit the capital of each State. Hassler will carry a suit case strapped to his back bearing placards in red letters telling the conditions of the test.

Their first official stop will be Hartford, and they will be due back on the steps of the City Hall five years from today.

JAMES E. MARTINE IS HIT AS FORGETFUL

Quoted Smoot on Kenyon Bill, Samuel Wilson Insists in Letter.

Whether or not Senator James E. Martine quoted his colleague, Senator Reed Smoot, of Utah, in declining to give his support to the Kenyon bill prohibiting the interstate shipment of liquor, is a question that the New Jersey Senator is engaged with Samuel Wilson, of the State Anti-Saloon League, in a rather caustic controversy.

It seems that Mr. Wilson recently quoted Mr. Martine as having quoted Mr. Smoot to the effect that the passage of the Kenyon bill would be extremely disastrous. Mr. Martine is said to have flatly repudiated the quotation ascribed to him by Mr. Wilson, whereupon the anti-liquor crusader countered with a retort in the form of a letter to Mr. Martine which the writer made public. In the letter Mr. Wilson names three witnesses to the incident that the Senator has repudiated.

FOUR HUNDRED ATE THE TURKEY SUPPER

Warren Chapel Society Realizes a Snug Sum for a Mortgage Fund.

Over 400 people attended the annual supper of the Warren chapel Missionary and Aid Society in the church rooms last night. Covers were laid for 300 people but at 7 o'clock over 400 had purchased tickets and the doors had to be closed and only those holding tickets were admitted after that hour. The affair was conducted for the benefit of the mortgage fund and a tidy sum was realized. In the dining hall the yellow color scheme prevailed, yellow jonquils and yellow candle shades being conspicuous in the artistic decorating plan. Turkey was the most popular dish on the menu.

An entertainment was provided consisting of instrumental and vocal musical selections in which the following took part: Whitney Frazee, cornet; Bert Harold, piano; Arthur Mosher, violin, and Miss Bertha Keller, piano. A feature was the darkey dialect stories told by Mrs. George H. Campbell. Mrs. J. O. McKelvey and Theodore J. Martin composed the general supervising entertainment committee.

These committees were in charge: Reception—Mrs. J. O. McKelvey, Mrs. R. O. Stewart, Mrs. J. H. Snyder, and Joseph W. Gavett; tickets—George Hoagland; coat room—Jacob Kettering, chairman, Theodore Martin and John Schenck; dining room—Mrs. Benjamin Moore, chairman, Mrs. John Green and Mrs. Gibson Smith; fireless cookers—Mrs. J. LOCAL SCOUT MASTER WILL SPEAK AT Y. M. C. A. RALLY

C. William Bingeman, boys' secretary of the local Y. M. C. A., has arranged for another one of his weekly rally meetings to be held in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium tomorrow morning. "Scoutcraft" will be the subject of this week's meeting and Charles R. Bostwick, the local scout master and director of Parker Field, will deliver a short talk to the boys on the scout and his habits and a reel of motion pictures will be shown which will probably have something to do with certain phases of the work. The affair is free to boys of this and surrounding cities and all are invited.

RETURNED HOME TO FIND TWO INTRUDERS

Mrs. Dalley Refused to Press Complaint When Strange Men Are Arrested.

When Mrs. George Dalley, of 124 North avenue, who had been visiting relatives in Somerville, returned to her home last night, she looked for her door key in its customary hiding place, but she found it gone. Climbing through a rear window, she entered the parlor, where she found two strange men comfortably seated in easy chairs, smoking cigars. They had their shoes off.

The men jumped to their feet as Mrs. Dalley shrieked: "What are you two men doing here?"

"I guess we're in wrong here, Joe," quietly remarked one of the pair. Mrs. Dalley told them she guessed they were and running from the house she summoned Patrolman Daniel J. McDonald. Before the frightened woman, with the policeman, returned to her home, the men had evidently become convinced that there were other places in this world safer than 124 North avenue. They took Mrs. Dalley's door key with them.

Early this morning, however, the two men were arrested while waiting for a train at the North Avenue station and were taken to headquarters. They gave their names as Albert Schaefer and Joseph Emmons, and said they lived in Somerville. Schaefer declared he knew Mrs. Dalley's husband, who is in business in Somerville, and that finding him out when they called to pay him a visit, thought they would wait for him. They handed the key to Mrs. Dalley, who refused to enter a complaint against them, much to the surprise of the police.

NO CAUSE FOR ACTION IN $500 DAMAGE SUIT

Before Judge Walter L. Hetfield, in the District Court yesterday, the trial took place of the suit brought by Stanley Golembowski, of South Second street, against the P. S. C. for $500 damages for injuries he sustained while alighting from a Main Line trolley car between McKinley place and Johnston avenue on Nov. 9. The plaintiff through his counsel, John P. Owens and an interpreter, claimed that the trolley car was started before he could alight, throwing him violently to the ground and injuring him so that he was unable to work for a period of two weeks.

The defense, represented by former Judge Clarence E. Case, brought out the fact that the man himself pulled the bell rope signaling the motorman to stop but the latter continued on as is customary until the next corner was reached and in the meantime Golembowski had tried to get off and had been injured.

The court announced that as Golembowski's injuries were sustained through his own negligence, there was no cause for action.

MAN'S ABSENCE WORRIES WIFE

Says She Has No Idea Where Husband is, But Can't Believe He's a Bigamist.

CASE VERY MYSTERIOUS

Mrs. N. A. Fennimore's Father in Town Again Today — Missing Man's Employer Has Received no Word From Him.

Whether the Frank A. Poling, of Plainfield, whose marriage to Mrs. N. A. Fennimore, a widow of Millington, as announced in the Bernardsville News, is the same Frank A. Poling who is the husband of Mrs. Poling, who lives with eight children at 673 West Fourth street, cannot be absolutely confirmed. The fact remains, however, that on Saturday, February 15, Mrs. Poling's husband left her and her children and she has heard nothing from him since.

Unable to account for the sudden departure of her husband, Mrs. Poling told a reporter today that she can hardly believe that her husband has become a bigamist. Almost heartbroken, she spends much of her time weeping. Her face bears a faraway expression. "The newspaper," she said, "seems to know more of the case than I do. I haven't heard from my husband and I have no idea where he is."

A reporter endeavored to obtain an interview with Charles H. Ames, father of Mrs. Fennimore, at his home in Millington, but his son, the only member of the family at home, said his father had gone to this city. Although an effort was made to locate him here by reporters of the Daily Press, he could not be found. Harry Werner, the West Front street clothier, who employed Mr. Poling, is equally mystified by Poling's strange disappearance. He says he has received no word from his employe.

Although Poling's actions constitute a clear case of desertion, Mrs. Poling has made no complaint to the local authorities. She is evidently living in daily expectancy of receiving some word from her missing spouse, which will clear the mystery of his strange absence.

MANY LIVES LOST IN A HOTEL FIRE

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Omaha, Feb. 28.—The Dewey Hotel was burned here today and reports as yet unconfirmed say that at least thirty-five persons were burned to death.

The Dewey was a second-class hotel. The fire broke out shortly before daylight and swept through the building with such rapidity that the patrons had little chance to escape. Latest estimates of the dead place the number as between thirty and fifty.

The fire threatened to sweep the entire block in which were situated the hotel and the Woodmen of the World Building. After a hard fight it was brought under control. The hotel was at 13th and Farman streets.

The register of the hotel was destroyed and the work of checking up the list of dead has been difficult. The owners of the hotel say that the place was crowded and that a number of persons well known throughout the State were registered there. J. B. Nold, manager of the hotel, says that seventy-five persons perished. The property loss, it is estimated, will amount to more than $1,000,000.

BIRTHDAY PARTY.

Twelve members of the Y. W. C. A. celebrated their birthdays at a party held in the association's rooms last night and afterwards enjoyed a social program. The rooms were adorned with flags and bunting and the table favors were of red, white and blue. A large birthday cake with a representative number of candles occupied the center of the table. Each one of the young women was required to tell a story which was in some way connected with the life or works of the nation's first President and national songs were rendered.

SERMON ON SCOTS.

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, will preach Sunday night on "What Scotland has Done for the Religious Life of the World." The members of Clan Mackenzie, Order Scottish Clans, will attend the service in a body. The communion service will be held in the morning.

Miss Elsie Brown, of Jersey City, who has been spending several days here with friends, has returned home.

Miss Eva Terry, of the North Plainfield School, will attend the meeting of the State Association of History Teachers at Trenton tomorrow.

THEY WANT TO BUILD TWO 'MOVIES' HOUSES

Applicants for Permits Appear Before a Councilmanic Committee.

William H. Abbott, who has made plans for the erection of a moving picture theatre on East Front street, and Harry Dreier, repesenting promoters for a similar theatre on West Front street, appeared before the laws and ordinances committee of the Common Council, last night, to press their plans for permission to build amusement houses. Councilmen Francis J. Blatz and Frederic E. Mygatt were the only two members of the committee present.

There was an informal discussion of plans and the proposition to present a supplement to the building code allowing the building of the moving picture theatres, but nothing was accomplished. It is reported that Mayor Stewart is opposed to increasing the number of such theatres, and the councilmen appear to be guided somewhat by His Honor's position.

Mr. Abbott is willing, he says, to erect a strictly fire-proof structure, asking only one or two concessions. He says that he would make the entrance twenty-five feet, but if Mr. Dreier and his associates are permitted to have an eighteen foot entrance he will ask the same concession. Mr. Abbott's willingness to abide by the twenty-five foot provision, it is said, is proving somewhat of a stumbling block to the other proposition, where an eighteen foot entrance is desired. Both applications will probably be taken up in detail at a full meeting of the Councilmanic committee.

SURPRISED ON FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Blatz, of West Front street, were agreeably surprised by about twenty of their friends last night, who called on the occasion of their fifth anniversary. The affair took the form of a double celebration, it being the third birthday of Francis Blatz, Jr.

Card playing was enjoyed and Mrs. Frederick J. Hughes and Edward Clark entertained with vocal solos. A telephone table was presented by the guests and Mr. Blatz's mother sent a large grandfather's clock as an anniversary present. Prizes were awarded in the card games as follows: Women's prizes—First, Mrs. Hillaire Blatz, and second, Mrs. V. W. Nash, Jr.; men's—first, William Moore; second, Edward Clark, and booby prize, Hillaire Blatz.

SHE DANCED HERSELF INTO MR. FLYNN'S LIFE

While attending a dance in this city about a year ago Michael J. Flynn, of 27 Lexington avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., enjoyed several steps of terpischore with Miss Pauline Maroner, who lived at 448 West Fourth street. The couple became attached to one another and Mr. Flynn asked Miss Maroner if she would like to dance through life with him. She thought she would.

Securing a marriage license several days ago Mr. Flynn induced Miss Maroner to change her name yesterday to Mrs. Michael J. Flynn. The ceremony was performed by City Judge De Meza in his law offices in Park avenue. William V. Nash, Jr., a local lawyer, and Miss Edith Jahn, Judge De Meza's stenographer, were witnesses. After the ceremony a wedding feast was enjoyed in a local restaurant and the newlyweds left for their home in Brooklyn.

Mr. and Mrs. Flynn are each 23 years old. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Maroner.

COURT SETS ASIDE DAVIGO'S SENTENCE

Defendant Had Been Convicted of Running a Speak-easy in This City.

Elizabeth, Feb. 28.—Judge Connolly in the Court of Common Pleas, today, set aside the sentence in the case of the City of Plainfield against Louis Davigo, charged and convicted of the illegal sale of liquor, following the argument on Friday last, when the defendant's counsel, J. P. Owens, sought to show that the evidence in the case did not warrant such a severe penalty. Harry C. Runyon, acting corporation counsel, represented the corporation of Plainfield.

Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn, of Plainfield, was the complainant against Davigo, having arrested him on a charge of illegal sale of liquor, the defendant's place being raided as a speak-easy. No doubt this decision on the part of Judge Connolly will have an important bearing on similar cases that may come before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in Plainfield's city court.

DAY OF PRAYER FOR MISSION FEDERATION

The American Indians and Immigration the Subjects for Discussion.

Missionary work among American Indians and immigrants was discussed yesterday afternoon at the Park Avenue Baptist church at a day-of-prayer meeting of the Federation of Women's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies. The topics, "American Indians," and "Immigration," were the topics of Mrs. Charles Force of the Grace M. E. church, and Mrs. Dunning, of the Congregational church, respectively.

Mrs. Force told of the work of Christianizing the Indians and said many of the old chiefs, who were the most treacherous and uncivilized of their race, are today teaching the word of God. The Cherokes, Creek and Seminole, she declared, are making wonderful progress. Mrs. Dunning, speaking on immigration, told of some appalling conditions existing in the crowded foreign sections of large cities especially New York, and gave a graphic description of the work of bettering these conditions.

The definite work of each denomination toward helping the foreigners was told by the following:

Baptist, Mrs. D. M. Runyon; Methodist Episcopal, Mrs. Noah Fake; Dutch Reformed, Mrs. Royal A. Stout; Protestant Episcopal, Mrs. Charles Smith; Congregational, Mrs. Nielcon; Presbyterian, Miss Julia J. Noll; Seventh-Day Baptist, Miss Anna Stillman. Other topics presented were those concerning Frontier and City Work, the Problem of Race by Mrs. Frank Woodruff, of Trinity, and the Problems of Mormonism by Mrs. H. R. Halloway, of the Crescent Avenue church.

Others who took part in the program: Mrs. D. J. Rapalje, of Trinity; Mrs. G. H. Condict, Hope chapel; Mrs. Reuben Knox, First Baptist; Mrs. W. E. Honeyman, Crescent avenue; Mrs. Webster, of the First M. E.; Mrs. J. C. Pierson, of Monroe Avenue; Mrs. G. R. Maguire and Mrs. Compton, of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Benediction of Most Blessed Sacrament; O Salutaris Hostia, Tantum Ergo; divine praisers: Antiphon, Holy God We Praise Thy Name, recessianal, selected, organ.

PLAN STREET IMPROVEMENTS.

The Councilmanic street committee held a meeting last night, but was unable to accomplish much owing to the fact that Mr. Mygatt, the chairman, was engaged for an hour with the committee on laws and ordinances. There was an informal discussion of plans for street improvements, for which ordinances will be introduced later.

RESIDENTS MAY SEEK INJUNCTION

Aroused Over Decision of Board of Health to Reopen 'Dump' on Myrtle Ave.

THEIR PROTESTS VAIN

Herbert Langford Reviews Some Recent History and Says That Householders May Leave That Section.

Despite the protest made by residents living on Compton avenue, Albert street, West Front street and other parts in that vicinity of the West End against the re-opening of the "dump" on Myrtle avenue, E. W. Henck, of Compton avenue, received a letter from Dr. H. D. Corbusier, of the Board of Health, yesterday, informing him that the Board had decided to open the "dump" immediately and that a responsible man would be placed in charge to see that nothing objectionable is unloaded there. This decision has so incensed residents in the neighborhood that they aim to ask for an injunction against the Board of it carries out its plan. A petition was recently presented to the Common Council protesting against a dump on Myrtle avenue and it was referred to the Board of Health.

Among the residents who are aroused is Herbert Langford, of Compton avenue. He is so bitterly opposed to the re-opening of the "dump" that he declares he will leave no stone unturned in preventing what he calls "an outrage" on the citizens living in his neighborhood.

Mr. Langford recalled to a reporter when the "dump" was open three years ago, at the time Mr. Fisk was mayor. It became such a nuisance, he said, that drastic action was necessary. The place was over-run with rats, the refuse was allowed to burn for days at a time and it was necessary to send the fire department to the place to extinguish blazes. Everything was permitted to be dumped there and the stench and odor was such that people could not sit on their porches in the summer time, he added.

It was this condition that resulted in a delegation of citizens going before the Common Council and entering a protest.

In speaking of the matter last night, Mr. Langford said that there is an impression that the filling in is for the purpose of opening Myrtle avenue into the borough, but he claimed this to be only a hoax, the real reason being, he asserted, that speculators are anxious to have the land filled in so that they can dispose of the property.

Mr. Langford said that one of his neighbors has a clause in his lease to the effect that if the "dump" is reopened, he is privileged to cancel the lease, and he has declared that he will do so and remove elsewhere. Mr. Langford added that he will not continue his residence on Compton avenue if the "dump" is opened again and other residents have informed him, he says, that they will change their residence.

STATE'S FIRE CHIEFS TO MEET AT WESTFIELD

Exhibition of Auto Fire Engines to Be a Feature of the Session.

The State Fire Chiefs' Association will hold its semi-annual meeting at Westfield, on Thursday, April 3. This was decided at a meeting yesterday of the executive committee of the association, of which Fire Chief Doane is a member, at Trenton. At that time there will be an exhibition of the Webb and Nott auto pumping engines. There are about 300 fire chiefs in the State and owing to the fact that Westfield is so accessible it is expected that a majority will be present at the meeting. Chief Doane expects to have one of the meetings here in the near future.

The association met last year at Passaic and was largely attended. At the semi-annual meeting plans are discussed for the annual session which is held in Atlantic City in the fall. The Westfield firemen are planning to give the visiting chiefs a royal good time when they visit that town.

WILSON'S IDEA OF HUMAN LIBERTY

A Chapter In His Book "The New Freedom."

HE URGES PERFECT HARMONY

President Elect Gives His Profession of Faith on Big Subject—Says Politics Must Be Made Occupation In Which Honest Men Can Take Satisfaction. Tells What Freedom Consists Of.

Copyright by Doubleday, Page & Co.

One of the strangest chapters in Woodrow Wilson's new book, "The New Freedom," is that on liberty. It is as follows:

What is liberty?

I have long had an image in my mind of what constitutes liberty. Suppose that I were building a great piece of powerful machinery, and suppose that I should so awkwardly and unskillfully assemble the parts of it that every time one part tried to move it would be interfered with by the others, and the whole thing would buckle up and be checked. Liberty for the several parts would consist in the best possible assembling and adjustment of them all, would it not? If you want the great piston of the engine to run with absolute freedom give it absolutely perfect alignment and adjustment with the other parts of the machine so that it is free, not because it is let alone or isolated, but because it has been associated most skillfully and carefully with the other parts of the great structure.

What is liberty? You say of the locomotive that it runs free. What do you mean? You mean that its parts are so assembled and adjusted that friction is reduced to a minimum and that it has perfect adjustment. We say of a boat skimming the water with light foot, "How free she runs!" when we mean how perfectly she is adjusted to the force of the wind, how perfectly she obeys the great breath out of the heavens that fills her sails. Throw her head up into the wind and see how she will halt and stagger, how every sheet will shiver and her whole frame be shaken, how instantly she is "in irons," in the expressive phrase of the sea. She is free only when you have let her fall off again and have recovered once more her nice adjustment to the forces she must obey and cannot defy.

Human Freedom.

Human freedom consists in perfect adjustments of human interests and human activities and human energies.

We have got to make politics a thing in which an honest man can take his part with satisfaction, because he knows that his opinion will count as much as the next man's and that the boss and the interests have been dethroned. Business we have got to untrammel, abolishing tariff favors and railroad discrimination and credit dekals and all forms of unjust handicaps against the little man. Industry we have got to humanize, not through the trusts, but through the direct action of law guaranteeing protection against dangers and compensation for injuries, guaranteeing sanitary conditions, proper hours, the right to organize, and all the other things which the conscience of the country demands as the workman's right. We have got to cheer and inspirit our people with the sure prospects of social justice and due reward, with the vision of the open gates of opportunity for all. We have got to set the energy and the initiative of this great people absolutely free, so that the future of America will be greater than the past, so that the pride of America will grow with achievement, so that America will know as she advances from generation to generation that each brood of her sons is greater and more enlightened than that which preceded it, know that she is fulfilling the promise that she has made to mankind.

Purpose of Democracy.

Such is the vision of some of us who now come to assist in its realization. For we Democrats would not have endured this long burden of exile if we had not seen a vision. We could have traded; we could have got into the game; we could have surrendered and made terms; we could have played the role of patrons to the men who wanted to dominate the interests of the country—and here and there gentlemen who pretended to be of us did make those arrangements. They couldn't stand privation. You never can stand it unless you have within you some imperishable food upon which to sustain life and courage, the food of those visions of the spirit where a table is set before us laden with palatable fruits, the fruits of hope, the fruits of imagination, those invisible things of the spirit which are the only things upon which we can sustain ourselves through this weary world without fainting. We have carried in our minds, after you had thought you had obscured and blurred them, the ideals of those men who first set their foot upon America, those little bands who came to make a foothold in the wilderness because the great teeming nations that they had left behind them had forgotten what human liberty was—liberty of thought, liberty of religion, liberty of residence, liberty of action.

Since their day the meaning of liberty has deepened. But it has not ceased to be a fundamental demand of the human spirit.

FOR STATE CARE FOR DEFECTIVES

Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann Says That Such an Institution is Necessary Now.

Newark, Feb. 28.—A plea for a State institution for the care of defectives, similar to the Home for the Feeble-minded, at Vineland, which is privately conducted but assisted by State funds was made before the Men's Club of the Forest Hill Presbyterian church by Dr. M. P. E. Groszmann, of North Plainfield. His topic was "Defectives."

Dr. Groszmann assured his hearers that backward school children were not necessarily feeble-minded. He declared that sometimes they make the smartest people. The State law which says a pupil who is three years behind his grade must go in a special class is not a good one, he asserted.

"Under this law," he continued, "our future President, Governor Wilson, would have been in one of these kind of classes, because at the age of nine he could not read."

Children suffering from headaches, toothaches and other sickness are always backward, the speaker stated, and it is a fact that twenty per cent. of the school children suffer from headaches. Backward children were more often in need of a doctor than anything else, the doctor declared. He also said that the school teachers were often the cause of the backward scholar, adding that there were more than 500,000 teachers in the country and many of them were not "born teachers."

"Proper habits," according to the doctor, will do more than anything else to make bright boys and girls.

"A child who habitually speaks the truth at five will be an honest business man at thirty," he asserted. "The vast majority of our backward school children will make good future citizens under proper leadership."

WILLIAM MATTIS' FUNERAL.

Anderson, 412 New street, tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Rev. C. L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will officiate. Interment will be made in the Somerville cemetery.

BRIDGE TO CONNECT MANHATTAN AND JERSEY

Washington, Feb. 28.—Congressional approval for the renewed project of building a bridge across the Hudson River, between New York and New Jersey, is likely to be given before the adjournment of the present session of Congress.

The scheme for a Hudson River bridge has been talked of for many years. An act authorizing the organization of the North River Bridge Company, approving the building of such a bridge and aproaches, and designating the structure as a military and post road, was passed by Congress in 1890.

A bill reported favorably by the House Committee on Interstate Commerce, in April of last year, is on the House calendar, and is likely to be passed within a few days.

Congressman Scully, of New Jersey, said today that he expected to see the bridge bill passed and become a law before next Tuesday, or if not, at any early date in the proceedings of the new Congress. The bill passed the Senate a year ago, and now needs only the House's agreement and the President's approval to become law.

The pending bill extends the time for building the bridge for ten years, on condition that it is to be begun within three years after the passage of the act. Drawings and plans for the structure, which were once approved by the Secretary of War, are to be re-submitted before construction is begun. The bill also reserves to the States of New York and New Jersey the free and unrestricted right to erect other bridges between the States at any time they desire to do so.

PRESIDENT WILSON.

Woodrow Wilson's resignation as Governor will take effect tomorrow noon and James F. Fielder will be sworn in as the Governor of this State. Governor Wilson will, on the following Tuesday, be inducted into the office of President of the United States, being the first citizen of this State to hold that great office since the adoption of our Constitution in 1787. This is a great event for our people. He will be the first Democratic President since Grover Cleveland turned the office over to William McKinley in 1897, and when he is inducted into office an entire change in the political control of the nation will take place and the Democratic party will come into full power.

The Congress of the United States, it has been announced, will be called in session on April 1 next and we shall see the Democratic party enter upon its new duties. The first thing which will probably engage their attention will be the readjustment and revision of the tariff. This will be looked forward to with great interest and much concern by the business men of the nation. If it shall be radical, no one can predict the consequences. If it shall be reasonable, no harm will be done. That there is a strong sentiment for a reduction of the present high tariff duties is unquestioned.

The Progressive and Democratic parties have declared for a downward revision of the tariff. The Payne-Aldrich Bill adopted in 1908 at the special session of that year, was never popular and has never been deemed to be a fulfillment of the promises made to the people by the Republican party, and the attitude of President Taft in connection with that bill had much to do with his downfall and failure as President of the United States.

President Wilson is not a radical. It is not believed that he will sanction any violent action on the part of Congress. He will counsel moderation and wisdom in tariff legislation. Much is expected of the new President. He faces a difficult situation. He is entitled to the support and confidence of all the people and if he shall exhibit the same character of statesmanship in his new office that has characterized his course as Governor of New Jersey, he may confidently anticipate public approval.

That he is a strong man intellectually, that his purposes are high and his patriotism unquestioned is the practically unanimous belief of the American people, and if he shall in his public career as President prove, as we have no doubt he will, that this belief of the people is well founded, he will close his term in the high esteem of his fellow citizens.

The first issue of the Plainfield Daily Press Literary Magazine will be issued in connection with this paper tomorrow and on every first Saturday in the month thereafter. Subscribers who fail to find the magazine enclosed in their copy of the newspaper tomorrow are kindly requested to promptly notify the office. The magazine is a superb one, unsurpassed by any issued by the biggest newspapers in the country, and we feel sure that all our readers will welcome it.

Each succeeding week, the editorial columns of the Plainfield Press are in charge of some representative Plainfielder who is free to express his own views in his own way on any subject or subjects he may choose to discuss. The contributing editor for tomorrow's issue will be A. V. D. Honeyman, editor of the New Jersey Law Journal, a retired newspaper editor and proprietor and a traveler of note.

MEXICAN FEDERALS BATTLE WITH REBELS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Mexico City, Feb. 28.—Gen. Hidalgo with 1,500 men and two batteries of artillery gave battle today to 2,000 rebels under Alberto Fuentes at Aguascalientes. Heavy fighting in the streets is going on there. Hidalgo's men, according to reports received here today, attacked the city at sunrise, bombarding the rebel positions with field and machine guns.

Although the rebels outnumbered the government forces, the latter drove the rebels from their outposts. the federals then entered the city taking refuge in various buildings.

CELEBRATES AT 100 YEARS.

Mrs. Anna E. Rutan, second cousin of Commodore Perry, celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. G. Edwin Pinchet, in Newton. The aged woman was surrounded by twenty-three of her descendants, representing five generations. Mrs. Rutan was born in Vernon, Sussex county, February 27, 1813.

PLEA FOR KINDNESS TO CHILDREN MADE IN PLAY.

"A Good Little Devil" Has Remarkable Speech For Little Ones.

In David Belasco's production of "A Good Little Devil" in New York there is one remarkable speech which Ernest Truex, in his fine performance of Charles Maclaine, delivers with such tenderness that all the big people in the audience go through the "business of swallowing bumps." The "good little devil" is starved and beaten by his cruel ogress of an aunt. Finally he steps out over the footlights and speaks direct to the audience this plea for the child:

"Mothers, fathers, everybody, do not be unkind. We are children for such a little while. Love is very fragile, children very small. Can't you hear the cry that is raised in all the land, the cry of those who are scolded without reason, without justice? Ah, do not be unkind! The cry is in the palace, in the village, in the hovel. Listen! Can't you hear it? I am no longer Charles, no longer a child in a fairy play. I am all children—all children who are wounded and hurt, whose lonely hearts are broken by punishment and neglect.

"All the children in the world have asked me to speak for them tonight. And all the grown up children, too; the men who have failed, who are too weak, too dumb with sorrow, to speak for themselves; all the bewildered, the neglected, the terrified, the forgotten—all have have asked me to speak for them tonight. I am no longer Charles—I am just a little boy laying bare his heart to try to make you understand.

"You may punish little children with severity and hatred, but never so will you win them to be good. No. The hands that are holding these old world weapons are growing feebler and feebler every day. They are dying, they are dying, they are dead, and love is coming into the hearts of men."

Mme. Rostand and her son, Maurice, are the authors of "A Good Little Devil," but it seems safe to assert that only a mother could have written such a speech as this.

AMERICAN PRISONERS FREED

Several Men From United States Escape In Exodus From Mexican Prison.

Arrivals recently at Laredo, Tex., from the City of Mexico say that hundreds of the 4,000 convicts who were released from Belem prison by the rebels during the first outbreak joined the Diaz standard.

Besides the 4,000 Mexicans who were confined therein the prison held about twenty-five foreigners.

Among the foreign prisoners who were liberated were George I. Ham, a Canadian, former president of the United States Banking company of the City of Mexico, who was convicted of wrecking that institution and under sentence of twelve years. Others were Robert Crump, an American and former president of the Federal bank, which failed a few years ago; Benjamin Wilson, an American, held on demand of the United States government, pending extradition, to answer charges of fraud, which he is alleged to have committed in Oklahoma, and Larry Martin, who shot and killed Dr. Clarke in the City of Mexico nearly two years ago.

WHAT CONCERNS HIM ALSO CONCERNS YOU

Count Okuma, in a recent communication, declares that "altho Christianity has enrolled less than 200,000 believers in Japan, yet its influence has poured into every realm of Japanese life. The English language and literature, so surcharged with Christian ideas, have exerted a wide and deep influence on Japanese thought. Christianity has affected us not only in such superficial ways as in the legal observance of Sunday, but also in our ideals concerning political institutions, the family and woman's station." He adds that he is "much concerned about the moral education of Japanese youth. Intellectual education by itself has high moral value, but it is not enough."

This is certainly an unbiased tribute to the far-reaching effects of the Christian religion as applied in what may be termed a virgin field. It should make us think deeply and seriously. In our own country men have stood so close to Christian privileges that they have failed to see the entire scope of its great energies. Will the boys and girls of our country be in any better or safer condition with mere intellectual training? Surely the men of our community should see an opportunity and a responsibility to a generation of developing youth in leading them by example to association with the great religious interests of their country. It is a duty that every man owes to society that he should consider seriously and effect upon others of his attitude towards religious concerns. A father should think not only of his own predilection, but of a far deeper responsibility which he owes to the children of his own household. He can certainly help them more from within the Christian than he can outside of the Church. **

FINLEY PRESIDENT OF CLEVELAND MEMORIAL ASSN.

The incorporation of the Grover Cleveland Birthplace Memorial Association met at Caldwell last night and effected an organization by electing the following officers: President, John H. Finley; vice president, Judge W. A. Day; treasurer, Thomas H. Buckner; secretary, William H. Van Wart; executive committee, Messrs. Finley, Day, Buckner and Van Wart and Cleveland H. Dodge, Oscar S Straus and Rorbert Lyn Cox.

Arrangements were discussed at the meeting for a fitting celebration to mark the founding of the national memorial to Grover Cleveland at Caldwell on March 18. A fund of $18,000 has already been raised to purchase the old Cleveland home at Caldwell.

ALL ORDERS ARE ISSUED FOR INAUGURATION TRIP

Trenton, Feb. 28.—Final details were completed today by Adjutant General Wilbur F. Sadler and Quarter Master General C. Edward Murray for sending the New Jersey Troops to Washington for the inauguration of Governor Wilson as President. The troops will comprise the Second, Third and Fourth Regiments, the First Troop of Cavalry and the Signal Corps.

It was said in the Adjutant General's office that it will be the finest military representations this State has ever sent anywhere. The three regiments will be recruited to the full peace footing of 68 men and 3 officers to a company. Each regiment will have 12 companies, making over 2,500 in the command. Acting Governor James F. Fielder and his military staff, mounted, will march at the head of the New Jersey Troops in the inaugural procession. The troops will be in command of Acting Brigadier General John A. Mather, of Camden.

NEW YORK AMUSEMENTS

Werba & Luescher have scored a tremendous success with "The Master Mind" at the Harris theatre, in West Forty-second street. That the cast headed by Edmund Breeze has met with a hearty reception is shown by the universal favorable comment of the dramatic critics and as a result seats are selling eight weeks in advance. Matinees are given on Thursdays and Saturdays and at the Thursday matinees popular prices prevail. The Evening Sun says the show is "a gripping play of mystery, love and revenge," while the New York Press refers to it as "a second Raffles." "An emotional ripper admirably acted," is the comment of the Tribune and the Evening Telegram adds that "Nick Carter never did anything quite so wonderful." The World announces that it is "full of thrills," and all the other critics say about the same. The seats are sold out at every performance and it is well to get them in advance.

Those work seekers who expect to find a job through one publication of a want ad are sometimes disappointed—though not always.

Classified advertising will sell that piano for its cash value.

RECEIVER ORDERS PLANT TO CLOSE INDEFINITELY

The Mitchell-Watchung Silk Company's plant in Chatham street closed last night indefinitely and 150 employes, residents of this city, have been thrown suddenly out of employment, the receiver, H. W. Runyon, of Jersey City, issuing the orders it was reported today. Several meetings of the officers of the company, the creditors and the receiver have been held and it was thought for a time that the financial troubles of the defunct concern could be straightened out. The order in bankruptcy was caused by J. B. Strum, a raw silk importer, of Broome street, New York city. The assets and liabilities are said to be approximately the same, viz.: $180,000.

As told in the Daily Press exclusively the cause of the failure of the silk company is attributed to recent strikes of the employes for more wages.

MR. WILSON'S LAST DAY AS JERSEY'S GOVERNOR

Trenton, Feb. 28.—Governor Wilson practically completed his work as Chief Executive of the State yesterday when he signed 24 bills passed by the Legislature. Following his conference yesterday with Vice President-elect Thomas B. Marshall, of Indiana, and entertaining Mr. Marshall at lunch the Governor returned to the State House, cleared up the work on his desk and then devoted himself to consideration of the legislative measures.

The Governor is not at the State House today but will be here tomorrow to witness the inauguration of Senate President Fielder as his successor at noon tomorrow.

State House Custodian Weseman began today the decoration for the inauguration of Mr. Fielder. The decoration consists entirely of American flags and palms, the latter being banked in front of and on either side of the speaker's desk in the Assembly chamber.

Albert Early, teacher of mathematics in the Borough High School, will attend a conference of the State Association of Science Teachers at Newark tomorrow.

BIG BROADWAY SUCCESS HERE TOMORROW NIGHT

William A. Brady's production of George Broadhurst's best play, "Bought and Paid For," with the original cast, will play at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon and night. The production is a remarkably strong piece of dramatic construction, straight, forward in its action and in its dialogue, human in its theme and vivid and realistic in its effect.

The company engaged in the presentation is an ideal ensemble; Miss Herne as Virginia and Mr. Millward as Robert Stafford, have the problem or serious portion of the play. To M. Wright, who is the "Jimmy," and Miss Drake, who is the "Fanny," fall the humorous portion. Some of the situations in which they find themselves are serious enough to themselves, while to the audience they are irresistibly funny.

BLACKHANDERS LANDED IN UNION COUNTY JAIL

Joseph Jenoluso and Phillip Caspiglio, tailors, of Monroe street, New York, who sent "black hand" letters to John Capitelli, a wealthy grocer of Westfield, demanding $2,000 under pain of death, were taken this morning to the county jail in Elizabeth. Arrested Wednesday night by County Detectives John Gallatian and Buckley, and questioned by Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., in the local jail, the men were arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace E. R. Collins, in the Westfield court.

Jenoluso was held in $5,000 bail to await the action of the grand jury on a charge of blackmailing and was held in bonds of $1,000 on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. Caspiglio was also held in the latter amount for the grand jury on the same charge. When arrested both men carried .38 calibre revolvers, fully loaded.

CZAR TO CELEBRATE BIRTH OF THE ROMANOFF DYNASTY

Tercentenary of Rule of His House Will Be Elaborately Observed.

The plans for the celebration of the tercentenary of the accession of the Romanoffs to the imperial throne of Russia are practically complete. The government has introduced a bill into the duma for the appropriation of $2212,500 to cover the expenses of the ceremony and to assist the authorities of the smaller cities which will entertain the emperor and his family in the course of the year.

The actual anniversary, March 6, will be celebrated at St. Petersburg. The trip to Kostroma, where the imperial crown was tendered to Michale, the first Romanoff emperor of Moscow, where he ascended the throne of Vladimir, and also the voyage to other towns associated with the early history of Russia, have been postponed until the end of May, when the weather will be more favorable.

These towns, although capitals of Muscovite principalities, are so behind the age that the tour of the emperor will at once involve some actual discomforts and give him an opportunity of coming into close contact with his unprogressive subjects. The monasteries and churches in some instances are so small that it will be necessary to import priests and vessels for the sacred services.

PLANS POLE DASH IN 'PLANE.

Captain Amundsen Will Try to Use Machine in Arctic.

Captain Roald Amundsen made public in Chicago recently his first definite statement concerning his projected north pole trip. He said:

"From San Francisco the Fram will sail north, heading for Bering strait, and in the breakup of the ice beyond there next spring will push in as far to the drifting ice fields as possible. When we can get no farther we shall establish ourselves, protect the ship by building an ice wall high around it and settle down for our five years of drifting.

"We shall be equipped with a high power wireless plant, and with the peculiar arctic adaptability to the etheric vibration we can doubtless maintain communications with the United States government stations in Alaska for some time, possibly two years.

"Should the drift not carry us directly to the pole," added the explorer, "it would be a great disappointment, but to guard against this I plan to take an aeroplane along if some aviator will volunteer to make the final dash to the north pole with me. I shall never be happy until the Norwegian flag has been placed at both poles. And I am relying on an aeroplane to take it there, for the Fram has only one chance in a thousand to strike the exact spot."

EGG DIET LAYS UP ATHLETE.

Runner of University of Pennsylvania Is Made Ill by Food Test.

Jim Bodley, University of Pennsylvania middle distance runner, is one of the students in the medical department who recently submitted to a severe test in order to prove that a man could subsist on an egg diet exclusively. As a result Bodley was laid up and could not run on Penn's two mile relay team at the Columbia indoor meet in New York.

Bodley had to go four days without eating. Hot water was the only nourishment during this period, but he reported daily for work on the track. At the end of the four days the men daily ate a dozen eggs for six days. Nothing but eggs were allowed, not even salt.

After the second dozen Bodley became ill, and the other day he collapsed in the classroom and was taken to the hospital.

BACHELOR REARS CHILDREN.

Aged New Jersey Man Has Brought Up Twenty-six Adopted Little Ones.

After raising twenty-six children, all of whom have become successful, Joseph Hinchman, a bachelor, eighty-eight years old, of Merchantville, N. J., is recovering from the first illness of his life. Hinchman adopted all the children when they were infants.

A plentiful diet of fat salt pork is the food recommended by the old farmer, and each of the foster children was fed liberally with this meat. At the age of twenty-one the children were cast on their own resources regardless of their success on the farm. From all their earnings their foster father deducted the expenses of board and clothing and placed the balance in the bank until they became of age.

None of the children lives on the farm now.

INVENTS DYNAMITE PLANE.

Flies Without Aviator and Drops Bombs.

"I have invented an aeroplane that will fly in a direct line without an aviator and devices by which bombs can be dropped from it at any indicated time after the start," said Harry N. Atwood, Boston aviator, recently. "It will travel 100 miles or more and could drop its bombs over a besieged city or hostile fleet. The aeroplane itself will be built of dynamite and guncotton, so that when it has discharged its cargo it will fall to the earth and explode, destroying the engine."

Atwood said his torpedo plane will be ten feet wide and, with cargo, will weigh about thirty pounds. Atwood says Secretary Meyer of the Navy department has approved his plans.

"I don't know much about music but I know what I like"

That's the case with most of us! The trouble is, we don't get enough of the particular kind we like. But if you and every member of your household were accomplished musicians you'd all have all of the music you love best. For instance:

Father likes—
Silver Threads Among the Gold
Last Rose of Summer
Love's Old Sweet Song
Old Hundred
Mighty Like a Rose
Ben Bolt
Swanee River
Old Oaken Bucket
Schubert's Serenade
and all the dear old "live-forever" tunes.

Mother likes—
MacDowell's Wild Rose
Chopin's Nocturnes
The Blue Danube
Berceuse from Jocelyn
Grieg's To the Spring and everything of that sweet and gentle character.

Mary likes—
The Rosary
Tosti's Goodbye
Grieg's Butterfly
Dvorak's Humoreske
Prologue from Pagliacci
Celeste Aida
The Schumann Etudes
The Liszt Rhapsodies
Brahm's Hungarian Dances and Oh! Oh! Delphine—deep in the "classical" but tempered by the best of the popular.

Helen likes—
Narcissus
Mendelssohn's Spring Song
Hearts and Flowers
Pinafore
Henry VIII Dances
and all those compositions in which pure, gentle melody is dominant.

George likes—
Any Place the Old Flag Flies
Oh, You Beautiful Doll
She's My Daisy
When that Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabam' and everything of the Cohan, Lauder, Bert Williams, Irving Berlin nature that is not more than two months old.

Jerry likes—
Marching Through Georgia
Stars and Stripes Forever
Dixie
The Soldiers' Chorus
Sousa
and everything that goes with a swing and a whoop and a bang.

But you are accomplished musicians—every one of you—heart and soul and all but fingers. And the eighty-eight "fingers of air" in enable you to play as though your ten fingers were the most talented fingers in the world. The Pianola Player-piano puts the world of music within your easy reach. You can make your own kind of music and all of it.

The Pleasure the Pianola Brings

It isn't only the joy of having this world of music which the Pianola Player-piano brings to each of you—it is also the even greater pleasure of making it yourself.

Never say again, "If I could only play"—

You can play. With the Pianola Player-piano you have at your fingers' ends a repertoire such as no one of the great pianists possesses. You have a mastery of the Sustaining Pedal such as only a master commands. In the Themodist you have the facility for bringing out the air of the composition above the harmony. And in the wonderful Metrostyle you have absolute control of phrasing and expression.

The Treasure the Pianola Brings

But the desire, the yearning for music which the Pianola Player-piano fills is only the first of its advantages.

The culture, the taste, the breadth of vision, the education, the enthusiasm which familiarity with great and good music will bring to your sons and daughters is the greatest and most permanent advantage which the Pianola Player-piano gives—and which nothing else can supply.

Come to Aeolian Hall to be sure that it is a genuine Pianola Player-piano that you select—for only in the genuine Pianola can you have the exclusive expression devices which will bring you the kind of music played in the way you, yourself, wish to play it.

Player-pianos sold in other stores are not "Pianola" Player-pianos. Remember this.

You pay no more to have the Pianolas' advantages—and, further, the Pianola Player-piano you choose, whether at the lowest price or the highest, is the very best piano, that price will buy—chosen from such instruments as the Steinway, Stroud, Stuyvesant, Steck, Wheelock and famous Weber.

Genuine Pianola Player-pianos range in price from $550 upward. An investment as low as $25.00 will put a Pianola Player-piano in your home to enjoy now—the balance to be paid on convenient monthly instalments.

The two young men will open a high class custom shoe store in the building about March 19. For a number of years Bebout has been employed by the Waldorf Shoe Company in the local store of the company. SCIENTISTS TELL OF APE ANCESTRY

Thirteen Savants Uphold Evolution Theory.

SUPPORT DARWIN'S IDEAS.

In Essays Printed in the Biblical World They Describe All Proofs and Show How Teachings of Scriptures Must Be Reconciled With Scientific Facts—One Sounds Alarm.

Famous scientists went on record recently to uphold the Darwinian theory of man's evolution from the lower animals. A symposium of opinion of leading savants of the United States gathered on behalf of the Christian people of the universe by Dean Shailer Mathews of the University of Chicago was published in his magazine, the Biblical World.

The magazine asked the question, "Do you believe in evolution?" So far it has received replies from thirteen of the leading astronomers, geologists and biologists of America. All answers were affirmative. The conclusion is drawn that Christians must reconcile the teachings of the Bible to the theory of Darwin rather than to refute it.

Sounds Warning to Christians.

An editorial preceding the views expressed by the scientists reads:

"Many earnest Christians are afraid of evolution as something which will destroy their faith in God and Jesus Christ. Indeed, no thoughtful person can fail to perceive the dangers to religious faith implied in certain philosophers which are based upon evolution. But such apprehensions are sometimes expressed unfortunately. The public, for instance, has been widely assured that 'evolution has collapsed.' Such an affirmation involves a question of fact. If evolution has collapsed scientists, particularly astronomers, geologists and biologists, would be the first to know.

"If it has not collapsed the religious world must discover a way in which evolution can be utilized as one of the revelations of God's will. Accordingly, in order to get at the opinion of the scientific world, the Biblical World asked a number of the leaders of American science to give an answer of not to exceed 100 words to the question, 'Does modern science still believe in evolution?' The unanimity of response makes it apparent that our theological thinking cannot ignore, much less deny, the place evolution is holding in our modern world. For our own part, we believe that, so far from being inconsistent with the gospel, evolution furnishes one of the means by which we may better understand the relations of God with this world."

Opinions of the Scientists.

Some of the opinions expressed by the scientists are by William Patten, professor of biology and zoology, Dartmouth college: "Evolution is the accepted doctrine of the natural sciences to the extent that it has long ceased to be a subject of debate in standard scientific journals or in the organized conferences of men of science. It is no longer a question of whether this, that or the other has been evolved, but rather of when and how and why it was evolved. As for biologists, they are now further from agreement as to what constitutes the processes and conditions essential to organic development and further from mutual understanding or from a just appreciation of both the supplementary and antagonistic views held by their colleagues than they were a year ago.

"This is an index of real progress along divergent lines, too rapid for the pioneers to keep in constant touch with each other or with the rear guard. The brief reports of individual success or failure on the frontier which from time to time reach the public ear are, as a rule, unintelligible to the layman. They are sometimes improperly utilized to proclaim a general defeat or a general victory for this or that cause, to allay partisan fear or encourage partisan hope. Allow me, a soldier in the ranks, to report that there is but one army in the field, that the fight moves bravely on toward 'the light' and science and humanity lead."

Firmness of Theory.

By Jacques Loeb, Rockefeller Institute For Medical Research, New York: "Modern science believes more firmly than ever in evolution. Less is today written on the subject than formerly because modern biologists find it more profitable to experiment than to argue. Two essential groups of data have been added since the days of Darwin as the result of experimental work. First, it was shown through a blood reaction which was discovered in connection with work on immunity that a close relationship exists between man and anthropoid apes; second, breeding experiments by Mendelian methods have established the fact of the independent disappearance of hereditary factors for unit characters in the germ."

By Henry Fairfield Osborn, president of the American Museum of Natural History, New York: "Evolution has long since passed out of the domain of speculation, of hypothesis and even of theory. It is a law of living nature as firmly and incontrovertibly established as the law of gravitation in respect to the celestial spheres."

A SIMPLE PROBLEM.

The Section Boss Easily Got the Tool House in the Right Spot.

About ten years before the Eastern railroad was leased by the Boston and Maine that portion of the old road between Swampscott and Salem was in charge of Section Foreman Timothy Moynahan.

His strongest point was in doing just as he was told and doing that with energy and accuracy. So when he was notified from Beverly by Roadmaster Stevens that the section lengths were to be changed and that he was to move his tool house from the westerly end of Salem yard to halfway between mileposts 15 and 16 he started out with the determination to move the house halfway, no more, no less.

To get this halfway point he stationed one of his men at milepost 15 and another at milepost 16, and at a signal they started to walk toward each other until they met, and to a point opposite their meeting place the shanty was moved. This method of getting the correct distance did not quite suit Moynahan, especially when he remembered that one of the walkers was taller than the other and the other tripped several times on the way down.

He carried this in his mind for nearly a year, when he met the engineers measuring through for signals and asked them to tell him as they measured if his house was just halfway or not.

When the measurement was taken, the house was found to be sixty feet nearer milepost 16 than 15, and Moynahan, on being told, remarked that he thought he could fix things just right.

Later in the year the engineer met Moynahan in Salem and asked him if his tool house was now halfway between the mile posts.

"It is," he replied. "It's just halfway."

"Did you have much trouble moving it?"

"No trouble at all. I just let it stay as it was and moved the milepost."

Rough on Aunt Anna.

When Rev. Anna Howard Shaw's little grandniece of eight confessed to her mother that she could not be a suffragette because the other children made fun of her, her wee sister of six fiercely exclaimed, "I wouldn't be a coward: they've been making fun of Aunt Anna for hundreds of years!"

None to Spare.

In the days when the Clyde was navigable to Glasgow for only very small vessels, a steamer stuck in the mud near Renfrew, and the skipper was not sparing in strong language. While waiting for the rising tide he saw a little girl approaching the river with a bucket to fetch some water. This was too much for the poor captain, and leaning over the side and shaking his fist in rage at the little girl, he thus addressed her: "If you tak' ae drap o' water oot here till I get afloat, I'll warm yer ear for't."—Scottish American.

GENERAL HUERTA IS LOOKED UPON AS AN UNUSUAL TYPE

Man Who Overthrew Madero Was Considered Fine Example of Loyalty.

Is Member of Higher Class, Wealthy Landholder and Exporter.

HUERTA SPEAKS TO CROWD.

Huerta, following his overthrow of Madero, made a speech to a great crowd that gathered in front of the national palace. He appeared on a balcony and was wildly cheered.

"The killing of brother by brother is over!" he cried. "The people should embrace one another and live in peace. They need peace so that they may develop their land and industries."

He assured his hearers that he had taken the presidency with no desire to serve any personal ends and would hand over the government to the man duly elected. He would be proud to hand to his sons the legacy of a duty performed.

VICTORIANO HUERTA, who recently won the provisional presidency of Mexico by cleverly turning upon Madero and making him prisoner, has always appeared to the American onlookers in the Mexican situation as a rather unusual type of Mexican general. Many an American, sticking close to his investments in that troubled region, has felt a distinct disinclination to talk Mexican politics with the leading natives, because it would be impossible to guess at the real sympathies of the leader addressed. But Huerta throughout the recent uprisings had always been considered a shining example of loyalty to the administration. He was one of the men who stuck to Diaz to the bitter end, not so much because he was devoted to the president, but because he was a federal general, an officer of the government, and so long as Porfirio Diaz was the government just so long Victoriano Huerta fought for Diaz. The moment that Diaz resigned and De la Barra became provisional president of Mexico Huerta began to fight for De la Barra.

When Madero was elected president of the republic Huerta became a fighter for Madero, although he had been one of the stubbornest fighters against him so long as Madero was a rebel. Huerta has always been considered orthodox, and because of his very considerable ability as a general he became Madero's right hand man in military matters.

Madero Relied on Huerta.

That is how it happened that when Madero began to experience the excitement of being rebelled against, instead of doing most of the rebelling himself, it was Huerta who as general was sent out to obliterate his enemies. The chief command, however, was not granted to him until Gonzales Salas, in charge of the federal forces at first, committed suicide after the defeat of the federals at Corralitos, near Jiminez, in March of last year. After the suicide of Salas, Huerta, who had formerly been in command of the federal forces in Morelos, took charge of the campaign to subdue Orozco and spoke of that rebellious critic of the Madero regime with as much fine scorn as he had once been wont to heap upon the head of Madero himself.

The news that Huerta had decided to succeed Madero could not shock the already jangled nerves of those who were sensitive because of their heavy investments in Mexico. Americans in the comparatively safe coast towns of Tampico and Vera Cruz have brought back word that at least ten claimants to the presidency were to be found in the field in various disguises of loyalty to Madero and the federal cause. Each of these has done some plotting and entered into secret deals with different foreigners resident in Mexico, making vast promises of federal patronage and concessions in return for a little immediate material assistance. Many a frantic appeal for prompt intervention by the government at Washington has been interpreted as inspired by a fear that some such investment was about to fail dismally.

Huerta Suspected of Early Plot.

So to the canniest of Mexican observers it has seemed highly probable that at any moment some comparatively inconspicuous general would step forward and call himself the successor to Madero. Even Huerta, with all his reputation for sobriety in the midst of revolution, has not been above suspicion, and it was not very long ago that there was an open prediction that he was scheming to unseat his chief.

This prediction was made last September, when an unusually savage outbreak of anti-Maderist sentiment had enlivened the City of Mexico, where the citizens paraded the streets with uproarious "vivas" for the banished Diaz. On that same day, Sept. 14, an American newspaper received an illuminating dispatch from that observation outpost of Mexican affairs, El Paso, Tex.

"Rumor is persistent that Mexico is on the brink of another revolt against the organized government," the dispatch said, "and that this time it will come from within, from the federal army. General Huerta is determined to be the military dictator and even military president of Mexico. He has expressed himself to his followers to this effect. Unless he is taken care of there will be a new revolution, for he is the acknowledged leader in the new movement to restore the military power to the control of Mexican affairs."

Huerta Protests Loyalty.

This predicted overturn of the Maderist administration was scheduled for Sept. 16, the Mexican independence day in celebration of the release from the ancient domination of Spain. Queries were rushed to Huerta as to his attitude in the matter, and his reply was indignantly haughty:

"I am not Orozco," he said, with a fine show of contempt for the man who had revolted against Madero. "I vouch for the loyalty of the army. We will hold a celebration in Juarez on the national holiday, but it will be merely one of patriotism and nothing more. I am a soldier and nothing more."

The news of Huerta's ascendency aroused the greatest interest among New Yorkers who have Mexican interests and who have recently returned to this city from the vicinity of the trouble. Edwin M. Macpherson, who is directing large engineering schemes in Mexico, received the news at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

"General Huerta is one of the higher class Mexicans, a man of the De la Barra type," he said. "He is a man of large means, a member of the Mexican gentry. He has large ranch lands and many cattle. He does a very considerable export business to the United States, shipping to the Swift and Armour people. So Americans know him, and know him very favorably. Almost all foreigners who are guarding their investments in Mexico would feel a considerable degree of confidence in General Huerta and would welcome his control of affairs."

Story of His Life.

Victoriano Huerta was born in the state of Chihuahua some fifty-six years ago and as a lad of seventeen went to Mexico City and entered the military school at Chapultepec. Immediately after his graduation from that institution he entered the active service and by successive promotions reached the generalship he held at the time of the Maderist uprising against Diaz. Huerta was called into consultation by the elder Diaz after the capture of Juarez and counseled against resignation. He wanted 3,000 men and, with that force, promised to retake the city, but the opportunity was not granted to him, and, with the resignation of his chief, he was recalled to Mexico City. He headed the escort that attended the exiled Diaz as far as Vera Cruz, and it was Diaz's parting injunction that Huerta should support the administration.

A rumor of a break in the outwardly friendly relations between Madero and Huerta came only a few days ago, when one of Madero's brothers openly criticised Huerta's handling of the federal forces against the rebel Orozco. Men who knew Huerta guessed how furious that would make him and suspected that it caused later events.

TWO YEARS OF REVOLUTION IN MEXICO.

1910. June 26.—Porfirio Diaz reelected president. Rebellion planned for election day frustrated by proclamation of martial law in border towns.

1910. November.—Insurrection breaks out in northern states. Francisco I. Madero proclaims himself "provisional president."

1911. March 7.—President Taft orders 20,000 United States troops to Mexican border and is reported to have given Mexico until May 1 to restore peaceful conditions.

1911. May 10.—Insurgents recapture Juarez in fight costing many lives and establish provisional government.

1911. May 25.—Diaz resigns presidency and De la Barra is made president pro tem. pending new election.

1911. Oct. 1.—Madero chosen president at general election; inaugurated Nov. 6.

1912. January - December.—Fighting between Madero's troops and various insurgent bands.

1912. Oct. 16.—General Felix Diaz, nephew of president deposed by Madero, seizes arsenal and garrison at Vera Cruz.

1912. Oct. 23.—Madero troops recapture Vera Cruz; Diaz taken prisoner, is court martialed and sentenced to death, but is saved from execution by Madero.

1913. Feb. 9.—Army revolts in the City of Mexico, releases Diaz and Reyes and captures arsenal under leadership of Diaz.

"Growler" Put Under Ban.

The excise board of the District of Columbia recently delivered a hard blow to "growlers." A ban was put on the sale of beer in buckets. Not only is the "growler" trade to be cut out, but all thirst satisfying parlors must be designated by the proprietor's name.

TRY A PRESS WANT AD.

EUFEMIO AND EMILIANO ZAPATA

Herein are shown Eufemio and Emiliano Zapata, two notorious Mexican bandits who have been operating with a strong band in the revolt ridden country for some time. Under the policy proclaimed by the Huerta government it is planned to rid the country of all rebellious tribes, and a firm hand will be used in suppressing all opposed to the present administration.

"MAC" SAYS

Two basketball games here tonight Plainfield High School will line up against Yonkers High School at the Y. M. C. A.

The Nonpareil's game with Trenton to decide the State championship will be played at Saengerbund Hall on Somerset street. The Capitol City Y. W. C. A. five won the first contest and the locals will have to win out in this one or retire from the race.

A record was established in the Senior-Faculty game at the Plainfield High School Wednesday afternoon when the two contesting aggregations sent a total of twenty-one men to the fore. The Seniors had fourteen men playing on their team at different times while the Professors had half that number.

Although Jack Martin leaves for Bermuda tomorrow morning he has written a story on the National game before leaving and it will be published on this page tomorrow. Watch for and read what Plainfield's big leaguer has learned while traveling around the big circuit.

Martin, of Westfield, and Rimmer, of Hope chapel, the same combination that refereed the Plainfield-North Plainfield High School game at Saengerbund Hall last Saturday, will officiate at the deciding game for the Ritz cup to be played tomorrow night. The Y. M. C. A. Ajax and Hope chapel are the contenders and each has won a game to date.

A representative group of the First Presbyterian boy scout patrol, of this city, will perform in a wall scaling contest at Madison Square Garden tonight in connection with the annual Sportsman Show being conducted at that place.

The Y. M. C. A. first team goes to New Brunswick tomorrow night to lineup against the strong Somerset A. C. aggregation that has been issuing so many challenges to basketball quintets of the first-class in this section.

JACK MARTIN GOES SOUTH WITH YANKEES TOMORROW

Jack Martin, of this city, will leave with the final contingent of Yankees tomorrow morning for Bermuda aboard the Arcadian. The members of the squad will go on board at 9 o'clock tonight and the boat will leave for its southern trip about 1 o'clock tomorrow morning. Those who go with Martin are Ray Caldwell, Chester Hoff, George McConnell, Patrick Green and Albert Schulz, all pitchers; Williams, catcher; Malcolm Barry, first baseman; Ralph Young, second baseman; Claude Derrick, Douglass Harbison and "Bill Stump, shortstops; John Priest and Ezra Midkiff, third basemen, and the outfielders, "Birdie" Cree, Harry Wolter and "Bert" Daniels. Williams has not yet signed.

BIG GAME TONIGHT.

The second basketball game to decide the New Jersey feminine basketball championship will be played at Saengerbund Hall tonight at 8 o'clock with the Nonpareil girls, of this city, and the Trenton Y. W. C. A. maidens as contestants. The first game which was played some weeks ago at the Capitol City resulted in a victory for the Trentonians, who won out in the final minute of play, by two points.

Y. M. C. A. VS. SOMERSETS.

Because Manager Paul Cheek, of the Sayreville A. A. basketball team, cancelled his engagement with the Somerset A. C. five to be played at New Brunswick tomorrow night, the Somerset manager was forced to scout around for a substitute and succeeded in signing up the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. quintet. The game will be played in this city, however, because the Somersets depend upon the renting of a hall and could not secure it for this week. The game bids fair to be a good one as both teams are speedy ones.

GRACE CLUB FIVE BEAT HOLY CROSS

Home Players Scored a Decisive Triumph Over Close Rivals.

Playing on their home court last night the Grace church boys club basketball team scored a decisive defeat over the Holy Cross youngsters with a count of 47 to 37. The scoring was unusually high on the part of both aggregations and the forwards rang up large tally cards, especially Cottrell and Conroy, the former totaling twenty-two points and the latter twelve.

At the end of the first half the score stood 19 to 14 in favor of Grace but the home team put on an added spurt in the final period and came out in the last half with an even bigger margin.

The score:

DRISCOLL'S WOMAN STAR DESCRIBES SOUTHERN TRIP

Although Dave Driscoll, the Plainfield baseball team's captain and first baseman, has arrived in Porto Rico with his aggregation of All Stars and is now playing a series with the natives of that place, nothing has been heard from the local pilot in regard to his trip, but Mrs. Isaac Kilbourn, mother of Miss Carolyn Kilbourn, the New Brunswick girl baseball player who accompanied Driscoll, has received a letter from her daughter describing her voyage.

The team made the trip on the steamer Brazos, and among the distinguished passengers aboard was Cardinal Farley. The New Brunswick girl took her camera with her and snapped a number of scenes on the voyage.

She reports having enjoyed it thoroughly and was not seasick a bit, although they encountered a heavy storm the first night out. Baseball was played on deck several times and a minstrel show entertained the passengers one evening. Miss Kilbourn says the trip was one of joy and reports being in the best of health. She found the passengers a very nice class of people and very sociable, also made many friends.

The letter does not say anything about her arrival or the reception accorded her because the letter was sealed the night before the boat landed in order to catch an outgoing steamer.

P. H. S. AT Y. M. C. A.

Plainfield High School will shift its basketball schedule to the Y. M. C. A. court tonight where the P. H. S. five lines up against Yonkers High School. Earlier in the season the New Yorkers won a close game from the locals and the Plainfielders are out for revenge this trip.

LOCAL BALL PLAYER MAY COACH BATTIN

Lew Wiltse Mentioned as a Possible Candidate for Elizabeth School.

Lew Wiltse, of Netherwood, the professional baseball player, who has made a reputation for himself in both minor and major ball circles, is considering an offer from the alumni association of Battin High School, of Elizabeth, to coach the baseball team of that school during the coming spring. It is understood that the Elizabetheans are hot on the trial of the local star and have laid all other considerations aside until Wiltse makes his decision. If the Plainfield ball player consents to teach the Battinites the how and why of inside baseball he will be compensated to the extent of $100, but whether or not these figures are satisfactory to him cannot be determined.

As was the case during the basketball season, a big break is prominent in Battin athletics and this pulling apart has proven a great detriment to the welfare of the school's sports. The alumni association is now on its own "hook" in the baseball matter. Formerly the Battin authorities assisted in the movement but since a disagreement between the alumni and the principal of the school, it has been decided by the graduates to conduct the nine themselves. The question of raising the funds for the maintenance of a coach has been settled. It has been decided to ask every male student in Battin High School and in Battin Annex to contribute ten cents. If everyone donates the sum designated it will amount to $50. Letters will be written to alumni members asking them to give something and this is expected to result in $50 more.

STRICKLETT OUT OF GAME.

Inventor of Spitball Says He Has Quit Baseball For Good.

Elmer Stricklett, the inventor of the spitball, who played some years ago with the Brooklyn club and was later with Joe Cantillon's Milwaukee Brewers, has deserted baseball after nearly twenty years of service to embark in the furniture business in Sunnyvale, a small town near San Jose, Cal.

Stricklett had played ball in every important league in the country and is best known to baseball perhaps for his jumping qualities. He is one of the few players who have never suffered materially from jumping from organized into outlaw ball, and he has jumped more leagues than any pitcher who ever faced a batter.

PLAN TEAM WORK FOR BASKETBALL

"Stereotyped Style" Is Needed In This Indoor Sport Now.

CLOSE GAMES ARE FAVORED

Fans Also Prefer Seeing Contests Worked Fast and Mechanically Whenever Possible—Should Break Up Close Guarding Games.

"Stereotyped basketball" is the latest. The close guarding game taught by college and school coaches makes a new mode of attack imperative for the team so guarded—an attack that will increase opportunities for scoring.

The average basketball fan delights in seeing a game full of accurate and regular shooting, just as the average baseball fan prefers a 7 to 6 score to a 1 to 0 score. He also delights in seeing the game worked fast and mechanically wherever possible.

The advancement of baseball and football along this line of unselfish team work has moved the progressive basketball coaches to think up a premeditated attack that will break up a close guarding game of the opposition and to increase the scoring possibilities also.

The problem is to break up the close guarding game and still encourage team work. A solution has been found in the introduction of the blocking game. The ones to do the blocking should be the guards, since they generally are better adapted for this work because of their heavier weight.

The forwards, generally speaking, are lighter, but the better shots, and accordingly can be utilized to better advantage if freed from their gluelike adversaries by their own guards, who can do the prying, thereby giving the forwards free rein to shoot.

The time to attack in baseball, known as the psychological moment, is the second the opposition relaxes. This moment occurs not once in a basketball game, but often. Every time the ball goes out of bounds or when the teams line up after the caging of a basket is a moment of relaxation. In order to get the best results "strike while the iron is hot" is a recognized law that fits this case exactly.

The plan of attack is to sacrifice the guards in the passing department of the game when the ball goes out of bounds or, better, to make them perform both the duties of a passer to his teammates and a blocker to the man of the opposition who tries to play the close guarding game on these occasions.

As the ball goes out of bounds the team which has caused it to do so immediately is put on the defensive.

The old method of the offensive team, which is still used, was to try to evade the defensive five by dodging tactics. The new game is to have the guards outguess the opposition by playing a guarding game when he (the opposition) feels they will run away.

However, it is not to be surmised that you play the man who tries to play you; but, on the contrary, you block one of his teammates while he is attempting to follow you—that is, if A is a guard he picks out a man who tries to cover his forward and blocks this man for a second so that his (A's) forward will get free for the time required to shoot a basket.

Cleverly executed, this act if performed by both guards of the offensive team leaves the offensive forward free, with the possible chance of a foul being called on the defensive team because the guards while blocking also are being guarded, putting two of the defensive team about one of the offensive.

The plays devised to put this style of attack into practical execution are the kind that require a hard, heady bunch of players. No players of a roving or slipshod type can hope to attain success with them, and, like everything else, steady, persistent practice is the only means of gaining the desired end.

GREAT SWIMMING MATCH IN SIGHT

Charles M. Daniels May Oppose Duke Kahananoku.

HAS NOT LOST FORMER SKILL

In Recent 100 Yard Swim "Human Fish" Came Within One-fifth Second of Old Record—Daniels Will Not Enter Competition Again.

No item of swimming news has in years created such a stir in aquatic circles as the recent report that a match race of a hundred yards would take place this season between C. M. Daniels, the idol of American watermen, and Duke Kahananoku, the Olympic hundred meter champion and record holder. Ever since the lanky Hawaiian broke into the limelight about a year ago followers of natation in this country have been eager to see him pitted against the great Mercury foot paddler, whom they still looked upon as undefeatable. Unfortunately Daniels had already announced his permanent retirement from the competitive field, for his many business and social engagements no longer permitted his training, and he refused to reconsider his decision. It looks now, however, as if the meeting would be arranged.

Recently Daniels went to New York from Buffalo, where he is living, and paid a visit to the New York Athletic club natatorium. He had not done any swimming in some time, and curiosity about his form led him to go a hundred yard trial under the watch. To the surprise of himself and every one present he tore off the century in 56 1-5 seconds, within one-fifth of the best time he ever made in the slow local pool. Immediately his old team mates clustered around him, begging him to consent to devote just one more season to the sport that he might try conclusions with Kahananoku.

KAHANANOKU AND DANIELS WHO MAY CLASH IN SWIMMING MATCH.

He was at first obdurate, but so insistent were his friends that he finally agreed to do some work and take on the islander in a friendly match, if the latter were willing. Of reentering open competition he would not hear. Still, a match is a match, and whether held privately or publicly it will just the same prove a test of supremacy.

Joseph Ruddy of the New York Athletic club's swimming committee has received a letter from Kahananoku saying that he will be back in the United States some time in February, and as the Hawaiian is nothing if not a good sportsman Ruddy anticipates no difficulty in getting him to face Daniels, and he hopes to pull off the sensational event in the home club.

That Daniels is as fast as ever there can be no doubt, and many are confident that if he trains properly the world's indoor record of 55 2-5 seconds is at his mercy. Kahananoku has been unable to touch this mark in a pool, but his open water times are better than Daniels'. To the unbiased observer there is little choice between the two men at the classic distance, but the feeling is prevalent among the fans that Daniels has never had to exert himself to win and that when the time comes to defeat his formidable rival he will rise to the occasion as he always has.

WILLIE RITCHIE, MODEL PUGILIST

New Lightweight Champion Is Fond of the Simple Life.

HOW HE BECAME A FIGHTER

When Home In Frisco Was Destroyed by Fire and Earthquake He Took to Boxing Game to Earn Living—His One Weakness Is Ice Cream Sodas.

"Soubrette" of the prizefighters is the latest designation for Willie Ritchie, the lightweight champion of the world.

Willie is a mere lad with rosy cheeks, brown eyes, white teeth and a complexion as clear as a girl's. He is a liver of the simple life, he looks like the idealistic pictures of a choir boy, and when one converses with the fighter he momentarily expects him to break forth in a carol or cantata. Likewise he has what the Bertha M. Clay type of novelists call a "chiseled" nose and a "molded" chin.

Willie attributes his power and skill to clean living. But he has one vice that his friends fear may prove his downfall—a sinful craving for ice cream soda. When he walks along the streets it is a terrible temptation to pass the girl thirst emporiums and to know that within are fancy glasses and strawberry sundaes galore. He has to use his full power of control to pass by with his head turned away, for he believes in only a moderate indulgence of his vice, for too many sundaes would be as bad as too many highballs in a way.

Willie's worst jag is a box of candy, and he is awfully fond of layer cake with chocolate icing. But Willie manfully puts the brakes on his sweet tooth and shuns temptation—not that he cuts out the sweet stuff altogether, but he only indulges in moderation.

Willie dresses simply in a sort of Bunker Bean before-the-fall style, and he eschews diamonds.

He explains the diamonds thusly: "I don't want folks to get in the habit of looking around for my diamond and when they spy it saying, 'Oh, there he is,'"

Willie never lets his dad see him fight. "Believe me, a fight's no place for a boy's father," he says.

It was the San Francisco earthquake that sent Willie in the prizefight game.

"In San Francisco, after my home was destroyed by the earthquake and fire, I had to do something to take care of myself," he said. "I worked in a garage all day and boxed at the gym at night. One evening I attended a 'meeting' where there was to be a boxing match. One of the boys didn't show up. They called on me, and I took his place and won. I earned seven-fifty that night, and I bet it was the biggest seven-fifty ever in captivity.

"If my mother had lived I don't suppose I'd ever have been in the game now."

TAFT AND CABINET READY TO SCATTER

Will Leave Washington Next Week—President and Family Go to Georgia.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—President Taft and the members of his cabinet are packing up in anticipation of the exodus next week. The departure of the President and his official advisers and their families will leave many gaps in Washington society. Many of the present cabinet officers have had a residence in the capital for ten years in various capacities, while the Secretary of Agriculture has held his post for fifteen years consecutively. The time for their retirement is at hand, however, and the most of them will probably leave Washington for good.

President Taft's plans for the immediate future have been completed. Immediately after the inauguration of Mr. Wilson, Mr. Taft, with Mrs. Taft, Miss Helen, and several friends, will leave Washington for Augusta, Ga., to become the guest of that city until March 27, staying at a hotel there. When his vacation in the South is concluded Mr. Taft will go to New Haven to take up his duties as a law professor. He will reside permanently in New Haven, but will spend his summers at Murray Bay, Canada.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Knox came to Washington twelve years ago, when the former entered the cabinet of the late President McKinley. During their long residence here they have become thoroughly identified with Washington society. With the change of administration, however, they intend to give up their residence here. They have planned a trip to Florida, to begin the day after inauguration. They will be at Palm Beach and other resorts until the first of May, which month they expect to spend in Washington. They will then go to their summer estate at Valley Forge for the summer and in the fall they will return to Pittsburgh, where Mr. Knox will re-enter the legal profession.

Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury, is the only member of the cabinet who intends to retain his residence in Washington. Before he entered the cabinet Mr. MacVeagh was engaged in the wholesale grocery business in Chicago. When he took up his official duties, however, he practically severed his business connections and he does not contemplate taking up an active career again. He has a handsome home in Washington and expects to divide his time between this city and his old home in Chicago.

The Secretary of War and Mrs. Stimson, the very last addition to the present cabinet, will return to New York, where Mr. Stimson will resume the practice of law.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Wickersham will leave Washington immediately after the inauguration and one week later they will depart from San Francisco for a trip around the world. Their travels will occupy six months and possibly more. Upon their return home they will resume their residence in New York. Mr. Wickersham expects to re-enter the law firm of Strong and Cadwallader, of which he was the senior member at the time he entered the cabinet.

Postmaster General Hitchcock's plans for the future are not definitely settled. He has been a resident of Washington for many years, but it is understood that he will leave the city when he retires from office. He will take a long vacation in Europe and upon his return he will probably reside in New York. It is understood that he has several good business offers in that city.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Meyer, who have been active leaders of Washington society, will be greatly missed. Immediately after inauguration Mr. Meyer and his family will go to Florida for a month. He will give up his residence here the latter part of April, when his lease on the magnificent house he occupies in Scott Circle will expire, and will remove to his summer home at Hamilton, Mass. Eventually Mr. Meyer will resume the active management of the importing firm of which he was the head until 1900, when he entered national public life.

The Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Fisher, who joined the cabinet circle about eighteen months ago, will return to Chicago, where Mr. Fisher will re-enter the law firm of Matz, Fisher and Boyden.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, the ranking member of the cabinet in point of service, expects to return to his old home in Tama County, Iowa, and re-engage in farming.

The Secretary of Commerce and Labor and Mrs. Nagel propose to return to St. Louis, where they made their home prior to Mr. Nagel's appointment in 1909. Mr. Nagel will resume the practice of law.

SURPRISE PARTY.

Miss Hazel Clark, daughter of Mrs. Samuel Clark, of George street, was given a surprise party at her home, last night. The affair was arranged by Frank Clark. The evening was spent enjoying dancing and vocal and instrumental music, with solos by Harold Seals. The guests were the Misses Adelaide Cole, Jessie Duncan, Mary Duncan, Ethel Neill and Elizabeth Doig, and Clifford Cole, John Heron, Thomas Heron, James Doig, Russell Cratsley, Harold Seals, George Leighs, Frank Clark and David Wardrop.

"You Have Such a Complete Collection of Warner's Rustproof Corsets"==

exclaimed a customer the other day in the Wanamaker Corset Salons.

That is because we believe in them.

Every corset that comes into this store must be one of three things---fashionable, comfortable, scientific. Warner's Rustproof Corsets combine all three of these essentials.

They are designed by a firm known all over the world and which keeps in touch with the latest fashions of Paris.

Our customers tell us that Warner's Rustproof Corsets are not only comfortable to wear, but that it is also satisfactory to know each pair is guaranteed not to rust, not to break, not to tear.

And the Warner Company stands back of that guarantee. It gives a new corset for every Warner Rustproof Corset that by some chance may fail.

Warner's Rustproof Corsets for Spring are very long over the hips to give the slender silhoutte, and very low in the bust to give the natural figure.

They are made of soft, light-weight materials which are nevertheless strong and enduring.

They are unusually dainty in their trimmings and finish.

Warner's Rustproof Corsets in a variety of models for all types of women.

Redfern Corsets made by the Warner Company are authoritative in style and thoroughly comfortable. They are priced fom $5 upwards.

PROF. AXTON'S TALK MOST ENTERTAINING

Princeton Man's Lecture on "Kipling and Imperialism" Proves a Rare Treat.

"Kipling and Imperialism," was the subject of an address given by Professor Stockton Axson, of Princeton University, at the Plainfield High School, last night, under the auspices of the Plainfield Princeton Club. It was one of a series of lectures arranged by the local club to arouse local interest in the university. Despite the stormy night the High School auditorium was well filled.

Prof. Axson is most familiar with the work of Kipling and it was a real pleasure to listen to him. His English pronunciation and gestures in reciting various verses from memory, afforded rare entertainment and frequently convulsed the audience.

Referring to his subject, Prof. Axson said: "Some people, say for instance inhabitants of some foreign island, ask only that they be left alone, in other words unhampered by the highly civilized world. Is this right; should we leave them alone? Let us see! Land is a matter of conquest—a fight between the strong and the weak. The imperialists claim that to do as these people desire is following the laws of the jungle and we would not be here today if this law was carried out. Indians would inhabit this great country.

"Going to war is a serious matter, however, and to acquire territory is a still more serious matter. In the works of Kipling he has fully discussed that great problem, 'governing men,' and when his lessons are learned, then there will be less war."

Throughout his lecture, Prof. Axson gave numerous illustrations to prove his assertions that Kipling in his poems of war and the battlefield, has avoided the heroic and romantic exploits of military life. He recalled incidents on the early life of the great writer, compared him with other writers and recited verse from "Tommy Atkins," "That Day," and "Soldier and Sailor, Too."

So enthusiastic was Prof Axson received that when he concluded he was obliged to respond to an encore, in response to which he gave another selection from Kipling.

Exceptional Values Are in Our Bedding Department

Our entire Spring line of bedding was on the ground floor of our warehouse at time of fire. None of these goods were even scorched, but some of them got wet, but these have long since dried; others got soiled in handling, which prevents us from selling them as new goods. They are, however, as good as new, and all are to be sold at a fraction of their worth.

BUY NOW AND SAVE 75c ON EVERY DOLLAR

The selling of the past few days has been terrific, but the assault on this mammoth stock has had no visible effect. Thousands upon thousands of hitherto unheard-of bargains await you. We have been able to reach only half the merchandise on the top floor of our warehouse, and there are five full floors to be sold. The further we go into the stock, the less damage do we find. In a majority of cases the wrappings have proved sufficient to protect the furniture from all damage. The wrappings were water soaked, and that is all. The insurance companies paid for every piece of this stock as a total loss, and as a consequence you can purchase them at but a small fraction of the manufacturers' cost. There isn't a single article required in the house that you will not be able to find here at a

NOTES FROM LABOR FIELD

Organized labor has twenty-one representatives in the present Ohio Legislature.

The officers of the International Typographical Union are preparing a history of that organization from its formation in 1850 to the present time.

Robert Glockling, president of the International Brotherhood of Bookbinders, and one of the pioneers of the labor movement in Canada, died recently in Indianapolis.

The executive board of the United Mine Workers has decided to levy an assessment of $1 per member throughout the country to raise a fund to assist the strikers in Colorado and West Virginia.

The executive board of the Journeymen Tailors' Union of North America recently decided by unanimous vote not to take any active part in the Garment Workers' strike in various Eastern cities.

Many labor organizations throughout the country are arranging elaborate programs for Memorial Sunday, which the American Federation of Labor has fixed for May 25 this year and the day will be generally observed.

New York has jointed Massachusetts in prohibiting the industrial employment of women within four weeks after childbirth, and the prohibition of the employment of women in general for more than fifty-four hours a week.

Because the Hod Carriers' Union of Fresno, California, went on strike to enforce demands for an increase in wages without first consulting the Fresno County Building Trades Council the union is now threatened with expulsion.

One result of the work of the California State Labor Bureau during the past year has been the elimination in a large measure of child labor in the State and the laying of a firm foundation for the enforcement of the child labor laws.

Nearly two hundred thousand employes will benefit by the recent inauguration of the $10,000,000 sick benefit, insurance and pension fund which has been put into effect by the Western Union Telegraph Company, the Western Electric Company and the Bell Telephone Company.

The I. W. W. hopes to reduce the working day of the shirt makers in Paterson, N. J., from ten to eight hours. In order to make the union of the shirt makers more effective the cutters, operators, starchers, ironers and other employed in the industry are being brought into the one organization.

Increases approximating ten per cent. in the wages of railway conductors, trainmen and engineers, with improvements in certain general conditions under which the men work, are being demanded of all the railroads in eastern Canada, including the Canadian Pacific and the Grand Trunk Railroads.

By referendum vote the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America has decided not to build a home for the aged and infirm members of the order, nor a home for consumptive members or a sanitarium for those afflicted with other kinds of sickness. The establishment of the proposed homes would have involved an expenditure of about $350,000, which the members considered too great a burden at the present time.

INTERNATIONAL DEBATE.

Winnipeg, Man., Feb. 28.—The first contest of the new triangular international debating league, composed of Fargo College, the University of North Dakota and the University of Manitoba, takes place tonight and promises to be one of the most interesting events of the college year. Each institution is represented by two teams, one debating at home and the other abroad. The subject of debate is: "Resolved, That for Canada and the United States the responsibile form of cabinet government is better than the presidential form."

OVER 75,000 STOCKHOLDERS.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—More stockholders than the company ever before had on its books shared today in the distribution of the Pennsylvania Railroad's quarterly dividend. The amount of cash disbursed was $6,808,169. This was divided among 75,495 stockholders, which was nearly 1,000 more than the company had on its books at the November dividend period. Of the present stockholders 36,457 are women.

SPORTSMEN'S SHOW OPENS IN GARDEN

A Plainfield Boy Scout Patrol Will Take Part in the Show Tonight.

The Presbyterian boy scout patrol, of this city, will perform at the Madison Square Garden Sportsman's Show tonight in a wall scaling contest. The Plainfielders have been drilled by an expect along this line and expect to put up a sterling exhibition of this particular phase of scoutcraft.

The call of the wild, as depicted at the show yesterday, caused it to be patronized by more devotees of outdoor life than has ever attended an opening session of any similar exhibition. Everything which could gladden the hearts and fill the eyes of the believers of the "back to nature" idea was very much in evidence.

One of the finest exhibits was that of a naturalist who shows at least 100 different varieties of heads of animals taken in "hunts" all over the world. Chief among these is a wonderful steer's head, which, following the curves of the immense horns, measures eleven feet from tip to tip, and nine feet across. It was said that the animal which carried the horns weighed only 900 pounds, and was probably easy of capture because of being tired by the great weight of the horns.

Another beautiful set shown were taken from a sable antelope and describe a perfect semi-circle, tapering from a diameter of two inches to almost a pinpoint. Others in the collection are those from such animals as the Sitatongua, Lichwe, Pookoo, Black Wildebeeste, Eland and buffalo, all adding to a wonderful collection.

What promises to be a distinct novelty in the shooting and an invention which had its first demostration yesterday in public is a moving picture target, in which there is a perfect relation from camera to target, the latter being portrayed on a sheet steel board eleven feet square and taking the nature of animals in hunting scenes, birds, &c.

The part of the picture board in which is shown the animal to be shot at is sensatized and only when the object is hit is a contact made, and the fact recorded by the ringing of a bell in the shooting booth. Six persons can shoot at one time, and it is possible for the operator to tell who of the shooters located the object, which, after the manner of moving pictures, is invariably on the go in the scene depicted.

There were exhibits in place from the woods and lakes of Maine to the Everglades of Florida, and as far West as the Rocky Mountains. Each attracted its expectant onlookers. Contests at angling and trap shooting, as well as the shooting between the schoolboys from the local institutions who gave ample demonstration of their proficiency as gained by the subtarget work which is now a feature of part of their education in the schools.

The activities of the boy campers in showing their camp life under favorable and unfavorable circumstances, were shown in the arena at the Fourth Avenue end of the Garden. The scenic back ground showing towering mountains in the distance, provided "atmospnere" for the boys in their work.

The many exhibts created much favorable comment among the visitors during the afternoon and evening. One that particularly was carefully inspected was a portable house similar to that used by Dr. Wilfrid Grenfell in Labrador. This house is exactly the same as is used by the arctic explorer, with the exception that Dr. Grenfell's is not so carefully completed.

ELIZABETH STORES BURNED.

Elizabeth, Feb. 28.—Fire swept tarough the new three-story brick building, owned by Richard Thompson, at 51 Broad street, yesterday and damaged practically all the interior. Every room in the building was flooded. Thompson said this morning that he was unable to estimate his loss. I. Pockrass, a clothier; Thomas Reilly, a baker, and the owner of the Imperial Pool Parlor, whose store occupy the first floor, lost heavily. All the tenants, including Thompson, his wife and child; Riley and his family, and a man named Bertleson, were awakened by Patrolman Hilderbrand, who, with Patrolman Orthluf, guided them to safety. They had time to dress but practically all their valuables were left behind. On the northerly side of the Thompson building and adjoining it without any intervening space, is the Prudential building. This escaped damage. Frame buildings on the south side also escaped damage, owing to prompt work by firemen. The fire started in a near brick extension of the Pockrass store. The cause has not been determined.

REPUBLICAN CLUB DISBANDS.

Rahway, Feb. 28.—The Rahway Republican Club has voted to temporarily disband. It hs sold its furniture and pool tables and divided up among its few remaining members the balance of its effects. The club has been in existence fourteen years and for years had a membership of 600. It was decided to retain the board of governors, pay its debts, but give up its quarters, hoping in time to be revived.

TUMULTY AND KERNEY INVADE WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the President-elect, arrived in the capital yesterday, and with James Kerney, editor of the Trenton Times, is today holding a number of important conferences with members of the inaugural committee and members of Congress.

Mr. Tumulty has taken a house here at 2311 Calvert street, where his family will join him on Saturday. The section of the city in which the secretary has elected to live is on "the Heights," commanding a view of the beautiful Rock Creek Park and of the million dollar Connecticut avenue bridge. His modest but attractive ten room brick residence is just across the street from the handsome marble mansion of Senator Reed Smoot, the Mormon apostle from Utah.

Colonel Thomas H. Birch, personal aide on the staff of Governor Wilson, who with Walker Vick, secretary of the inaugural committee, last week completed the arrangements for the arrival and entertainment of Governor Wilson and his guests, arrived today with Mrs. Birch, and established new New Jersey Democratic and military headquarters at the Raleigh Hotel.

SUFFRAGETTE SHOW AT PROCTOR'S A SCREAM

The year is 1920, the scene is in a court room, the jury, the judge and the lawyers are women, the court officer and the defendant are men. The case on trial is a breach of promise. The arguing which is most effective is the singing and dancing performed by the classy chorus jury, the plaintiff in her dance in which the defendant disliked and which caused him to throw the plaintiff over was prettily executed. The act is cleverly staged and Proctor's is to be congratulated on the good show. Burke and DeRhone singers, dancers and some comedy were delightful. The Four Howards in the comedy skit "The Wrong Mr. Corbett," tells the tale of a man who impersonated J. J. Corbett and the conclusion is a screaming burlesque prize fight. Al Edwards, the blackface musical comedian, everybody enjoyed. Wilson and Aubrey knockabout comedians, burlesque wrestlers and gymnasts had the audience in convulsions with their queer antics and wrestling. They are the children's favorites.

IN WOMAN'S REALM

The KITCHEN CUPBOARD

OYSTERS WITH SAUCE.

BY cooking oysters in sauce or serving them with it almost an unlimited variety of dishes may be evolved with this popular shellfish.

These Are Easily Digested.

Oysters In Cream Sauce.—Take a couple of dozen oysters and boil them in their own liquor. In a separate pan mix a tablespoonful each of butter and flour and two small green onions. Thicken a pint of milk with this mixture and add to it the twelve drained oysters and a cupful of chopped mushrooms. Allow to come to a boil. Place in shells or ramekins. Strew breadcrumbs over the top and stand in the oven for ten or fifteen minutes. Even an invalid can eat oysters cooked thus.

Oysters In Tomato Sauce.—Take three dozen oysters, three cupfuls of boiled rice, two slices of bacon, two tablespoonfuls of canned tomatoes, a tablespoonful of butter and salt and pepper to taste. Melt the butter in the frying pan, then put in the tomatoes and bacon. Cook a few minutes, add the oysters and cook five minutes, then stir in the rice. Cover and set in a warm place for twenty minutes before serving.

Novel Ways of Cooking.

Oysters In Bechamel Sauce.—For this sauce make a thickening of eight ounces of flour and four ounces of butter. Moisten with two quarts of milk. Add a bouquet of parsley, bayleaf and thyme tied together, two onions, a pinch of white pepper, with a little salt, and cook for two hours. Allow the oysters to come to a boil in milk. Then put in empty oyster shells which have been well scrubbed or in small ramekins. When the oysters are in the shells cover with bechamel sauce and sprinkle the surfaces with grated Parmesan cheese and melted butter. Place on a baking dish and stand in the oven until brown.

Oysters In Worcestershire Sauce.—Take a dozen small oysters. Heat them in their own liquor enough to make the meat solid, then strain off the broth. Cut very thin twelve strips of bacon three inches long by one inch wide; cover them with English mustard mixed with Worcestershire sauce. Then put an oyster on each slice and wrap the oyster in this devilled bacon. Put the oysters on a metal skewer, sprinkle with breadcrumbs and broil until cooked brown. Serve on long, narrow pieces of toast with lemons and pour melted parsley butter over them.

FASHION HINT

By JUDIC CHOLLET

At this season of the year women like to make their summer waists, and the model illustrated will doubtless appeal to them as exceedingly good looking.

There is a yoke across the back of this waist, and the sleeves are cut in one with it, while the fronts are full and joined to the yoke. The sleeves are long and finished with deep cuffs. Frills are much worn made of dotted swiss with waists of handkerchief linen.

For medium size this waist requires three and a half yards of forty-four inch material and half a yard of thirty-six inch fabric for the frills, one yard of ribbon for bow and three yards of embroidery binding.

This May Manton pattern is cut in two sizes, 34 and 40 inches bust measure. Send 10 cents to this office, giving number, 7689, and it will be promptly forwarded to you by mail. If in haste send an additional two cent stamp for letter postage. When ordering use coupon.

And Latest Effect In Spring Tunics.

FROCK OF FRENCH GRAY LANSDOWNE.

That a plaited skirt may be kept in extremely narrow lines is evidenced by this French frock of dove gray lansdowne—a silk and worsted weave—which has an entirely new tunic over a side plaited skirt.

ROYAL AUTHORESS.

Infanta Eulalia of Spain Writes a Beauty Book.

The Infanta Eulalia, aunt of King Alfonso of Spain, has published another volume, entitled "For Women."

A former book by the princess, "The Thread of Life," was published in defiance of the king.

"Women ought to be beautiful," says this royal authoress in her new book. Their beauty, said Ruskin, can never become too great for the good of humanity nor spread too far its light. Ugliness in a woman is a painful thing that exercises a most depressing influence on those about her. On the other hand, a beautiful face creates cheerfulness and stimulates human effort.

The woman upon whom the tired eyes of her husband after his day's work do not rest with pleasure is failing in her proper role, which is to be a center of harmony, a mirror of beauty. The world pardons many faults to a beautiful woman because she adorns the world and on which she confers a "favor," as Emerson said, by the mere fact of her presence.

For Amateur Photographers.

People fond of taking amateur photographs or who have photographs which they wish to place in their rooms will find the ready made easel backs to attach to them a great convenience. These are 10, 15 or 25 cents a dozen, or they may be had in a set of three sizes to make up. Glue is provided with these sets and a tube of library paste as well, the whole for 50 cents. Another handy item is a little box of tags in three sizes, which are excellent for the baggage of the person who makes week end visits. Three dozen tags in a box are priced at 25 cents.

Practical Gloves.

Practical, economical and smart looking gloves which will appeal particularly to the well dressed business woman are made on the heavily stitched mannish order and fasten with a single large button. They strongly resemble glace kid, but may be as readily washed in a hand basin with soap and water as chamois gloves and, like them, come in tan and white.

Anti-suffragist Colors.

Black, white and American Beauty roses are the colors the anti-suffragists have adopted as a contrast with the vivid yellow standards of their "votes for women" sisters. At a recent gathering one black haired woman showed the possibilities of the "antis'" colors by wearing a gown of American beauty chiffon over white, with a black velvet picture hat.

William C. Redfield, former Representative from Brooklyn, is believed to be on the Wilson Cabinet slate for head of the Department of Commerce and Labor.

Mr. Redfield is an expert on the tariff, and he has made a study of the Philippines and everything pertaining to them. Governor Wilson sent for him several weeks ago and talked of both the tariff and the Philippines with him. The President elect has great admiration for him.

Tomorrow Opens the Great March Sale of Housewares

59,016 Household Utensils Specially Bought from Our Regular Manufacturers and Offered During March at Economies of 10 to 40 Per Cent.

NO "SECONDS" NOR SECOND QUALITY

There is no other Housewares Store to equal this, we believe, in the whole world.

FIRST. Its standard is unique. We do not sell seconds or second quality of any kind. We have too much regard for the health and life of our customers to sell damaged enameled ware, which will chip off, alowing the poisonous matter to be taken into one's stomach along with the food.

We have too much regard for our own reputation and for the good sense of the public to offer second qualities or imitations of any kind, which are always false economy.

SECOND. The Housewares Store is unique in the comprehensiveness and variety of stocks. Nothing is admitted that is not first proved out to be useful and economical. Everything is included that will be of real help in moden housekeeping.

THIRD. The March sale is unique in its general economies. Standard Wanamaker merchandise only is offered during March at reductions in price from 10 to 40 per cent.

Some of the Specific offerings are as follows:

Vollrath Enameled Ware, triple coated, speckled, seamless, first grade, full sizes and weights, sold all the year round—one-fourth to one-third under regular Wanamaker prices.

Kreamer's Extra Heavy Tinware, handmade, polished, pieced, one-fourth to one-third under regular Wanamaker prices.

Kreamer's Extra Heavy Galvanized and Japanned Ware, one-fourth under regular Wanamaker prices.

Aluminum Ware—the lightest and best of non-scorching utensils, one-fourth under regular Wanamaker prices.

940 "Ivory" Enameled Tea and Coffee Pots, 2, 3 and 4 pint capacity, $1.65 for $2.50 to $4.50 grades.

Duntley Hand Vacuum Cleaners, regularly sold for $11.75—in the sale $6.

A New Electric Iron that is sold for $5—now $2.50.

Wanamaker Dress Forms, regularly $12—for March $10.

Wanamaker Rotary Sewing Machines, lock and chain stitch combined, $30 for the regular $40 model—$2 down and $1 a week if desired.

Handmade Woodenware, of clear and selected kiln dried lumber, one-fifth under regular Wanamaker prices.

Bathroom Fittings, nickel plated on brass, one-fifth to more than one-third under regular Wanamaker prices.

Purity Refrigerator, one-fifth under regular Wanamaker price.

Dress and Steamer Trunks, 15 and 20 per cent to one-third under regular Wanamaker prices.

Bissell's Carpet Sweepers, branded "Household" $1.95 each.

Kitchen and Table Cutlery, averaging one-third under regular Wanamaker price.

In addition brushes, brooms, black and galvanized pails, ware, cabinets, mirrors, tables and a general stock of housewares, all at much under regular prices.

It is the great Spring replenishing time—important not only to New Yorkers but to the great circle of home owners in the cities and towns within 100 miles of the metropolis.

SPRING SHOES NOW READY

---and, First; Just a Word About

"QUALITY!"

Your first consideration in buying the new Spring Shoes—of course, will be Their Wearing Qualities.

"HIGH QUALITY" as you know has been the mainstay of VAN ARSDALE'S SHOE BUSINESS—and it's a matter of pride with us, yet it has been no easy matter to "KEEP THE QUALITY UP" this season in face of the greatly advanced leather prices. To accomplish it, we will tell you frankly that we have had to increase our prices in some instances; but we know that you would prefer to have us do this—rather than to have cheapened our Shoes.

Therefore, before looking at the new SPRING STYLES, bear in mind the ONE FACT, which after all is most important, to you, that:

AT VAN ARSDALE'S THIS SEASON YOU WILL GET SHOES THAT WILL WEAR AS WELL AS, OR BETTER, THAN ANY SHOES YOU HAVE PURCHASED IN PREVIOUS SEASONS.

and that is more than many a dealer can conscientiously say.

FURS AT HALF PRICE

We are announcing our sale and beg the people to consider it. The offers which we are making on our goods are such as the public will positively not be able to duplicate at any place or any time. High class goods at prices which you would pay for cheap, inferior articles elsewhere. The reason for our making this sale is plain to everybody, all having felt the warm weather, which results in our being heavily overstocked. It will pay the largest interest on your money to buy now even if you do not expect to get much wear from the garments this winter. The goods will be of use for several seasons as our styles are the latest staple designs and always in style.

COLD STORAGE AND REPAIRING FOR THE SUMMER AT SPECIAL PRICES.
